EDMONTON SECTIONAL SHOOT

Guns there are 727 invitees, 600 elk, 327 moose and 326 mule deer, a source of interest to members of tourists. To the south of the park is Cooking Lake forest reserve, flanked by Cooking Lake, Watson Lake and Hastings Lake public shooting grounds. Cooking Lake is also a popular summer resort for the people of Edmonton and northern Alberta in general. South again of the latter is the Millet, Leduc and Nisqualee Lake bird sanctuaries. There are a number of other public shooting grounds above upon the chart, the largest being Beaverhill Lake, northeast of Tofield.

The Edmonton sheet of the Sectional Map may be obtained from the Surveyor General, Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, upon application for the nominal sum of 25 cents in sheet form or 50 cents when backed or in folder form.

ST. JULIEN MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD SUNDAY

The anniversary of the battle of St. Julien was observed at the Fort last Sunday by the holding of the annual memorial service in the Memorial hall. There was a large attendance. The service was presided over by president G. J. Dawson of the local branch of the Canadian Legion. Prayers for the fallen in the great war, for the nation and for the Empire were offered by the chaplain, the Rev. E. R. Lockyer, rector of St. George's Anglican church. Several hymns were sung and two anthems were rendered by the choir. Mrs. Glover and Mrs. Baker contributed a duet, "The Plains of Peace."

The address was given by the Rev. Capt. G. G. Reynolds, P.P.C.L.I., of Holy Trinity church, Edmonton, and was of a very interesting character. His theme was of heroes, past and present, and he commenced with those of the most ancient times, referring to outstanding heroes of past centuries but dwelling chiefly on St. George, the patron saint of England, whose watchword, 'Courage and Endurance,' was shown to be typical of the national character of the English during the years of trial in the great war.

JUNIOR TENNIS CLUB ORGANIZES FOR SEASON

At a meeting of the junior tennis club held Tuesday evening the following officers were elected:

President—Olive Lane.
Vice-President—Gladys Hodgins.
Secretary-Treas.—Laurence Hodgins.
Executive—Irwin Hutton, Lily Tozer, Earl Lane, Dorothy Graham, Jean Ramsey.

The fees agreed upon were $1.50 for school children; $2.00 for adults and a special fee of $2.00 for school teachers. This provision was made so that boys or their absence during two summer months.

It was also decided that a free week of playing would be given from 30th April to May 6th.

All interested in the junior tennis club are asked to turn out Friday evening, April 27, to get the courts in shape for playing next week.

Everybody is cordially invited to join the club.

LOCAL REBEKAHS AND ODD-FELLOWS ANNUAL DANCE

The Princess Rebekah Lodge, assisted by the Fort Lodge I. O. O. F., held a successful dance in the Memorial hall last Friday. There was a very large attendance and happiness and heat radiated from the dancers, many of whom looked and felt like furnace registers. The decorations were pretty and the supper both dainty and ample, the only fly in the ointment sentiment being the unfortunate choice of orchestra, the members of which hailed from Edmonton and to which home we hope they returned in safety.

LEGUME CULTURES READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

Nitro cultures for the inoculation of various legume crops are again being distributed this season from the Vermilion School of Agriculture. Over 4000 bottles of these cultures were sent out last year to farmers in various parts of the province. The crops for which cultures have been prepared include mammoth red, crimson, white, sweet, alsike and Egyptian clovers, alfalfa, vetches, peas, perennial peas, cwes peas, garden beans, broad beans and scarlet runner beans. The cultures are prepared at a cost of 35 cents per bottle and will be sent post paid. Farmers requiring treatmen of this kind for their legume crops are advised to order early to ensure delivery.

Western Population and Education

There is at the present time such widespread discussion throughout Canada of the subject of immigration, together with its allied subjects of assimilation of non-British peoples into the Canadian family, education of both the native born and new comers, including mastery of the English language by the latter, that it is well people generally should have placed before them the actual facts and be guided by these facts rather than general assertions in support of which no proof is advanced. It is well that these discussions take place, provided they are fair and reasonable and based upon facts rather than hearsay. As a contribution to such constructive discussion of an important national question this article is written.

According to the official census figures for the three prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta for the years 1916, 1921 and 1926, the British-born and the foreign-born were as follows:

	British-born	Foreign-born	Total
MANITOBA
1916	426,126	117,794	553,920
1921	369,990	160,362	610,118
1926	514,092	110,982	625,040
SASKATCHEWAN
1916	446,026	201,809	647,835
1921	669,126	168,330	737,510
1926	611,070	104,699	699,737
ALBERTA
1916	329,036	167,099	496,135
1921	414,082	172,972	586,454
1926	430,756	123,636	554,372

The figures of British-born or foreign-born for the year 1926 do not include Indians, of which there were 13,256 in Manitoba, 13,083 in Saskatchewan, and 12,227 in Alberta.

The above official figures disclose the fact that whereas the total population of the three prairie provinces increased during the ten-year period 1916 to 1926, by 230,720, the British-born population increased by 250,089, the difference being accounted for by a decrease in the foreign-born population of 19,369.

Evidence as to whether or not new comers to these Western provinces and the Canadian-born children of parents of non-British origin are being assimilated into the Canadian family; also whether or not education of the people is keeping pace with the growth in population, is furnished by statistics of illiteracy compiled by the census commissioners, and set forth in the following table of persons ten years of age or over:

	Total	Illiterate	Per Cent. Illiterate
MANITOBA
1916	406,980	23,976	5.1
1921	452,196	32,952	7.09
1926	476,197	27,090	5.71
SASKATCHEWAN
1916	469,284	36,021	7.7
1921	527,268	51,237	9.86
1926	596,099	33,754	5.89
ALBERTA
1916	368,321	23,733	6.5
1921	434,066	23,427	5.15
1926	461,370	19,260	4.26

In other words, notwithstanding an increase in population in Manitoba of 69,217 persons ten years of age or over of 83,206 between 1916 and 1926, there were 4,986 fewer persons who could not read and write.

In Saskatchewan, with 136,775 more people ten years of age or over, there were 13,267 fewer people of the illiterate class.

In Alberta, where the number of persons ten years of age or over increased by 92,966, the number of the illiterate decreased by 4,146.

The official figures quoted in the above two tables conclusively show that the danger feared by many people of these Western Provinces losing their British and Canadian character is not being realized; that, on the contrary, the percentage of foreign-born to British-born is steadily decreasing.

They further establish the fact that steadily, even rapidly, the children and the younger generations of non-British settlers are learning to read and write English, thus fitting themselves to take their place in and be efficient members of a common Canadian citizenship.

The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has relieved her 50 years the standard with physicians. Can operated in water (teaspoonful to a glass) and is pleasant to take. Buy a bottle at any drug store. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Then you will get quick relief and not sour. The appetizing compound in the minutes.

Railway Take Rural Holiday

For First Time in Century No Bustle-ships Being Built

For the first time for many centuries, certainly as far back as the reign of Henry VIII., there is not a single battleship building anywhere, now that H.M.S. Rodney has passed into commission. "The Naval Holiday," which was proclaimed when the Washington Treaty was signed, has really begun.

With the Rodney be the last battleship to be constructed." That, is not an idle question. It concerns intimately the taxpayers of the British Empire, the United States, and Japan, if not also the peoples of France and Italy, whose representatives also signed the Treaty. Under the terms of that memorable agreement, the building of battleships will be resumed in 1931, and designs are already being prepared, at any rate in the United States.

New Fighting 'Planes

Machines Now Designed To Carry Guns On Wings

Fighting planes bearing gun turrets on their wings are being considered by the Air Ministry, it has been revealed. One big bomber has been designed for carrying three turrets, one on each wing tip and another in the centre. Another machine has a turret in the tail for mounting machine guns.

Royal Air Force officers are particularly interested in the tail turret design, which is said to have an "blind spots" or places where the gunners can not aim at a foe. On the planes with turrets beneath are provided so they can be manned while in flight.

NEW STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACHS

Indigestion Disappears When the Blood Is Enriched

The most urgent need of all who suffer from indigestion, biliousness or a sense of nausea is to enrich the blood. Pain and distress after eating is the way the stomach signals that it can't work to perform the work of digesting the food it takes. New strength is given to weak stomachs by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they purify and enrich the blood. This accounts for the speedy relief in stomach disorders that follows the use of this medicine. The value of this medicine in cases of indigestion is shown by the case of Mrs. George W. Johnson, Loyalist, N. B., who says:—"I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was greatly distressed with indigestion. Always after eating I suffered from pain in the stomach and other distressing symptoms. I tried different remedies, but without relief. Then I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which I did and I began feeling very grateful ever since to the person who gave me the advice. The very first box helped me and before I had taken a half dozen boxes I was cured of my former good health and all traces of this distressing trouble disappeared. It is now about a year since I took the pills, and I have not been troubled with indigestion since. I have taken every occasion to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to those in need of a medicine and shall continue to do so." A little booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent free to anyone asking for it. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Automobile Is Chief Offender According To Insurance Company Report

What causes accidents, anyway? Travelers Insurance Co. recently drew up a table of causes of accidental deaths based on its own statistics. The results are interesting and informative.

According to this tabulation, the automobile is the chief offender, 30 per cent. of all fatal accidents being caused by traffic. A close second is the home accident, which accounts for 26 per cent. Sports and recreation are in third place with 20 per cent.

Survey Of History Of Titles In This Country Reveals Very Many Points Of Interest

Now that the question of Canadians receiving titles is being revived at Ottawa, a survey of the history of titles in this country may be of interest.

The fact that titles had sometimes been conferred upon people who have not appeared to merit them, and that they did not quite chime with the democratic atmosphere of Canada, provoked the agitation against them a few years ago. It was even proposed to abolish existing ones. That would not only have been grossly humiliating to the possessors, but an insult to the King from whom they are supposed to come. Moreover, it would have been ultra vires of the Canadian Parliament to abolish something which had received royal sanction.

The history of titles in Canada goes back several centuries to the French regime, the oldest Canadian hereditary title being that held by Urgaud d'Iberville Charles Grant, Baron de Longueuil. This dignity was conferred upon his ancestor, Charles Le Moyne, who owned the largest seigneury in Canada, by Louis XIV., in 1700.

In 1880 Queen Victoria officially recognized the title now held by the eighth baron of the name, who lives abroad and is registered with the elect in Burke's Peerage. About 1726 Governor Rimoco proposed to found an aristocracy in Canada by bestowing baronetcies upon executive councillors whose sons would, of course, inherit the titles. His scheme came to naught, and since that distant day titles have been granted very sparingly in this country, generally to lieutenant-governors, chief justices, generals, premiers and federal cabinet ministers.

Not counting Canadian women who have married British titled men, and not taking into account British titled people who have settled in Canada, there are today approximately 140 "Canadian or pseudo-Canadian men and women with titles—the latters' titles, of course, being tributary to those of their husbands, living or deceased. This list, too, may not include all titled Canadians in other parts of the Empire.

According to the best information, the Canadian men who hold peerages are: The second Earl of Strathcona, the second Baron Shaughnessy, Baron Atholstan, Baron Beaverbrook, the ninth Baron Aylmer, and the eighth Baron de Longueuil, who, unlike the others, does not hold a seat in the House of Lords.

Canadian baronets or hereditary knights are Sir Edward Gordon Johnson (9th Bart.), Sir John Beverley Robinson (6th Bart.), Sir Francis Rose (4th Bart.), Sir Charles Stewart Tupper (2nd Bart.), Sir Gilbert Parker, Sir Vincent Meredith, Sir Joseph Flavelle, Sir Francis Knowles, (5th Bart.), Sir Hamar Greenwood and Sir Edward McKay Edgar.

The knights whose titles of course die with them are approximately: Sir Robert Borden, General Sir Arthur Currie, General Sir George Kirkpatrick, General Sir Percy Lake, Major-General Sir Frederick Loomis, Major-General Sir A. C. Macdonnell, General Sir William Otter, Major-General Sir Richard Turner, Major-General Sir Edward Burstall, Major-General Sir George Carey, Major-General Sir W. Hensher, Major-General Sir I. J. C. Herbert, Major-General Sir Richard Lake, Sir Allan Aylesworth, Sir Frank Barnard, Sir H. Cordeaux, Sir Robert Falconer, Sir John Gibson, Sir William Hearst, Major-General Sir Percy Girouard, Sir Lomer Gouin, Sir J. D. Hazen, Sir Edward Kemp, Sir Daniel McMillan, Sir William Mulock, Sir George Perley, Sir Redmond Roblin, Colonel Sir Percy Sherwood, Sir Clifford Sifton, Sir Thomas White, Sir J. A. M. How Much Water Should Baby Get?

—A Famous Authority's Rules

By Ruth Bennett

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, infants must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. At eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated from the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless state. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottle contains thirty-five doses.

Small Town Papers

BY

FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

Secretary to special correspondent Frank G. Carpenter, Washington Bureau, The Consolidated Press Association.

The Independent-Reporter of Skowhegan, Maine, has more than 4,500 subscribers, an advertising revenue of $21,000 last year, and half as much besides from subscriptions. But the editor wouldn't change places with the editor of any daily paper in the country.

These figures of income surprised me when one of the New England men at the luncheon table quoted them.

"They're not especially high," said the vice-president of one of the national country-paper organizations. "Higher than the average, but I could give you hundreds of examples of country weeklies with bigger incomes. Our organization has been trying to find out which weekly carried the largest volume of advertising for the past year. The highest figures we have got so far are from the Times-Record, of Spencer, in West Virginia, which has 17,283 inches during the year. Their rate is low for a circulation of above 3,000, only 52 cents an inch, but that gives them an advertising revenue of more than $22,000. I could name fifty country weeklies and dailies which regularly carry from 60,000 to 80,000 inches of advertising annually, at rates from 30 to 50 cents an inch."

"Maybe you'll believe me now," suggested Bert Hall, when I was trying to believe anything. But I owe current to know where all this advertising came from."

"Perhaps I per cent. of it is national advertising," replied the head of the organization. "Some of the rest we call it," explained the head of an agency that serves some 1,000 country weeklies. "The rest of it is local advertising. The local merchant is local people's mighty little of it is mail-order advertising; most of the foreign display of our weeklies which are handled by local merchants and in which a fair business is done advertising. And the foreign advertiser pays as high a rate as the local merchant, or higher in many cases."

"You can buy space in daily newspapers at 4c. a line, and your ad will be put in an editor from Oklahoma, "double column measure, no amount of used, the number of insertions in a year from four other countries added. The tendency in the country press is toward the larger unit of display, not smaller. Many how large the advertisement of how often it runs. That is one of the big assets our state and national editorial associations have been working for years to get to."

"There must have been some effective educational efforts exerted by the merchants' associations," suggested a bewhiskered old Otto Munsinster's six barrels of lime.

"That of course," replied the Oklahoma man; "but how the small-town merchant has learned that he can't sell non! Never heard of Bob Mooney, did you? His store is in an Iowa town from which had 902 population the last census, but not the census, but Bob does $3,000,000 a year in business, all from advertising in the country newspapers scattered all over the state.

"What has happened in this country since the war is that business everywhere is done in the same way and in the same commodities," he went on. "There is no longer any great difference between the city mansions and the country markets except in the size of business done in a given area. The only differences now are of degree, not kind. Country people buy the same things city folk buy; country merchants carry the same lines you can find in State Street or Fifth Avenue. And the country newspaper presents the service of the country merchant to its readers in the same way the city paper does.

"We who publish country newspapers are the beneficiaries of a new acknowledgment of interests, of a drawing together of all the people until there is no longer any sharp distinction in appearance, dress, manners, business methods and habits of thought between the people who live in the small towns and on the farms and those who live in the big cities."

"Yeah, they bob their hair and roll their stockings out on the farm now just as they do in town," drawled an editor from Maryland. "I've got a paper down on the Eastern Shore—been running sixty-five years or more. We used to carry advertising of fertilizers and mules, with a couple of standing boilerplate from the greatest stories. Here's a copy of my latest issue; look it over."

I looked. They still use mules on the Eastern Shore. Illinois and Tobacco Road and Delhi and a dozen other states of mules were advertised for sale; also fertilizers, seed potatoes, other essentially agricultural commodities. No question about it, this was a rural paper. But the biggest advertisements were of the Chatterville department store, the leading grocery store, milk stockings and bathing suits for the farmers' wives and daughters, coal hatchets, a big display advertisement of college spooling courses in that truly rural commodity!

"Preserve your youthful beauty," a drug-store advertisement announced. The farm women, with a rake of lime on them and face creams including

We're surprised at the interest there is in golf, especially among the women readers.

"Sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor." This was but a universal command of Jesus; it was not forbidden to all the rich in general, but only to this rich man in particular. To part with his possessions was a necessary thing for him alone. For another man the one thing necessary might be something different. Mary and Martha and Lazarus were rich, and Jesus never gave them this command. Jesus never condemned riches in themselves; he condemned the devotion to riches which makes men unable to see the value of better things.

THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP

Golden Text: "Where thy treasure is, there will thy heart be also." Matthew 6:21.

Lesson: Mark 10:17-27; 13:41-44.

Devotional Reading: Luke 15:1-5.

Explanations and Comments

The Great Refusal, 10:17-22. "Good Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" was the question which a young aristocrat put to Jesus one day as he ran and kneeled down before Him He realized that he had missed the summum bonum, the greatest good, of life, and he believed that there were certain good things (Matthew 19:16), which he could do to win it.

"Why callest thou Me good?" Jesus questioned in His turn, asking. Note is good save one, even God." This question seems a challenge to the young man who had used the word good with as little thought as we do when we say "Good morning." Jesus would have him weigh his words and see whether he meant what he said The young man was a close student of the Law, he came to Jesus as a peripatetic pupil seeking the latest knowledge. The maxim of the rabbis, "There is nothing good but the Law, hold full grown over his mind and sent to sting him out of the groove and suggest a goodness higher than the Law. "Why callest thou Me good? No goodness. Then callest Me good you are judging from the point of view of the Law you are saying what you would say to any rabbi I am not good in that sense I am good in a better sense There is none good but God, the goodness I have is God's goodness That is what you have to learn. To learn it because it is divine."

Jesus looking upon the young man loved him. "One thing thou lackest," Jesus said His penetrating glance read his whole character. He was rich with himself, his soul-discontent, his earnestness in seeking moral heights which he knew he was not following and to which he knew not the way.

PROTECTS THE FORESTS!

Canada's forests are going fast. Yet how many people in this country betray any concern?

As long as Canadians pay no attention to forest facts, the mistake will go on.

Sixty per cent. of Canada's original forest wealth has been destroyed by fire!

Thirteen per cent. has been cut by man and axe!

Twenty-seven per cent. is left as the capital to supply an increasing and an insatiable demand for lumber and paper and other products!

Twenty-seven per cent.! In a few generations we have reduced our capital to 27 per cent. of the original. And what have we to show for it! We have some denuded agricultural land which was formerly forest, but in the case of the last farming regions at least, was chiefly barbwood forest. Our not-ever conifereus forest area is largely rough, rocky, rainy land of little use except where mineralbearing veins have been deposited.

Canadians should think over these things. "Canadian Forest Week" is an effort to have them do so. It means much to the future of this country. Unless the remainder of our forest capital can be protected and wisely used, in twenty ye years, at the present rate of destruction by fire and axe, we will have used up all our available timber.

Forestry experts claim that if fire can be kept out, Canada's forest growth each year will provide all the timber and pulp wood required. The real problem, however, is not how to prevent it. Every man, woman and child who goes into the woods should know the danger and feel the responsibility.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, is doing a national work in organizing the fight against forest fires. The people of Canada could do infinitely more, however, by consulting care to provoke them.

When will Canada learn that her forests must be 'cropped,' not 'mined'?

NEW LEGATIONS ARE CRITICIZED IN THE SENATE

Ottawa. — Canada's legations and diplomatic service were discussed in the Senate recently. Hon. J. H. McLennan drew the attention of the Senate to the matter and asked if the Government the nature of appointment, the emolument and what provision was made for training candidates for the diplomatic corps.

Senator McLennan said that the confederation celebration last year made Ottawa a real capital. With the coming of a United States minister, Canada has assumed certain national responsibilities. He did not believe that a glorified commercial traveller was the highest form of representation needed by Canada in foreign countries. The appointment of a Canadian minister to Washington was another step in national responsibility.

His thought the appointments of last year did not come with any surprise as they had been discussed for some time. The selection of the United States to represent that country here was very satisfactory. The people of Canada were disposed to look upon Canada's advancement into foreign diplomacy as settled but he thought there should have been more preparation and knowledge given before sending envoys to Paris and Rome.

Senator McLennan further observed: "It has come upon myself to say that I believe the establishment of legations other than with Washington have not been authorized by Parliament or people of Canada. To that extent, if for ni other reason, they are objectionable. I also think that such an establishment is premature; that we can get on as well without them by continuing the use of existing diplomatic machinery which Great Britain has placed at our disposal."

He believed at the earliest opportunity Canada should begin training juniors for diplomatic service.

Hon. Rand, Conservative, Government leader, said the address from the Throne had made mention of the appointment for ministers to Paris and Tokio. He had not discussed it at length because the question had not been raised and it really appertained to the Prime Minister. He welcomed the approval of public men of the creation of a legation at Washington. This was the work of all parties, having emanated from Sir Robert Borden, being endorsed by Mr. Meighen and completed by the present Government. Concerning the legation in the United States, both parties had approved it.

Governor-General Might Spend Summer In B.C. In Request

Vancouver, B.C. — Reports that Lord and Lady Willingdon are seriously thinking of establishing a vice-regal summer residence on the Pacific Coast have been revived as a result of their visit again this year and their inspection of several homes described as suitable for such a purpose.

The feasibility of making Vancouver or Victoria the social capital of the Dominion during the summer months has been mooted on several occasions, and while no pronouncement has ever been made by the Governor-General or Lady Willingdon, it is understood that they would not be averse to leaving the stately grandeur of Rideau Hall, Ottawa, for a few months during the year to enjoy the surroundings of Canada's foghest West.

Auto Gasoline Tax In Saskatchewan

Only Car Between To Pay Levy Of Three Cents Per Gallon

Regina.—Only gasoline used for automobile traffic will be liable to the three-cent tax to be imposed May 1, by legislation that becomes effective May 1.

The purchaser will pay the tax on all gasoline at time of purchase and will be given a refund on the gallonage used otherwise than that for his automobile, provided the amount named in the application for the refund amounts to more than $3

Every person selling gasoline has to collect the tax at the time of sale and deliver a stamp therefor. These stamps, shall be purchasable from the Department. Every importer, producer, manufacturer, refiner and distributor is required to forward before the tenth day of each month a return showing the number of gallons sold in Saskatchewan and the persons to whom sold. Every dealer selling or delivering gasoline is required to keep a record of the stamps so sold and to make a return before the tenth of every month of the amount of the same, together with the amount of gasoline sold. It is the duty of the purchaser to see that he receives a receipt duly stamped on the purchase of gasoline.

Inspectors may be appointed under the regulations to see that the payment of the tax is made.

Contravention of the law renders one liable to penalties of from $10 to $100.

Railway Plans Extended

Parliament Gives Companies More Time To Commence Construction In West

Ottawa.—Third reading was given in the House of Commons to a number of private bills.

These measures included:

A bill to incorporate the Highwood Western Railway Company with a capitalization of $2,000,000, and with its head office at Calgary, Alberta. The proposed railway is from a point near the Calgary and Edmonton Railway in Township 20 or 21, Range 1, Alberta, to a point near Sparwood, on the C.P.R. in British Columbia.

A bill extending for two years the time in which to commence the construction of the Calgary and Peace Railway. The proposed line is to run from Calgary, Alberta, to Fernie, B.C.

A bill extending for two years the time in which the C.P.R. may commence construction of the following branch lines:

(a) From Acme, Alta., to a point in Township 33, Range 26 or 27, Alberta, a distance of 25 miles.

(b) From a point on the Rosemary main branch of the C.P.R. in Township 21, Range 15, to a point in Township 23, Range 16, Alberta.

A bill extending for two years the time in which to commence construction of the Manitoba and Northwest Railway from Tuffnell, Sask., to Prince Albert, Sask.

Weather Seeks Farmers

No Need To Worry Over Lateness Of the Spring

Edmonton.—"No occasion for anxiety or worry," says Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture, in response to an inquiry about the probable effect of the way winter is lingering in the lap of spring. Some inquiries have been coming also from the east as to how seeding operations will be affected, and the minister is replying that if a break comes reasonably soon and the weather then stays warm the conditions are just what Alberta wants. That is to say, the soil will be in excellent order with abundance of moisture and seeding will not be any later than it has often been before.

The present snowfall is not adding much to the wetness of the land, according to reports from the country, as it is evaporating quickly. Somewhat more moisture than is really needed is reported from some localities, but in general the land is just right for promises of another bumper crop. As usual, Mr. Hoadley says, it's the city people who are doing the most worrying; the farmers know that good time and harvest will not mail.

Control Wheat Shipments

New Seed Grain Warehouse

Plan To Construct a Modern Plant At Moose Jaw

Ottawa.—There is every likelihood of a new seed grain warehouse being established at Moose Jaw at a cost of something over $100,000. The present building is not suited to the purpose and a move is on foot for a new one. It is being sponsored by J. Gordon Ross, M.P. for Moose Jaw, and backed by Hon. C. M. Hamilton, provincial minister of agriculture, who had a conference on the subject with Hon. W. H. Motherwell.

The plan is to construct a most modern plant, the Dominion Government, the province and the association operating the present warehouse, each contributing one-third of the cost.

There is reason to expect that, when the supplementary estimates come down, the Dominion Government will provide its share. This would ensure the warehouse because the other prospective contributors are ready to put up their share.

Cost Of Harbor Survey

Palmer Received $9,421 For Report On Nelson and Churchill

Ottawa.—Senator Dandurand, in reply to a question, stated in the Senate that the sum paid Frederick Palmer for his report on Nelson and Churchill Harbors, was $9,421. He was selected as there was a controversy between Canadian engineers and public officials as to the harbor and merits of these harbors and it was deemed advisable to secure the opinion of an engineer of unquestioned authority who was not a party to the controversy.

Price Of Bread May Advance

Regina.—Bread prices are showing a tendency to rise as a result of the rising price of flour due in turn to the enhancement of wheat values. At Swift Current a one cent per loaf advance has been made.

U.S. Duty On Seed Wheat

Sentiment Growing In U.S. For Reduction Or Abolition Of Duty

Washington, D.C.—Abolition or reduction of customs duties on seed wheat entering the United States is one of the possible results of the tangled situation in this country produced by a deadlock over farm relief legislation.

Sentiment in favor of making Canadian seed wheat available at the lowest price to the American farmer has been growing in recent years and it is known that a number of western members of Congress would support the proposal if it could ever be brought to the floor of Congress.

Department of agriculture officials admit there has been an increase lately in pressure from the main wheat growing centres for consideration of the tariff on seed grain.

With the administration preparing to veto the farm relief bill for the second time and growing hostility amongst western farmers in consequence, there is a possibility that the president may exercise his power to amend the tariff under certain conditions of which this would be one. Some congressmen expressed the opinion that the United States farmers would gain in the long run if they sacrificed some of their seed grain merchants at home and gained a reputation in the world market which Canadian grain enjoys.

Oriental Vote Is Problem At Coast

As Judaites Occupy Important Place In B.C. Industries

Vancouver, B.C.—Should Orientals resident in British Columbia be allowed to vote?

The question is now agitating trade union circles here and at a recent meeting of the Vancouver and New Westminster Trades and Labor Council it was decided to have the issue in the various locals, who will record their opinions on the subject and forward them to the council.

Oriental entrenchment has been opposed by organized labor in this province for some years. The question has been revived by the Asiatic Exclusion League Party in supporting equal voting privileges for Asiatics. The large number of Asiatics in this province and their important place in industry and trade give the matter greater significance here than in other parts of Canada.

B.C. Farmers Want Horses

Paying Higher Prices Than Five Years Past Says Dealer

Kamloops, B.C.—British Columbia farmers haven't yet found a complete substitute for the horse and they are paying higher prices for the animals now than for years past, according to D. B. Johnstone, Kamloops horse dealer.

"Work horses that a year ago I would have sold for $10 or $15, were sold recently for as high as $72, and good cows, not the best at that, fetched as high as $85," Johnstone stated. Good draught horses are scarce in British Columbia and are being shipped as far east as Montreal.

DENMARK MOVES TO SASKATCHEWAN

One of the largest families among this year's arrivals of immigrants over the Canadian National Railways was that of Hans Peter Petersen Poulsen, of Denmark. Mr. Poulsen has come to Canada with his wife and nine children and is settling near Melfort, Saskatchewan. He was met on his arrival at Winnipeg, by two sons who had preceded him and who were living in Manitoba.

NAT. ASSEMBLY LIBERAL WOMEN ELECT PRESIDENT

Ottawa.—Hon. Mary Ellen Smith, M.L.A., Vancouver, was unanimously chosen by the national assembly of Liberal women as their president.

In answering the applause which greeted her election, Hon. Mary Ellen Smith said:

"I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

She went on: "There was a feeling throughout the country that the women were being chloroformed. But we refused to re-act to the anaesthetic. I did not want the presidency. But now that I have it and that you have set up the machinery to make this a permanent organization I am going to stay until that machinery is in smooth running order, and I shall welcome criticism. From now on we women want to go on record as being constructionists."

Nine hundred women met at the banquet which followed upon the close of official business of the assembly. The Hon. Mary Ellen Smith made her first appearance as president of the newly-formed National Federation of Liberal Women, and was received with cheers as she entered the hall.

The honorary president, Mrs. Norman Wilson, of Ottawa, succeeded the permanent officers of the new organization:

President, Hon. Mary Ellen Smith, M.L.A., Vancouver.

Honorary president, Mrs. Norman Wilson, Ottawa.

The honorary vice-presidents are: Miss B. McKinnon, P.E.I.; Miss Carrie Carmichael, N.S.; Mrs. A. H. Smith, N.B.; Madame Bulgar, Professor C. Derrick and Mrs. S. Jacobs, Que.; Mrs. David Dunlop, Mrs. Arthur Hardy and Mrs. M. Pourpore, Ont.; Mrs. Robert Forke, Man.; Mrs. J. G. Gardiner, Sask.; and Mrs. Finlayson, B.C.

The vice-presidents are: Mrs. Riley, for Prince Edward Island; Mrs. J. Manvay, for Nova Scotia; Mrs. F. H. Haines, for New Brunswick; Mrs. P. Paradis, for Quebec; Miss Florence Edwards, for Ontario; Mrs. W. G. Scarboro, for Manitoba; Mrs. Mary Sutherland, for Saskatchewan; Mrs. Robert Marshall, for Alberta, and Mrs. Henderson, for British Columbia.

The association will henceforth be known by the name "National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada."

The objects of the federation are declared as:

"To encourage the organization of Liberal women throughout Canada; to uphold the cause of Liberalism; to raise the status and advance the political education of women; to aid in securing and maintaining good government and to encourage a broad spirit of Canadian nationality within the British Empire."

Considering New Route

Moving B.C. Coal To Montreal Via Panama Canal Might Be Possible

Ottawa.—The feasibility of moving British Columbia coal to Montreal by way of the Panama Canal is being investigated by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. This statement was made by F. C. Henry, director of the bureau of economics, Canadian National Railways, before the railways and shipping committee of the House.

"Really, we have no boat in the C.G.M.M. service that is available," remarked Mr. Henry. Boats on the Pacific coast service were now fully employed. The boats which were now operating from Vancouver to Montreal were carrying full cargoes and were not fit to be used as coal carriers. There were, however, two 4,400 ton boats available, but in his opinion they were altogether too small to be considered from a commercial viewpoint for such long voyages.

The question was brought up by A. W. Neill, Independent, Comox-Alberni, B.C., who suggested that the government should give a fixed rate on British Columbia coal.

ALBERTA STREAMS BEING STOCKED WITH GAME FISH

A total of 1,564,675 potential game fish were distributed in Alberta following waters in 1921, according to the annual report of the Dominion fisheries branch. These included eyed eggs, fry and fingerlings of Loch Leven, Cutthroat and Rainbow trout. In addition, nearly three million whitefish eggs were planted in commercial fishing waters in order to maintain the supply of fish for this growing industry in the province.

Developments of the species of blue and white tish which are found in the vicinity of the Great Slave during the coming season, commenced H. R. Lonsdale, assistant director of the development branch of the Mackenzie Pacific Railway. Mr. Lonsdale states that a vast twenty miles in length will be laid out between Hay Riding and the deposits to guide them easily to the shore. The blue variety of tish, which is very rare and valuable, is used in electric insulators and gas burners while the white sort is extensively used in the preparation

Another night she saw a trim young lady, with many bags, a pair of snowshoes, a camera, slung over her shoulder, a tapestry purse and a huge white fur fur, coming down the platform. She was met by a plain, hard working woman, with wisps of gray hair escaping from the hard little nub at the back of her head, a skirt that did not match her coat and needed to be pressed, and evidently put on in a hurry; and with feet disfigured with bunions, hands red and bare, and shoulders bent.

Helmi watched the meeting. The girl was the last to leave the train, and the mother had almost given her up, and had gone to the wicket to see if a wire had come. While the mother was at the wicket the girl came bursting into the station. "Mother," she called, "Here I am, I was helping a lady with her baby."

The two women caught each other in a warm embrace, and as they were leaving the station Helmi heard the girl say, "The trustees paid me for the whole time, and now, old girl, you will have that fur coat—we'll get it tomorrow."

Helmi saw the mother's arm tighten. The girl's eyes were defiant and proud. She dared anyone to say or think she thought her mother shabby.

Helmi wondered, wondered.

When the last person had come through and the doors were closed, Helmi walked slowly to the North Star Rooming House, lonely, tired, and sad. She resolved she would not go again, but the next train night found her sitting in front of the stove, watching its tardy hands making their reluctant rounds. She had written to good old Sim, giving him her address—he would see Jack if he came.

At the end of two weeks Helmi began to look for a situation. Her money had lasted until now, but the little stock in the black, shiny purse had dwindled and dwindled. Fortunately her clothes, by careful brushing and pressing were still presentable. The blindness of the Corbett family and the exquisite joy she found in caring for the little Lili, kept her heart from breaking with loneliness. The nights were the worst, even the regular breathing of the warm little treasure beside her, the feel of the velvety little fingers which clasped hers, could not entirely win her away from her sorrow. Why had God forsaken her? Or was He just doing this to try her faith, as he tried that of Job. Then she thought of Abraham, whom God commanded to sacrifice his little son. That was a terrible story, and Helmi wished she had never heard it, even if God did repent and say, "Oh, well now that I know you would do it that's all right I just wanted to be sure." In happier days Helmi had decided the story wasn't true at all. God wasn't like that, someone had just made up that story. Now, she wasn't so sure.

Often in those long dark nights, Helmi thought of Aunt Lili. It had all seemed so easy when Aunt Lili came back for the visit to Pinhurst, and now. Aunt Lili was gone, her little girl too. She had come to Canada to earn some money, encountered difficulties, and she had come on evil days. But little Lili here would have a chance . . . One might succeed out of four . . . surely God would let one Finn girl out of four do well in Canada! Maybe it was too much for her to expect to succeed and be happy—but she could be the ladder on which dear little Lili would rise, like the woman at the station, beat, shabby, tired, with the glorious successful daughter, who loved her mother loyally in spite of her old-fashioned dress and knotted hands.

It was only when Helmi could get her thoughts out of the lonely, dark roads where disappointments and loneliness lurked, into the pleasant green meadows of the future where plans for little Lili could be made, that peace would come to her, and to her burning eyes the blessed dews of sleep.

On the day that Lili was three weeks old Helmi went to the Employment Bureau to look for work. She wore the blue motor coat, a black velvet hat on which she had trimmed pleated the flowers from her summer hat, and her best shoes and gloves. She was still pale, and her cheeks had grown thinner.

"It's a question," said Mrs. Corbett eyeing her critically, "how a person should dress when lookin' for work. If you're not well dressed they'll think you are needin' a job too bad, and that you must be shiftless and no good, on the other hand, if you're too well dressed they wonder why you need to do housework. Women are sure the limit, despisin' their own work and makin' everyone else despise it too. A woman may forgive the woman who makes her dresses, she is even more likely to forgive the one that makes her miss, but who charges her three times what they're worth—but God help the poor soul that cooks her meals. No woman ever thinks well of another woman who merely does the work she could do herself if she wanted to. So, Helmi, dear, don't be hurt if they talk snippy to you—I know now you feel—the Finns and the Irish are blood cousins when it comes to temper—but just say what you want to, to yourself. You can come home and dream about all you like to me. I know them—haven't I done washin's for them for years?"

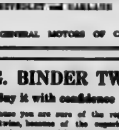
Helmi, as usual, went early, but the room—a large one, with windows that ran to the ceiling—was already half filled. Her first thoughts were thoughts of discouragement—What chance had she among so many? But as she listened she learned that many of the women were employers, for the topic of conversation was the old difficulty of getting efficient household help. The conversation rose and fell like the fire in the chimney on a windy night.

"I am out so much," one woman said, in a loud voice, "I simply must have reliable help. The last girl I had on the electric iron until it burnt through the table." She was a worried woman, "short of breath, as if she had been perpetually climbing

WOMAN COULD HARDLY WALK
Mrs. Horn Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and would not be without it now. I had a female trouble so badly I could hardly walk and I was all run-down and could hardly get around to do my house-work. I would be in bed three or four days at a time. I was told by a friend to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I did, and by the time I took two bottles I was beginning to get around again, I took ten bottles in all, and now I am all right again and doing my own work. I have six grown-ups to work for, so I have plenty to do. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I think it is good. But I owe my health to the Vegetable Compound, and I think if more of it was used women would be better off. I would not be without it if it cost much more."—Mrs. NELLIE HORN, 208 East Cannon Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

If you feel broken down, nervous and weak sometimes? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is established to help at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently, will relieve this condition.



THERE is nothing quite equal to Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is Aspirin. The name Bayer should appear on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—as you—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box when you buy it:

stairs. Helmi wanted to talk to her, but she was surrounded by other women, all intent on their own grievances.

"It makes a difference when one has boys in the house—you see I have my own two, and Fred, my nephew."

"Well, I have just one rule—I must have a British subject. When I came home from the Red Cross the other day I found my house in a state. My German washwoman had the cook and the housemaid in terror of their lives. She had told them she was washing for me now, but I would be washing for her next year, and the Kaiser would be living in the Governor's house, and we would be begging jobs from the German ambassadress, who, it appears, are going to come over here to live. She flew when I came in, and she hasn't come back yet for her money. She never told me she was German, you may be sure, she was Russian—they are all Russians now."

Helmi at last got her chance at the desk. A kind-faced Scotchwoman, who called her 'dear', asked her what sort of work she wanted, and had her registered. Helmi said she wanted housework by the day if she could get it. She could cook, yes, and wash, and make things clean.

The Scotchwoman called the lady whose name had been noticed first—the stair-climber.

"Here's a smart girl for you, Mrs. Angus," she said, "I doobt if you'll get better—she looks both clean and smart."

Mrs. Angus appraised Helmi critically, "Are you honest?" she asked at last. "I have lost so much by petty thieves."

"Yes," said Helmi, lastly, "I am honest, and I tell the truth, and I am square."

Mrs. Angus turned to the Scotchwoman sagrily. "Is this the way you allow your patrons to be spoken to, Miss Ritchie?" she said.

"I doobt she meant no harm," said Miss Ritchie, soothingly: "she was taken by surprise—that's all."

The Least Excitement Made Her Heart Palpitate and Flutter

Mrs. Ambrose Orme, Elginburg, Ont., writes:—"I suffered for some time with a bad heart which seemed to be controlled by my nerves. The least little excitement would cause it to flutter and palpitate, and at times I would have real bad spells. I suffered in this way for some time when, one day, I saw advertised, as dizziness, or nodal dread to try them. I had very little faith in them, but I noticed that I felt better, so I continued taking them and in a short time I was entirely different."

"Have you worked before?"

"Yes, in Winnipeg—in the Yale Hotel—and at Hagle Mines in a boarding-house."

"Yes, I thought so," said Mrs. Angus, "you are certainly quite the hotel type, sharp and pert. Well, have you references?"

"No," said Helmi, when Miss Ritchie had explained.

Mrs. Angus looked sternly at Miss Ritchie. What did she mean by exposing patrons to the possibility of getting a girl who, by her own confession, had no references.

Miss Ritchie calmed Helmi if she could send and get her references.

Helmi shook her head. "I would rather not," she said.

Editorial Price Contest

Centenary Of Henri Dunant, Founder Of Red Cross, To Be Fittingly Observed

This year, on May 8th, fifty-nine nations of the world banded together under the Red Cross Flag, will celebrate the centenary of the birth of Henri Dunant, founder of Red Cross and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize of 1901.

Dunant's untiring efforts in the interests of humanity were responsible for the first Treaty of Geneva, and they awakened the world to a new consciousness of its responsibilities in regard to medical service, both in peace and war, until now practically every nation has joined in subscribing to the covenant of nations which has developed from Dunant's initial idea.

In order that the people of Canada may know about Dunant and his work, a prize contest for the best editorial appearing in any Canadian Daily newspaper on May 8th, or in any Canadian Weekly paper between May 4th and May 13th, on Dunant or co-related subjects, has been arranged by the Canadian Red Cross Society. The French Newspapers of the Dominion are also invited to compete in their own languages under similar conditions.

The prizes to be offered are $80.00 for the first prize; $50.00 for the second; and $20.00 for the third in each section, or $640.00, divided into proportions as here mentioned, including five French newspapers, both daily and weekly.

The contest will close on May 30th, when all entries received will be judged by a committee of competent judges. Every entry must be in the hands of the National Office at 410 Sherbourne Street, Toronto 5, by that date, and must comply with the conditions announced herewith. Every possible effort is being made to acquaint the public with the history of Henri Dunant through special literature being mailed to all editorial offices through the usual press avenues and in the pages of the May issue of "The Canadian Red Cross."

Conditions Regulating

1. In order to facilitate the work of adjudication, contestants are requested to clip their editorials, paste them up as if preparing "copy" for the printer and add headline and date of editorial page on which it has appeared, despatching the entry so that it shall reach the office of the Chief Commissioner, Canadian Red Cross Society, 410 Sherbourne Street, Toronto 5, Ont., not later than May 30th.

2. All entries must be accompanied by a sealed envelope with the name of the entrant on a letterhead from the office of the competing newspaper. No contestant's name will be known until all decisions have been made.

3. The covering envelope should be marked:—"Editorial Contest."

4. The following is the list of judges who are being invited to act: Dr. James W. Robertson, Ottawa, Chairman of the Central Council of the Canadian Red Cross Society; Professor J. G. Fitzgerald, Toronto; Mr. J. F. B. Livesay, Toronto; Dr. Lorne Pierce, Toronto; Dr. Charles G. D. Roberts, Vancouver; Mr. R. J. C. Stead, Ottawa; Professor O. M. Wrong, Toronto, Mr. John M. Gleen, Toronto.

French Committee:—Hon. Mr. Justice F. Surveyor, Hon. Athanase David, and Dr. Victor Morin, will be asked to suggest a sub-committee from the French section of the Canadian Authors' Association, to act in collaboration with the General Committee.

NEW TEXT IN CIVICS

The Department of Education has just issued a manual in Civics intended for use in the High School grades. This little booklet of approximately seventy-five pages contains material with which every citizen should be familiar. It was written by Professor Burt of the University of Alberta, admittedly an authority on this subject. While the treatment follows in a general way the topics included in the civics section of the third year History course, yet nothing has been included that is not of genuine interest to anyone who desires a brief statement, not only of our present practice in government, but the foundations on which it rests.

This is the first Canadian publication dealing with civics on the high school level and it will without doubt make a suitable text for discussion clubs, U.F.A., U.F.W.A., and Women's Institute meetings, as well as a valuable handbook for private reading. It is published by the School Book Branch of the Department of Education and may be had direct from this branch for 30c postpaid, or from local dealers.

DR. TORY LEAVING UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA

Dr. H. M. Tory, who has been president of the University of Alberta since its organization twenty years ago, has tendered his resignation to take effect at the end of the current year, in order that he may accept the permanent chairmanship of the National Council of Scientific Research with headquarters probably at Ottawa.

The matter of selection of a successor to Dr. Tory as head of the University will be considered at an early date by the Alberta government in order that the new appointee may be ready to take over the post at the opening of the 1926 fall term.

CANADA'S BASS FETCH $43 EACH

According to a statement issued by the Canadian Forestry Association, the amount of money spent by American fishermen visiting Canada last year works out to be $63 for every black bass caught by them. The highest known price for a Canadian game fish was $1,700, representing the amount spent by an American and his family in several weeks' sojourn during which "Dad" fished just one day and caught one three pound trout.

"THE NIGHT FLIERS" AMUSE VERY LARGE AUDIENCE

The concert party brought to the Fort by Harry V. Coles last Wednesday added lustre to the reputation they had already made for themselves as "The Night Fliers," broadcasting from C.J.C.A., the Edmonton Journal. The long and entertaining program gave great enjoyment to an audience which filled the Memorial hall to the doors. Solos, duets and trios were sung by the Misses Flo Clark, Renie Wood and Hawksworth and Messrs. Coles and Jack Strachan, the latter pair also provoking roots of laughter with their humorous songs and duets. Miss Rita Coles, talented amateur dancer and daughter of Mr. Coles, gave a pretty exhibition of toe dancing and in a Spanish dance and a jazz dance. Harry Brown's Hawaiin orchestra rounded out a concert party that is to be long remembered by the Canadian Legion was responsible for providing this treat for their fellow-townspeople.

YOUNG PEOPLE TO ATTEND INSTITUTE OF CO-OPERATION

Arrangements are being made by the committee in charge of the organization of the Alberta Institute of Co-operation, which will be held during the last week in June, to bring in 125 young men and women between the ages of 17 and 21 inclusive from all parts of the province to attend a special free course on co-operation.

The young people to be given the advantage of this free course will be selected from nominations to be made by local organizations such as Junior U.F.A. locals, Women's Institute Girls' clubs, C.S.E.T. and C.G.I.T. groups, Boy Scouts and similar bodies and all expenses of those selected will be met from the money in the hands of the board of trustees of the surplus wheat board fund.

Special classes will be put on for the benefit of these young people under the supervision of Prof. R. W. Murchie of the University of Manitoba and W. M. Drummond, who is returning to Alberta from Harvard University. In order that the selection may be made at an early date, the committee is asking that applications be in the hands of the Registrar of the Institute of Co-operation, Legislative Buildings, Edmonton, not later than May 25th.

Empire Builders

Empire Shopping Week, which was observed throughout Canada last month, appears to have made an especially strong appeal to the people of Western Canada. This may be surprising to many people in the Eastern provinces who are still laboring under the delusion that British and Empire sentiment is not overly strong in the West, and that it has been weakened by the influx of settlers of other than British origin. But it is not surprising to the average Westerner; on the contrary, to him it is but the natural outcome of the thought and outlook of the West.

It is not in the West, but in the East, that the strongest approval is given to the British Preference feature in the Canadian tariff, and it is in the West, rather than the East, that public opinion favors further, albeit gradual, extensions of that Preference with a view to a lowering of duties and still greater encouragement of British trade in this Dominion. In fact, there is a very strong sentiment in the West which would welcome the development of Preference to the point where all customs duties on British-made and British-produced goods were wiped out entirely.

Empire Shopping Week had for its object the focussing of people's attention upon certain economic factors in the development of Canada as a component part of the British Commonwealth of Nations and of the Empire as a whole. Undoubtedly, the advertisement provides a mighty urge to all Canadians to give a voluntary preference to Empire goods when making purchases, but, as was the case with prohibition of the liquor traffic, sentiment is not in itself sufficient. It is the economic factor which, in these modern days, provides the most powerful argument. And Western Canada is profoundly interested in the economic factor.

World trade today is, as it has always been and always will be, a system of barter, the exchange by one country of those products and articles of which it produces a surplus to another country which requires those things, and to accept payment therefore in other goods of which such country produces a surplus but which the first mentioned country requires to import. Money is merely a convenient means of effecting such exchange. In other words, trade between nations operates on exactly the same principles as trade between individuals.

Western Canada, and Canada as a whole, has a surplus of products to sell. If these countries which require the things Canada has to sell are to be in a position to buy and pay for them, we must, in turn, buy from those countries the things they have to sell and which we cannot or do not produce ourselves and most import.

Last year Canada sold to the rest of the British Empire $360,000,000 more products than we purchased from them. On the other hand, Canada bought over $800,000,000 more from the United States than we sold across the line. Canada was enabled to pay the United States for the excess of goods imported because of its excess of sales to other parts of the Empire. While Canada did not lose by this procedure, the Empire did not gain; in fact, it sustained loss.

Now as major exports must cross the seas to Great Britain, Ireland, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, it will be to Canada's advantage, in a purely business way, to buy as largely as possible in those countries and thus provide return cargoes for the ships which carry our products into the markets of the far-flung British Empire. The larger these return cargoes, the more profitably can the vessels be operated, the greater the number of ships that will be put on these routes, instead of transferring the former to competition for the business, and, as an inevitable economic result, the lower the freight charges levied on both out-going and in-coming shipments.

The more Canada buys from the sister nations in the British Commonwealth, the more they can buy from us. The one re-acts on the other, and trade both ways can then be built up and grow like the proverbial mustard-seed. It has been declared that "trade follows the flag," but it is also true that the flag has followed trade, and to the traders of the past we largely owe the Empire of today.

It is equally true that the development of inter-Empire trade has a direct and pronounced effect on immigration, and, inasmuch as Canada is particularly anxious to secure a larger proportion of British settlers, the more we trade with Britain, the more widely will Canada's products and Canadian resources and possibilities become known among the British people.

The slogan of Empire Shopping Week is indubitably true.—"Empire Buyers are Empire Builders." Let Canada hold by buying.

Charity covers a multitude of sins and a tailor covers a multitude of sinners.

The man who always does as he pleases is often displeased with what he does.

What most people call indigestion is usually caused by the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude lodges. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is bisurated magnesia. You will find it in powder or tablet form. Ask for Bisurated Magnesia. Then you will find instantly relief. Then you will feel normal again. Then you will be ready to enjoy life's pleasures. You will find nothing else so quick to act in the stomach, so safe, so efficient.

Uncanny Inventions Exhibited in London

One Machine Types, Adds, and Multiplies At Same Time

Uncanny officiousness seemingly were to be seen at the Science Kitchen Exhibition at Imperial Paul Mall, London, Eng., recently. The devices shown included: An electric machine that opens envelopes at the rate of 30,000 an hour. A machine that types, adds, and multiplies at the same time. A machine that cooks, thinks, counts accounts and prints a slogan on envelopes at the rate of 300 per minute. Portable typewriters in colors to match the home or personal color scheme. A lock which records on a tape the time the door is opened, by whom, and whether from the outside or inside of the room.

NEGLECTED ANAEMIA

Often Leads To the Most Serious Consequences

In no disorder is delay or neglect more dangerous than in anaemia. Usually the first noticeable signs are pale lips and cheeks, dizziness under the eyes and a feeling of weariness. Then follow headaches, backaches, palpitation of the heart, breathlessness, the only way that anaemia can be overcome is to enrich the blood, and it is because of their wonderful blood building properties that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have won such great success in the treatment of this often most stubborn disease.

Hundreds of young girls who were in an anaemic condition owe their present health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. One of these, Miss Katie Richberg, Port Hood, N.S., says: "I praise the day I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had been feeling well for some time. I was very pale, had severe headaches, and was troubled with dizzy spells. The least exertion would leave me tired and breathless. In this condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and continued their use until I had taken six boxes, by which time I was again enjoying good health. I hope my experience will lead other sufferers to give this medicine a fair trial."

If you are at all run-down, or weak, you should begin at once to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon be well and strong. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Has Desired Occupation

For twenty years Mr. Lawrence Quinn, chief oysterman at the Hotel Lincoln, New York, has been opening oysters for a living. His record is an average of 3,360 oysters a day, and during his twenty-three years in this work has found dozens of pearls. Some of them were worth a fabulous value, but there have been enough small ones to make a very comfortable addition to the modest sum Quinn still has hope that some day he will pick up one that will be of real value.

Miller's Worm Powders do not need the after-help of cathartic pills. They purgative to complete their thorough-ness. Tasteless they are themselves. One dose of them, and they will be found palatable by all children, will end the worm trouble by making the stomach and bowels unfavorable to the parasites. And not only this, but the powders will be certain to exert most beneficial influences in the digestive organs.

"Dry Ice" Here Idea

Substitute Has Been Used Successfully In Stores

By the use of "dry ice," or solidified carbon dioxide, the price of ice cream will be cut considerably within the next few years, says Fred Rasmussen, of Harrisburg, executive of the International Ice Cream Manufacturers' Association, during the annual convention of the body.

Only fifty pounds of the "dry ice" will supply the needs of an ice cream delivery truck for nearly a day, he declared, and use of the substance will spread rapidly when it is made in quantity. It is now being used in transporting ice cream by truck from Philadelphia to Atlantic City.

Manitoba Population

The estimated total of the population of Winnipeg proper for 1926, as given by the Assessment Department, is 204,277. But since 1916 that the 200,000 mark been reached. This year's figure is exceeded only by the population totals for 1913 and 1914, when the figures were 203,320 and 213,000 respectively.

A Region Of Wondrous Beauty

Plan Is Made For Establishment Of Government Park In Bella Coola Valley, B.C.

If you like to get out in the wild country and hunt wild animals, such as grizzlies, with the camera, by all means go to the Bella Coola Valley, B.C. I have spent the last four summers there, and I am advocating the establishment there of a Dominion Park to be known as Mackenzie Park, in honor of the first white man who crossed Canada, and who reached the sea at that point; this to be connected up by means of a highway to be known as Mackenzie Highway, paralleling part of Mackenzie's route so that people can go from New York to California and to Bella Coola over the Mackenzie Highway, visiting Mackenzie Park and returning by way of the Rocky Mountains Park, and so on. This would bring money into British Columbia and Canada. If the Dominion will not carry out this plan I hope to get some wealthy men interested, as the region is one of wonderful beauty. Within a distance of 70 miles, it is easily traversed in one day by motor boat or auto; the car visit both the so-called rainy coast and the desert interior. One can go from sea level to 12,000 feet, can have hunting on both and, fresh, salt water and still waters, paddling, poling, motor boating, sailing, etc. There is excellent trout fishing and good animal photography, grizzly bears being very numerous. Thousands of water falls, one of them over 800 feet high; 18 glaciers may be seen from one place, and there are many canyons. It costs only $40.00 for a round trip from Vancouver by boat through the Queen of the Scenery of Canada. I have taken my first moving picture, showing life in this region. Board in the valley can be had at 50 cents a meal, good cream, fresh fruit, kindly, nice people, largely of Norwegian descent, noted for cleanliness and good cooking. Please let me know if anybody who will help me get this park and highway established. We should get about 30 miles wide by 70 miles long of country which is still in the Crown; that is, it is government land, and it is of practically no other value except for park purposes. —Harland T. Smith, Department of Mines, Ottawa.

Forest Effect On Temperatures

Forests have an equalizing effect on extremes of temperature, according to Canada show that in forested districts maximum temperatures are lower and minimum temperatures higher than in adjoining deforested tracts.

FIRST CONTRACTS AWARDED

Canada's Air Mail Service Will Eventually Cover Dominion

The genius of a transcontinental aerial mail service is being established by Canada with the awarding of contracts for four important mail services. Eventually letters will cross the country from Halifax to Vancouver in 36 hours by aeroplane, instead of in five days by railway as at present.

The contracts now entered into are for a service between Fairbanks Point and Montreal and Ottawa, another service of four trips per week between Montreal and Toronto, and all year-round service between Montreal and Albany, N.Y., to connect with the United States Transcontinental Air Service. The total cost will be $201,150.

The Father Point to Montreal service and the Montreal to Ottawa service will be provided by the Canadian Transcontinental Airways, Limited, of Quebec, the Father Point to Montreal section costing $49,800, or $1.25 per flying mile. The Montreal to Ottawa service is to cost $8,250 for the season. For the Montreal-Toronto service the cost will be $40,500, or $1.25 per flying mile, and the Montreal to Albany service will cost $900.

According to J. A. Wilson, Director of Civil Aviation in Canada, 60 per cent. of the Royal Air Force pilots during the war were Canadians. Since the war Canada has been devoting her activities to such operations as forest protection, surveying, mapping, and the assisting of engineering and geological survey work in the northern region. It would take some time to build up a transcontinental air mail service, owing to the sparse population of the Dominion, but eventually the people would demand more rapid service than could be given by the present method.

An Oil That is Friend Everywhere. —Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over fifty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

A Chicago manufacturer has invented a photographic machine that can produce 4,000 finished prints in an hour.

Hardy Norse Explorers Make Trip To Barren Lands On The Coppermine River

Waking the echoing silences disturbed only at long intervals by white men over the centuries, two young Norwegians — Ejnhar Nelson-Dale and Ingstad are today, if all has gone well with them, beating their dangerous way back across the barren lands from the headwaters of the Coppermine River, and, if they do only twice in the last 100 years, so far as is known, have white men penetrated to the source of the river in the mysterious hinterland through which the Coppermine River flows.

His discovery was made in 1771 by samuel Hearne, following an arctic attempt in 1769, when the desertion of his Indians compelled abandonment of the expedition.

Hearne's successful expedition of 1770-1772 was marked by the massacre which he was unable to prevent, of a peaceful Eskimo tribe by his own Indians, and history has marked that fateful spot on the map of the Northland with the name of "Bloody Falls," the slaughter occurring close by some falls on the Coppermine River.

Then in 1821 came the thrilling and ill-fated Franklin expedition, which traversed 5,500 miles of sled and boat across the barren lands from Hudson Bay, to leave the bones of many of its members lying in the inhospitable earth over which the survivors dragged their weedy way.

Another 100 years almost elapsed until, in 1924, Lt. H. Blanchet, of Ottawa, made his brilliant dash into the unknown to discover the outflow of water through a rock wall of an elevation of 1,000 feet, whence looking northward toward the Arctic, the peaceful Coppermine meandered slowly through a broad plain dotted with beds of caribou, to the shores of the Northern Sea.

It was in the summer of 1927 that the two young Norwegians, Nelson-Dale was born in Canada, and so is Norse-Canadian left Edmonton for Fort Resolution, there to start out on the first leg of their hazardous journey.

In July, 1927, they wrote to C. C. Hoseus, Edmonton lawyer, that they were leaving Resolution last outpost of civilization in a few days' time at all went well, hoped to reach the Coppermine river in the fall of that year spending a year in the barren lands and returning to civilization by dog team.

The fall of 1928 will see the two adventurers safely back provided they have met with no mishap.

Ingstad is a qualified astronomer and is in Norway and for some time has had everything ready for the trip. Nelson-Dale, the largest newspaper in that country.

Their partner has hanged and trapped in the north for some years and went north with Ingstad after a trip home to Norway in 1926-27.

Neither adventurer apparently was aware before he left that Mr Blan had preceded them by three years in their attempt to reach the Coppermine river head waters.

At the youthful age of 42, Capt. Gordon Campbell (V.C.), (left), has just been made rear-admiral in the British Navy. Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field (centre), has been promoted admiral, and Admiral Freemantle has been placed on the retired list at his own request in recent navy changes.

Build Mammoth Grain Elevator

New Wheat Pool Elevator At Fort William Will Be Most Modern For the Continent

The board of directors of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited, has awarded the contract for the erection of the superstructure of Pool Terminal No. 1 Porth Arthur, to the Barnett McQueen Construction Company, Fort William, Ont.

This new terminal elevator, which is being built by the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, will be the most modern and the fastest terminal grain elevator on the North American continent, according to C. D. Howe, of C. D. Howe & Co., consulting engineers, Port Arthur. Personality Can Be Changed

Roosevelt Was Example of What Person Can Do

Personality is a strange thing. Sometimes I think we are born with one special kind just as we are born with a certain nose and eyes, handsome finger prints are unlike any other in the world and what can't be changed that we, on the other hand, if Theodore Roosevelt has proved the personality may be born with to rule him, he would have gone through life a sickly, nervous, sensitive individual with a spirit weighted down by the despair of inhibitions. But he pulled himself up and out of it. Sometimes I think anybody can do the same thing. And sometimes I think that selfishness is harder to cure even than a physical disease.

Canadian "Moth" Planes Are Helping To Combat Spread Of Wheat Rust In West

How Canadian "Moth" planes are helping to fight wheat rust in the West is told in a statement made public by the Department of Agriculture, as follows:

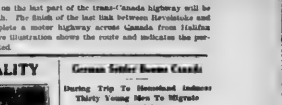
"It would be almost impossible to imagine two more widely separated things than an aeroplane and the rust which attacks our wheat. Yet only twice in the last 100 years, so far as is known, have white men penetrated to the source of the river in the mysterious hinterland through which the Coppermine River flows.

"The aeroplane has been extensively used for the purpose of locating diseased conditions in our forests, and also in dusting from the air for the control of the spruce budworm. The work differs considerably, however, in connection with wheat rust and cereals mainly in the sequence of visits at different altitudes and in different localities. These aeroplane aeroplane attempt to collect from cultivated fields of from one to five thousand feet the dusts of the earliest appearance of rust spores, the region over which they first appear, the time at which the spore content of the air increases over various regions, the variability of spores caught at these high-er altitudes, and the relation of rust into environmental and climatic factors to the rate of development and spread of rust.

"The air force stations at Lac du Bonnet, Norway House, Cormorant Lake, and High River, have assisted in this work. Each station is supplied with lightly stoppered bottles containing wooden paddles to which are attached microscope slides lightly smeared with vaseline. These slides are exposed for 15 minutes of very low altitudes, the slides replaced in the bottles and then returned to the Government laboratory at Winnipeg.

"In one instance at Lac du Bonnet a surprisingly high number of spores was caught on a slide, which seemed to indicate the plane at an altitude of 5,000 feet had travelled through a pocket or eddy of air where the concentration of rust spores was very dense. Where the spores originated is speculative, but the fact that at the time threshing was being done at Morden, where there was a heavy local outbreak of rust seems to point to that district as the originating point. When the patchy nature of these outbreaks is considered, one is led to suspect that there may be some relation between these clouds or eddies of spores and localized heavy field infections. One can well imagine a rain washing down these spore on a more limited area, where they would germinate and produce a heavy infection.

"The Department of Agriculture has proved on several occasions the efficiency of the aeroplane in many lines of investigation, and the day may not be far distant when "Mother" will be common in our agricultural communities."



TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

Construction work on the last part of the trans-Canada highway will be started early next month. The finish of the last link between Revelstoke and Lake Cobble, B.C., will complete a motor highway across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver. PRAISES CANADIAN HOSPITALITY

Baron Perenyi, Minister of the Interior for the Republic of Hungary, who visited the Hungarian settlements adjacent to the Road of the Canadian National Railways in Western Canada recently, expressed himself as much impressed by the help which Hungarian-born citizens are giving newly arrived Hungarians in settling on the land and generally establishing themselves in Canada.

"Canada is a place where anyone can make an hour's living with hard work," His Excellency said. "All that has been said of Canada is true. It is a land of real opportunity and I shall certainly come back again where I find so many of my countrymen happy, contented and prosperous."

German Settler Boosts Canada

During Trip To Homeland Induces Thirty Farmers To Migrate To Dominion

Carl Schulz, of Uckmark, Brandenburg, Germany, who came to Canada a year ago and purchased 1,000 acres of unbroken land on the Canadian National Railways near St. Walburg, Saskatchewan, proved to be a good colonization agent for Canada, following his purchase he returned to Germany to settle matters regarding his estate there and while in his homeland he talked the gospel of Canadian opportunity. The result was that when he returned to Winnipeg recently he brought with him thirty promising young men and more than one hundred are following as soon as can dispose of their interests overseas. The twenty will work with Mr. Schulz until they are able to take up land of their own.

Mr. Schulz says that a very heavy immigration to Canada from Germany can be looked for, starting next year. Thousands of young Germans are turning their eyes towards Canada and will come as soon as they can dispose of their holdings in Germany.

A Crowded Afternoon Or Evening Frock

Exceedingly graceful is the frock pictured here. The two-piece pointed tunic is planned to be made having the lower edge slightly rounded, thereby giving a graceful line. The attractive arrangement of the sunshine effect is effectively shown, and there are lace shields at the front and back. The long pointed sleeves may be omitted for evening wear, if desired, thereby making this frock suitable for many occasions. Satin, crepe de chine, taffeta or georgette are all suitable for this model. Lace would be very attractive for the shields. Price 20 cents the pattern.

Many styles of smart apparel may be found in our Fashion Book. Clever designers originate their patterns by the heart of the style centres, and their creations are those of tested popularity, brought within the means of the average women. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Don't try to do the greatest amount of work possible for the pay you get. Supply for many of them. That's a big income when you consider how small the living expenses are in rural districts.

Here's another survey, made by the General Federation of Women's Clubs in July 1927, of home visits to 5,000 families in the small industrial city of Kingsport, Tenn. Of the families in these towns there are 127 automobiles owning phonographs and 110 radio sets.

There are some more interesting figures from the Department of Agriculture. The farmers of the United States (these are round numbers) and children spend every year for various kinds of goods, they earn respectively 15 billion dollars. Their income is one-fifth of the national wealth and one-tenth of the cost of running the railroad and state governments.

They buy everything. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce reports that they buy 40 per cent of all motor trucks sold, 30 per cent of all automobiles, and 20 per cent of all tractors. A survey by the electric appliance industries of 750 small towns showed that 85 per cent of the homes were wired for electricity. That's a higher proportion than in some good-sized cities. The people who live in these towns and in the nearby farm areas which also have electric service buy 40 per cent of every sort of electric equipment.

Small Town Papers

BY FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

Reporting by special newspaper writers, Pat, Mike, Rastus and Sam Cornstalk (with the help of Thomas Jefferson Jackson Jones)

"The total circulation of these 11,500 country weeklies is about 9,200,000 an average of a little over 1 copy to every eight. That doesn't sound like much to a New Yorker accustomed to circulations up to the hundreds of thousands. But there are nearly about 600 dailies in the United States which have as many as 10,000 circulation, and the whole list of dailies circulates only about 33,000,000.

"It doesn't take a large circulation to make a country weekly profitable. Sheri Dillon, editor of the rest of you chaps here are the magazines of the business. Remember that an 8-page, not, of $2,000 a year in a village of 500 population is a big deal. It's a good deal of the publication of at least $10,000 a year in Chicago or New York, in which it will make a living to do for himself and his family. It is the whole business from the newsman in the same small town makes; no such. I should say, as anybody else in town is likely to make, including the banker and the general merchant. And I don't think I'm far wrong when I put $3,000 a year be pretty good salary for a publisher for country weeklies, with his average case closer to $2,000. If I'm wrong somebody correct me."

"Somebody all right is me," said an Iowa editor who had been doing nothing but listen. "I personally know at least fifteen weekly publishers in Iowa who make more than $3,000 a year from their papers. It's a one-man paper—or, rather, a poor editor, who can't make $3,000 a year on his investment in this business, and I guess our average plant investment runs about $5,000 to $6,000 or $7,000."

"That will come pretty close to it," said one of the others, who turned out to be the representative of a concern carrying a general line of printing-and-publishing. "Take the main items and check me up. First is the typesetting machine, a line caster just like a big one in a city office. Mighty few country papers haven't got one nowadays, and save two, the average is about one and a quarter. Three thousand dollars is the price of a typesetting machine, the $4,000 more you can bank on. Then a press that will get $4,000 per paper as the average of that item."

"Then there's the item. There may be, somewhere in the United States, a newspaper office that's running on a hand press, but I don't know where it is. If I find it I'll up the ante and sell him a power press. The ordinary country paper could be, and often is set, printed, folded and mailed on an Army press that cost $50. More of them using the same hand-and-foot hand press, invented by Ben Franklin, which cost only $500 and printed two or four pages at a time. Then the cylinder press came in, with a boy to turn the crank while another fed the sheets, or a little steam engine to turn the crank, and these lines are obsolete now. The two-revolution press is the minimum, and from that up to the flat-bed perfecting press, printing from roll. Three types of presses cost from $2,000 to $50,000. I think a fair average here is another $5,000."

"There we have $9,000 in only the two main items of equipment. Now we've got to put in hand type and cases for the ads, paragraphing, a chaser, a folder, a mutor for the press and another for the machine, and all the rest of the necessary equipment including everything machinery in many instances. Certainly there's another $4,000 there. That makes an average investment of $13,000 exclusive of building. More country publishers own their buildings than rent, and $3,500 is surely not too high for an 8-page paper with 7½ by 12½ yards 54-inch, and ¼ yard all-over lace for the shields. Price 20 cents the pattern.

"Yes, I agree with your friend from Iowa that the average investment in country papers is well above $13,000, and it is increasing all the time."

The advertising-agency man—had been sketching within the range of his chair, eager to pack up the conversation again.

"Let me give you some more figures," he insisted. "You're wondering where the country publisher gets the money to invest in their plants, and where their income comes from. Here are some government statistics: There are roughly 60,000,000 people more than half the population of the United States—who live in these small towns or in the country around them. There are still 27,000,000 on the farms, although the census figures show they have moved to town since June, 1920. But where did they move to? To the big cities? Don't think it; they moved to the nearest town. Where they are still readers of the country weeklies.

"And these 60,000,000 people, instead of being the poorest part of our population, are pretty average. The census, on the average, shows small towns' income somewhere above the big cities'. They'd average a higher income than the cities, in fact, if it weren't for the big ones. There's a saving of higher living costs in the small towns, and they have more money left over for investment. Take the matter of automobiles, for instance. Two people in every family of five own cars. That's a large proportion of the 60,000,000 and a large proportion of the $3,000,000,000 a year spent on automobiles.

"Here's another survey, made by the General Federation of Women's Clubs in July 1927, of home visits to 5,000 families in the small industrial city of Kingsport, Tenn. Of the families in these towns there are 127 automobiles owning phonographs and 110 radio sets.

GREATNESS THROUGH SERVICE

Golden Text: "The Son of Man also came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many." Matt. 20:28.

Lesson: Mark 9:33-50; 10:35-45.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 42:1-7.

Explanations and Comments

The Request For Preferment, verses 35-37. James and John the sons of Zebedee, came to Jesus with a special request. Matthew says that their mother came with the request (Matthew 20:20). The one is in accordance with the law makim He who does anything through another, does it himself." John A. Broadus. An Australian writer suggests that Mark's more cavalierous than Matthew's or else that Matthew wished to save the fame of James and John, and adds: "Anyhow, it was clearly a family affair, with almost a suggestion of an Eastern intrigue. Salome may have been put up to it by her son."

"We would that Thou shouldest do for us whatsoever we shall ask us." Mark. They began. They would have Him, as it were, give them a signed check leaving them to fill in the amount as they pleased.

"How like many shall I say most?—of our petitions! We come to God to get what we want, not to learn what He wants us to have or would from us. As Bishop Temple says, the form of all pagan prayer is: "Will you do me what I want?" While the prayer of Christianity is: "Will you help me to do with me and with all men what You want?"

To Jesus' question as to what they wished, they replied: "Grant unto us that we may sit, one on Thy right hand, and one on Thy left hand, in Thy glory." The two disciples were at least honest in their request; they wanted preference and asked for it in plain words. They do not include Peter in their request for the chief places; were they jealous of him, and were they seeking to "get ahead" of him? The right and the left hand were the places of honor Dumadeus quotes a saying of Rabbi Acha to the effect that the Holy and Blessed God will cause King Messiah to sit at His right hand, and Abraham at His left.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three —and It's Dangerous

by Ruth Brinton

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy, caused by "playing" with a host of animated toys for the amusement of parents and relatives. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour at the longest. Beyond that, bewilder, tickled, caused to laugh or even frightened, and sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying and sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby's every communication, but when you just "play" with baby, the young baby cannot figure out what to do in response to you, so it continues to cry, or it continues to laugh, or it continues to do something equally annoying.

BEATTY STRESSES CANADA'S NEED OF POPULATION

Ottawa.—More executive efficiency and greater administrative initiative under experienced executives are the massing high salaries were among the suggestions offered by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific railway.

Mr Beatty indicated his belief that the present efforts being made by the government, and the railways were bringing inadequate results. He approved of the training in rural districts as a method of eliminating "rotten" from immigrants.

Millions of Canada's 9,000,000 people were of British and French origin, he said.

"This would indicate that we have not yet reached the point at which the admission of emigrants, even in considerable numbers, should cause us to be alarmed, first from Great Britain and afterward from the United States and selected continental countries, men who are physically fit, and able, and willing to follow agricultural pursuits.

"If the figures for the past three years are approximately correct that 60,000 per year was the net increase in our population, other than from natural increase, and the extent of the country and its resources are considered, it cannot, I think, be said we are admitting an inadequate number of new settlers. I feel, too, that with present condition of things the fundamental principles underlying the legislation are correct and that immigration as applied to Canada relates almost exclusively to land settlement and colonization. The entrance of men who followed other pursuits will depend upon the opportunities for employment and the conditions and when these opportunities are known to exist they will be secured without difficulty and without effort. In fact, the history of the U.S. has indicated that where jobs are available applicants are usually found for them in great numbers.

"If I am correct in assuming that the question is one of land settlement and colonization, our efforts must be of necessity largely restricted to obtaining settlers or those who can in time become settlers. We have a great deal of unoccupied land in Canada.

Floyd Bennett Dies In Quebec Hospital From Double Pneumonia

Quebec Floyd Bennett, one of the world's best known airmen, ended his hospital here following a severe attack of double pneumonia.

Bennett, who, in conjunction with Percy Lubcher was one of the first to try to setup Lindbergh and to fly between Germany and Ireland across Atlantic, died at twenty-four minutes past 1 o'clock this morning. Friends of his attempt to help his stranded fellow airmen whose plane, the Bremen, was in a disabled condition at mid-ocean.

Bennett had been suffering from a heavy cold prior to his take off from Detroit and had undertaken the flight against advice of physicians.

His wife and Commander Byrd both of whom rushed here from New York when informed as to Bennett's serious condition, were at his bedside when he died. Mrs. Bennett had also ill when she arrived here and was occupying a cot in the hospital suffering from bronchitis.

Pleased With Senate Prospects

Jones Cannot Seek Election Of Twelve Year Campaign

Edmonton, Alta. — Announcement from Ottawa that the Dominion Parliament would take steps to amend provisions of the British North America Act, which bars Canada and for women to receive appointments to the Senate, brings to a climax a 19-year campaign waged by Mrs. Henrietta Muir Edwards, and while, and willing to follow agricultural pursuits.

During the last 12 months, as compared with the preceding year, there has been an increase in British immigrants of 1,806. Immigrants from the United States has increased by 2,962, and from other countries the increase is 2,336.

A significant feature of the statistics is the increase in immigration from the United States, which was greater than the increase from all other sources combined.

During March the total immigration to Canada was 14,698, of which 8,150 were British, 3,953 from the United States, and 2,125 from other countries.

During March 2,676 Canadians who had gone to the United States to reside returned to Canada, declaring their intention of remaining permanently in this country. The number of these returning Canadians in the first year was 29,867.

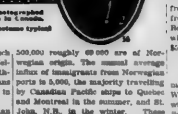
Charge Dry Officers At Border Cities Are Lax

Ottawa.—Canada will communicate immediately with her minister in Washington, Hon. Vincent Massey, in respect to the smuggling of liquor into Canada from ships in American waters, it was announced by Hon. Jacques Bureau, minister of customs.

The announcement was made in the house by Mr. Bureau in reply to a question by Mr. Cowan, Conservative, Halifax, who charged that the prohibition officers in Canadian cities were lax in their duties.

Mr. Cowan said that he had been informed that the prohibition officers in Canadian cities were lax in their duties.

Norwegians Aid Canada's Development



L. A group of Norwegians photographed after having spent a few years in Canada.

2. Young girl dressed in the costume typical of her native country.

By introducing into Canada much winter sport talent as that of the Norwegian settlers in ski-jumping, Canada is in figure skating. Norwegians have won much favor and esteem in the Dominion, according to Mrs. Nels Nelsen, C.P.R. brakeman arrested a world's record in 1926 at Revelstoke, B.C., and carry in a successful leap down the mountain side of 240 feet, a distance that has not yet been surpassed. His brother, Iyrtad Nelsen, created the record for the Quebec jump this winter in making 114 feet, a highly creditable performance on that particular jump.

At Banff and Quebec and other winter sport centres in Canada, Norwegians, as amateurs and professionals, have contributed much to native figure skating talent. They have undoubtedly shared in the training of the Canadian Canadian skaters, many of whom have won great distinction in international and world competitions.

Automobile Racer Killed

Car Overturns When Lockhart Was Seeking New Record

Daytona Beach, Fla. Frank Lockhart, noted automobile racer, was killed almost instantly here when his foot control of his machine while racing down the beach at more than 200 miles an hour.

On his first run, Lockhart had been clocked at 147 miles an hour. The return trip was made at a speed of 194 miles. Starting South on the beach again the machines speed was timed at 203.45 miles.

In the final trip, it was apparent that he was making more than 200 miles an hour when the racer went out of control, about 200 yards south of the beginning of the mile stretch directly in front of the grandstand.

Lockhart's machine was demolished. The car in which the famous speed king met his death was the one in which he pioneered into the ocean here on February 22 last, while making an attempt to set a world's record during the annual speed trials here.

Commissioner Of Lands Dead

John W. Greenway, Was Son Of Premier Of Manitoba

Ottawa.—John W. Greenway, aged 67 years, commissioner of lands, Department of Interior, and son of the late Hon. Thomas Greenway, former premier of Manitoba, died here.

He had been in ill health since the death of his wife, March 4 last.

Under Mr. Greenway's supervision some thousands of settlers were located in the West and he was largely responsible for the success of the various plans used in providing homesteads for these settlers.

Mr. Greenway was born at Bervie, Ont., at the time his father was Federal member for that district.

The family moved to Manitoba in 1879 and after his father became premier of that province, Mr. Greenway assisted in the management of their farm at Crystal City fell on the shoulders of the son.

In 1886 John Greenway was appointed Inspector of Land Agents in Manitoba and became commissioner of lands under the Dominion Government in 1901.

Killed By Chinese Soldier

Shanghai.—Dr. Walter F. Seymour, superintendent of the Presbyterian hospital at Tsinan, southwest of Shantung, was shot to death by a Chinese soldier. Dr. Seymour, a graduate of Wisconsin University and Northwestern Medical School, Evanston, Ill., came to China in 1903.

BRITAIN NAMES SIR WM. CLARK OTTAWA ENVOY

London.—Sir William Henry Clark, comptroller-general of the department of overseas trade since 1917, has been appointed British high commissioner to Ottawa.

Sir William Clark is the eldest son of the late W. J. Clark, farmer, House, Cambridge and is in his 52nd year.

Sir William was educated at Rugby and Trinity College, Cambridge. He has had an exceptional training in the public service. He was a clerk in the Board of Trade Department of the government in 1900; secretary to the special mission to Shanghai to negotiate a commercial treaty with China in 1901; acting second secretary in the diplomatic service in 1902; secretary to the Royal Commission on the House supply of Food, etc., in time of war, 1905-5.

Sir William was private secretary at the Board of Trade to Lloyd George in 1906, and to Winston Churchill in 1908; secretary to Lloyd George as chancellor of the exchequer, 1908-10; member for commerce and industry of the council of the Viceroy of India, 1910-14, and comptroller-general of the commercial intelligence department of the Board of Trade, 1916-17.

As soon as the necessary arrangements are completed, Sir William will proceed to Ottawa.

Germans Planning New Trip Across Atlantic

Completing Plans For Another Flight To North America

Dessau, Germany.—Negotiations for another flight to North America on a Junkers plane by way of Southern Ireland, have almost been completed.

The Junkers officials, however, have instructed the pilots of the flight that the latest Associated Press learns that the project is being engineered by Lieut. Thomas Wesmann, who last year got as far as the Azores in the D-1230 in an effort to make the westward passage.

The huge, silver plane of the Bremen, which last year was compelled to land after a valiant effort to start for U.S. soil, will be used and will be piloted by Johann Risties, who was aboard the Europa on her memorable trip.

It is understood that Fraulien Ellenor owns the Europa and that she will be a passenger on the new attempt.

Profits From Liquor Sales

Annual Report For Saskatchewan Shows Increase Over Last Year

Regina. Profits from the sale of liquor in Saskatchewan for the period ended March 31 last, were $2,162,990.63, it was officially announced on receipt of the annual report of the independent firm of auditors.

In the corresponding period one year earlier, the profits were $2,114,-906.44.

In the last 12-month period revenue from the sale of beer exceeded that from the sale of wines and spirits. Beer sales totalled $6,171,092.28, while wine and spirits sales totalled $5,534,142.82.

Proceeds Go To Nurse

New York. The proceeds of a matinee under the auspices of Sir Wilfred Grenfell in a play bouse here, will go to Miss Grace Harris, of Battle, John, N.B., who carried supplies to the Bremen fliers on Greenly Island, and afterwards through the Strait John Telegraph-Journal and the Canadian Press, gave the first detailed first-hand account of their plight to the world. Miss Parsy is a nurse at the Portsea Mission in Labrador

Willing To Pay Part

Ottawa.—The Government is tentatively disposed toward payment, in part at least, of amounts which may be due Home Bank depositors who have not received 35 per cent. of their claims under legislation enacted two sessions ago. This was the statement made in the House by Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, in reply to a question by Mr. Cleary, Conservative, Toronto, South.

AN ANNUAL PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

Spring is here, and with it Spring cleaning. Every corner of the house is turned out, examined, scrubbed and necessary repairs done. The garden is attended, refuse gathered, burned or otherwise disposed, lawns brushed, trees and hedges pruned. The car is taken in plane, thoroughly overhauled and put in complete running order, but, what about the complete physical examination of the human machine? The intricate and irreplaceable mechanism that never gets a rest, the machine for which no spare parts can be bought? Alas! It is used and abused day in, day out, week in, week out, year in and year out until the mechanism shows signs of giving up and then it is taken to the repair shop, to either words to the physician, who in many, many cases can do no more than patch. Why is the cheapest make of car given more consideration than the human body? A car can be replaced, a body never.

The value of a periodic physical examination cannot be over-estimated. Many diseases begin slowly or insidiously and may not produce any disabling symptoms until the condition is considerably advanced. T.B., cancer, Bright's Disease, Diabetes, hardening of the arteries, and certain forms of heart disease, are examples of disease that may begin unnoticed. To the physician trained to note the slightest symptom of disorder, the beginning of these diseases is at once apparent. A careful physical examination made periodically would detect such diseases early and allow of the prompt institution of proper treatment.

Objection to periodic physical examinations is sometimes made on the ground that such examinations cause much unnecessary worry, especially if some disease is detected, but if a disease condition is present the person affected should know about it in order that corrective steps may be taken promptly. If a person is in excellent health, he has nothing to fear from an examination, but such an examination will add to his peace of mind and mental security. Physical examination should begin in early life, during the pre-school age, and be continued into old age. If this practice was begun then, there would be found many defects which could be corrected and then the handing of such children avoided.

"Prevention is better than cure" and the Red Cross with its Health Package Library will give much valuable assistance towards this end.

Here and There

(CP)

Victoria. — The area of forest land in British Columbia dedicated to Pacific Forest production is 2,500,000 acres, according to a Government report.

Calgary. — Plans are actively under way by the Calgary Tramway Cream Company to build a seven hundred thousand bushel elevator at Vancouver, it is announced by A. E. Botts, manager of the company. Mr. Botts said that an economy notable site had been secured on the north shore, approximately opposite Spillers elevator.

Edmonton. — Five special trains carrying around 1500 pilgrims to Montreal through Montreal recently on their way to Quebec City and the shrine of Ste Anne de Beaupre also visited the shrine of St Joseph in Montreal on their return trip, Father Vevers from the church of St Alden, Jersey City under the care of Father Thomas M. Corry, parish priest, were the only annual pilgrimage to these shrines.

Edmonton. — Shipments of freight destined to points in the north-west of Canada via Port Arthur, Ont., over the Canadian Pacific lake and rail route will now be subject to the rates applied date being April 1 There will be no change in the consignor's billing service between Port Medicine and the head of the Lakes during the coming season. Through passenger service will be resumed this season from Owen Sound, May 7 and from Port Medicine, May 12.

Edmonton. — Resumption of Much Troubled Lagoon Channel and the shortage of freight from Canadian Pacific Steamships docked here during the interlake has now been completed by Manager Bowes and steamer is due in Toronto. The trawler is immediately available to ease or relieve the congestion of freight that can hold up to 12,500 lbs of freight and can be switched. Additional sailings are expected to immediately expedite the movement of C. P. freight.

Edmonton. — Immigrants are flowing into Canada at record rates since early and Canada at record rates since early and Great Britain and Europe are bringing here over 50 per cent of shipments of cheese on a thousand per ship. The majority are farm laborers of British and North European stock and are mainly going into the land in the Prairie Provinces with a fair proportion going to Ontario and the Maritime Provinces.

Winnipeg. — Despite the heavy movement of livestock to the West during the past two weeks, many positions are open on western farms than the railways and emigration agencies can fill, based on reports and employment officers here. Thousands of vacancies, the officers state, are still unfilled. Likelihood of an earlier commencement of harvesting operations is generally conceded in the West, they added, and with the favorable conditions at its present high peak the operations in the Province will tend may find western farmers shorthanded.

At the result of a conference between the Canadian Bankers' Association, financial representatives of the members of the Winnipeg and Brandon Boards of Trade, a movement is under way for the placing of 100,000 sheep annually on Manitoba farms. There will be an initial number of fifty to each farmer, somewhat similar to the plan now in operation in North Dakota. J. D. McGregor was appointed chairman of the committee in charge further arrangements for the carrying out of this plan.

"Well, there's many a good girl has come to me before without references, Mrs. Angus. I'm no such a hand for references as I once was," said Miss Ritchie. "They are often written to get rid of a girl, you know."

"No, I do not know that," said Mrs. Angus: "I prefer references."

"Well, then, here you are," said Miss Ritchie; "here's a real country girl with letters from rectors and curates and local bodies and all—she'll do fine for you."

That morning Helmi was interviewed by four other women. She was viewed with favor by the first one, who commended her good points without ever thinking it might be embarrassing. "You look clean and smart," she said; "you know how to put your clothes on straight, and you look a person square in the eye. You are a foreigner, I see. From what country?"

"Finland," said Helmi.

"Goodnight!" cried the lady, with a harsh laugh. "Then it's all off. My husband had one in his bridge gang and a positive nuisance he was, a socialist and agitator. He would put me out if I brought home a Finn. I want a British subject, like Hinchcliffe. We owe it to our sons to give them the choice, though, dear me, some of the English girls have been a trial, too."

The next woman who talked to Helmi kept a boarding-house, and decided Helmi on account of her height. "I like a tall girl she can carry trays better. You've done it? that's good. Yes, you are a big, strong girl. I want my foreign, but still you have good English. I don't mind Finns—they're cleanly, but clean and smart. What's that? You want to go home at night! Why? A Baby! Nothing doing. you won't do me at all. No, sir, I had a girl with a baby once and it was always getting sick or dying or something just when I needed her worst. Never again! I believe in population all right, but I can't have a waitress with a baby, even if we never get the country settled. What in the world did you have a baby for, a smart girl like you?"

Helmi stared at her haughtily. "I is not your business," she said, "I can have a baby if I want it without asking you."

"You bet you can, and welcome. Well, who else have you, Miss Ritchie?"

The fourth woman who spoke to Helmi asked her many questions about her past. "Where is your husband?" she asked.

Helmi replied that she did not know

"Are you sure you are married?"

Helmi produced the certificate.

"Do you ever think he may have deserted you?" the woman asked searchingly.

Helmi hesitated, and as the woman piled her questions she could only think of the brace and bit Jack used to bore holes in the boards. Helmi knew she had no right to question her, but she answered as bravely as she could, all the time private "Make her take you. God Make her!"

"Well, my dear, I wouldn't be too sure. Men are fickle, I know. My first husband left me."

"My man is a good one," said Helmi, firmly.

"Any family?"

"One little girl, one month old."

"Well, of course, that would be the difficulty."

"I can leave her with friends" said Helmi, eagerly. She was going panicky. Was there no work anywhere for her?

"Still, I have three sons, young men; it would not be nice to have a young girl who has a baby you know what boys are like—inclined to tease."

"I like boys, good enough," said Helmi, eagerly. "try me : I am a smart worker. I have to get work, my money is nearly gone, and I must pay for my baby's care, my friends are not rich people."

"I would not suppose they were," said the lady with severity. "I suppose they are Finnish people like yourself simply working people."

"I am Finn," said Helmi. "It is a Canadian family who have been very good to me."

"Indeed," said Mrs. Swallwell. "I hear good of them! I hope you are very grateful."

"I am," said Helmi. "I want to work for them a little bit."

"I still think about it. I do not like to decide in a hurry. My home is very precious to me, I must consider it so carefully. People tell me I am foolish, but it's my nature. Give me your phone number. You haven't a phone? Oh, dear, how awkward! Let me see, you could phone me—No. 5353—that is easy to remember but I cannot just say a positive nuisance he was, a socialist and agitator. He would put me out if I brought home a Finn. I want a British subject, like Hinchcliffe. We owe it to our sons to give them the choice, though, dear me, some of the English girls have been a trial, too."

Helmi suggested, Helmi turned away. How could she wait until Friday—she must have work. It was now near twelve—surely someone would take her? She looked back and searched the faces of the women. A thin lady nodded to her encouragingly.

"I'll phone about for you when I can," she said; "there is a rush on this evening."

Just at that moment the door opened and a dainty little lady entered. She came in the door quickly with tiny steps, like a mechanical toy. "Oh, Miss Ritchie, I am in such trouble," she began; "Mary has left me. She quarrelled with Robin, and wanted him to apologize. It is pretty hard for a boy of seven to apologize, sure, isn't it? He simply wouldn't. He had thrown a tomato at her it was very naughty of him, of course—just a boyish prank—and she took it so seriously. Have you someone?"

Miss Ritchie called Helmi over. "Here's the very girl for you, Mrs. Brand," she said; "she has a baby of her own, and she'll be good to the twins, I know."

"Oh, I couldn't take a girl with a baby—it would be . . . ." she hesitated.

"I can work by the day and leave the baby with friends," said Helmi. She was pale and tired now, and looked too ill to be an attractive venture for anyone looking for help.

"I am strong," said Helmi. "my baby is young, so I am pale yet. Try me—for a day even."

"Well, I must ask my husband if always consult him of course" (Mrs Brand would have been interested in this) 'and I will let Miss Ritchie know. That will be the best, I couldn't very well let you bring the baby, and it's at night I need you most."

Helmi turned to Miss Ritchie "I must go now," she said "a little girl minds the baby—I must from school, she stayed for me"

Miss Ritchie nodded "Better luck next time," she said; "I shall keep you in mind."

In the afternoon Helmi came back Mrs Corbett was not going out, so she kept the baby But no one wanted Helmi she was a foreigner, and she had a baby

Kind-hearted Miss Ritchie was distressed and flared up in anger when one woman said to Helmi, "You should have thought of this about this time last year."

"Having a baby is not a crime, Mrs. Coatsworth, the poor girl is honest and willing to work. She'll give service for every dollar, I'll go bail She isn't asking charity or even sympathy."

All afternoon Helmi waited, while well-dressed women came and went. The seekers of employment sat together, and were easily distinguishable from the others. Their manner was humble and beseeching. She was struck by the distinctions had between many women out of employment, and on the faces of many agaunt fear was plainly written. This was particularly true of those who were the most refined and cultured

Fragments of conversation fell around Helmi as she sat among the seekers.

Two women in soul coats were discussing the situation.

Centennial Celebration

Henri Dunant, Founder Of Red Cross, Winner of Nobel Peace Prize

Born Geneva May 8, 1828. Died, Paris October 31, 1910.

Picture-frame business man and philanthropist. Author of several books.

Usually travelling through Northern Italy in 1859, Dunant came upon the ghastly plain of Solferino where, on June 24th, 200,000 men had been engaged in a battle which had lasted fifteen hours.

Shocked into action at the sight of 40,000 dead, wounded and dying soldiers, Dunant undertook to establish a volunteer ambulance and nursing service, recruited from the nearby town of Castiglione. With these workers, he obtained official permission to tend the wounded and dying on the field of battle, going out personally with wine, food, cigarettes, tobacco, for which he paid out of his own purse. So indefatigably did he work that, in gratitude, the invalids named him "The Good Samaritan of Castiglione."

The vision of the suffering witnessed at Solferino never left him. For three years he travelled about Europe, preaching, lecturing, writing, advocating the need of speedy reorganization of military and medical nursing service. Finally, in 1862, his little book "Un Souvenir de Solferino" appeared and startled a shocked world into the immediate need for change.

The Committee of Public Safety consequently, under the presidency and chairmanship of Gustave Moynier and General Dufour, became so interested that it succeeded in calling together an International Conference in 1863. As a result of these efforts and another conference was called in 1864, when 16 nations sent delegates. The meeting ended when 12 out of the 18 national representatives signed the first Treaty of Geneva, and Red Cross was established for the first time in international law. Today 50 nations subscribe to this Treaty, which grew out of the study of Henri Dunant.

Dunant lived a long and useful life, devoting a large fortune to the furtherance of his benevolent and philanthropic work.

C. N. R. Announces Low Summer Fares

Round Trip Summer Excursion Fares On Sale Effect May 15th

Summer days are bargain days on the Canadian National Railways. Commencing May 15, round trip summer excursion fares goes into effect. These fares feature a reduction of from 20 to 25 per cent as compared with the regular rates as well as allowing the traveller a longer period before the date of expiration, the low fares remaining in effect until September 30.

The new rates are applicable from Pacific and prairie province points on the Canadian National Railways to all points in the east and also from prairie province points to the Pacific Coast. On this eastern route the option of making part of the trip by boat across the Great Lakes is permitted and the same privilege is extended to those desirous of making the boat trip between Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

Little Helps For This Week

"Let us do good unto all men."—Galatians vi. 10.

The chief use, then in man of that he knows.
Is his painstaking for the good of all.
Not fleshly weeping for our own ends or loss.
Nor laughing from a melancholy spell.
Nor healing from a soul that overflows
With bitterness breathed out from inward thrill;
But sweetly, rather, to cease, to loose,
As need requires, the frail, fallen form.
—Alfred Austin, Poet Laureate.

Power to do good is the true sine qua non of aspiring. For good thoughts, though God accept them, yet towards men they are little better than good dreams, except they be put in act, and that cannot be without power and place as the vantage ground.—Lord Bacon.

NO MEDICINE LIKE BABY'S OWN TABLETS
For Either the Newborn Babe Or the Growing Child
There is no other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones—whether it be for the new born babe or the growing child the Tablets always do good. They are absolutely free from opiates or other harmful drugs and the mother can always feel safe in using them.
Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. John Armour, R.R. 1, South Monaghan, Ont., says:—"We have three fine, healthy children, to whom when a medicine is needed, we have given only Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are the best medicine you can keep in any home where there are young children."
Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels; banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The board of the United church has decided to build a new manse and a committee has the matter in hand.

The wash and storms played havoc with the telephone poles, a great number being down between here and the city.

It is reported that T. Stoker, dry goods merchant of Edmonton, is opening up a branch in the store recently vacated by C. Allard.

A well attended meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion was held Monday at which plans for the 24th May celebration were thoroughly discussed.

Tenders for four pieces of road-work are being called for by the department of public works, one of which is the grading of the road from Fort Saskatchewan to Lamont.

A chimney fire at Charlie Mah Yam's restaurant caused considerable excitement Friday night. The high wind raging at the time gave a fire all kinds of possibilities but fortunately it was overcome in its early stages.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the First United church will be held at the home of Mrs. D. C. Ramsay, on May 3, at 2:30 p.m. A cordial welcome is extended to all ladies of the congregation.

The Women's Institute will meet in the Memorial hall on May 16, at 3 p.m. Mr. Sutherland will be the speaker for the afternoon, his subject being "The Story of Drugs." A good attendance is expected. Tea will be served.

F. G. Stanley and Archie Turner, local carpenters, are building a large implement shed on the farm of Mr. Van Acker, north of the river. Unfortunately, Frank strained his back while at work last Friday and is now laid up in bed. With the busy season at hand it is hoped he will soon be around again.

ARBOR DAY IS OBSERVED IN RIGHT SPIRIT AT FORT

A large number of the residents of Fort Saskatchewan, permanent and transient, were out on Monday planting trees on street boulevards. The work was attached in a business-like way with mayor and council, Horticultural Society members and other leading citizens digging in with spades, energy and sore hands. We mention each in its respective turn. Trucks were used to bring the trees and everyone worked to such purpose that Dennis avenue was completed and also Government street, as well as replacements being made where last year's trees failed to survive or were destroyed by vandals.

A great deal of work was also done on private property during the day and long evening; trees were planted and rubbish and grass fires were throwing off smoke here, there and everywhere. The day's activities made a great improvement to the appearance of the town, a real giant's stride towards a "town beautiful."

The baseball boys were out practicing last night for the first time this season. The prospects are bright for a good team again this year.

Josephburg

The Beaver Hills church Ladies' Aid meets on Wednesday of this week at the home of Miss J. Dote.

The observance of Arbor Day at Josephburg school was postponed pending the arrival of nearly 500 trees from the Forestry Station at Indian Head. When these came, they will be planted as a windbreak on the east and north sides of the school grounds. It is hoped that parents will do everything possible in the way of encouraging their children and lending implements to make the labor of planting this windbreak easy and pleasant. The result will be a finer appearance, good shelter and economy of fuel for the school.

The induction of the Rev. A. Wennrauch, of the Reformed Church, will take place next Sunday morning.

On Monday afternoon a fast and interesting ball game was played between Pleasant View and Josephburg schools, the latter winning by 15-13. New players on both sides showed great promise, and Ernest A. Mohr led off the game to everyone's satisfaction.

The tennis club held an organization meeting Monday evening. Helen Hennig and Emma Hennig were elected president and secretary respectively. It was decided to offer a prize for the winner of a singles tournament in the senior school. The entrance fee for this event will be 50 cents and will include membership in the club. Adult fee $1.00. The court is now in good condition.

Mr. Frank Hennig is busy building an addition to his residence.

THREE MEN INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Forced from the road by another car which it is alleged was travelling on the wrong side of the highway, a car operated by Harry Graham, Edmonton, toppled into the ditch near Halfway House on the Edmonton-Fort Saskatchewan road Saturday night, resulting in injuries to Alex. Souter, farmer of this district, Douglas McKellar, United Grain Growers agent at Bretford, and Mr. Graham.

They were rushed to the Royal Alexander hospital where it was discovered Souter was suffering from two fractured ribs and a fractured hip and internal injuries, while Mr. McKellar has a fractured hip and internal injuries. Mr. Graham is suffering from cuts and bruises. Two other men in the car were not injured.

CENTENARY OF THE BIRTH OF HENRI DUNANT, FOUNDER OF RED CROSS

The Red Cross is recognized the world over as the symbol of human compassion, and as such is respected by all peoples. It owes its existence to the vision of Henri Dunant, of Geneva, whose centennial anniversary was celebrated the world over on May 8th.

In the year 1859 Henri Dunant witnessed and was deeply impressed by the sight of the sufferings of the soldiers at the battle of Solferino in northern Italy, where the French and Italians were engaged in combat with the Austrians.

Henri Dunant, aided by a few people from the nearby villages did what he could to relieve the sufferings of the wounded men on the battlefield. This volunteer corps, whose tireless, if unskilled, care brought relief to the dying soldiers, noticed that Henri Dunant made no distinction in nationality, giving the same care to all, saying "All are brothers."

Unable to forget the terrible scenes he had witnessed, Henri Dunant wrote a book, " A Souvenir of Solferino" which was read throughout the civilized world. It aroused the strongest feeling, especially against the barbaric neglect of wounded soldiers.

In Geneva a committee of five was appointed to consider the recommendations suggestions of this book. Thanks to Dunant and his friends, the Geneva Convention, signed in 1864, gave official recognition to the rights of the wounded and the duty of civilized men to relieve their sufferings.

Thus was born the first Red Cross Society, whose primary purpose was the care of sick soldiers and prisoners of war. Today Red Cross activities have extended far beyond this field. Relief of suffering at all times, improvement of health, and prevention of disease; these are the great purposes to which all the Red Cross Societies of the nations are pledged.

Alberta's peace time efforts centre around the sick and crippled child of whom there are many hundreds in our midst.

Other constructive works are outpost nursing, the care of the immigrant, and health education. Write to the Red Cross Office, Civic Building, Edmonton, for the story of what is being done in Alberta, mailed free to any address.

Who Wants War?

The statement has been made so frequently, and with such vigor that it is the capitalist class of the world which has been responsible for war between nations, that many people have become convinced of its truth. And it is probably true that some of the ways of the past have been the direct result of greedy men seeking to further their own selfish ends. To what extent capitalistic have been responsible for past wars it would be difficult to say, but, with the experience of the last Great War, and the disastrous effects on industry and world commerce which resulted, both during the continuance of the conflict and in the years that have followed, it is safe to say that Capital has learned its lesson, and today the whole influence of the financial and industrial world is thrown into the scale in favor of continuing Peace.

A stronger picture is, however, presented by the one country in which those who are loudest in their outcry against the capitalist class are in full control, namely, Russia. In no other country is Capital so strongly denounced as in Soviet Russia. The Soviet leaders regard Capital as the source of all the world's difficulties and sorrows. At its door they lay the major crimes of the world. The revolution under Lenine and Trotsky had for its object, not the overthrow of the Czarist Government, for it had already fallen, but the overthrow and complete destruction of Capital, and in their campaign against the capitalist system they held it to be responsible for war and the sufferings and losses which war always entails.

Today, however, under the leadership of the Soviet, Russia is the most militaristic country in the world, the one chief place of danger to the peace of the world. Recently a first-hand picture of the military spirit of Russia was given by one who is friendly to the present leaders of the Soviet, Mr. Willis J. Weldeck, Socialist M.P. for the Stourbridge Division of Worcestshire, England, in the British Parliament. He makes some interesting disclosures in a recent article on "Soviet Russia Today," which appeared in a recent issue of the "Socialist Review." There he admits that the Soviet dictatorship "possesses, even boasts of, a most efficient Secret Service, and is responsible for creating a military spirit that gives one food for reflection."

Moreover, he says, "Girls as well as boys are learning to handle rifles, and girls' corps for this purpose are being formed in those otherwise excellent institutions, workers' or trade union clubs. Indeed, except during the World War, I have never seen such military enthusiasm as I witnessed in Russia during my recent visit." Mr. Weldeck mentions a military demonstration by half a million young people of the International Youth Movement, and observes: "If after the enthusiasms and determination I then witnessed, Russia is ever attacked I pity the army that comes out against her, for no capitalist government in the whole world can put an army into the field with a million men, the enthusiasm possessed by Young Russia. It was very significant."

Thus, while professing peace at Geneva, and submitting proposals that all the nations of the world totally disarm, the Soviet leaders are ragged in the task of exciting military enthusiasm throughout the length and breadth of Russia, and training the youth of the land, girls as well as boys, for war.

In the face of such duplicity, and with full knowledge of what Russia is attempting in China, and, in fact, in all countries where a feeling of unrest prevails, how can the other nations of the world scrap all their armaments, as many, if not most of them, would like to do so? Russia is, in actual fact, the greatest stumbling block to world disarmament, and, notwithstanding all the pious protestations of the Soviet leaders, constitutes the outstanding threat against future peace among the nations.

Postal Note Issued in 1868 Cashed After 58 Years

After a trip to Belgravia and several other points in the Balkans and long seas at Ottawa, New York, and other small points, a postal note for $37, issued at Cranbrook in 1858, was recently cashed at Creston Post Office by the owner, Frank Kenik, now approaching 70, though the note was issued him 58 years ago by his brother, John. At the saving account rate of interest the holder of the long overdue note is out some $60.

World's Greatest Tea Drinkers

New Zealanders Serve It Seven Times Every Day

In New Zealand they drink tea seven times a day, according to one of the Canadian Exchange teachers, Miss Loula Derbecker, of Kitchener Ont. Miss Derbecker stated that although there were no furnaces in the houses, the practice of tea-drinking served to counteract the chill of the many seasons during July and August. Ten hours breakfast, tea at breakfast, morning tea at half past ten, tea for lunch, afternoon tea, tea for dinner, and tea for supper was the unvarying procedure. Even the schools, colleges and offices served tea at 10.30 in the morning she said.

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one heaping teaspoonful neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard of quality everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will promptly end in five minutes. Then you will always keep what is in the bottle. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acidity. Any druggist can supply you.

Premier Baldwin Never Contributes To Press

Has Never Been Asked But Hopes He Will Do

That Premier Baldwin occupies a somewhat unique distinction among cabinet ministers in that he has never had a single offer of any kind to contribute to the press, was revealed by Mr. Baldwin in a speech at a luncheon given to Viscount Burnham.

"I might produce something," the Premier said, smilingly, "that if not worth a penny a line might at least be worth a penny a dozen," he remarked. When he retired from public life, he added, he would like to feel that one kind hearted person had once made him an offer so that he could see his own stuff in print with his name under it.

MISTAKES MOTHERS MAKE IN CARE OF LITTLE ONES

Many mothers give their children solid foods at too early an age and any penalty that their babies "cut everything that grown up people do." Such a course is almost certain to bring on indigestion and lay the foundation of much ill-health for the little one.

Other mothers administer harsh, nauseating purgatives which in reality irritate and injure the delicate stomach and bowels and at the same time cause children to dread all medicine.

A baby's no meat should be given to a child until it reaches the age of 18 months, and then only if approved by the doctor For medicine, all strong, disagreeable oils and powders should be abandoned and Baby's Own Tablets given instead.

Baby's Own Tablets are especially made for little ones. They are pleasant to take and can be given with absolute safety to even the new-born baby. They quickly banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New Impetus Being Given To Cattle Raising Industry As a Result Of High Prices

The active demand for Canadian cattle in the United States, which has elevated prices to a height never before reached, together with the prospect of this stimulus continuing for some time to come, has given an entirely new impetus to the beef-raising industry of Western Canada, for which the outlook a few years ago appeared so gloomy, says a bulletin of the Canadian Pacific Railway. At the same time the realization is steadily taking more general hold among Canadian agriculturists that a great and prosperous future awaits the live-stock industry, according to the railroad. There is every justification for an expansion of these into as well as other branches of the live-stock industry, the writer adds.

"Governments and live-stock organizations have been working in effect-ible," the bulletin continues, "and already the fruits of their efforts are apparent. During 1927 the number of beef cattle in Canada increased by some 39 per cent. over the previous year, and in Western Canada, essentially the home of the beef animal, numbers increased by over 75 per cent. In the same year the number of sheep in Canada increased by about 4 per cent. and in Western Canada by more than 9 per cent. There is every indication that despite heavy sales there will be further increases recorded in the present year, and thereafter steady expansion is to be expected.

"Looking no further than the accepted future of Western Canada, great opportunity for the expansion of the live-stock industry is revealed. The average farm in this territory is of considerable extent. The average farm acreage in Manitoba is 274 acres, in Saskatchewan, 368 acres; in Alberta 512 acres, and in British Columbia 130 acres. Forty per cent. of the farms in Manitoba are over 300 acres in extent, 64 per cent. of those in Saskatchewan, 51 per cent. in Alberta and about 27 per cent. in British Columbia. Yet on the average Manitoba farm there are less than 5 beef cattle, and but 5.5 sheep; in Saskatchewan, 1.3 cattle, and 1.4 sheep per farm; in Alberta, 2.3 cattle and 6.6 sheep, and in British Columbia, using the number of farms in 1921 which are the latest available, approximately 2 head of beef cattle and 8.8 sheep.

"Even considering the vast tracts given up to pure grain growing, it is very clear that Western Canada farms could be carrying substantially more stock. At the time of the last agricultural census it was disclosed that of all the occupied farms in Western Canada 64 per cent. of the land in Manitoba, 43.13 per cent. in Saskatchewan, 58.83 per cent. in Alberta and 80.97 per cent. in British Columbia was unimproved. A total of 12.93 per cent. in Manitoba, 5.10 per cent. in Saskatchewan, 7.43 per cent. in Alberta and 37.62 per cent. in British Columbia was in woodlot and no unfit for most forms of agriculture until cleared. The remainder of the area of occupied farms, amounting to 37.28 per cent. of the total in Manitoba, 36.56 per cent. in Saskatchewan, 47.64 per cent in Alberta and 35.78 per cent. in British Columbia, was natural pastures and as such suited to the raising of cattle sheep or other live stock.

"In addition to the wide opportunity existing on the farms of Western Canada for greater engagement in these branches of the live-stock industry on an intensive scale, account must be taken of the larger operations of ranching, which is still an important factor and in several sections is increasing one in the raising of cattle and sheep. A distinct impetus to the ranching industry of Western Canada was given by the Department of the Interior in its agreement to allow of the granting of 21-year leases in Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan and in the railway belt of British Columbia. These Government granting leases had year totalled 6,963,333 acres, an increase of 184,130 acres over the previous year and an increase in the number of leases of nearly 600.

"It is surprising to find that when Western Canada has so firmly established its reputation as a live stock producer a more commencement has been made upon the holiday; and the scope for development is immense. Circumstances have combined to make the present a propitious time for inaugurating a great program of expansion, and there would appear to be good times ahead for those who will engage in live stock production in the territory, either established farmers and ranchers or newcomers to the country."

The Deadly Iceberg

No Effective Means Yet Found To Rid Seaways Of Menace

Despite all the advances that have been made in trans-Atlantic navigation, no effective means have yet been found of freeing the seaways of dangers from ice. The best that can be done is to warn ships of the presence of ice and the whereabouts of the various bergs.

Attempts are also made during the summer season to destroy some of the icebergs with shells. This work is done by a vessel specially commissioned for the purpose and supported jointly by Britain and the United States.

But these measures do not eliminate the danger entirely. Vigilance has to be practised by the captain of every vessel who would successfully avoid the deadly iceberg and bring his ship safely to port.

When it is noon in New York it is 8.30 a.m. in Honolulu, Hawaii.

A Distinctive Canadian Spirit Is Developing Which Will Naturally Demand Expression

That there is a distinctive Canadian spirit demanding expression is the firm belief of Frederick Philip Grove, world traveller and author, who addressed the Canadian Club in Toronto recently on "Canada the Spiritual Awakening of an Individual." Mr. Grove drew upon his experience for his subject, and left no impressed confidence that there was a specific Canadian attitude to life, to the world, to the universe, in God, which commanded utterance. Only by giving this utterance, he said, could Canadians make the cultured, well-educated people of Europe, Asia or Africa realize what they were, and only by giving it utterance could the voice of the Dominion resound through the centuries.

Mr Grove's experiences in Western Canada includes teaching a school on the prairie attended by foreigner-bore settlers. Later, he received an appointment as principal of a high school in Winnipeg.

Mr Grove said "In our Canadian West I have seen old men and women bending over five-cent copies of the Bible and other cherished books, their lips moving, their fingers holding the line, spelling out sentences that seemed to express what they felt And in their eyes I have seen something new; something I have never seen in the eyes of European peasants I do not know what it is sort of hopefulness I sometimes ask myself whether it was bred by our wider spaces along our coastlines, our ragged mountains, crisper air, or something material; and sometimes I think it is bred by the fact that other all it is in one of the fundamental desires of man to own the soil on which he stands, and land ownership was beyond their reach in Europe. That Canada has given to them, and therefore by freed their spirits."

Dreams of Visiting Old World Countries Come True

Travelling in Europe for about ten dollars a day, getting a thorough tour on a par with a normal holiday at home, is made possible for the American tourist by the happy combination of Tourist Third Cabin Class on the magnificent Atlantic fleet of the Canadian Pacific Steamships and the tours arranged in the old world by the Arts Crafts Guild of Chicago, it is shown by the figures released by these companies.

The creation of this new class of ocean travel on Canadian Pacific vessels has made travel possible for many thousands who have been unable to combine full-time holiday pleasure and during the past few years it has become fully established in popularity. The economy effected by this class of ocean passage makes a comprehensive European tour possible for every traveller, who during the Atlantic voyage enjoys surroundings and comforts equal to those until recently associated only with first class accommodation. Staterooms are above the water line, each with hot and cold running water, and the public rooms—card rooms, drawing rooms, smoking rooms, dining saloons—are commodious and tastefully furnished. Orchestras are carried for special entertainment and dancing. These take place on the broad promenade decks or within the ship.

Itineraries ranging from thirty-two to seventy-three days in extent, including the ocean passage, are possible for the traveller under the Continental Collegiate Tours organized by the Arts Crafts Guild of Chicago. The charm of these tours is realized right from the start, for during the thousand mile journey down the mighty St. Lawrence and through the Gulf the tourist gains necessary travelling that of any river trip in the old world for beauty and picturesqueness.

Once overseas there is nothing of importance or interest missed by the tours of the Guild. In England they include the Shakespeare country and London; in the "Low Countries," the best of Belgium and Holland; in Germany, the Rhine and her great centres; in France, Paris—of course—and in the lovely Riviera; with Monte Carlo in its midst; in Switzerland, the Alps; to the south the cities of sunny Italy and romantic Spain; and to the north, in the "Land of the Midnight Sun," Norway and Sweden. Everything in fact that the traveller is content to see may be visited on these tours.

RHEUMATIC PAINS DUE TO THIN BLOOD

Relief Comes Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing, mourning on the swollen, aching joints is a little relief. And all the while the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted. It is now known that rheumatism is rooted in the blood, and that as the trouble grows on the blood becomes still further thin and watery. To get rid of rheumatism, therefore, you must go to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved so beneficial when taken for this trouble. They make new, rich blood which expels the poisonous acid and the rheumatism disappears.

There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada now well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains of this diseased trouble. One of these Mrs. W. J. Tait, McKellar, Ont., who says:—"I am one of the willing ones to tell you of the great benefit I received from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After lying in bed for seven weeks suffering untold agony with inflammatory rheumatism, relief finally came through the use of this medicine. I could not move in bed only as they lifted me, and I could only sleep when opiates were given me. The medical treatment I was taking seemed of no avail. Then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and soon I began to get relief. After taking six or eight boxes the rheumatism was banished and I had never had better in my life. It is several years since this happened and I have had no return of the trouble since. I readily add that I recommended the pills to two of my friends who were suffering with rheumatism and the relief were equally effective in both cases."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion or nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through your medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Small Town Papers

I wanted to know just how they did make money. Does the modern country newspaper publisher keep accounts like a business man, or does he just guess at his profits, as the old-timers used to do—and usually guessed wrong?

"That's one of the things we are doing in our state and regional press associations," said the boss man. "Teaching the country editor how to figure his costs and base his advertising and subscription rates upon them. Here is one of the important items in the work of our organizations. Too many of them are still guessing at costs. In fact, the former president of the National Editorial Association, Herman Roe, recently said that in counting was the weakest spot in the whole rural newspaper field."

"I was at the meeting when Roe said that," put in Bert Mills. "He was certainly right about the cost of producing a six column, eight-page paper, 1,000 copies. Would you believe that those estimates ran all the way from $2,000 to $6,000? Those who were publishing the papers didn't know, most of them, what it cost them. Some, how are you going to sell advertising space at a fair price? And you can't get much that way, no matter what it costs you.

"I think I've got the costs pretty well worked out in the Gazette plant, but I was surprised at the cost of mailing, to show me where I had omitted a lot of items in my old way of figuring. Now I charge up to the paper not only the wages paid and material used but a reserve for the week the each machine, high enough to cover depreciation and interest on the investment, a fair rent for the building we occupy, and then we can think in the way of expense, including my own salary, and then we add a profit on it, so nothing goes on top of all that, to be safe.

"I run a sixteen-page, six-column paper, and print a little more than 1,000 copies each week. I have about 1,600 inches of advertising each issue. Figured the way I've just described, it costs about $400 an issue to produce. I get 60 cents an inch for advertising space, or about $100 an issue. That may look as if the Gazette is making a big profit, but remember that apparent loss of $46 a week is offset, first, by $52 a year for rent, which has been figured into the costs all along, and by that on advertising alone there is a profit in getting out the paper of $62.50 a week. I draw a salary of $30 a week which is included in the costs. Those two items amount to $92.50 a week, and the subscription revenue runs another $7.500. That leaves me $70 a week net, charged also into costs, incidentally, my profit is $18,000 a year and my counting legal advertising, sale of extra copies and such items.

"I was just continued Bert time on every point but one.

"It leads to try to borrow money at the bank on the strength of that subscription revenue," I suggested.

There was a chorus of laughter from the other group around the luncheon table.

"Try to subscribe to an up-to-date country weekly without paying cash in advance and see what you get," said one of them. "Cash-in-Advance Club is one of our strongest and most popular organizations. It has taken a good deal of educational effort, both with subscribers and with publishers, to establish the principle of cash-in-advance subscriptions, and there are a good many papers still which do not enforce it very strictly. But I should say that a clear majority of the country weeklies now get their money from subscribers promptly both for renewal subscriptions and for renewals. The modern farmer has not the aversion to paying his cash that his grandsire had. He has the cash to pay, for one thing, and he buys machinery and other things for cash, so that it seems natural to him to pay for his paper in cash. And then, we think of the old-time editor as taking apples or cordwood for subscriptions, we've found some papers, in the course of our association investigations, which have always enforced cash-in-advance rule. There's the Southern Standard, for example, which has been published at McMinnville, Tennessee, since 1878 without a break, and which has never sent a copy to a subscriber who wasn't paid up for a year ahead. They get more and less than the prevailing rate of $2.50 a year, or five cents a copy, which is now almost the standard rate all over the county, and which gives the publisher a run for his money."

"The whole trick is to make the paper so useful and interesting to the local readers that they can't get along without it," said Bert.

"Like the Star Clipper," agreed the man from Detroit. "That's the name of the interesting country weekly for Sullivan, one of the things which the National Editorial Association does every summer is to award a prize to the best country weekly. But, here, got it now your. Until the 1920 convention, next summer, it's held by a paper out in my state, in a town you probably never heard of, called Tyner, in Tyrrell County, Iowa. And what makes it the best weekly paper in the United States, so it has a right to sail under, White Star Line "Calgaric." He will work a farm at Sioux City.

Blessed is the Kingdom that cometh, the Kingdom of our father David, Hosanna in the highest." The words are from the one hundred and eighteenth Psalm, "The Messiah Psalm," the last one of the five "Hallel Psalms" which were sung by the people as they wended their way around the altar at the great festivals. Explanations and Comments

Christ's Kingship openly Proclaimed, verses 1-10. On the day which we now call Palm Sunday the last Sunday of His life, Jesus made His triumphant entry of Jerusalem On approaching Bethphage and Bethany, not far from the city, Jesus bade two of His disciples go into the village opposite, where on entering they would find a colt tied which no man had ever ridden; this animal they were to loose and bring to Him. If questioned as to their action they were to say, "The Lord hath need of him and will send him to you after he has been ridden." The disciple found the colt in a public street fastened to a door, and as they unloosed him were questioned, but upon answering as Jesus had directed they were permitted to take him away. The owner was evidently a friend of Jesus.

They brought the colt and put their loose outer robes upon him for their Master to sit upon. Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three —and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Britain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it bangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or lockes adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action is responsible for many bowels and constipation in babies. Give the bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in cases of colic, cholera, diarrhoea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

THANKS FOR THE AMBULANCE RIDE

Every time you hear the piercing wail of the police ambulance it means that somebody is injured.

And from central station and all the substations those carriers of injured citizens are constantly being requisitioned. In ninety per cent. of the cases the victims have been struck down by automobiles, machines have crashed together or there has been some other form of traffic mishap.

When you are on foot, driving at your own wheel, riding in a taxicab or stage, you never can tell when the call will be sounded for an ambulance to come and get you or some member of your family.

And when you are being swiftly transported through the streets remember this:

Statistics are poor comfort to a widow and the orphan; every individual killed or maimed was necessary to someone or other. And while we may very properly feel that some progress is being made in lessening the deaths and disabilities, it is no time to sit down and fold our hands.

The newspapers of the country to the number of nearly 300, are a most important factor in awakening the conscience of the public; their service in lowering the death and disability totals cannot be overestimated. If they and the other organized agencies for spreading information, like the boards of commerce, health departments, safety councils and national organizations that concern themselves with reducing the hazards of living in this whirling age, keep up the good work, the time may yet come when every man will drive and walk and act so that his conscience can sleep nights.

Take your conscience on the front seat with you; and, if it speaks to you from the back seat, don't get sore.

It is expected that Russian Co-operative Marketing Societies will be represented by several delegates.

The Australian government and the International Institute of Agriculture will have special representatives at the conference. A number of prominent officials from the United States Department of Agriculture as well as representatives of a number of the large co-operative organizations in addition to delegates and officials of the United States wheat pools will be present.

Among those who have promised to attend are: Judge John D. Miller, vice-president and general counsel of the Dairymen's League and president of the National Co-operative Milk Products Federation, New York City; John Brandt, president of the Land O'Lakes Creameries, of Minneapolis; Ralph D. Merrit, managing director of the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, Fresno, California; J. S. Montgomery, general manager of the Central Co-operative Association, St. Paul; F. M. Black, chairman of the Interior Tree Fruit and Vegetable committee of direction, Kelowna, B.C.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture for Canada; Hon. J. E. Brownlee, premier of Alberta; Hon. J. G. Gardiner, premier of Saskatchewan, and Hon. R. A. Hoey, who will represent the Manitoba Government, will be among the speakers.

Radium Specialist Martyr To Science

Has Lost Left Hand But Will Continue His Work

Paris.—For the tenth time in two years Henri Bourdon, radium specialist in St. Louis hospital, Paris, has submitted to the amputation of a finger joint. His right hand is still intact, but ten operations have cut the left away. The skin effect which develops cancer is responsible. His face also is affected. Physicians have warned M. Bourdon that his martyrdom will be fatal, but the radiologist's answer is: "My Comrades in the war made greater sacrifices for humanity."

Would Amend Divorce Bill

Ottawa.—J. D. Woodsworth, Labor member of North Centre Winnipeg, again moved in the house to amend a divorce bill. Mr. Woodsworth moved, that the bill be amended to give the wife—the petitioner—the custody of the child, while the father should pay $500 a year for the child's maintenance as long as the mother remained unmarried, and $300 a year if she remarried. The husband in this case should not have the right to remarry again and if he went through the process of marriage would be subject to seven years' imprisonment.

Think British Envoy Should Be Canadian

British Labor M.P. Suggests Dominion Citizen For Post At Washington

London.—Appointment of a Canadian as principal representative of Great Britain at Washington is a suggestion made in a book, "The Problem of the Seas," just published by Lt.-Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Labor M.P., and George Young, once attache to the late Lord Bryce in the British embassy at Washington.

Referring to the naval differences between the two countries the authors state that in their belief the conflicting policies can be reconciled. They continue:

"There is now a new diplomatic channel and democratic contact in the Canadian diplomatic representative and his staff at Washington stands as a bond for peace between Great Britain and the United States and her interests in Washington might become a bridge for political confidence and co-operation.

"We might indeed do worse than persuade the Canadian government to release an important citizen of the Dominion to represent England and the Empire at Washington when next there is a vacancy at the British embassy, and let the foreign office be represented by an official who would be a junior to the representative."

Gen Currie Receives Verdict

Jury Finds Article Criticising Sir Arthur Was Libellous

Cobourg, Ont.—By a poll of eleven to one, a civilian jury rendered a verdict against W. T. R. Preston, writer of the article which appeared on June 13, 1927, in the Port Hope Guide, entitled "Mons," and against the publisher of the paper, F. W. Wilson. The jury, after four hours' deliberation, found that publication of this article was libellous and they awarded General Sir Arthur Currie, who was the aggrieved party in the suit, damages in the sum of $500. The former commander of the Canadian forces had claimed $50,000.

The trial opened on April 16, in the Ontario supreme court assizes at Cobourg before Mr. Justice Rose and a jury, the hearing of evidence and addresses to the jury lasting well into the 18th. During the course of the testimony the events of the stirring days which closed the campaign in Belgium and France, were gone over by scores of witnesses, including a number whose names have become famous for deeds of gallantry and military leadership.

Sir Arthur was represented by W. N. Tilley, K.C., Toronto, and F. W. Wilson by Frank Regan, of Toronto. W. T. R. Preston conducted his own case.

Prepare For Night Flying

Beacons Have Been Ordered For Canadian Air Route

Ottawa.—Night flying will soon be a factor in aviation in Canada, according to plans being formulated by the civil aviation branch, department of national defence, for the first lighted airway in the Dominion, says the Ottawa Journal.

Tenders it is understood are to be called for by the department for five giant beacon lights to be placed at intervals of 25 miles along the south shore of the St. Lawrence River on the air route from St. Hubert aerodrome, Montreal, to Levis, Que. This will form a great part of the air mail route from Montreal to inland points, which opened for the season on May 8.

Damage From Tidal Wave

Natives Killed and Crops Destroyed On Madagascar Coast

Paris.—Official advices just reaching Paris said that numbers of natives were killed and great damage done by a tidal wave which swept the East coast of Madagascar from Tamatave to Fort Dauphin on April 26.

The European population escaped.

Telegraph and telephone lines were cut. Buildings were swept away and many acres of crops destroyed.

Prompt measures were taken to avoid famine in the flooded districts.

UNSUCCESSFUL POLAR FLIGHT

Capt. George Wilkins' plan to fly over the north pole from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen, covering some 2,300 miles in 21 hours.

Leaves Life Job In Canton

Former Edmonton Man Was Bodyguard For Late Dr. Sun Yat Sen

Canton.—Morris Cohen, famous two-gun man from Canada, who served the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen as bodyguard for the last three years of the revolutionary leader's life, has left Canton for an unnamed destination.

Of the polyglot coterie of foreigners who assembled about Dr. Sun's person in Canton Red Russians, Americans, Germans this burly free-handed Jewish adventurer is believed to have been the last of any prominence remaining in China. He turned up here six years ago with a letter of recommendation from revolutionary Chinese in Edmonton, Alta., whence Cohen hailed.

When the Kuomintang leader died in 1925, his will stipulated that Cohen should have a life job in the Canton Government's Central bank. This he held, acting as messenger and purchasing agent for Canton officials, until he became involved in the Red uprising of last December. The uprising was his purchase of a one-way ticket from the scene of his six-year phase of his adventurous career.

Shorts On Long Trip

Chicago.—The job of putting the Rotary club on "main street," in Jerusalem, Constantinople, Cairo, and the cities of the Orient, has been given to James Davidson, of Calgary, Alta., who has started a seven months trip. Mr. Davidson is a past vice-president of Rotary International. His itinerary includes: Manchuria, Dutch East Indies, French Indo-China, Siam, Indo-China, Egypt, Palestine, Turkey and Greece.

Preference Given Railway Bill

Ottawa.—D. M. Kennedy, U.F.A., Peace River moved in the House of Commons that when private bills are considered this week, the bill respecting the Edmonton and Dunvegan Railway be given precedence over other private bills. The House immediately proceeded to divide on the motion, without debate. The motion carried by a vote of 120 to 66.

Washington Greets Fliers

Crew Of Bremen Proceeded With Distinguished Flying Honors

Washington, D.C.—The crew of the Bremen was welcomed to Washington as pioneers whose feat symbolized the ever-narrowing distance between the nations of the world.

Coming by train in the early hours of the morning, the German-Irish trio whose accompanied the first non-stop flight of an airplane over the North Atlantic from the east, received the Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg's greetings of the nation to supplement the tumultuous welcome they were given in New York City.

The three fliers, Von Hunefeld, Pitzmaurice and Koehl, were greeted as men who had "marked another milestone in the path of man's conquest over the forces of nature."

After Secretary Kellogg had greeted them Ambassador Von Prittwitz, of Germany, and Hon. Timothy Healdy, minister of the Irish Free State, stepped forward to offer welcome.

Prominent among those participating in the welcoming ceremonies was Col. C. A. Lindbergh and Eddie Richenbacker, the U.S. war ace.

Later in the day the Bremen trio received from President Coolidge the distinguished flying crosses awarded them by Congress.

Commencing Work On Peace River Highways

Alberta Ministers Made Inspection Trip Over Proposed Route

Edmonton.—Hon. G. L. McPherson and J. D. Robertson, minister and deputy minister of public works, have returned from an inspection trip over the proposed route of the Peace River Highways. They went as far north as High Prairie, visiting a number of points where road construction details required decision before the season's work began.

Work on the new highway into the North is to be commenced at once and will be pushed forward as rapidly as conditions will permit during the spring and summer. A working crew has already made camp in the Lesser Slave Lake region, where a considerable amount of clearing is to be done for the new road.

Mr. McPherson is hopeful of better conditions than last year, which in turn will make possible a better construction record for the season.

Transferred To Guinea

Rome.—The Italian consulate-general at Montreal has been transferred to Ottawa, it was announced by the Italian foreign office recently. The move is considered of diplomatic importance. The Montreal office becomes a consulate. A vice-consulate has been instituted at Vancouver, B. C., the announcement added.

London-India Air Service

Croydon, Eng.—Speaking at the official opening of the enlarged Croydon Aerodrome, Sir Samuel Hoare, British air minister, said he had approved the outline of an agreement between the Government and the Imperial Airways for a regular weekly air service between London and India.

FAMOUS CANADIAN EXPLORER

Captain J. E. Bernier, the Arctic explorer and his wife. It was 20 years ago this last year that Captain Bernier took possession of the Arctic archipelago in the name of Canada. He has always been a champion of the Hudson Bay route and has been in and out of the straits a score of times without the least mishap. At 70, this iron man, who came over from the wooden ships to the iron ships, is a physical marvel and is far from having made the last entry in his log books.

EGYPT MUST REMAIN UNDER BRITISH CONTROL

London.—"I think the interests of Great Britain in Egypt make it impossible to contemplate the emancipation of Egypt by any other power than ourselves," Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, asserted in the House of Commons after making public Britain's reply to the Egyptian government's note announcing its intention not to proceed this session with the assemblies bill to which Britain had objected.

The Egyptian note dispelled for the time being at least the crisis brought about by the Egyptian government's intention to enact the measure and also resulted in the countermanding of instructions which it had previously been thought necessary to give to certain British warships.

"It will always be necessary," Sir Austen declared, "for this and other governments in the future to maintain the principles of the declaration of 1922 and as we forbid other powers to interfere we must also take measures to secure the safety of citizens of those powers as well as our own nationals."

The foreign secretary's statement came in answer to a question by Will Thorne, Labor, Plaistow, who enquired whether Sir Austen thought the declaration of 1922 would stand for ever.

Asks More Financial Help For Settlers

British Welfare Worker Advocates Family Re-Union Scheme

Ottawa.—"Canada must not become another melting pot; we must keep Canada British."

So stated Albert Chamberlain, president of the British Welcome and Overseas League, Toronto, in appearing before the agriculture committee of the House considering immigration problems.

"There ought to be some financial assistance available to help British women and children to join their husbands in Canada, provided they can be taken care of on arrival," continued Mr. Chamberlain.

"There are today thousands of British men living in Canada apart from their wives and children in the Old Country and the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs for Canada, for the husbands and wives and for the Old Country," he said.

The British government was prepared to financially assist the league in its family re-union scheme, if the Ontario and Dominion governments or either one of them were prepared to share the costs, the British government is ready to pay 50 per cent. of the cost of the scheme.

The league, Mr. Chamberlain said, could bring 50,000 British women and children to Canada annually if the proper financial system was in operation.

Claim Explanation Does Not Satisfy British

Invasion Of West Indies Ports By U.S. Anti-Smuggling Ships Being Discussed

Washington, D.C.—The controversy between the British and United States governments over violations by the United States prohibition enforcement staff of the Bahamas agreement probably will be carried to President Coolidge.

It is rumored here that Secretary of State Kellogg has informed the treasury department which is in charge of coastguard ships that the British government is not satisfied with the explanation offered of recent invasion of British ports in the West Indies by anti-smuggling ships from the United States and that the whole question will have to be referred to the president and his cabinet.

Executive departments here will neither confirm nor deny the rumors concerning the controversy, nor will the British embassy comment.

Here and There

Quebec.—When the 1928 shipping season opened here April 23, the Canadian Pacific St. Lawrence fleet supplied fifty per cent. of the steamers that docked with S.S. Montrose, Montreal and Malta. The three ships carried in record figures 3,000 immigrants aboard nearly all British stock and destined to farms in the West.

International Advertising Convention and Exposition is to be held at Detroit, July 8-13, is already attracting wide notice and will undoubtedly be one of the most important conventions ever held in that city. Over 5,000 delegates from Great Britain and Europe will attend at time in view of the large demand for limited time will attend.

Sixty-five cables of salmon fishing in the Cales River, New Brunswick, were enjoyed recently by five anglers from Canada and the U. S. Middle West and by a party from New Jersey newspapermen, including W. McGeehan, international-ly known New York Herald-Tribune sports writer. Each parties spent three days in the wilderness in the area of Harry Allen, well known New Brunswick guide. They all visited Canada Pacific to their fishing destination.

Okanagan.—Word is received from Washington that the Columbia gun project, during the last year, has had a healthy growth in appeal and a consequent higher save return in the grower, that the government's friendship project in the United States. The local project, with 3,547 acres in apples, has a yield of 35,142,750 pounds, or 9,852 pounds to the acre, a yield which brought the growers a return of $1,230,824, or the high record price of $265 an acre. On the Yakima project the average yield was 8,000 pounds to the acre or at the rate of $2445.10 per acre. The record production in the Wenatchee record was on the Sun river project in Montana, where the average was 9153.33 an acre, followed by the Boise project, with a price of $140.

Ottawa.—The Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ontario, is showing how the Canadian "Mark" plane is combatting wheat rust. The Canadian Air Force, the Federal Department of Agriculture and the pathological plant of the Manitoba Agricultural College at Winnipeg are also at this time. The report says: "The work consists mainly in the exposure of slides at different altitudes and the collection of spores. Three aeroplanes supported by the Canadian Air Force, have been in combatting wheat rust. The Federal Department of Agriculture has collected specimens at the various altitudes and the relation of certain meteorological and climatic factors to the rate of development and spread of rust. Tightly stoppered bottles are used, containing wooden paddles to which are attached microscopic slides lightly smeared with vaseline. These slides are exposed at 15 minutes at varying altitudes; the oldest re-placed in the bottles and then forwarded to the Government laboratory at Winnipeg."

"My dear," said Helmi, "it is our patriotic duty to save every cent. I cut down my cook ten dollars at once, and changed my dressmaker." That voice fell. "My dear, there's a wonderful German woman on the south side—I will give you her address—and she made me a stunning Stein attention dress, with so much handwork on it, for ten dollars. Madam Frouchard would have charged thirty-five. She is a positive find. She's frightened to death that she will lose her trade, and so has cut her prices away down. We're keeping it among ourselves, my dear. You know some of the I.O.D.E.'s would be up in arms if they knew. They say we should patronize our own, but, my dear, the German woman has to live."

When Helmi walked wearily back to the "North Star" that night she was beginning to wonder if to bring a child into the world were not the great transgression for which there could be no pardon. Only the thought of the blessed shelter of her room, and the warm-hearted Irish family who had befriended her kept her heart from despair. Mrs. Corbett had not thought it was so terrible. She had praised little Lil, and Rose and Danny were getting marbles now from other children in the block for a look at the child.

The traffic was congested at the corner of First and Jasper. A Blue Line car waited for the rush of passengers homeward bound, and a cool wind, laden with dust, narrowly escaped a closed motor which had disdained by disregarding the traffic law. A newsboy in an overcoat much too long for him shouted "Evening Journal, all about the suicide."

Two men, waiting to get across, were talking ahead of her. "Mine took a room at the St. Petersburg . . . left her baby there."

Helmi shuddered and hurried on. She wanted to feel the little warm cheek against her own, and to listen to the regular breathing, and get back the confidence she had lost. There must be someone in this city who would let her work.

The next day Miss Ritchie had an address for her. The lady there wanted someone to come by the day and wash clothes, and Helmi set out at once, taking a street car to save time. When she arrived she found that the lady had already secured a helper for the day.

After Helmi had gone the lady remarked to her friend that the girl seemed Miss Ritchie had sent looked rather pale, and she wished she had given her a street car ticket. The friend advised her not to worry over it—"the denial a brute walk would do the girl good."

Helmi walked slowly over the long bridge, where great iron pillars frowned coldly at her. On the river below men were drawing sleighloads of ice, glistening blue against the white snow. They looked so warm and happy in their fur coats. Helmi stopped for a moment to watch them, but Helmi carrying the bags from the kitchen. She was dressed very smartly in her black dress, with white apron and cap, and carried the tray with the old air of aloofness.

Deeply concerned as Major Gowanlock was over the domineering of the Belgian women and by spoke of them with deep feeling every night in his recruiting speeches; indeed, with an almost fatherly solicitude he did not hesitate to tell Helmi's story now to his young officer friend.

"Our haughty looking waitress is a lady with a past—a real purple past," he said, in a low voice. I could swear to that bead of hair any place, and that Roadian manner, though she was not looking quite so haughty nor quite so svelte when I saw her last—she evidently has got-ten over her trouble and is back to her old haunts. No decent girl works in a Chinese restaurant at night. Old Blackwood, at Bannerman, had the whole story in a newspaper and showed it in front of her."

The younger man looked after Helmi as she walked noiselessly past them with her tray of dishes. "She's a good-looking girl," he said, "and

Firestone
Tread is Scientifically Designed

When Firestone engineers were developing the Balloon Tire they found it necessary to design a tread altogether different from that required by High Pressure Tires.

The Firestone tread was not designed with large, massive projections for appearance or to make pleasable miles argument. On the contrary, the projections of the cross-and-square tread are small and the rider strips narrow, permitting the tread to yield to irregularities and cling to the road, giving the greatest non-skid surface. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities that give thousands of extra miles of service and save you money.

Your nearest Firestone Dealer will gladly supply your needs and give you the better service that goes with these better tires.

ITCHY ECZEMA ON BABY'S FACE

Broke Out in Watery Pimples. Cuticura Healed.

"Eczema broke out in watery pimples on my baby's face. It itched and burned so badly that she scratched, and her face was covered with sore eruptions. "Look out Jim," laughed the Major; "the show on that girl, she's a wild cat."

"She would need to be," said the young officer, "if she wants to keep straight. The girl is carving an honest living here now, anyway. Why not let her past go?"

But in spite of this rebuke, which made Major Gowanlock shrug his hasty shoulders, he took time the next day from his arduous task of recruiting for the 67th Battalion to write to his friend Col. Blackwood, at Bannerman: "I saw the Finn girl again. She is in a Chinese restaurant, working at night," and he underlined the last three words.

Little Helps For This Week

A Water Lily

O Star on the breast of the river
O marvel of bloom and grace!
Did you fall straight down from heaven
Out of the ex-otest place?

You are white as the thoughts of an angel,
Your heart is steeped in the sun:
Did you grow in the golden city,
My pure and radiant one?

Nay, nay, I fell not out of heaven.
None gave me my saintly white.
I slowly grew from the blackness,
Far down in the dreary night;
From the ooze of the silent river
I won my glory and grace,
By the might of the sun, O my people,
They rise to the sweetest place.

—Mary Frances Butts.

If we could only think of the pain and the suffering, the unpleasant surroundings and all the things that make living so hard, as the test out of which the lily hearts may come, and, with our hidden hearts golden and glowing, just climb up slowly through the deep waters, until the soul shall open out all white and lovely under the full sunlight of God, would it not pay for all we have to bear?—Mary Lowe Dickenson.

ROSES

Everyone enjoys roses. They are general favorites as is shown by the names of varieties. Some come names of from England, others from Ireland, Scotland, France, Germany, United States, etc. Happily, more recently come such Canadian roses as the "Agnes" from the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and Montrose's first rose breeder, F. L. Skinner of Drummond, Manitoba, has named and introduced at least one hardy vigorous hybrid,—the "Betty Bland." At the Dominion Experimental Station, Morden, a rose garden has for three years steadily been taking form. A great many varieties have been under test and the successes have been surprisingly numerous and pleasing. Such renowned roses as Crimson Rambler, Mrs. John Laing, Captain Hayward, Hugos Charis, Captain Christy, Hugh Dickson, and General Jacqueminot, have been giving results. However, these require a heavy winter cover.

The beginner is well advised to commence with the more hardy sorts. The following twelve have proven most ready at Morden without any special winter protection. Betty Bland Rosa Rugosa, Blanc, Rambler, Hiawatha, Lipton, F. J. Grootendorst, Grootendorst Pink, Stanwell Perpetual, Scotch Yellow or Harrisons Yellow, Scotch Rose (Rosa spinosissima) Tetonkahe, Kamschatka, and Persian Yellow. The last named has suffered from Black Spot,—a ruinous foliage disease.

The rose border is sheltered from the north and west winds but open to the sunlight. The roses do well in well-drained prairie loam soil. This class of ornamentals should not be set in low spots on which water is likely to lie.

W. R. Leslie, Superintendent, Experimental Station, Morden, Manitoba.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CLOVER BAR, No. 517

The Council of the Municipal District of Clover Bar, No. 517, was held last Saturday with all members in attendance.

The application of the Canadian National Railways to the Board of Railway Commissioner for approval of crossings within the limits of the municipal district on their Brentwood-Clover Bar branch line was dealt with. The plan and profile of the proposed crossings showed that they would be practically grade crossings, there being little cut at these points. After due consideration the council approved of the proposed crossings, with a request that the Board consider the advisability of a traffic dock where the right-of-way crosses the road allowance between sections 7 and 8-55-23-4.

Authority was granted for the calling of contracts for the cutting down of Sherry Hill and the completion of the Yorkville Dale through the S.W. 36-54-23-4.

The superintendent and accountant of the Royal Alexandra hospital were in attendance to discuss an offer of settlement of the unpaid hospital accounts. After wrestling with this matter for over three hours an agreement was reached that was acceptable to both parties.

Mr. Luman presented a largely signed petition requesting a grant to the committee in charge of the ladies' rest room. A grant of one hundred dollars was made to the committee to assist them in supporting the room.

The rate of wages for working on the road was increased from that which prevailed last year. The schedule of rates set is as follows: men, thirty-five cents per hour; men and teams, sixty cents; men and four horses, eighty cents; and foremen forty cents.

After approving of the estimated expenditures for the year, the mill rate was allowed to remain the same as last year, namely, seven and one half mills on the dollar.

The council received an increased offer for the lots they own in the subdivision of Capilano. Acceptance of same was left in abeyance pending further consideration, and inspection of the property.

With the reading of correspondence and passing of accounts the meeting adjourned at eight o'clock p.m.

For Humanity!

The world scroll upon which is inscribed the names of men and women who have rendered distinguished service in the cause of humanity contains no name more worthy of such recognition than that of Henri Dunant, the centenary of whose birth in Geneva, Switzerland, was observed throughout the world on May 8th, of this year, and who lived to the ripe old age of 82 years.

What service did Henri Dunant render to mankind entitling him to this honor?

As a young man of 31 years Dunant, author and philosopher, was travelling for pleasure in the summer of 1859 in Northern Italy, and happened to arrive in the neighborhood of Solferino just at the conclusion of the battle which is known by that name, and which was waged between the Austrians under Francis Joseph II. and the Allied French and Sardinians. The opposing forces were of about equal strength, the total of men engaged being something over 300,000. The armies met in the early morning and fought a sanguinary conflict until about two o'clock in the afternoon, when the Austrians were forced to retire. For so short a battle the losses were large, totalling 30 killed, wounded, and missing almost 40,000.

Upon such a scene of carnage came Henri Dunant accidentally in the course of his journey for pleasure. Suffering and dying soldiers left on the field filled the air with their cries and groans, but there was no organized care for them. His deepest sympathies stirred for these fellowmen, who but a few hours before were in the pride of health and strength. Henri Dunant organized the neighboring villagers who did what little they could to cope with the gigantic task of ministering to those whose lives might still be saved.

But Henri Dunant did more. The vivid and terrible scenes he had witnessed so pressed themselves upon his mind that a year or two later he published his experiences in a small volume entitled "Un Souvenir de Solferino" (A Remembrance of Solferino), in which he advocated the formation of voluntary organizations to aid the army authorities in carrying out the national obligation of caring for the sick and wounded in future campaigns.

The result was the organization of the great world-wide Red Cross Society.

In this day and generation, with the events of the Great World War still fresh in mind, it is unnecessary to attempt any review of this international neutral, humanitarian organization. Sufficient it is to say that no other organization in the world's history has a finer record of achievement, or so completely commands the confidence and support of all peoples. The Red Cross flag and insignia is known and respected everywhere as a sign of absolute neutrality among warring nations, and the highest standard of self-sacrificing service to all suffering humanity.

Originated for service to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war, its amazingly efficient organization and outstanding service during the Great War so impressed the statesmen of the world confronted with all the difficulties of after-the-war reconstruction of a well-nigh bankrupt civilization, that the Peace Conference at Versailles unanimously called upon the Red Cross throughout the world to remain organized and active, and undertake a comprehensive peace-time work among the civilian populations.

To the Red Cross, therefore, the creation of Henri Dunant, was accorded the distinction of being the only organization, apart from Governments, recognized in the Covenant of the League of Nations, with the solemn obligation imposed on all nations joining the League to encourage and assist the organization of voluntary national Red Cross Societies, having for their object "the promotion of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world."

Today throughout the world, the Red Cross with its tens of millions of members, including all races, languages and creeds, is engaged in its mission of mercy. When Nature in a violent mood brings disaster upon a small community, or a Province, or a whole nation, the Red Cross is the first on the spot. Should an epidemic of disease break out, the Red Cross nurse and voluntary worker, inspired by the heroism and humanitarian ideals of Dunant and Florence Nightingale, are active in the alleviation of suffering. Unceasing, too, is the Red Cross educational campaign in the promotion of health and the prevention of disease. And should war again inflict mankind, the Red Cross will be found better organized and stronger than ever to assume the burden thus imposed upon it.

In the galaxy of the world's great humanitarians, Pasteur, Jenner, Lister, Florence Nightingale, William Booth, Curie, and others, the name of Henri Dunant shines brightly, while the sympathy which prompted his action on the bloody field of Solferino, and the inspiration leading to his conception of a great neutral volunteer organization in the cause of suffering humanity, continues to call forth the most splendid self-denial and service under the banner of the Red Cross.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS THE HOME DOCTOR

Baby's Own Tablets meet all the need that exists in every home where there are young children. They are a laxative, but do not gripe. They are soothing, but do not contain one particle of opium or other ingredient that can in any way do the slightest harm to the most delicate child.

Baby's Own Tablets reduce fever, relieve colic, banish constipation and indigestion, check diarrhoea, sweeten the stomach and allay the irritation that accompanies the cutting of teeth. They quiet the nerves and promote health-giving sleep and repose. In fact they are as good as a doctor in the house, and since a mother has used them for her little ones she will use nothing else. Thousands of mothers bear testimony to this fact. Among them is Mrs. Hurst, Pine Falls, Man., who writes: "I was told to try Baby's Own Tablets by a friend who had used them for all her little ones and said she could not do without them. After using them for my baby boy I quite agree with her and certainly think they are the finest medicine in the world for little ones."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Appointment Is Popular

New Inspector Of Taxation In Saskatchewan Has Had Wide Experience

Hon. George Scott is to be congratulated upon his appointment as Inspector of Taxation in Saskatchewan. This is an exacting position, but Mr. Scott has many qualifications which would seem to assure that he will measure up to its demands. The new appointee has had wide experience in educational life, in business life, in agricultural life, and in public life. All this will be helpful to him in his new post.

Hon. Mr. Scott will be missed in the Legislative Assembly, where as a member for Arm River he rendered conscientious and able service not only in behalf of his constituency but also in behalf of the Province as a whole. Whether as a member of the House, or as a private member, he constantly enjoyed the respect and regard of members of all political groups. —Regina Leader.

Likenesses Of Men Prominent In Chemical World Appear On New Structure

Faces of living men are carved in stone on the new million-pound building of the Imperial Chemical Industries, nearing completion at Westminster Exchange.

One of the faces is that of the head of the concern, Sir Alfred Mond. All the other carvings are said to be excellent likenesses of many men prominent in the chemical world.

The sculpture around the building also includes figures of peacocks, which are said to be there as a symbol of immortality, following the ancient tradition that the flesh of the peacock is incorruptible.

Buying Registered Seed

Saskatchewan Farmers Have Purchased Much More This Year

The Saskatchewan Registered Seed Association advises that farmers throughout the province have purchased more registered seed this year than in any year in the past and that they are becoming more interested in good seed. There has been a heavy movement of farmers from United States points to points in Saskatchewan this spring and the sale of minor trees has greatly increased. Evidently farmers are becoming more and more interested in forestal measures.

During the year, Germany raised 12,000,000 men.

New Developments In Method Of Harvesting And Threshing Will Revolutionize Farming

More marked progress in the development of methods of harvesting and threshing grain applicable to the prairies of Western Canada has been made in the past two or three years than in the previous half century since the first stream of settlers crossed the Red River. The new methods of combined reaping and threshing are resulting in great economies in labor and money. When first introduced the combine or reaper-thresher was considered to be of doubtful applicability and that principally to the drier sections of the country. Nevertheless the number of these machines in use has increased very greatly and they are spreading over a much broader area than was thought possible.

A supplementary machine introduced on the prairies for the first time last year, says the Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Service, is expected to further extend the field for direct harvesting and threshing without the need for the expensive and time-consuming operation of stacking the grain. The new windrow method is calculated to advance materially the time at which harvesting can be commenced as compared with the combine alone. In fact it is claimed by those who have tried it that cutting can be commenced as soon as with the binder. The feature of the new machine is that the stubble is cut high and slightly turned, thus forming a shelf on which the grain is laid out to windrown to dry. With the air currents passing underneath evaporating is rapidly effected. In two to four days of good drying weather the grain is ready for threshing and with a pick-up attachment the combine is then used to finish the operation, delivering the threshed grain to the tank wagon. Later in the harvesting season the grain in other fields may become sufficiently matured for direct combining without first windrowing.

The windrow machine it is claimed has removed all the disadvantages of the combine. If so the new methods may be expected to quickly spread across the prairies and revolutionize the harvesting of grain in Western Canada. Nowhere in the world is there found more suitable to large scale methods of harvesting and the resultant economies may be expected in further enhance Canada's position as the premier wheat exporting country of the world.

An Exceptionally Heavy Crop To Be Gathered This Year

A heavy crop of strawberries is in prospect on Vancouver Island, B.C., this year. A press despatch from Vancouver states that the Dundas and Keating crop is expected to yield hundreds of thousands of dollars into the farmers of Saanich this summer as a reward of persistent adherence to modern cultivation and woyil control methods. While the berries planted to strawberries there is substantial increase, anticipations of a bumper crop rest chiefly upon the remarkable condition of the plants, which are in better shape than has been known for many years.

Boy World Explorer

This bright-eyed goddess Adventure of whom everyone from the youngest to the oldest has dreamed has beckoned to Russell Dunham, a Winnipeg boy, and will lead him on an adventurous path around the world. He has been chosen by Lowell Thomas, well-famed explorer and lecturer, to go with him as secretary of his next expedition into the jungles of Africa, to the South Sea Islands and into practically every corner of the globe.

Dunam, who is 20 years of age, has been employed for the past three years in the offices of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Winnipeg. When Lowell Thomas was lecturing in the city and made a statement to the press that he was looking for a Canadian boy to go with him in December, Russell got busy and landed the job, that will mean a year or so of rare adventure. First class aboriginal knowledge, and an aptitude for photography and mechanics were some of the most important requirements for the position. Satisfying Thomas along these lines, an agreement was reached.

The fortunate Winnipegger will, next month, leave the Press Department of the Company where he has been employed, and join Mr. Thomas at his home in the Berkshire Hills. From this point the start will be made about December on the great adventure that will carry him into many of the little-known corners of the globe.

Developing Tar Sands Deposits

The Hudson's Bay-Mariand Oil Company has made application for exclusive rights to prospect a very large area in the Alberta tar sands region in Northeastern Alberta. Negotiations are now in progress between representatives of the company and the Federal Government. The company will this year spend $50,000 in the erection of plants for the extraction of oil from the sands.

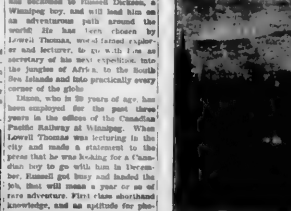
New Golf Course At The Banff Springs Will Be Unique Among The Golf Courses of the World

Canada will shortly possess one of the finest and most beautiful golf courses in the world. Assisted by an army of skilled workmen Stanley Thompson, of Toronto, the internationally known golf architect, is making rapid progress with the construction of the new championship golf course which is being built for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, at Banff, Alberta, and present indications are that the course will take its place at the top of the list of golf links on this continent whether inland or seaside.

Situated on the roof of the world and surrounded by the most magnificent mountain scenery imaginable, the Banff Springs will be unique among the golf courses of the world. It will be of full championship length, the plans calling for a yardage of 6,645. There will also be two other sets of tees with a respective yardage of 6,215 and 6,045. These tees will be of grass and will be in play the whole time. The watering system has been so carefully worked out that each set of tees presently practically in constant use. The fairways, too, will be doubly wide, there being two distinct routes to each hole.

Noted golfers who have viewed the construction work have been astonished with the thoroughness and magnificence of this recent undertaking of the railway. To make the fairways, greens, and tees, vast areas of rock had to be quarried. Stanley, too, had to be bridged and soil brought by the truckload on which to grow the turf. It will be readily understood therefore that the cost will run into a big figure, but the Company will have the compensation of knowing that the construction of this latest championship course will set as a wonderful thing for Canadian golf links as a whole, as thousands of the best known golfers of the world will be drawn to this golf course perched as it is between the skies. The greens are being built along the lines of the famous "Langara" green at South Vancouver, where the writer has played and will be more throughout with revering best grass.

Contrary to what one would expect in a mountain, there will be very little climbing to be done, in fact the grades will be easier than on most courses. Nine holes of the new course will be open for play during the present season. Combined with nine holes of the old course this will mean that visitors this year will be able to enjoy a full round of eighteen holes over picturesque fairways. Early in May, 1930, the new championship course will be thrown open.



A view of a completed portion of the links set in wonderful surroundings under the guardianship of the mighty snow-capped mountains

The Experience of Mrs. Fleming is Well Worth Reading

Peterboro, Ont.:—"I was in a miserable state of health, my nerves gave way completely, I could not sleep, had backaches and was generally exhausted—I was weak and sleepy and tired that I was compelled to give up rest, or more of country weather was better than ever, starvating myself, purchased my breast, with water, I have been a well man. Many of these schools are concentrating on the problem of the small-town weekly rather than on the daily press. Indiana State, for example, pays almost no attention to daily journalism, but when a boy or girl graduates there he or she can always find a job on a country weekly. It won't be long now, perhaps, before the small town, where the country editor who is not a university graduate will be as rare a bird as the oldtime tramp printer is today."

That turned the talk to the need on reputable schools of training printer, the real journeyman, who drifted from town to town and was the main reliance of the old-fashioned country editor. The machine operator — usually a machinist as well as an operator and often an all-round printer as well—has taken his place, they told me. And "he" is often as not a "she." Gone are the whisky bottle and the corn-cob pipe, the ribald jest and the odoriferous spittoon. Gone, made the old country newspaper shop so picturesque and glamorous. It is a indyllic boarder nowadays by comparison. It was a Nebraska linotype operator, the Sioux City Journal, who was crowned Queen of the Johnson County (Iowa) fall fair. And when I had to lie in bed a part of every day, I could not do any work and was taking medicine all the time, trying one medicine after another. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I have reason to be thankful that I acted on the advice, as this was the first medicine that gave me any relief. In a few weeks I noticed a short time restored me to the blessing of good health. I think one of the marvellous good these pills did me, I can now highly recommend them to all weak, nervous people."

If you are at all run-down, or weak, you should follow Mrs. Fleming's lead, take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon be well and strong. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To Improve Cuticle Industry

Some 34 municipalities in Saskatchewan are in process of eliminating all grade zinc and establishing themselves as power districts under the Act in force in this province. It has been estimated that if all the calves in Saskatchewan were made into leather instead of hide it would add $18,000,000 to the value of the cattle in the province.

Small Town Papers

Awards last theme, and the others which the newspaper gave annually, are doing a great deal to stimulate country editors to produce better papers. The Brookings Register, in South Dakota, for example, holds the current award for the best front page. That puts the Eastern publishers on their mettle, but it was an Eastern paper, the Graphic, of Newton, Ia., that has been which won first prize in the association's advertising contest, while the News, of Mandeville, Minnesota, took first place as an example of good newspaper production."

Three awards are powerful influences for the betterment of the country press, the others agreed, but two or three spots simultaneously of the schools of journalism as perhaps the most potent picture of all in the progress of the small-town weeklies.

"You can't get a man and like book of boys and girls who are being graduated every year from the schools of journalism and getting city jobs, old you," asked Herb Mills, as I expressed surprise. "I don't know just how many there are somewhere between thirty-five and fifty universities in here which have full-fledged journalism schools. I noticed that Prof. Willard Bleyer, dean of the Wisconsin University school, said the other day that there were more jobs than there are graduates to fill them, and I believe he's right. But many of these schools are concentrating on the problem of the small-town weekly rather than on the daily press. Indiana State, for example, pays almost no attention to daily journalism, but when a boy or girl is graduated there he or she can always find a job on a country weekly. It won't be long now, perhaps, before the small town, where the country editor who is not a university graduate will be as rare a bird as the oldtime tramp printer is today."

RICH, RED BLOOD A REAL NERVE TONIC

The Source Of All Nervousness Is Weak, Watery Blood

Many people, both men and women, find themselves run down, tired from overwork, or anxieties. Such sufferers find themselves tired, low-spirited and depressed. Their nerves seem to be worn out and they suffer from headaches and other nerve pains. All this comes from starved nerves.

Nothing but nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is good rich red blood. Therefore to relieve nervousness set run-down health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills enrich the blood, which in turn nerves, improve the appetite, give new strength and vitality and make bikberto despondent people bright and cheerful. Miss Irene Dexon, R.R. No. 2, Washago, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her. She says: "I suffered for a long time with my nerves and a generally run-down condition. I grew so weak that I had to lie in bed a part of every day. I could not do any work and was taking medicine all the time, trying one medicine after another. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I have reason to be thankful that I acted on the advice, as this was the first medicine that gave me any relief. Explanations and Comments

The Captious Question in Regard To Tribute, verses 13-17. The Herodians were a small political party who were partisans of Herod. A few of the Pharisees sympathized with the Herodians but most Pharisees hated them as cordially as they did the Sadducees, yet they united with Herodians and Sadducees in a plot to snare Jesus. The men whom they sent to Jesus pretended that they were only saying that the question they were about to propound was a genuine one to answer, but they knew that He was not afraid of consequences. "Thou regardest not the person of men," but of a truth teachest the way of God," they said. Thus would they flatter Him and put Him off His guard.

Then they asked their question, "Is it lawful to give tribute unto Cæsar, or not?" "The tribute," literally census-money"—that is, "poll tax" was paid by every Jew. It was inquisitorial, followed a careful taking of the census, in which every man was obliged to report his family, his property and his income, and was extremely odious to the Jews, who counted it a badge of their national degradation. Its payment was resisted by some, especially among the Galileans, not only on political, but also on religious grounds." Ellicott Abbott.

The Pharisees asked their question with a malice of forethought. If Jesus said "Yes," He would bitterly antagonize the people, and if He said "No," they could accuse Him of treason to the Roman government. And, indeed, two days later they falsely said to Pilate, "We found this man perverting our nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar," Luke 23:2.

"Shall we give, or shall we not give?" they put the question plainly. Here was their alternative; pay tribute to a foreign power whom emperor worship prevailed, or refuse to pay and remain loyal to God. They thought that whatever answer Jesus made, it would condemn Him. Jesus denied there was an alternative; both were against God at once. He would not teach contempt of the established government and disobedience to law. Nor would he teach disloyalty to God. Jesus well knew their evil intent. He quickly saw through the purpose of their flattering words. "Why make ye trial of Me?" He asked, as He called for a coin, a denarius on which was graven the image and name of Cæsar. The coin represented Rome's services to the people—good and evil, as well as Rome's power and authority. "Whose is this image and superscription?" He asked. "A small boy in Australia in telling the story gave it thus: 'He asked them to show Him a penny, and when they gave it to Him He said, 'Whose miserable subscription is this?'"

"Cæsar's," they replied. Then said Jesus, "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's." Render, give back, the coin came from Cæsar, and they owed him something in return. They were accepting the services of Cæsar's government; for these services they must render an equivalent.

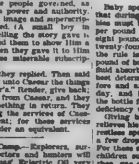
"How Much Water Should Baby Get?"

"A Famous Authority's Rule

"By Teeth Brewing"



Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day, and it is easily calculated for baby's need. Others make up any deficiency with water.

Boiling sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Mother's Friend Elixir. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on motherhood worth its weight in gold.

CLASH BETWEEN JAP TROOPS AND NATIONALISTS

Shanghai. The Japanese 24th brigade under General Ketoyama, bore the brunt of fighting between the Japanese and Nationalist forces.

General Ketoyama's brigade came into contact with a force of nationalists at Kiaotu, about 15 miles east of Tsinan, and disarmed many of them after stubborn resistance.

When Ketoyama's forces were returning to Tsinan they encountered a powerful force under General Chen Tien Yuan. Fighting was at first repulsed still in progress with the result unknown.

Chen Tien Yuan was formerly governor of the province of Anhwei and commanded the three nationalists armies which succeeded in cutting the Shantung railway April 30 at Ningshui.

The Japanese were continuing today their attempts to disarm the nationalists as rapidly as they came in contact with them in the entire Tsinan area. The Mitsuchi forces had occupied the bridge across the Yellow River at Tsinan and other strategic points.

With the exception of the two encounters with Ketoyama's forces most of the fighting was of a minor nature.

Looking For New President

University Of Alberta Will Seek Strong Man To Fill Vacant Position

Edmonton. Hon. Perren Baker minister of education, will leave shortly for points east, on a tour of investigation that will have as its objective the location of likely appointees to the vacant presidency of the University of Alberta.

He will go right across the Dominion, to the Maritime provinces, and may also cross the line into the Eastern and middle states.

It has not even been decided yet that the new university president is to be a Canadian, but other things being equal, the preference will naturally be given to a man Canadian-born or at least Canadian experienced.

United Farmers Of Canada Have Scheme For Co-Operative Stores

Winnipeg An elaborate scheme for the organization of co-operative societies on the British model is now being drawn up by the United Farmers of Canada, according to W. M. Thrasher, secretary of the organization section of the body. It is hoped to lay the foundation of a number of stores which will ultimately extend all over the West.

The central body in charge will, it is understood, take the wholesale operation of the great British Wholesale Co-operative in Manchester, which serves millions of customers in hundreds of stores all over the United Kingdom.

Share capital in small units, Mr. Thrasher stated, will be subscribed to start stores, and safeguards will be erected by which any single shareholder from becoming predominant. Though called share capital in stores the scheme will be one of co-operative in nature, since it will receive only a fixed return on the investment.

May Consult League

Possibility Of China and Japan Submitting Dispute To Geneva

Geneva. A protest from China to the League of Nations over Japanese military action in Shantung is a possibility, Cheng Loh, Chinese member of the League secretariat, said to the Associated Press correspondent. He said he was awaiting instruction from his government at Peking.

Cheng Loh, who is now in Paris, but is coming to Geneva for the meeting of the council in June, said even if the League had both Northerners and Southerners have the same view concerning the attitude of the Japanese in Shantung. He thought it certainable that both factions might unite in deciding to submit the dispute to the League of Nations.

Japan's attitude on the question of referring to the League of Nations the dispute between Japan and China-Japanese conflict is regarded in Geneva as cutting straight across the Kellogg outlawry of war proposal.

New Road To Coast

Project Roads For Northern British Columbia Country

Victoria, B.C.— A new railway route pass through the mountains from the Peace River to the coast and north western British Columbia country was announced by H. M. Rolston, editor of the Victoria Times, who made the announcement on his way north to Stewart.

"The new pass which has just been located for guiding over the Naas and Skeena rivers, together in the Finlay basin, is 2,500 feet lower than the original pass mapped under Sir Donald Mann," Mr. Rolston said.

"It will mean a much easier railway route to the coast."

Passports Required For Short Vacation Trips

Week End Tickets To Europe Cost Britishers $10 00 Extra

London The British Easter holiday crowd of "trippers" to the Continent was thrown into consternation by being required to pay $10 extra for their annual sight-seeing jaunt for the first time since the war passports were required.

Since 1919 a special facility had been in force under which pers-ons were allowed to buy week-end tickets to certain French and Belgian ports, available from Friday to Tuesday, which allowed the holders to travel without a passport. Henceforth passports will be required.

Persons who required at the French consulate-general in London, learned that the British authorities had never consented to grant a similar advantage to French and Belgian nationals, and the French Government never intended to make the abuse of this facility by one individual an occasion for withdrawing it altogether.

London Mint Is Striking Coins For Free State

Dublin, Ireland A few months before the people of the Irish Free State will begin to handle new coins intended to displace British coins in their circulation. The contract for minting was given to the London Mint, which has submitted Dublin the first strikings and now will proceed with production, beginning with silver coins.

The new coins will be of the same value as British coins up to half-crowns, and no higher denomination than a florin. They will be minted of any selling license coins also are being struck, but it will take a little longer to substitute these for the corresponding British coins.

Ottawa. The Journal in an editorial says:

"Due to a letter addressed by A. M. Jarvis, of Ottawa, to the United States consul-general here, steps have been taken by the State Department at Washington, which may result in the future acceptance of Canadian currency at all centres across the line.

"Restitution on this score on the part of Americans in many districts has long been a source of annoyance to Canadians and annoyance to Canadian visitors to the U.S. Although we are Uncle Sam's best customer and despite the fact that the American dollar is accepted without question over here, there are many places and business houses and hotels across the border where the Canadian dollar is no more regarded than if it were the paper of Soviet Russia."

British Bankers Worried

Over Flood Of American Capital Which Is Entering Canada

London, Out.—Grave fears are entertained by British bankers concerning the flood of American money which is entering Canada, according to Major Hume Cronyn, London financier, who has just returned from a visit to England and the Provinces.

"It is impossible for us to secure money in England for anything like the amount it would be necessary to borrow," said Major Cronyn. "This is due largely to the interest of the U.S. in Canadian securities. The result is that British capital is naturally prevented from coming in to any great extent and the fear is felt in Britain that the new alignment of money power in Canada will have a bearing on the future relations of the two countries. This board was referred to in England as a menace."

SASKATCHEWAN OLD AGE PENSION PLAN OPERATIVE

Ottawa.—Hon Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, signed on behalf of the Dominion Government the agreement with the Province of Saskatchewan for old age pensions.

The cabinet had passed orders-in-council authorizing Mr. Heenan to sign the agreement and endorsing the plan of administration proposed by the province.

The agreement was signed on behalf of the province by Hon. C. M. Hamilton, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, under whose jurisdiction the pensions scheme will be operated by the Child Protection Bureau.

The signing by Mr. Heenan was witnessed by Premier King and a number of his colleagues from Saskatchewan.

British Columbia has been paying old age pensions since last September and had disbursed about $360,000 to the end of March, the Federal Government having reimbursed the province for half this amount.

Saskatchewan will be the second province to actually begin old age pension payments.

Manitoba has passed the necessary legislation to take advantage of the Dominion Act, and it is more than likely that payments will begin there some time during the summer.

Alberta is giving the agreement with the Yukon will be made very soon.

Plan Meets Opposition

British House Discusses Cold Storage For Imported Meat

London.—Speaking for the government in the House of Lords, Lord Strathcroke, minister of agriculture, promised most carefully to consider a suggestion that the cold storage treatment imported into Great Britain from countries where the foot and mouth disease prevailed should be placed in cold storage at the port of landing for three weeks.

Lord Nyleant, in opposing the suggestion pointed out that 2,048,000 tons of meat were consumed in Britain in 1927, of which 820,000 tons were imported chilled beef of a quality almost equal to the best home-killed beef, in order to secure imported meat in a satisfactory condition, however, it should be available in Britain within 21 days after being shipped.

If chilled meat had to go into cold storage for three weeks on arrival, he said, its value would be considerably reduced as it would be no fresher. The result would be that the importation of chilled meat would cease and nearly all the people of Great Britain would have to consume frozen meat of an inferior quality and pay a higher price for it than they did at present.

Channel Steamship Line May Use Autogiro Aeroplane

Montreal - To further speed up delivery of mail from the British Isles for Canada, it is understood that the Cunard Line in Liverpool have been considering a scheme whereby their ships to the St. Lawrence will embark mail by aeroplane to be released when the Gulf of St. Lawrence is reached, the plane to take important mail either to Rimouski or to Quebec.

Officials here state they know nothing definite of the scheme yet, but say that is quite feasible, as it is occasionally being carried out by ships on the New York service.

At present there is a complete air mail chain from Rimouski to Toronto, operated by the postal department.

The funeral of Xelma Driesner, old-est daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Driesner, took place in the Moravian church cemetery last Sunday afternoon. Deceased passed away in the Lamont hospital, heart trouble being the cause of death. She was popular with the younger members of the community and in addition to her parents, leaves to mourn her loss a number of brothers and sisters and a wide circle of friends.

INTEREST SHOWN IN CO-OPERATIVE INSTITUTE

A number of applications have been already received by the registrar for attendance at the Alberta Institute of Co-operation which is to be held from June 25 to 29. It is considered likely that the institute will be held at the University of Alberta where sufficient accommodation can be provided for the members who will attend.

A grass fire burned up a board fence at the rear of A. H. Rogers' residence last Thursday and for a while had the appearance of a serious situation. The fire department's chemical engine was brought to the scene and the flames were quickly extinguished.

THE WHEAT POOL BRINGS ABOUT A NEW CONDITION OF AFFAIRS

Over eight months have passed since the commencement of the crop year on September 1, 1929, and ninety per cent. of the crop has been harvested. The great bulk of non-Pool wheat has left the growers' hands.

Except for those who have not had their grain threshed owing to weather conditions, and the few who held their grain since last harvest, the non-Pool farmers have little concern in the present higher prices for wheat. The "Average closing prices" over on the lips of the Grain Trade should really be figured during the time the bulk is going on the market. That is, from September to April. With very little wheat in non-Pool farmers' hands how can they be benefitted by high prices from now on?

Wheat Pool members, on the other hand, have a vital interest in present prices. They have seen their Pool start the crop year under a burden of tremendous debt and a heavy mortgaging of a season of "bearish" news. Last fall grain poured in rivers into Winnipeg, and Vancouver's facilities were taxed to the limit. Argentine had raised a tremendous crop. Europe's production was up by millions of bushels. The United States wheat crop was huge and altogether things did not look any too rosy.

The Canadian Pool had a difficult task on hand and Pool members may have a good excuse for a feeling of elation at the successful manner in which a grave situation was handled by the organization they had created. Pool members are now in a position to participate to an appreciable extent in the rising market prices.

If there was no Wheat Pool in Western Canada what would the situation have been? The bulk of the wheat would be out of the farmers' hands and in the hands of market intermediaries. The farmers would be in a pitiful indeed. The Wheat Pool has changed this situation in a decided fashion. Now Pool members can sit back unconcerned and feel assured they will get the best year's average price for the product of their labors.

NO ONE IS GOING TO EXTRACT EXTRAVAGANT PROFITS FROM POOL WHEAT.

Farmers should realize that only by the Pools of Control of Volume has the Wheat Pool been able to function efficiently. This volume is secured by Signed Contracts.

CHAPTER XXIV

It was at Fort Simpson, in November, on his way out, that Jack Doran heard of the war. They had floated down the Nahanni River in a canoe to skin furs to the Liard, and down the Liard to the MacKenzie on a similar scow, arriving in Fort Simpson one raw November day when an icy wind from the North gave warning of the freeze-up. They had brought with them a few furs, which George, the half-breed guide, had got with his trap-lines, and from the sale of these they hoped to be able to buy supplies for the home journey.

Their summer had been full of adventures. They had seen the leaves come on the trees, the flowers had bloom and fade, the leaves fall, and now the lowering clouds of November driven by the wind, but, as yet, neither bags full of gold quartz to show what they had found, and their little heap of dust carried in chamois bags and glass phials, they were elated and confident.

Jack, with all the eagerness of the amateur, had been full of enthusiasm going in, and in the washing of gold from the sand of the river he had enjoyed endless delight. To see the glint of yellow gold in the black sands at the bottom of a pan fired his imagination. Keith had contemplated him on his success in panning.

"She's gettin' better all the time," Keith had said, "as we are getting closer to the deposits." He had a map of the country showing the exact spot where the claims would be staked. "You'll have some nuggets to bring home to that new wife of yours that will make her eyes pop out of her head."

It was in September they reached the place, and Keith announced the object of their search achieved. They staked their claims and gathered some rich pieces of quartz to bring back with them. Keith was confident, and even George, the half-breed, grew garrulous with the prospect of riches. He was going to have three cars and a colored driver in a grey uniform!

Keith had the plan for mining all arranged. He showed them where the sluices would be placed drawing a diagram to show the angle at which they would be set, and how the riffles would be put in the bottom. He would bring the water in a pipe-line from further up the river, and throw it against the banks of gravel in powerful jets. At the falls, up the river, he would generate the electricity to run the stamp mill, where the crushed rock would be reduced to powder and passed through a sieve, and the gold collected on copper plates. "You'll see a bigger trek to this field than there was in ninety-eight," he assured his eager listeners.

The return journey, lacking the stimulus of novelty which had kept them from discouragement going in was hideous and depressing. They lay way lay through a gloomy, barren country, and the weather was cold and wet. The shortening days and lengthening nights, too, were unfavorable to travelling. But at length they had made it, and, after a long delay in Simpson, they arrived in Fort Simpson just before the freeze-up.

The good-natured proprietor of the store bought their furs without question them, giving them the news of the war as the transactions went on. "I wish I was younger and I'd be off," he said, "I'd like to do a bit of fightin' before my time comes to step off."

"Oh but it is all about!" Jack said, as he tried on a pair of long boots.

"Well, I'm not clear on that, but sure it's a pear war that ain't better than no war, and you can say what you come once in a while to clear out the surplus population. We breed too fast—ain't that the truth? so it's either pestilence, war, or famine, and war's a lot more fun than the other two!"

Jack looked at him indignantly. "How many children have you?" he asked: He had noticed several little half-breeds around the store, mocassin-footed, noiseless, beady-eyed, looking inquiringly at the strangers.

The storekeeper did not resent the question at all. "I think there are six boys big enough to go," he said. "Three of them are out on the Liard lines and haven't heard about it yet, but the other three are going out. Their mother is cuttin' up a little, but she'll calm down; she's a good woman. We have eight others comin' on. It's a good chance for the boys to see the world."

The war did not relate itself in any way to Jack Doran until he arrived at Peace River. He had one concerning thought in his mind now, and only one, and that was to get to Eagle Mines as soon as he could, and to Holmi. He went at once to the telegraph office and sent her a wire.—"Mrs. Jack Doran, Eagle Mines: — Back safe, expect me in a week. Love, Jack."

Peace River was alive with excitement. Homesteaders walked the streets waiting for the train to take them to Edmonton. There was some delay, owing to trouble on the Judah line.

Jack, Keith and George got a room at "The Peace," and soon had the prime of travel washed away, and went to the dining-room for supper. Men in uniform sat at a table, eating noisily and drinking. The room was full of excited talk.

There was a meeting in the hall that night, advertised by a huge red poster in the stores. It said that Major Gorsett and Pte. George Crowe would address the meeting. Pte. Crowe had been wounded at Mons and been invalided to Canada. There were flags in the dining-room, and on the way in that day they had noticed flags flying from the houses and stores, fluttering bravely in the cold wind.

To the hall they went at eight o'clock, and were met at the door by women selling red roses for the Red Cross. A band inside was playing "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary." To Jack it seemed as though he had come back to a new world, a nervous, panicky, high-strung world, abounding in new phrases, new emotions. Frosti from the solitudes of the North, he could not at once grasp the meaning of it all.

Pte. Crowe, a pale lad, standing with a crutch, spoke first, and spoke simply and well. His superior officer had chided him for the mildness of his address at Spirit River the night before. "You've got to put more thunder into it," he said, "these people want color and action. Tell them about the children and men with their hands cut off.

"But I didn't see any," protested the lad.

"Well, you heard of them—you might have seen them. Speed up a little—lay it on thicker, or you'll never get recruits."

But again the boy told just what he had seen—the ghastly hardships — the indescribable carnage — the comradeship and heroism of his companions of the trenches. There was no hatred, revenge or bitterness in his heart, only a great bewilderment. He appealed on behalf of his comrades—they were so brave, so cheerful and so fine—so willing to die.

Jack's heart was torn with the pity of it. Worst of all was the boy's twitching hands, never still a moment. What horrors that boy must have come through! His lips had quivered as he spoke like a child's about to cry. "Don't leave those boys alone, send them reinforcements. The more we can send the sooner it will be over." That was the message of the quivering lips, coming from a heart that was clean and brave. He could talk without crying, could Pte. Crowe, he could ask any person to make a sacrifice and not ask them to do more than he had done.

Major Gorsett, who arranged the program, had left himself for the last. In the ordinary affair of life Major Gorsett believed in being first, but, understanding what he would have called "mob-psychology," he believed his speaker had the best chance. He began by damning the Germans with great spirit, reviewing their history, military aspirations, and their home life. He showed that they threatened the whole world. Major Gorsett had not been further than Souigne during the present war, but one would never know it from his speech. It reeked with the stress of battle, it abounded in personal incidents. He dragged his listeners into shell-holes, dug-outs and across "No Man's Land;" he specialized on the treachery of the Germans—the hatefulness of their women—the bitter hatred they had instilled into their children. He had lived with them, he said, and he knew. It seemed that he and Lord Roberts knew the war was coming, but England had not listened to them.

Cut away section of a Gum-Dipped Tire showing one cord extra and into 11 strands. Many fibres of every strand is insulated and rubber.

Why Gum-Dipping Increases Tire Life

A tire in use is being constantly bent backwards and forwards by road action. Such movement generates friction and heat that has a deteriorating effect unless the tire is built to withstand it.

In the carcase of a Gum-Dipped tire there is less friction to generate heat because Gum-Dipping puts a coating of new live rubber around each separate cord that keeps it from rubbing against the cords that lie next to it. It stays cooler and therefore lasts longer.

Your local Firestone Dealer will gladly explain just how Gum-Dipping produces the best tires today. Ask him today.

Teeth and Health
Issued By The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council and Published By The Saskatchewan Dental Society

CHILDHOOD DISEASES AFFECT ENG TEETH

It conscientiously happens that tooth crust faulty in shape or with the enamel pitted and stained, and you wonder what has caused it.

How a very probable source of this trouble is a general disturbance from some constitutional disease associated with high temperature, such as, scarlet fever, measles, or chicken pox. Occasionally this disturbance is so great as to totally destroy the tooth germ, but more often it merely affects the tooth structure as described above.

But there are two general diseases that, in particular affect tooth structure and tooth eruption.

Of these rickets is a disease of familial origin and it is worthy of note that it in a disease not only of the very poor who are denied proper and sufficient food, but of the rich, who have an abundance of food but of an improper kind

The characteristic affections of the teeth from rickets are these; the deciduous teeth erupt late and, in the more extreme cases, there is a general deformity of the skull and jaws; moreover, these teeth are host early, whilst the permanent teeth in turn erupt late; the result is, faulty or mal-occlusion. Moreover, the teeth themselves are structurally affected, being bluish, sparse and somewhat tapering.

The other disease, more or less specifically related to tooth mal-formation is tuberculosis.

A child suffering from tuberculosis will erupt both the deciduous and permanent teeth early but the root of the deciduous tooth is not absorbed as it should be, with the resultant mal-position of the succeeding permanent teeth.

It is perhaps easier to understand why these diseases should injuriously affect tooth structure as they do when you remember that the teeth do more than be formative stage through early childhood, and hence are readily liable to influences of a disturbing nature.

Asthma Doesn't Wear Off Alone.

Do not make the mistake of waiting for asthma to wear away by itself. While you are waiting the disease is merely gathering a stronger foothold and you live in danger of stronger and yet stronger attacks. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is instant-early, will prevent incipient condition from becoming chronic and saves hours of awful suffering.

Sand and Gravel Fit In Canada

Natural deposits of sands and gravel occur in all provinces of Canada, and as a consequence of this wide distribution, the low value of these materials, and the ubiquitous demand chiefly for filling and structural purposes, there are a very large number of pits operated in Canada.

Speed Up Construction

Germans Contractors Use Furnace On Wheels To Dry Walls

Houses and apartments are no scarce in Berlin, Germany, that architects and constructors think up every conceivable device for hastening the process.

Their latest quick service help consists of a furnace on wheels which is calculated to hasten the drying process in buildings under construction. It is placed outside the house or apartment building, and furnace pipes are laid from it into the room to be dried. The heat is conducted just as though a hot air furnace were in operation in the basement.

In this way, it is estimated, construction is hastened by many days, as the painters and decorators can get busy much earlier.

Worms are encouraged by morbid conditions of the stomach and bowels, and so subsist. Miller's Worm Powders will alter these conditions almost immediately and will sweep the worms away. No destructive parasite can live in contact with this medicine which in no way a mucous destroyer, but a health-giving medicine most beneficial to the young constitution.

Next month another 1,100 head of buffalo will be shipped from the Canadian National Park at Wainwright to the big reserve north of the Peace River. Overstocking of the Wainwright Park renders this necessary.

Mineral's Last must for Tenderfoot.

MOST people know this absolute antidote for pain, but are you careful to say Bayer when you buy it? And do you always give a glance to see Bayer on the box—and the word genuine printed in red? It isn't the genuine Aspirin without it! A druggist always has Bayer, with the proven directions tucked in every box!

UNVEILING CEREMONY AT FORT PUBLIC SCHOOL

Six bronze plaques, one for each room, have been presented to the Fort Saskatchewan school to commemorate the diamond jubilee of Confederation and a ceremony of unveiling was held at the school this afternoon, presided over by Mr. A. H. Gibbon. The children were marshalled in the grounds where they saluted the flag and sang "O Canada." An address was given by Albert Swor on "Canada's Future" and Hay Friedman gave a recitation. Then followed the singing of "The Maple Leaf," a short address and the unveiling by Mr. Gibbon. A Maypole dance was given by some of the small girls and the ceremony concluded with the National Anthem.

Eternal Vigilance Is the Price Of Safety

Because of the appalling loss of life through motor car accidents, Governments and municipalities are enacting ever more stringent laws governing the use of highways and the operation of automobiles. Laws regulating the speed of driving, governing the use of headlights, compelling cars to come to a full stop before proceeding to cross railway tracks have been passed, while signalling devices, signs, guard rails at curves, embankments, and other danger spots are erected, all with a view to protecting the public.

For the same reason laws are passed and regulations enforced governing the management of factories, mines, operation of railways and ships, laying down conditions under which labor must be employed, and stipulating a hundred and one things which must be done to safeguard workers in all departments of industrial life.

According to figures, the correctness of which are vouched for by the Midwest Safety Conference, as reported in a San Francisco paper, there were 24,000 deaths in the United States last year through trade accidents, and 23,000 deaths through industrial accidents almost all of which were preventable.

But it will be a surprise to many to learn that accidents occurring in the homes of the United States took an even greater toll of life than did trade accidents, or accidents in industry. Avoidable accidents resulting in death in United States homes in 1927, numbered 27,000, and, according to the report already referred to, "the bathtub and the stepladder were among the deadliest aspects of domestic life, and the list of fatalities contributed a large proportion of these 27,000 home fatalities."

Traffic regulations and industrial safety laws are the bantams of the public as well as of the individual; hence the interest displayed by all governmental authority. Because they are susceptible of public regulation the problems they present, and which fills the newspapers today, should be easier than that of the household fatalities, for as the San Francisco paper says, "it is not possible to put the equivalent of a traffic cop into every home to supervise the hanging of draperies, the dusting of walls and the training of the clambering vines. Nor would it be desirable were it possible to have a uniformed public official handling carvers people in and out of slippery bathtubs. The law cannot direct the turning on and off of gas cocks. It cannot keep matches out of the reach of children. It cannot be the keeper of the family medicine chest. It cannot make itself the custodian of the household arsenal and see that unloaded guns are always unloaded. It cannot prevent the starting of stove fires with kerosene,—or the use of gasoline near a lighted lamp or a burning fire."

These and a multitude of other vigilances rest solely with the individual. Until the individual exercises the necessary caution the lurking dangers of the household will continue to take their toll.

Throughout this great Canadian west not a week passes but the newspapers tell the terrible story of a calamity in some home, resulting in death and maiming for life, the direct result of downright carelessness. A destructive prairie or forest fire rages because someone neglected to put out a camp fire, or dropped a match, or started burning straw or rubbish without taking necessary precautions. An explosion wrecks a home and takes a toll of life because gasoline was left where it should not have been. A child drinks a cup of lye in mistake for water, and dies or is crippled for life. And so on, and on, and on.

And all the laws, and regulations, and prohibitions that all the Parliaments, and Legislatures, and Municipal Councils in the country may pass cannot stop these tragedies. In the forceful slang of the day "it is up to the individual" to exercise caution, to be vigilant, and to safeguard the lives of life through these accidents in the home, in industry, and on the highways of our country be reduced and practically eliminated. Ninety-nine out of every one hundred of such accidents are preventable. It is for the people to realize this. When they do the accidents will cease; until they do realize it and govern themselves accordingly, sorrow, pain and loss will continue to be a permanent visitor in our midst.

World's Grain Congress

Will Mark Fiftieth Anniversary Of Coming Of the Railway and Birth Of Prairie Agriculture

The first world's grain congress scheduled for Regina, in 1932, will mark the 50th anniversary of the arrival of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the birth of prairie agriculture, outside of a comparatively small outlier settlement in Manitoba. In continuing steps preliminary to the summoning of the congress, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, announced "The progress to hold a world's grain congress in Canada has been quietly discussed and canvassed by a few enthusiasts in the west for the past two or three years. In the meantime, the pronounced success of the world's poultry congress has stimulated and crystallized the proposed grain congress into possibility and visibility."

Named After Lindbergh

Canadian Inland and Station Will Bear Aviator's Name

Colonel Lindbergh will have the honor of having an inlet in British Columbia and a station in Alberta named after him, Paul Lambert, of New York, owns a small island in Seattle Harbor, Puget Sound, B.C., and asked the Geographic Boards of British Columbia and Canada to approve of the name Island of Flying Feather, board has objected. They claim as private property he can call it what he likes, as long as it doesn't interfere with present names.

The Dominion Geographic Board received an application from the Canadian National Railways to approve naming a railway station in Alberta after the famous aviator. The board has given approval.

Baby's Own Tablets Are Fine For Nervous, Sleepless Children

From Canada The home of Baby's Own Tablets is spreading over the world. Mothers recommend them to other mothers and wherever they are tried nothing but words of praise are heard for these pleasant tasting little tablets that promptly relieve the minor ailments of young children.

"Baby's Own Tablets are one of the best remedies for children's ailments I have ever used," says Mrs. Arthur T. Allen, of Auburn, Me., "My little girl was nervous and could not sleep. I tried the tablets and she was relieved at once. She was also troubled with constipation and nothing seemed to help her. I had used the Tablets but a short time before her bowels were regular. All mothers should keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house for they are a valuable remedy."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

First Thing Man Exploited

In 1090 B.C. Hittites Had Laws Governing Sore

The law was probably the first created thing whose bakers were exploited by mankind.

In the Hittite code of laws, dated 1200 B.C., paragraph for the theft of bees and hives were mentioned. About 6000 B.C. the bee was adopted as the symbol for the Kings of Lower Egypt. Hieroglyphic bees were found from the First Dynasty down to Roman times, a period of some 4,000 years.

Bee-keeping was regularly practised in Egypt in 2600 B.C.; reliefs exist showing the accompaniments of the hives and structures placed one over the other and the men engaged in gathering out the honey and selling it in jars. But thousands of years before this the wild honey was extracted from rocks and trees. It was used in comparatively recent times, some six or seven thousand years ago, that it occurred to men to reduce the bee to slavery.

Hon. Vincent Massey Speaks On Peaceful Relations Between Canada And The United States

The peaceful relations between Canada and the United States are founded on practical principles," said Hon. Vincent Massey, Canada's minister of the United States in a speech before the American Press Society, delivered at Cleveland.

In conveying the greetings of Canada, Mr. Massey said that he happened to be the only representative of British America present, and he ought be permitted to add to Canada's good wishes those of Newfoundland, the British West Indies and all the countries in America which owe allegiance to the British crown.

Canada and the United States, said Mr. Massey, had gone a long way towards a solution of the problem of peaceful neighborliness.

"We may point with some pride to a tradition on tolerance and common sense in our dealings with each other," he said. "It is true in our enthusiastic moments we refer to our peaceful border as unfortified imagery, but underneath our rhetoric there is solid fact. No two nations can point to an achievement like that of the international joint commission, which for fifteen years and more has been settling intricate and delicate questions in connection with the waters on our boundary line. It is a matter for deep satisfaction that, in a sense a recent lawyer, authority, in a long list of cases there can be discovered no instances where disinfection was necessary in the interests of the body. Its orders have never been disobeyed, although it possesses no powers of police to enforce its orders. What a triumph in international co-operation there is in this fact, that in all its cases this commission has never divided along national lines, and only once was it divided at all! We may well regard the work of this body as an impressive example as to how two neighboring nations, which are accustomed to trade with another, may deal with common problems."

This principle of arbitration in Canadian-American relations has been enshrined in the policy of both countries since the Jay-Grenville treaty of 1794, providing arbitration as a means of settling boundary disputes, Mr. Massey pointed out. The principle then set up had been scrupulously observed ever since.

The Canadian minister expressed great faith in the practicability of the various peace movements now going on throughout the world. In spite of the sceptics, the road to peace was open.

"More human beings are now bent on preventing wars; more people are thinking in terms of peace, than ever before. Governments are directing their energies to this end as they never have done in the past. Do we hear more of war? The fact is that we are more conscious of the cruelty and futility of war than ever before, but there lies the hope that the consciousness of a disease is the first step towards its diagnosis and cure."

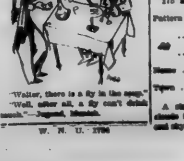
A new 5 and 10-cent store had been opened by a man named Cohen. A woman came in one day and selected a toy for which she handed the proprietor a dime.

"Excuse, lady," said Cohen, "but these toys are 15 cents."

"But I thought this was a 5 and 10-cent store," protested the customer.

"Well, I leave it to you," came the reply; "how much it is, 5 and 10 cents."



"Waiter, there is a fly in the soup."

"Well, sahar sah, a fly can't drink much."—Sugwal, Bhavnagar.

Greatest Aids To Agriculture

Industry In Canada Has Received Most Benefit From Non-Farmers

Agriculture's greatest aids in Canada during the last 50 or 75 years have come from men who have never farmed, J. S. Evans, deputy minister of agriculture for Manitoba, told the Legislature recently.

"A doctor who had never farmed learned in 1850 that wheat rust had different spores, and if these could be destroyed the plague would be eliminated," Mr. Evans said. Pathologists had been using that information as a basis for research ever since.

Pasteur, the French chemist and scientist, had brought immeasurable benefits through his fermentation process," continued Mr. Evans. "He and wholesome products were spoiling. William Saunders, a druggist, had hybridized many brands of wheat to select the best and produce the grade Hiawatha.

Mr Evans asserted that it was not very encouraging to the farmers, after years and much money spent to grow better seed and better stock, to be told to sell these products for a low price dictated by the business men."

The production in mineral waters in Canada in 1927 amounted to 305,539 gallons, valued at $14,856, and was derived from mineral springs located in Ontario and Quebec. Springs containing minerals in solution, or as they are usually termed, mineral waters, occur in many parts of the Dominion, of them are utilized commercially, both as potable waters and for baking purposes. As several of the springs where the waters have curative properties, hotels and sanitariums are operated. Some of the thermal springs are utilized principally for mineral baths

Seeing Sights the World Over

Possibly you have a friend who was a passenger on the round-the-world cruise of the Canadian Pacific Steamship "Empress of Australia." If so, you have already heard the stories of gaily painted junks and strange sights witnessed. In china, homes, and lantern halls you will hear about others the passengers saw the largest Buddha in Japan, how the Whangpoo River, China, looks in the moonlight with its queer craft silently scurrying with unknown cargoes in and from various ports, while from the cabin comes the twang of the Chinese fiddle.

Then there is the spectacle of the menagerie in conflict with a huge cobra, a battle royal in which the cobra or is always the victor, usually through his habit of securing a good hold with his mouth and crushing the head of the snake. Another interesting thing is to see the blinder with his flute charm a deadly poisonous snake, finally playing on the musical nerves of the reptile to such an extent that he gradually sways from side to side in accompaniment to the Oriental music. But Highway Building in Saskatchewan Will Be Speeded Up

No one had ever criticized the highway map of the Province and the type of earth road is no guard so may built anywhere, and they are well designed," says Hon. Jim Spence, The Saskatchewan Minister of Highways, Labor and Industry goes on to point out the economical aspect of highway building and gravelling which is being commenced this summer. "The Province is in a splendid financial position today. We are going to speed up but will not go head over ears in debt. Colonization is needed, but colonization is a human problem. You can't dump people into the country and not take care of them. Provincial highways had been built to serve points in the East, West, North and South but no government can build more highways than the people can pay for. They must be built where they will give the greatest service."

"Air survey will be proceeded with this summer, the Dominion government will do this," he said. They have the equipment but the provincial government will be able to give the information to the people. Tourist traffic by lake and river will be made a study, but until the fullest information is obtained no charts can be made. This record places her sixth highest in Canada in point of butterfat production for Shorthorn cows

The Canadian Rocky Mountains consist geologically of the upturned edges of the strata underlying the Great Central Plain of North America

A sketch of the May memorial to be erected in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, as a Confederation gift from Canadians resident in the United States, has just been completed in New York. The sketch, submitted by Dr R. Tait McKenzie, of Philadelphia, and approved by the National Memorial committee, symbolizes the development of Canada.

Four figures occupy the immediate foreground. On the left is Canada enthroned, her right hand on a shield emblazoned with the arms of United Canada of today, her left outstretched to receive the offerings of her children. She wears a head dress with curious sailors and the short tunic and sandals of Diana, a youthful girlish figure, the youngest of the Nations.

The central figure is a small child, the Canadian of the future, staggering under the weight of the wheat sheaf he is bringing from his land and partly supporting him is a stalwart youth, the Canadian of the present, relinquishing his task and looking forward to Peace and Industry. Behind him a young woman kneels and receives his rifle with one hand and with the other pours out from a basket the fruits of the earth at Canada's feet.

The engineer is stepping down into the foreground with a bundle on his shoulder. At his heels come, in procession, the lumberman, with his axe, and the fisherman with his nets, established on both coasts before the land was settled. Farther back at the side is seen a group: a man, with a hunter's rifle, and a woman and child, standing among the trees in front of the prairie rabbit. On the opposite side an Iroquois Indian lurks in the forest watching them.

The upright pine trunks form a frame through which is seen the figure in low relief of Jacques Cartier on the deck of his ship, as he sails up the St. Lawrence. Kneeling behind him a Jesuit priest upholds the cross, a reference to the religious motive of the first settlement of Canada.

The relief of the figures becomes lower on the history recorded in the figures on the foreground stand out boldly, almost in the round.

The panel is about ten feet square and is supported on a pedestal about three feet high on which the inscription will be carved.

There are approximately a million and a quarter men and women of Canadian birth resident in the United States. To give expression to their sentiments of pride in and devotion to their native land the memorial at Ottawa was proposed on the 60th anniversary of Confederation, celebrated last year, provided a fitting opportunity to present it. It will be erected at a cost of $50,000, the amount to be raised by popular subscription among Canadians residing in the United States.

Through the courtesy of the Canadian Government the most desirable site within its gift was made available to the Memorial Committee and accepted. This location is a large panel in the main corridor of the Parliament buildings looking on the Hall of Fame and opposite to and balancing the Memorial group already erected there to the Nursing Sisters in the Great War.

Time was of course too short to consider the erection of the Memorial itself for unveiling at the Jubilee ceremonies in Ottawa on July 1, last. A temporary tablet was therefore made, placed within the panel the memorial will occupy and in the presence of His Excellency Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada, the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister, and a distinguished gathering solemnly unveiled that formal presentation made by W. W. Colpitts as chairman of the National Committee. The gift was gratefully accepted on behalf of the Canadian people by the Governor-General and the Prime Minister.

The Tablet reads:

"In the sixtieth year of the Confederation of Canada and in commemoration of this event Canadians who live in the United States will erect a memorial to be erected here in token of their devotion to the country of their birth and as a proud tribute to the achievement of its foundation."

Harry Buse's Back bothered him for over 17 years

Then Gin Pills relieved his pain

Harry H. Buse of Egmont, B.C., suffered from a lame back for over 17 years. Every spring he was laid up from work. He tried many remedies, but could not obtain relief. He was advised to try Gin Pills and immediately obtained relief. Read his letter:

"I have a nothing to compare with Gin Pills. I suffered from a lame back for over 17 years, I tried many remedies, even to hot applications. I could not sleep. After taking one box of Gin Pills I felt a change, so I sent for more and feel free as a child. I am 62 years of age and have been a hard worker. I can recommend them to the settlement who has suffering as I have to give Gin Pills a trial. Perhaps my letter as I would like to help those who have great pain if Gin Pills give me relief."

Canadian Legion & Old Timers' Celebration Victoria Day

NOT only is the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet a finer car mechanically . . . but only does it offer more thrilling performance and more delightful riding comfort—but it is distinctively more beautiful and more superbly styled!

Every one of the seven new models is worthy of detailed comparison with cars costing hundreds of dollars more—not only in brilliance of design and execution, but in completeness and richness of appointment as well.

The new Fisher bodies are artistically headed and rounded—with long, easy lines. The new genuine Duco colors are modish and smart.

Interiors, too, are impressively luxurious—rich upholsteries, wide, restful seats and a beautiful, new, completely unified instrument panel.

Come in and see for yourself the beauty you've always wanted! We'll gladly place a car at your disposal—for an actual road demonstration.

Then he rushed war and military life. It developed the best in a man and at this the Major had a great, directing his minister to that store house of accumulated virtues. Then he appealed to the young men to get into the game. He painted the glory of it, the freedom of it, the adventure that there was in it, the call to a man. The nation's hero was the warrior medicvalles have to place in the world, especially with women. There was truth in the old song yet.

"If a lad a lass would marry
He must learn a gun to carry."

There is a lighter vein the gallant Major hinted at the charm of the French girls and how they admired the Canadian. His name could add that but for the presence of the ladies he could tell more.

While he was speaking, Pte. Crowe's hands were never still, nor did his face cease from trembling.

The Major then called for recruits "the volunteer," he said, "is better than ten conscripts. Conscription is cursing, though" he gloated over this "we cannot desert our country now. If men will not fight of their own accord, there are other methods."

The Major unconsciously tapped his sword.

Suddenly it became apparent, even to the Major, that the spirit had gone out of the meeting. His audience sat stony-faced and rigid the fires had gone out the current was off. There was no response to his call.

The appeal had not gone home to the men of the north, who love the long trail, with its camp-fires and its peace; brave men, who do their duty from an inward sense, but to whom the thought of force brings not fear but resistance.

The chairman tried to save the situation by calling for a song, but something had gone from the meeting. The people began to struggle out.

As Jack made his way back to the hotel he was deeply disturbed in mind. There was no moon, but the night was bright with stars. Looking up, he saw the Great Bear, like an old friend, looking so remote, serene and undismayed, though nations were reeling with war and hatred. The Major and his fiery eloquence were easy to turn aside, but Pte. Crowe, so pale and shaken, quivering with the horror of war, walked beside him in spirit.

The hotel that night sounded with jangling noise, shrill voices, snatches of song, bursts of harsh laughter. The Major was a prince of story-tellers. "Say, boys, did you hear this one? One of the boys who had been on leave . . . "Hours of laughter followed, then more beer. "Too much beer liquor is bad," laughed the Major "but too much beer is just right." No danger of being pinched for being many we have both the proportion and the pedigrees. Now, gimme a this. There was a French girl . . . "

At one o'clock the party broke up. The Major had secured six names. He decided the next morning to let Private Crowe go back to the City. The kid was all right, but he lacked pep. This was a job for a real he-man, and after all, the best little recruiter apart from himself, if it were could be considered from himself was the amber-colored bottle. It gave just the proper warmth and glow.

Jack made his journey steadily by 1926 cotton to Eagle Miles, arriving there on the first day of February. He had been no reply to his wire. He stepped off the train with a strangely beating heart. Helmi would be there, surely, but the platform was deserted save for a few men who stood by the steel and over to his own house.

The door was not locked, and he went in. A strange scene met his eyes dirty dishes on the table, the remains of a recently meal, ashes from cigars on the platter, the fire dead, showing that it had been slept in; the cook pot was on the stove. The floor had been trampled by muddy feet and spat upon by tobacco chewers, and a forgotten pipe was on the window sill. The air was heavy with tobacco smoke and the stale fumes of beer.

Jack's heart was heavy with apprehension. He went up to the loft by the ladder on the wall. The bed there had been used too, and a man's coat was thrown across it. There it was in the house he had built, defaced, defiled. What did it mean? He would know very soon. He would go over to the boarding-house.

Mrs. McMann, a few minutes later, related the interview to her friend Mrs. Turner. "He bounded in at me," she said, "just when I was puttin' the potatoes on to boil. 'Where's Helmi?' he almost shouted at me, without even biddin' me the time of day. How could I tell him where Helmi was? 'They're not here,' I said, 'and I don't know where she is she's been gone over a month,' I says. 'Where did she go?' he said. 'To Edmonton,' I said.

"Why did she go?" he stormed; 'didn't she know I was coming back?' 'Where did she say she was going?' he said. Helmy never confided in me, as you know," I said.

"Land! I couldn't tell him why she went. I never was one that could talk about those things. I don't believe any of my people could. The Weskens were funny that way.

"Where's Sim?" he said at last, staring at me as if he didn't see me. "Him had an accident in the mine, and went out the last train." "Well, look here, Mrs. McMann, who has been stayin' in my house," he says, "can you tell me that?"

"I knew very well a party of hunters had spent the night there ourin from town out deer shootin' drunk as fools, too -I wouldn't let them in -"I certainly have no knowledge of what's been goin' on in your house since you've gone," I said, very stiff. Mr. McMann always said there was no one could be stiffer than I could when I wanted to be. "Do you know of anyone having stayed there?" he said. "Yes," I says, "the crazy Engelsman from Eaglan Creek was there for a week, about six weeks ago."

"Lord, I thought he was goin' to strike me—but none of the Weskes was ever cowards, so I just glared back at him stiff as pork. I could give him eye for eye, let me tell you. He went out at that and over the the office. I think maybe he expected a letter from Helmy, but if she's written to him it's more than she's done for any of us. Gone over a month and not a word from her. And I was good to that girl, though I ain't the one to tell what I've done for anyone. Now, if Jack Doran had come in a better spirit he might have heard more from me. I'm funny that way, anyone can lead me, but strong horses can't drive me."

Jack Doran went to the postoffice. His voice sounded queer to him, and his tongue felt like a piece of rope. "Are there any letters for me, Mr. Armstrong?" he asked, hoping his voice was not hearing like his heart.

"You have just come for Mrs. Doran," said the postmaster, handing them to him. "Glad to see you back to us again, Jack People come and go it makes it hard for a postmaster."

Jack went back to his own house - he must get under cover the eyes of the people he met hurt him, they bored into him, taunting, turning, arrowing, gnawing, red hot and sharp as ice. He must get somewhere where he could shut the door.

In his own house Jack sat with the letters in his hand. Helmi had gone, he had not known. He was a month late. Helmi should have walked. Where had she gone?

The letters might tell him. It would be better to know. He opened the first one and found it contained a fourteen-dollar cheque for fifteen dollars payable to Helmi Doran, and it said it was on account of Pte Arthur Warner. Jack stared at it without understanding.

The other letter was from Mrs. Oliver Helmi had, it said, 'I have made over my separation allowance to you, and I hope you will accept it from me. You are the only person in Canada who has any claim on me. I have paid every other person in Canada for everything they have ever done for me. You Stole Helmi, I can never pay in money for you gave me the most precious thing a man can have who gave me all I can give a memory of something tender and sweet. I have made my will, leaving everything I have to you. I will never forget your kindness to me. Everybody ever spoke to me like that before. Will you write to me, Helmi?

Ever Yours,
Arthur Wasner."

Teeth and Health

WHY "NEW TEETH FOR OLD"?

Perhaps you were wondering why little mouthy had to lose his "baby" teeth and have them replaced with new.

Why, you asked yourself, do they not remain permanently and develop in sense during the growing years just as do the ears and eyes?

Because they become decayed" you say; but not necessarily so since tooth decay is a disease and is therefore abnormal and preventable; and for that matter, when you lose a tooth through decay at six and twenty, does a new tooth replace it?

But consider: You have seen a little sapling grow to be a big tree "large as trees from little acorns grow" and did you ever hear tell of a small pebble growing to become a large stone? Not likely so, and for obvious reasons for, as you know, the tree is of organic matter, while the stone is of inorganic.

Now the tooth, being composed largely of inorganic matter, especially the outer enamel covering, which is almost wholly so, like the pebble, cannot of itself change in form, and so grow larger once it is fully developed.

Obviously too, mouny's little jaw has no room for the larger teeth that he will need when he is fully grown.

So unlike the potatoes that "from little acorns do big ones grow" we have instead, "new teeth for old."

These baby teeth then serve temporarily for mastication until the maxillary or jaw bones are sufficiently developed to accommodate the larger permanent teeth of adult age.

They are mother Nature's expedient, as it were, and a good expedient too, if given half a chance.

No smaller hose deep-rooted the corn may be. It must yield to Holloway's Corn Remover if used as directed.

Little Helps For This Week

"Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me." Matthew xxv. 45.

Living, thou dost not live
If mercy's spring run dry,
What Heaven has lent thee with thou freely give.
Dying, thou shalt not die.
He promised even so:
"Of these His lips repeat,
Behold, the tears that soothed thy sister's woe
Have washed thy Master's feet.
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The final test of religion at the last day is not religiousness, but love; not what I have done, not what I have believed, but how I have discharged the common charities of life. By what we have not done - by sins of omission are we judged. It could not be otherwise. For the withholding of love is the negation of the spirit of Christ, the proof that we never knew Him, that for us He lived in vain.
—Henry Drummond.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

CREAM OF ASPARAGUS SOUP

Wash each stalk of asparagus carefully with a vegetable brush to remove all grit. Then cut in small pieces (using all but the very toughest). Cook, covered, until the asparagus is tender, in enough water to cover. Add salt to taste just before the asparagus is done. Allow two cups cooked asparagus and cooking water to 2 cups medium cream sauce (2 cups milk, 4 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons butter). Season and serve hot.

Note: The less tender part may be cooked longer and put through a sieve. If desired, the tops may be used for salad).

FRUIT BLISS

2-3 cup sugar.
1-3 cup water.
2 egg yolks.
4 tablespoons lemon juice.
Red color paste.
2 cups fruit.

Boil sugar and water five minutes. Pour over egg yolks, cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice and red color paste and chill. Pour over fruit, using peaches, oranges, red cherries and strawberries cut in pieces. Serve very cold. Serves 6.

CUTICURA HEALS LARGE PIMPLES

Caused Itching Burning, Also Disfigurement.

"My complexion was completely covered by pimples which varied in size. Some were large, hard and scaly, while others were just red and flattened. They caused an itching, burning sensation, also disfigurement.

"After using scores of remedies for over two years, with but little results, I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I was so pleased with the results that I purchased more, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one large box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) W. E. The greatest economy in tire life is had on the hard, grind of city streets or rough roads, but least which is created inside the tire by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the rubber, causing blowouts and tire failures.

The above illustration shows a single cord of a Firestone tire greatly magnified and separated into fifteen smaller cords composed of many little fibers.

TO TEST VALUE OF PHOSPHATE FERTILIZER

Experiments to test the value of superphosphate fertilizer for Alberta crops are being conducted at a number points in the province this season under the direction of Field Crops Commissioner W. J. Stephen. This material which is a by-product of the smelters at Trail, B.C., is being supplied free of charge by the Canadian Pacific railway. An increased yield in dry years of from three to five bushels per acre due to the increased root system developed, is claimed as the result of experiments with this fertilizer in Australia and experiments carried out at various points in western Canada by the C.P.R.

Tests of the value of this material under Alberta conditions are being made at Strathcona and Vermilion under the direction of District Agriculturist James Murray, at points in the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation district by District Agriculturist M. L. Prung, at Sedgwick by District Agriculturist H. W. Scott, at Gleichen by J. McBain, at the Claresholm, Olds and Raymond schools of agriculture at the Lethbridge Experimental farm, on the Provincial Government farm at Oliver, and in an area of burnt-off soil west of Edmonton. The work is being carried on with the assistance of a number of farmers in each of these districts, and it is hoped that some valuable information will be secured.

CANADIAN LEGION SPORTS ATTRACT LARGE CROWD

Bright sunshine and warmth prevailed on Victoria Day and made ideal conditions for the sports held under the auspices of the Fort Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Legion. Large crowds were in attendance and throughout the day enjoyed themselves with one diversion after another. Baseball attracted many, the game in the morning between Clover Bar and the Fort being a thriller. Three runs behind Clover Bar, at bat in the last inning with two men out, the Fort team made a sensational upset and emerged victorious with a score of 8—7. Nanno defeated Bruderheim 18—15 in the other semi-final in the afternoon and the final was decided in the evening by the Fort easily disposing of Nanno 18—1. The Fort was handed $63.00 prize money and Nanno $35.00. Batteries for the teams were: Fort—Peacock and Rowlands: Nanno—Degrand Clayton and McDonald; Clover Bar—Ottewell and Van Camp; Bruderheim—

HORSE SHOE TOURNAMENT AT EDMONTON EXHIBITION

A horse-shoe pitching tournament will be one of the features of this year's Edmonton Exhibition, July 16-21.

Three competitions will be held for teams of two men each, and one for individual players, and the tournament will start on Tuesday, July 17 with one of the team competitions, and the commencement of the singles. Trophies will be provided for all the contests, with miniatures to the winners, also special prizes. Entries close on July 16.

The competitions will be held under the regulations of the National Horse Shoe Pitchers Association, and the championships for Alberta will be decided at this tournament. In addition to the championships, a special prize will be offered to the man making the largest number of points in ringers. Games will be played to 50 points, finals and semi-finals 75 points.

Entries are open to all, and it is hoped that every rural district will be represented by a team or two champion of the district. The Edmonton Exhibition Association will be glad to answer any inquiries with respect to this contest.

Horse shoe pitching has revived in interest all over North America, and every town, city and country crossroads has its enthusiasts. It is played in tourist camps, vacant city lots, and in villages and farms. Regulation horse shoes will be provided for the tournament; these weigh 2¼ lbs., are 7½ inches in length, 7 inches in width, and no heel or toe caulks shall project more than one and one-sixteenth inches in height over all, that is including body of shoe; the opening between heel caulks shall not exceed 3¼ inches inside measurement, and shall not be more than one-half inch from the extreme end of the shoe determined by measurement from a straight edge placed across the heel caulks.

A TALK TO HOUSEWIVES

Real warm Summer weather is here, but days when it is impossible to find a cool spot anywhere, when hot food is nauseating and cold dishes are the order of the day. It is now that the housewife has to use her wits to invent and evolve dishes that will be tempting and at the same time nourishing.

The most perfect food we have is milk. It is the cheapest food we have, and it is of all the foods the most difficult to collect, handle and transport. It requires the greatest care from cow to container, and from container to consumer. Milk spoils quicker than any other food. It is difficult to handle during the winter and much more so during the hot summer days. It must be kept clean, cold and covered.

Milk tastes good; it is easily digested and is most nourishing. It makes bone, brown and blood. Indeed it isn't too much to say that the vigor and success of a nation depend largely upon the amount of milk it uses. Milk is the great foster of baby in diet. It makes the tastes complete, promotes growth and keeps the body strong. In the warm months when meat is not desired, various dishes can be made with milk, both hot and cold, and the cold ones are delicious. The housewife and Mother need never worry about the question of calories and vitamines for the little folks if the food them milk, milk that has been kept covered, cold and clean.

The various members of the group family love two things: Suitable food and warmth in which to grow and multiply. Milk is to them the choicest of foods and warmish milk is their paradise. When the housewife buys milk she does not buy a "germ" paradise, she buys a nourishing food for the family. So she buys milk that her family. So she buys milk that proper manner. She keeps it covered and cool. For those who have no refrigerator an efficient ice box can be made at home. Write to the Red Cross, 408 Civic Block, Edmonton, and get instructions how to do it. Recipe of delicious summer milk dishes may be had from the same source.

SPECTACULAR FIRE ENDS DAY OF CELEBRATION

About 11:15 p.m. on Thursday, May 24, while the dance which concluded the sports day was at its height, the fire alarm was rung and the dancers turned out in force, some to help fight it and others to witness as brilliant and quickly developed a fire as most of them have seen or will see. The buildings, which were burnt to the ground, was the block consisting of the livery stable, Brennan's shoe repair and second hand shop and E. T. Flintoft's farm machinery office and warehouse. The buildings were old and the lumber dried out and that, together with the nature of the contents, enabled the fire to get a quick hold and made it impossible to quell once it had a start.

Discovered in the livery barn by some boys playing on the street they rang the alarm and one, John Karran, led out the team used for draying purposes by the tenant, C. Logan Pigeon and other willing helpers rushed from every quarter, some quitting out the fire apparatus and others salvaging all they could of the machinery and second hand goods. This latter was kept up until it was too hot and dangerous to pro-

PROVINCE TO KEEP NORTHERN RAILWAYS

The Alberta Government has decided to reject the joint offer made by the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. for the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway line from the Peace River, it was announced by Premier Brownlee in Calgary on Friday. This decision has been reached as a result of the refusal of the Canadian National to make a second and better offer for the Alberta and Great Waterways line, and the Government maintains its position of not wishing to dispose of one of its northern lines and retain the other.

Let Us Celebrate

A year ago the people of Canada engaged with a very real enthusiasm in the celebration of Dominion Day, the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. It was, of course, an especially memorable anniversary and for weeks and months many committees of public-spirited citizens spent long hours in planning and preparation for the suitable ceremonies which marked the sixtieth anniversary of Canada's birth. The effort of that general observance of Dominion Day from sea to sea, and the carefully planned and well executed programmes, including educational and historical features of great value, was at once nationalist in the greater pride and renewed confidence in Canada and its future which was displayed by the Canadian people.

The year which has since elapsed has been a year of expansion and prosperity throughout the Dominion. Steadily, even rapidly, the Dominion of Canada has grown in national stature and in international importance. It has commanded, and continues to command, an ever increasing interest in other countries, while outstanding men and women in realms of government, administration, finance, commerce and industry, not only in Canada, but throughout the world, have referred to this Dominion as among the most favored of all lands, and the one country above all others which today offers the greatest opportunities and the brightest promise for the future.

The Diamond Jubilee celebrations of a year ago helped to arouse and to stimulate the national consciousness of the Canadian people, and, because no country can be truly great lacking a nationalism of spirit and purpose, the celebrations last year have more than repaid all the time, thought and money on them.

It is not sufficient, however, to the cultivation and growth of a nation's spirit and national aspirations that the birthday of a nation be widely and fittingly observed once in every sixty or one hundred years.. Individuals observe their anniversaries annually. Once a year every successful business establishment takes stock of its position, notes its gains or losses, and, in the light of the experience thus gained, plans future operations. Every year boys and girls reach that period in life when they grasp the inner meaning and depths of things to which formerly they gave little or no heed. Each nation should, therefore, devote time and thought to a suitable recognition and observance of its national day in each and every year in order that its significance and all that it really represents may be impressed upon the minds and engraved in the hearts of its youth.

This article is a plea, therefore, to the people of Canada that they should profit by the experience of a year ago, and that Dominion Day this year, and in succeeding years, should be more generally observed than was the case prior to last year. True, it is not possible that each annual observance be on the scale of the Dominion Jubilee celebrations, but Dominion Day can be observed each year in commanding manner with the rather performatory manner which prevailed in sthet places prior to 1927.

It is gratifying to note in the columns of the weekly papers of Western Canada that steps are being taken in an unusually large number of communities to again strongly celebrate Dominion Day this year. But the number of such places could be largely increased, and it is earnestly to be hoped that in those communities where, as yet, no definite action has been taken to organize citizens' committees for a proper celebration of Dominion Day, 1928, no further time will be lost in taking such action. It is a duty we owe to the growing youth of Canada that they be taught to observe the natal day of their country, and that through observance of Dominion Day a true love for and pride in Canada be developed.

SAME SYMPTOMS IN MANY CASES

An Anaemic Condition Easily Recognized—Calls For a Blood Builder

In most cases of anaemia the symptoms are almost the same. The sufferer is pale and is easily tired after the least exertion. The heart tries to fathom and the patient loses in weight. Sometimes there are headaches, and often inability to sleep well. As the blood becomes poorer the symptoms become more pronounced and there are fainting spells. All this shows that the blood is thin and watery, and as the very first symptom of this trouble the patient should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for the smallest things would annoy me. Eventually I grew so weak that I did not have any strength to move about without help. I was just a miserable wreck, and became very much discouraged and I had tried many medicines which failed to help me. My husband decided on a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and before long found they were helping me. Gladly I continued with the pills until I fully regained my health and strength and I have since continued in the best of health. After my daughter became anaemic and six boxes of the pills restored her health, strength and color. Naturally I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a blessing to weak, run-down people."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Appointed Danish Consul

H. P. Madsen Will Represent Danish Government In Northern Alberta

H. P. Madsen, of the Edmonton City Dairy, has been appointed Danish Consul for Northern Alberta with headquarters at Edmonton. Increasing Danish settlement, estimated at 3,700 in 1927, is given by the Danish Government as the reason for the establishment of the consulate. The territory will likely extend from Red Deer north.

Takes Place Of Sight

Gadgets In New Airplane Enables Pilot To Fly Blindly

An aeroplane which can find its own way about is the latest wonder.

This has been invented by a French aircraft designer. A new set of gauges, which a pilot can learn to read in a few hours, takes the place of human sight.

Twelve French pilots were the first to give the new machine a trial. At the beginning each was confused and spiral, and then to wobble a little but when they had become used to their instruments, they were able to control their machines perfectly.

They flew blindly in a point thirty miles away, turned, and came back to the take-off. The new invention should be invaluable for flying by night or in fog.

Some Interesting Speculations As To What Future Holds For The Development Of Canada

Discussing the most recent estimate of Canada's national wealth, placing this at $30,000,000,000, or $3,700 per head of population, the Monthly Journal of the British Empire Chamber of Commerce observes that "to make comparison with the United States it would be necessary to multiply Canada's wealth by twelve" in order to equalize populations. This would give the Dominion an aggregate of $360,000,000,000, a sum that does not differ greatly from the estimate of the national wealth of the United States made for 1925. The Journal soon reason to believe that the national wealth of Canada will expand at a rate its great neighbor "will find it hard to exceed from the percentage standpoint." While the respective rates of increase will naturally be a matter of strong interest it seems more important consideration relating to the development of the Dominion can be found elsewhere.

This was touched upon recently by the New York Sun when it pointed out that Canada is a country of profit, proportionately, more than the United States, from every advance made and to be made by science. Its industrialists and engineers are accustomed that they may guide their activities not only by the successes but by the failures of others. An interesting results of waste and wanton destruction, the possibilities of conservation and replacement of natural resources, are an open book to which chapters are added every day from experiment and experience. Manufacturing economically far more efficient than anything now known, devices today only speculatively projected as remote possibilities, transportation facilities that will make what we are pleased to call marvels seem crazy and immature, wise legislation and enlightened practices, these headings suggest, but do not define, the advantages that seem to be in the future as they unlock the treasure house of natural resources.

What is true of development in Canada is true of every other land hitherto unexplored. Today there is no measuring stick by which may be even faintly suggested the ultimate potentialities of tomorrow's utilization of the earth and the fullness thereof by man if he exercises ordinary common sense. Canadians, the New York paper pronounces, have given many exhibitions of possession of that endowment.

Shipped Himself C.O.D.

German Immigrant Discovered In Packing Case On New York Pier

Equipped with his passport and a visa as a quota immigrant, and mailed into a packing case consigned C.O.D. to himself at a fictitious address in New York, John Phoenig, 19 years old, of Ibendahrt, Germany who took this method of stowing away on a trans-Atlantic liner, was discovered only after he had been unloaded on to the pier in New York.

A checker, noticing a loose board on the case, thrust his hand in to investigate, and Phoenig, without thinking, shook it. The checker ran down the pier shouting that he had seen a man inside. The police were soon opened and Phoenig stepped out.

Phoenig was somewhat emaciated when he was found, and his first demand was for food. He explained that after he had received his visa he found he had not enough money to travel to the United States, so, with the help of a friend, he contracted the box. It contained hardtack, a cord hammock, a two-gallon jar of water and a supply of sausage, pumpernickel and chocolate. While the ship was at sea, he loosened a board and was able to get out and walk around, but could not find any additional supplies.

Jewish Farmers Successful

Hold Million Acres In U.S. Worth Over Hundred Million Dollars

There is a steadily increasing drift of Jews to the farm lands of the United States, according to a report just issued by the Jewish Agricultural Society. In the twenty-eight years of its existence this society has fostered the back-to-the-land movement and it has succeeded in locating a large number of people to abandon city life for that of the farm.

In 1900, when the society was incorporated, there was a Jewish farm population of 1,000 in the United States; at the end of 1927 some 80,000 Jews were tilling the land. It is estimated that they hold 1,500,000 acres and that their property is worth $150,000,000.

"Our people are rarely thought of as tillers of the soil," said Gabriel Davidson, general manager of the society. "They are invariably associated with trade and industry, but there has never been a time since the Colonial days that there has not been a 'back-to-the-land' movement among them in the United States as in other countries, even in the days of the Pharaohs."

1. Fort Saint, showing how the grounds have been made into a golf course.
2. The first powder magazine at Fort Anne, built in 1708.

It was in the year 1604 that the Annapolis Basin became known as "Port Royal"—the royal harbour — named by Samuel De Champlain, who was second in command to Timothe Pierre du Guast, Sieur de Monts when he entered with a small battalion the coast of what now known as the Annapolis Basin. The name finally attached itself to the surrounding settlement and was known as such until the British conquest in 1710, when the place was renamed in honor of Queen Anne, Annapolis Royal.

After a period of years the country was restored to France and D'Auzay erected the first Fort on the present site, about the year 1635. The foundation of one bastion of D'Auzay's fort is still to be seen.

The fort, after being burned and re-built on several occasions was finally left for all time, and not appearing to have any particular name during the French occupations, the articles of capitulation simply refer to it as the "Fort of Port Royal." Nor was any distinctive name given to it by Nicholson, but later it came to be known as Fort Anne. Today the fort houses a splendid museum, an object wondrous moving to the beholder — beautiful in its natural setting—redolent of history and romance and alive with memorable names and deeds.

Canadian Mining Industry Appears To Be On The Eve Of Great Revival And Expansion

With the development of the present century has also come the necessity of again revising the older estimates of the Dominion and of the place it is destined to hold in the world economy. Until comparatively recent years, even in the judgment of well-informed individuals, Canada as a habitation of civilized people comprised only a fringe of productive soil lying between the northern wilderness of ice and snow and the northern border of the United States. Nor has that view entirely disappeared on this continent, for it is still voiced occasionally by public men and the press of the Republic. Yet we who are privileged to live in this favored land know how wide of the mark that judgment was and how little it is in accord with the actualities of the present and still less with the possibilities of the future.

Even that other and more reasonable opinion that divided Canada roughly into an industrial east, three prairie provinces and the Pacific coast is no longer as true as it was once. Manitoba, classed as mainly a grain-growing region is becoming an important manufacturing centre and is daily increasing its prospect of making of no remote date among the countries of the world's wealth of the Dominion. Nor is there any sound reason for limiting mineral deposits to those already known, since the geological and metallurgical experts justified in their assurance that prospecting as yet has only done a little superficial scratching and uncovered but examples of the wealth that has survived in the mountains that form the crust of so large a portion of Canada from the Atlantic to the prairies.

Recently the Department of Mines issued its preliminary report on the mineral production of the country for the value of the mineral output for 1927, at $244,320,098, an increase of 4.09 million dollars, or 1.7 per cent over the previous twelve months' record of $240,437,123. The further statement is made that:—

"New output records for all time were established in gold, copper, lead, and zinc among the metals. Gypsum in the non-metal, and structural materials field. Values for natural gas and petroleum production also exceeded any recorded in previous year. Increased outputs, in comparison with totals for 1926, were noted in the figures for arsenic, cobalt, copper, gold, lead, nickel, platinum, asphalt, zinc, coal, natural gas, petroleum, gypsum, pyrites, clay products, cement, limestone, sand and gravel."

Further expressions of the official view are contained in the annual report of the Department for the fiscal year ending on March 31, 1927, prepared under the supervision of Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister. After noting the expanding value of the annual Canadian output and the additions constantly being made to the areas under exploration, he pens this enthusiastic summary of the present position and future prospects of the mineral industry in his own words

"In addition to the extent of Canada's physical field for further development, which in itself furnishes a reasonable basis for confidence in the growth of Canadian mining, there are a number of other factors that have a vital bearing on the outlook. Great technical advances have been made in prospecting methods and in mining and metallurgical practice, and Canada now holds a reservoir of personnel for advancing in mining development. The intelligent interest of governments and industry in recent years is a force in itself, and as a result of the close relations existing between the universities, government departments, and the mining industry, the Dominion is generally being better equipped with expert geologists, metallurgists, and other technical staffs. Through field and laboratory investigations and in other ways, both Federal and Provincial Governments are assisting in the work of mineral development. Moreover, the railway companies, banks, and other business interests have become deeply impressed with the importance of mining and are giving it assurance of attention already great, and likely to increase as development continues. It may, therefore, be said that there is behind the Canadian mining industry a strength of support which leaves little likelihood that the industry will fail to advance through any lack of competent business or technical backing."

Planting Seed From the Plane

Reforestation Scheme is Idea Of Provincial Pulp Company

Whole forests may spring up if the plans of a large pulp company to plant trees from aeroplanes are carried out this summer, it was forecast at a recent meeting of the Royal Canadian Institute. Grass seed was successfully sown from aeroplanes in the United States last summer with the result that efforts will be made to sprinkle tree seeds from the air as part of a reforestation scheme in Northern Quebec. More than 250 square miles of forest a day could be planted if the project were feasible

Dairy Factories In Canada

The latest returns show that the number of dairy factories in operation in Canada is 3,047. The total is made up of 1,393 creameries, 1,418 cheese factories, 234 factories making butter and cheese, and 26 factories making condensed and evaporated milk powders, etc.

Farmers' Excursion Tour

Canadian National Railways' Tour To Great Britain and Denmark, 1928

Continued.

Our first engagement on the following day was to visit Liverpool, the chief seaport of the most beautiful examples of modern architecture in Great Britain and one of the largest merchants building in the country. It is 586 feet long and will take in all 75 acres to complete it. It has now been standing twenty years. The commercial cathedral is exceeded in size only by St. Peter's, Rome, Seville Cathedral, and St. John's Cathedral, New York. The style is Gothic and the building material red sandstone. The roof is of solid copper. It is the first cathedral to be completed in the last hundred years. It cost $20,000,000.

The memorial chapel to the sons of the diocese killed in the War, is perhaps the most impressive part of the beautiful building. Here is to repose in a receptacle lined with pure cloth of gold, a book containing the names of 40,000 men of all creeds who gave their lives in the Great War. The visit to the chapel is ringed with the rarest colors in stone of the various provinces. A unique feature of "Stories of Christ" in which are depicted some of the great acts of mercy in the history of the world by the Holy Tabb, which is beautifully wrought in solid oak, are five life-size bronze figures of a soldier and a sailor.

The ceiling of the nave is the loftiest in the land, being 116 feet from the floor and the stained glass window at one end of the nave is the largest in the country. The organ has 168 stops and 10,980 pipes and is electrically operated. It cost $100,000 and is the biggest in the world.

We had the pleasure of hearing the spell of the beautiful cathedral that we had to hurry to keep our appointment with the Liverpool Produce Exchange, operated by the Liverpool Provision Merchants' Association. It is organized for trading in pork products (hams, bacon, sides, lard, meats in pickle); in butter, cheese, eggs, etc., and is therefore very interested in Canadian trade. Its dealings are spot and call contracts in hard whole by either option or spot. Its lard option market is the largest in Europe. The actual tonnage is practically all done privately and a large amount by telephone. Considerable interest was shown in our visit by the members, who gave us a very hearty welcome.

A tour of the Liverpool Fruit Exchange and auction was illuminating. Each big brokerage firm has its own auctioneer. Inspection is made. Before it is put up for auction, er, during the actual selling may be turned off with samples as they require them. The facilities for showing the fine points of the pit brings up samples from the basement of each lot offered for sale. These may be left in house or spread out in large shallow baskets in order that all dealers may get a fair idea of the whole lot.

The auctioneers work at high pressure. Much trading is done by signal, and should the auctioneer miss a bid, as he occasionally does, the dealer expresses their disapproval by shouting. The auctioneer is a rare knave the name of every man in the pit. It is said that one man has sold as many as 14,000 boxes of apples in 20 minutes and on one occasion the whole shipload was disposed of in a similar space of time.

Before leaving Liverpool, we had opportunity to discuss with representatives of the provision trades some of the problems in marketing Canadian produce in Britain. We gained valuable information as to the requirements of the British market in bacon, cheese, butter and eggs.

We were now due to leave for Manchester in the magnificent motor coaches of the Globe Travel Company calling en route at the Walton Hall Piggeries, the famous hog breeding centre owned by Lord Derby, whose herd of large Whites or Yorkshires has won awards at the most important shows in Great Britain. Several sides bacon were brought into for our inspection and we must confess the spotlessly clean farrowing pens and more of the early season's litters. Individuals of this herd are shipped by breeders in South America, Italy, France, Hungary, Poland, Holland and Switzerland.

Manchester, Lancashire's greatest industrial city, although 35 miles in from the sea, is the fourth port in Great Britain. This has been made possible through the construction of the Manchester Ship Canal, by which seven-ocean going steamers can approach the very doors of the city.

Within a radius of 50 miles of Manchester there are as many people as there are in the whole of Canada, and within a radius of 100 miles there is a population of some 20,000,000, about half the population of England and Wales.

With such a great consuming area in its immediate environs, the importance of the Manchester market to all producers of food stuffs is at once apparent. It is for this reason that it was included in our itinerary. The Imperial Fruit and Vegetable Market consists of seven and is the largest of its kind in the United Kingdom. Other markets owned by the corporation cover 27 acres. There are also provided, adjoining the Ship Canal, extensive lairages for cattle and cold storage facilities for storing chilled and frozen meats.

We spent the morning in looking over the fruit, vegetable and poultry market. The party was divided into groups with well informed guides, and was shown the produce in the wholesale and the methods of carrying on business. From here we proceeded to the tobacco factory of the Co-operative Wholesale Society, where every operation in the making of cigarettes, cigars, plug, twist, or other forms of tobacco was shown to us in detail and before leaving we were presented with a substantial box of cigarettes and also one of cigars.

We next saw the buying room of the C.W.S., whose samples of produce were spread out for our inspection also samples illustrating the standard which they required for their purposes. We next proceeded to lunch in the great Assembly Hall at which about five hundred were present, united with their Lordships' meeting in the city. Mr. Bradshaw and Councillor Button, who had us something of the history of the great movement which has grown from a small organization of 66 affiliated stores to one with over 1,300, and resources exceeding $227,000,000.

JESUS FACING BETRAYAL AND DEATH

Golden Text "Not what I will, but what Thou will." Mark 14:36

Lesson Mark 14:1-42

Devotional Reading Psalm 22:1-5, 19, 18.

Explanations and Comments

The Announcement of the Betrayal, verses 17-21. As Jesus and His twelve disciples were seating the paschal supper Jesus suddenly said "Verily I say unto you that one of you shall betray Me even he that eateth with Me." With great sincerity of purpose he met this startling announcement of treachery, one of that little band whose lives had been so closely united with their Lord's was to be guilty of so unthinkable a treachery. Let it come to you in the quiet of the home of the future of the future of the life of the kingdom of God. Let us realize that our Lord knows us in that spiritual sense ourselves what they mean for us. Let God apply to us.

"It is one of The Twelve, he that dippeth with Me in the dish." He who ate with Me in the same dish, dipping the sauce of bitter herbs, no doubt all were doing this, and the words only emphasized the treachery of the betrayer. Dr. Gandy has suggested that it was Judas John 13:26. "For the Son of Man goeth, as it is written of Him." The cross was not an accident. The Lamb was slain from the foundation of the world. "But woe unto that man through whom the Son of Man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had not been born." The last sentence is a proverbial expression for the most terrible destiny, foreboding the thought of any deliverance. Bengel remarks: "Despair existing of the turpitude of Judas' crime he places the betrayer in the lowest depths of the inferno in preference to the expression of the horror of his dead fall by the unsophisticated conscience than are the the modern attempts to explain away his guilt." Wm. A. Geist.

Miller's Worm Powders are the medicine for children who are found suffering from the ravages of worms. They immediately alter the stomach conditions under which the worms subsist and drive them from the system, and, at the same time, they are tonical in their effect upon the digestive organs, restoring them to healthy operation and enabling them to perform their further disorders from stark ruin.

Thumb sucking does look jewet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Placing the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to break the habit.

Another bad habit irregularity in the bowels, which causes the worst bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, or feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless. Recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. When each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood, Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

RESOLUTION ASKS FOR LOW RATES ON ALBERTA COAL

Ottawa.—A national policy by which Ontario and other parts of Central Canada will be supplied with Canadian coal was advocated in the House of Commons on a resolution proposed by T. L. Church (Conservative, Toronto Northeast).

Mr. Church's resolution asked for lower rates on Alberta coal and a drastic readjustment of freight rates. "No country at all [illegible] can afford to have its railways [illegible] the railway commissioners [illegible] a free Parliament on [illegible] Mr. Church declared. He contended that the railway commissioners [illegible] Mr. Church said, "the real country that allows this thing to go on."

The rate of $9 a ton offered by the railway commissioners to the Ontario [illegible] did not favor the people of Ontario, did not favor the people of Canada, even as it is written of Him." The cross was not an accident. The Lamb was slain from the foundation of the world. "But woe unto that man through whom the Son of Man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had not been born." The last sentence is a proverbial expression for the most terrible destiny, foreboding the thought of any deliverance. May Reduce Cattle Rates to Britain

Possible in Near Future Says Deputy Minister of Agriculture

Winnipeg.—A reduction in steamship rates in cattle shipments to Britain [illegible] is possible in the near future, by J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, according to addresses before the Western Provincial Union [illegible] Grisdale declared that as the result of a recent conference with officials of the various transportation companies [illegible] have been received that the same time of reduced rates would be [illegible] considered.

Any downward readjustment [illegible] asserted, would depend upon the [illegible] of the steamship companies in the Dominion. In a letter [illegible] Grisdale stated that [illegible] tariff bars against our products on the other hand, Dr. Grisdale declared, it is in a position to take all [illegible] Britain's requirements [illegible] "Whatever quality is there," he added.

The attitude of British traders to Canada's products, he said, has undergone a remarkable change [illegible] Grisdale declared. France Refuses to Attend Conference

Will Not Take Part in U.S. Parley on Disarmament

Washington.—Hopes of the Washington movement for an effective naval limitation conference have been [illegible] by a public rejection from France and a forecast that Italy also will decline to participate. With the [illegible] of Japan, the Washington view was that full world peace and [illegible] possible the gathering of representatives of all the principal powers of nations to bring practical results in the timing of armaments not touched upon at the Washington conference.

A naval official of considerable [illegible] in Rome, however, announced that Italy would not be represented at the conference. The driver of the car disappeared.

Fog Delays Belgian Rulers

London.—Clearing of the fog enabled the King and Queen of the Belgians to make a delayed departure for home via Dover. They had hoped to fly back, but conditions prevented this. The royal visitors came to London to attend the Flemish picture exhibition. They declared they had enjoyed their visit despite the unfavorable weather.

REVENUE FROM FREIGHT BETTER ON THE PRAIRIES

Ottawa.—Freight for the present year of a great amount of Canadian grain from the Canadian west to the Atlantic ports over the Canadian National railways and through [illegible] United States ports were discussed before the Board of Railway Commissioners in a [illegible] freight rates.

The discussion arose during the examination of George Stephen, assistant freight traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Colonel Henry Osler, who called attention to the quantity of grain being shipped via the United States, framed the situation a very [illegible] annual profit [illegible] year.

Counsel for the C.P.R. contended that the movement of grain within Canada had greatly increased during the past few years, and that the railway had to be [illegible] Provinces [illegible] that the available ocean tonnage was the deciding factor in [illegible] grain.

Mr. Stephen pointed out certain characteristics of the freight business in British Columbia. Seven Seas Traversed

We passed in luxurious comfort, free from any care or irritating responsibility and absolutely without one disturbing incident from continent to continent," stated Lady Williams-Taylor on her return from a world cruise on board the Canadian Pacific liner, the "Empress of Australia," during which over five continents, twenty-six countries and twenty-six ports were visited and seven seas traversed.

"With shattered nerves," continued Lady Taylor, "we had embarked to us the soul-penetrating magnificence and the somewhat repellent fascination of the Orient of India and Cathay-nigh, yet one thrillingly interesting China. We returned to and drew the curtain on Pearl River, and now find ourselves in the comparative Canton. Mysterious, fascinating, Oriental Shanghai, and to spellbound Singapore and its ever-growing docks amazed us, and lovely Ceylon enchanted us. Last, but not least, Hawaii wound itself about our hearts and, to its haunting tunes, we drifted far away through regretful tears. But only are we thankful for this fascinating, but the Royal Hawaiian Hotel would tempt any traveller to return.

"After such a wonder tour of 132 days, concluded Lady Taylor, we "Lotus Eating Tourists" have come again to face the realities of ordinary existence, with the untiring supervision and perfect organization of the Canadian Pacific and far-reaching Canadian Pacific Railway and Steamship's protection and care of us. It was, indeed, with hearts full of gratitude and appreciation that we bade farewell to the staff for the comfort and personal attention of the cruise directorate, and to the Royal Ambassador."

A pretty and interesting feature of the afternoon was the Maypole dance by some of the younger girls of the school under the direction of Miss West, with Miss Muriel Shackleton at the piano.

Some spirited racing was done on the track by the younger generation. Prizes were given for foot races, three legged and obstacle events for boys and girls of various ages.

The band of the Edmonton Fusiliers furnished excellent music during the afternoon. Red Cross booths, ice cream and hot dog stands did a rushing business and the numerous games of skill offered opportunities to obtain valuable prizes for twenty-five cents that were accepted by all sorts and conditions of men and their squals.

Pridolman's. Adjacent electric light poles and wires were also in flames and a transformer destroyed. The electric power was cut off at the jail, leaving the town in darkness.

Valuable assistance was rendered the fire department by the jail authorities who placed hose and connections at the water tower at their disposal, endangering the water supply as long as was necessary.

An engine and a car with the assistant chief of the Edmonton fire brigade made a quick run here in answer to a call but were unable to do anything, the fire having almost spent itself in the time elapsing from its commencement and the local brigade having done all that could be done.

The boys deserve congratulations for the splendid work they did under such trying heat.

AWARDS ARE MADE COVERING WAR LOSSES

Ottawa.—Canadians have been awarded $6,289,539.34 as war reparations against Germany in a report by Commissioner James Friel, K.C.

The total amounts include $4,216,864.75 assessed in favor of the claimants, and $2,042,839.59 representing five per cent. interest on all awards calculated to March 10, 1928.

Claims determined by Commissioner Friel totalled 150 and involved 721; $56,846.63 Eighty-seven claims, totalling $4,307,544.90 are dismissed in the report with the notation "no action, claims withdrawn, or not pressed, may be considered dead."

The records the report states, cover loss of life and property in the British ocean liner Lusitania sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland on May 7, 1915; on the Hesperian sunk by enemy submarine September 4, 1916, and on other passenger and merchant vessels, merchandise lost on ships torpedoed; claims of fishermen and owners of fishing vessels sunk by submarines or raiders; claims for property destroyed in enemy territory; internment claims; claims of insurance companies for war losses; air raid claims; claims of ship owners and charterers; claims in respect to nurses and soldiers in hospital ships sunk; claims in respect of the Halifax explosion and other miscellaneous claims.

The awards of 1,613 claims dealt with range all the way from $30 to $246,000. The largest amounts are awarded under the headings of steamship losses, which include $320,310 awarded the Canada Steamship Lines; $346,000 to the Dominion Coal Company; $300,000 to the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, and $168,000 to the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company.

The T. Eaton Company, Limited, is awarded $138,796.15 for merchandise lost on 19 vessels and goods destroyed at Antwerp. The total amount of this claim aggregated $165,231.48.

Endorses Peace Treaty

Kellogg Pact Would Make Armies Useless Says Ramsay

Hamilton.

London. When the great powers sign the treaty suggested by the proposals of the United States Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, the armies and navies of the world will shrivel up, Ramsay MacDonald, former labour Premier, declared before the American Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon.

"Sign a multi-lateral pact outlawing war," said the leader of the opposition in the House, "and those fabric securities we have faintly trusted, these defensive armies which have never protected us, will disappear, because they are useless."

Mr. MacDonald described the Kellogg peace note as "this magnificent declaration of simple fact."

With one part only of the British reply Mr. MacDonald found fault — that regarding self-defence.

"Where a treaty is signed," he said, "self-defence becomes unnecessary and any aggressor immediately becomes an outlaw."

Shrine Destroyed By Fire

Regina.—Stationary constructed during the time of the French revolution was destroyed in a fire at the Sacred Heart shrine near Lebret, Sask., east of Regina. The shrine was hewelled Origin of the blaze has not been ascertained.

Many Dead in Mine Disaster

Mather, Pa.—The ill-fated Mather mine scene of a disastrous explosion, continues to give up its dead. The known dead total reached 82 and rescue experts said that all other missing men cumbering 115 would be added to the list of dead.

Memorial To General Booth

London.—The foundation stones of the Salvation Army training college, which is to cost $1,625,000, have been laid. The building is being erected at Denmark Hill, in the Southeast of London, as a memorial to General William Booth.

Denies Dealing In Immigration Permits

Former Solicitor-General Declares Charge Is Wrong

Ottawa.—Hon. W. J. McMurray, former Solicitor-General, denied absolutely before the parliamentary immigration inquiry that he had dealt in immigration permits for $100 apiece as charged by Alderman M. J. Coldwell of Regina, before the immigration committee.

I was astonished and stunned to read in the papers the statements of Mr Coldwell," Mr McMurray said. "I denied it and welcomed the opportunity of coming before the committee and clearing away the charge. I was glad to read the denial of the minister of immigration. What he said was true. I have had no dealings with Mr. Forbe since he has been in office."

Mr. McMurray explained he had been elected in 1921 from North Winnipeg, which was half foreign born. Many of these people wished to bring relatives to Canada.

"I assisted them, but I never charged them a cent," he said. The numbers had become so great that later on he had charged them telegraph costs and such things. Then he had turned them away.

The records of Mr McMurray's law firm of 1922 showed that seven applications had been handled by his firm "in a strictly legal way."

The legal fees charged varied from $15 to $50. After his return to Winnipeg in 1926, four cases had been handled at fees of $25 each.

Frown On Sunday Labor

Alberta Will Take Steps To Enforce Lord's Day Act

Edmonton.—Attorney-General Lymburn is instructing the Commissioner of Provincial Police to notify all police detachments in the province that it will be the policy of the department to secure a wider and better observance of the law in respect to Sunday work.

The local police will be expected to co-operate with the citizens in maintaining respect for the provisions of the Lord's Day Act.

Mr. Lymburn points out that under the extreme weather conditions that have prevailed at critical periods of the past two years, considerable leniency in regard to the Sunday law has been exercised, because a certain amount of Sunday work on farms was unavoidable.

He says that this is not, however, to be taken as establishing a precedent, and the law of the land still stands. An effort is now being made to appeal to the interest of good judgment of the general public in the direction of better observance of the day of rest.

Gives Life To Aid Science

Doctor Studying Source Of Jungle Fever Succumbs To Disease

New York.—An expedition into Africa in an attempt to discover the relation between South America and African yellow fever resulted in the death of Dr. Hydeyo Noguchi, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, the institute was advised.

Dr. Noguchi, discoverer of the source of South American yellow fever in 1918, died at Accra, West Africa. Recently he wrote to New York friends that he had been stricken with African yellow fever and had been in an African hospital from December 20, 1927, to January 9, this year.

He said his own was the first case of the disease to come under his observation and that—from his bed he had directed the inoculation of a monkey with some of his own infected blood. The animal died 12 days later and additional experimentation, his letter said, disclosed the micro-organism responsible for the disease.

Says St. Lawrence Scheme Unnecessary

Report Given To Senate By Shipping Federation Officials

Ottawa.—"It is our firm conviction that as far as Canada is concerned the project is unlikely and unnecessary," said A. L. W. Macallum, manager of the Shipping Federation of Canada, to the Senate Committee on waterways with respect to the St. Lawrence project.

Mr Macallum assured the committee that the organization which he represented was concerned only with ocean shipping and that it was not wedded to any particular port or ports in Canada. It felt, however, that the immense expenditure on such a scheme as the St. Lawrence waterways could only be justified if it was proven that the benefits would be large.

The Federation had given special consideration to the matter and it has come to the conclusion that the expenditure at present was not warranted.

Buys Another Airplane

Baron Huenefeld Now Owns Sister Ship To the Bremen

Albany, N.Y. Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, backer of the first successful westward flight across the North Atlantic, has purchased the Junkers' plane Europa, sister ship of the Bremen, but what flight he plans in the new plane, are a matter of conjecture.

One report is that the German Baron, Captain Koehl, and Major Fitzmaurice, would attempt a return flight to Europe, having the new plane shipped to New York from Germany. Baron von Huenefeld, however, denies that such are his plans.

He said it was possible that the plane would be shipped to Ireland, and that he and Koehl would fly it there to Germany, but that the plans were indefinite.

Cost of C.N. Equipment

Ottawa.—The Canadian National Railway purchased $56,024,219 worth of equipment in Canada from 1922 to 1927, inclusive, it was stated in reply to a question in the House.

Thornton Will Serve On League Committee

President Of C. N. Railways Has Accepted Appointment

Geneva.—Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, has accepted an invitation to serve as a member of the League of Nations Railways sub-committee, Major-General Raymond D. Cunliffe, former manager of the Great Southern Railways of Buenos Ayres also has accepted an invitation to serve.

Montreal.—Sir Henry W. Thornton, K.B.E., chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways has accepted an invitation to become a member of the railway sub-committee of the advisory and technical committee on communications and transit of the League of Nations, it was announced here.

The selection of the Federal administration to the acceptance of the invitation was given to Sir Henry by the Prime Minister and by the Minister of Railways and Canals.

As Sir Henry may not be able to attend some of the meetings, permission has been given to Dr. A. Chevs, European traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways, located at London, to represent him when occasion requires.

May Not Be Nominated

Reported That Hoover's Chances For Republican Nomination Not So Good

Washington.—It is the well-founded fear in informed and influential Republican circles here that Herbert Hoover, prospective candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, cannot carry the country against Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, whose nomination as Democratic candidate seems assured, and this fear may eventually block Hoover's path as party leader.

Hoover has identified himself with every policy of the Coolidge administration and is the popular Republican candidate. His nomination, however, is far from assured. The formal opposition to his candidacy within the party is fairly strong and well organized.

Coarse Grain Payment

Saskatchewan Coarse Grain Pool Making Second Interim Payment

Saskatoon, Sask.—A second interim payment amounting to $730,361 is being mailed to members of the Saskatchewan Coarse Grains Pool. This represents a payment of 8c cents a bushel on all grades of oats except a few very low grades; and 16 cents a bushel on all grades of barley, flax and rye. This brings total payments to growers by the Coarse Grain Pool for the 1927 crop in the level of 52 cents a bushel for 2 c.w. oats, 75 cents for 3 c.w. barley; 1 n.w. flax, $1.78 per bushel; and 2 c.w. rye, 96 cents per bushel basis Fort William.

ROYAL SOCIETY HONORS THREE FELLOW MEMBERS

Winnipeg. Distinguished scientists and scholars honored three fellow members of the Royal Society of Canada, in annual meeting here, when outstanding awards were conferred on Miss Carman, Canadian poet; Dr. A. P. Coleman, F.R.S., of the University of Toronto, scientist, and Dr. Thomas Charania, of Quebec, historian.

To the distinguished Canadian poet was awarded the Lorne Pierce medal; Dr Coleman was the recipient of the Flavelle medal, and Dr. Chapais received the Tyrrell medal the highest awards which science and literature can bestow in Canada.

The presentation of awards made by Professor A. H. Reginald Fuller, F.R.S.C., of Winnipeg, president of the Society, featured the evening session held at the University of Manitoba.

Many papers on important scientific problems and addresses by outstanding historians were delivered before various sections of the society.

An interesting paper was presented by W. F. Thompson, of the University of Saskatchewan, his elaborated slides showing the effects of "crossing" wheats of various strains, how the chromosome numbers of wheat could be calculated in second generation plants, and many important points in the practical breeding of grains.

Wheat, for example, he said, can be crossed with rye, provided wheat is the female parent, but not if it is the male.

A sum of $35,000 has been placed at the disposal of the Royal Society as the nucleus of an endowment fund, by the Carnegie Corporation of New York, it was announced by Sir Robert Falconer, president of Toronto University.

The amount, he stated, will be retained exclusively for endowment purposes.

In reporting to the convention at the society, Sir Robert said that the endowment committee had given consideration to the policy of raising a fund that would enable the society to be somewhat independent. The Dominion government, he said, so far had only given $6,000.

Other assistance, however, was being sought.

Sixteen new fellows were declared elected to fill vacancies in the council. They are: Sir Robert L. Borden, W. H. Boyd, Ottawa; Robt. H. Clark, Prof. J. S. Delury, Prof. D. C. Harvey, of the University of Manitoba; L. L. Stines, Saskatoon; Gen. W. Scarth, Montreal; Stanley Smith, Albert Ferland, Rev. Father Hugolin, Cohar Klotz, B. E. MacKay, Right Rev. F. N. Ross, James Malcolm Scaine, W. Stewart Wallace and W. T. Waugh.

Alberta Forest Fires

Fire Raging On Both Sides Of the Athabasca River

Calgary Fire is raging on both sides of the Athabasca River where it joins the Slave River at Smith, divisional point of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and B.C. railway, it was informed the Calgary office of the Dominion Forestry Branch.

J. R. Hall, supervisor of the Lesser Slave National Forest, is in charge of fighting the fire. It is not in the National forest but in the near vicinity.

T. F. Hietgen, district supervisor of fire protection, said that the fire hazard in the whole Northern portion of the province was dangerously acute owing to last year's growth of rank grass and absence of rain to any extent so far this season. No damage has been reported.

"If present weather continued it will be very difficult to keep the fires under control," Mr. Hietgen said.

Honors Go To B.C.

Crescent Beach, B.C. — William Brankston, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Brankston, of Nanaimo, a pupil of St. George's school, Crescent Beach, won a special prize awarded for geometrical drawing by the Royal Drawing Society of London. He took five honors and a pass for first place in the world, it is claimed, leading against 73,000 contestants.

One of the best investments this town could make would be the purchase of a fire siren. The noise of the fire bell we have is not sufficiently far-reaching. We have all sorts of bells, school bells, train bells, church bells, noon and six o'clock bells (a popular one) and a curfew bell, which latter everyone concerned chooses to ignore. With all this assortment it is difficult, if one is not within a visitor's throw of the town hall and the wind is in the wrong direction, to distinguish amongst them. As we said several years ago in this column, what we need is a siren, a hair-raising siren, to rouse up the firemen, bowl there's a fire 'n—get to it!

LOCAL NEWS

The opening game of the Fort Saskatchewan and District ball league takes place at Pleasant View Thursday, May 21. Names vs. Pleasant View.

A meeting of the Red Cross Society will be held in the Memorial hall next Tuesday at 3 p.m. As this is the last meeting of the present months a full attendance is requested.

H. E. Alexander, representative of the Edmonton Exhibition association, was in town last week endeavoring to arouse sufficient interest in the Victoria constituency to place an entry in the district exhibit competition in connection with the annual exhibition to be held July 16-21.

Gavin Brookseridge, of the staff of the local branch of the Royal Bank, has been promoted to the main provincial offices at Calgary, where he will have a "soap." This does not mean that he will be dubbed "Exhibit A" from Fort Saskatchewan, but that he is to occupy a position of responsibility and importance. His place here is being filled by H. D. Burkholder, from the Gadsby branch.

A short course in Home Decoration and Furnishing will be held under the auspices of the Fort Saskatchewan Women's Institute on June 1, 2 and 4. The course is entirely free of charge and anyone desiring to take the course will please phone Mr. Mrs. The lectures will be as follows:

1. The Use and Making of Slip Covers.
2. Color in the Home.
3. Design and Arrangement of Furniture.

The hours will be at 2:30 p.m. the first day and if any change is desired it will be decided at that meeting which will be held in the buffet room of the Memorial hall.

Those attending this course are asked to bring with them a notebook and pencil, needle and cotton, and material.

Actual sales of Canadian Pacific Railway farm lands for the first three months of the year have been double those of the corresponding period of 1927. Enquiries for farm lands generally have increased in the same proportion.

Quebec, Quebec. — The mineral production of the Province of Quebec for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, will be well in excess of $20,000,000 if the activity continues. This is a statement from the Provincial Department of Mines, just issued.

Saint John. —The Maritime Provinces can find a good market in South and West Africa for their manufactured and natural products, according to C. J. S. Tyrer, who recently returned from there. A vast trade, he claimed, could be worked up in salt fish.

Vernon. —For the first time in the history of bee-keeping in British Columbia one bee-keeper in the Okanagan Valley has exported a full car-load of honey from his own hives. His 250 colonies gave him an average of 175 pounds of honey each.

Ottawa.—A survey will be made this year for a Canadian air mail route between Montreal and Winnipeg. This will consist of determining the best routes and locating landing fields. Recent announcement of four air mail contracts between points in Eastern Canada forecast more extensive operations along this line at an early date.

Midland, Ont.—For the first time in the history of this progressive town a through Canadian Pacific train left here early in May for Toronto, and the first C. P. R. through train arrived from Toronto later in the day. A bottle of champagne was broken across the fender of the C. P. R. locomotive as it pulled out for Midland.

Sit-ing in July and August will be a prominent feature of the combined summer and summer camps to be held under the Canadian Rockies, under the shadow of Mount Assiniboine by Marquis N. deGil Albimi. The winter sport is made possible, by fact of a bare glacier that runs down the slopes of the mountain. Summer sports of variety will also be possible at the camp which is one of the beauty spots of the Fort of Canadian Pacific traversed by the Canadian Pacific

Toronto.—Premier G. H. Ferguson announces that the Government has signed a contract with the Canadian Pacific Railway for the supplying of two additional cars to be used as "travelling schools" in the outlying districts of the province. The cars will be equipped in Winnipeg and both will run out of Fort William, operating between that city and Superior Junction. At present two cars are in operation, both in Northern Ontario. Not only children of trappers and railway workers, etc., receive instructions in these trains, but schools but night classes are arranged for adults.

The regular meeting of St. George's W.A. will be held in the parish hall on Thursday, June 7, at 3 p.m. Hostesses Mrs. Onley and Mrs. Smith

With the letter in his hand Jack sat looking at his polluted house - his poor fireside, violated home, the emblem of his own life. He had built this house with his own hands, lovingly, taking pleasure in driving every nail and fitting every board. And now and now as it had been with his life he had lived it clearly, decently.

Try as he would, Jack could not believe that Helmi had forgotten him or been unfaithful to her marriage vow. If the worst he feared was true, if she was some racial fault in her - Helmi had not sinned as an individual. What did he know of her traditions? He felt he knew her but little, although she was his wife. Nothing could alter that she was his wife.

A dog came whimpering to the door. As Jack opened it the sable collie, thin and miserable, merely negotiated stone old Him had given, looked timidly in at him. Jack recognized the animal the crazy Englishman's dog. Mrs. McMann said the Englishman had stayed at his house six weeks before. Here was the proof, and this explained the letters . . . "Arthur Warner" . . . . Jack had never heard his name. He had seen him though, a strange, uncouth, unshaven fellow.

Restraining a first impulse to drive the dog away, Jack coaxed her to come in, which she did, shivering. Her feet were sore, her nose hot. Jack went to the butcher shop and bought her some meat, which the hungry animal accepted gratefully. The dog was not to blame, whoever else might be.

The butcher told him about the dog. "The crazy Englishman had shot all his dogs but her. 'Cleo' is her name, and it seems he could not bring himself to shoot her. Old Sim looked after her until he got hurt and had to go to the hospital. Yes, sure, I'll give her home. It's real good o' you to be providin' for her. The Englishman wasn't any friend of yours either, was he?"

One remove Jack arrived at his next get out. He could not spend a night in his little broken house with its ache of which was so clear to him - the little house that had been all a nest for two.

When Jack left it he did not think of locking the door, although there were things in it, the stove, chairs, table, beds for which he had paid his hard earned money. But it did not matter now. His little house, which he had built so eagerly, had been violated.

Jack sealed his letters and returned them to the Post Office, then hired a team at the livery stable and drove to Bannerman, where he would catch a train for Edmonton. On the way he met the time-keeper, who apparently did not want to speak, for although Jack drove up his horses the other went on. Recognizing Jack, he feared embarrassing questions in respect to the money which had been owing. The time-keeper had seen rich times in the Peace River country, and knew that it was good. Something might happen before it again comes to pass. Anything might die the wealth might come to an end, the coming of the wig had made all things possible. But instead of gloating when he saw Jack drawing up his horses, he hurried on.

Jack believed the time-keeper's reluctance to speak was because of what had happened, and his heart grew still heavier. A pain rose and fell and finally enabled the horses to follow the trail, leaving him free to pursue his own gloomy thoughts. He thought of Helmi as she had come to the house and Helmi said across the running water. The stream was silent now in the fetters of ice, and the sparks of their feet in the soft, sandy banks had been obscured long ago. He wondered if Helmi had forgotten it wondered, too, if he would ever be able to forget?

At the top of the hill, when the hickory had turned true, the little town came into view. Jack remembered Helmi's fears when they had come there together. "It is not a friendly town," she had cried. "It will bring bad luck! See, the houses are like angry cats about to spring!" And he had laughed at her for her foolish fancy. He marvelled now at her premonition of evil! And, try as he would, he could not overcome his love for her. He wanted her, his high-tempered Finn girl, whose eyes were so like Helmi, with the lovely shimmering hair and the eager questioning mind. No! if he had lost Helmi he had lost everything. Life could not hurt him more than that. He had lost Helmi and he was proof against misfortune. He might as well go to the war, there was no one to be staying behind, if Helmi were gone; and if he went he might meet Arthur Warner and pay off the score!

Having an hour to wait for the train, Jack wandered around the town. He did not wish to talk to anyone. The night was fine and clear, with Northern lights circling and coiling in the sky with a crumpling sound like the rustle of silk. They and unsure, violet and amber, they advanced and retreated in endless manoeuvres, shooting, darting, rolling and unrolling, shimmering and dancing. He and Helmi had watched them with endless enjoyment from the north window of their own little house last year. A sudden impulse came to him to go and see the magicians he might know something. Anything would be better than this torturing uncertainly.

The magistrate was in and shook hands kindly - too kindly! Jack judged from his manner that he had some damaging evidence and that he was glad he had it.

"I came home today," Jack began at once, "expecting to find my wife, but they tell me she has gone to the city. I expected to be home a month earlier, but was delayed in the north. I can find no trace of her, nor any reason for her going. Do you know anything about her?"

"I did not know she had gone, until today," said the magistrate. "I had a letter from a friend of mine who saw her in the city.

Jack started eagerly. "Where is the city? I shall go there tonight."

The magistrate rubbed the bristles on his chin with a distinctly noised forefinger, then with one thumb he pressed back the cuticle on the other until it burst. He loved to do this. When he couldn't hurt anyone else he hurt himself. "I wouldn't try to find her, Mr. Doran, if I were you. She is

"PINKHAM'S COMPOUND IS WONDERFUL"

I have taken your medicine before each of them was born and have certainly received great benefit from it. I urge my friends to take it as I am sure they will receive the same help I did."—Mrs. MILTON McMULLEN, Vanessa, Ontario.

"The wonder metal of the age" is a fitting term for Aluminum. in a place where you would not be pleased to find her.

I don't care where she is so long as she is safe and well and I believe that she had done wrong unless she tells me so. I know her better than you do."

I am sorry for you Mr Doran and for myself, why I am so patient with you. The Millander girl has gone back to her old associates, the Chinese like in one of the all-night eating-houses. I suppose you know what it means when a white girl goes into one of these places."

Jack sat staring at him. "Who is your friend who saw her there?"

"I would rather not tell it is not necessary that I should - but I have wrote in confidence He knew I was interested. She evidently tired of the quiet life here these girls crave excitement. There was some talk about her and the Englishman who owns the bungalow at English River. He stayed with her for a week, then she enlisted. That is common talk at the mines. Men who are going out to work, you know, like to take their fling."

He did not need to hurt his own heart now. Jack Doran's love was enough. It had grown suddenly old and seasoned and full of hatred. His mouth quivered like those of a race horse.

He was about to go, but the magistrate waved him to a seat. "Mr. Doran, you were very indignant with me a year ago or a little less, when I dared to advise you. You were quite indignant, and of course I do really to admit your feelings at that time were very creditable, very creditable mistaken, but creditable. Since then you have had a bitter lesson, a very bitter lesson. I did not harbor any ill-will on the contrary, I was still ready to be your friend. I want your friend, even though you resented my friendship." Col. Blackwood leaned over and his voice fell. "A man in my position does not respect thanks; we do not get thanks, but that is quite all right. We do not expect thanks, but I hope you see that I was trying to befriend you."

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

BAKED RICE RELISH

½ cup chopped American cheese.
½ cup nectars raisins.
6 drops tabasco sauce.
Rice.

Plump raisins, drain and chop, using a coarse cutter. Blend raisins with cheese and spread on thin buttered slices of bread. Put slices together as a sandwich and toast on both sides. Serve hot.

VANILLA JUNKET ICE CREAM
(Two Quarts)

2 quart milk.
1 cup sugar.
2 junket tablets
1 tablespoon vanilla.
1 tablespoon cold water.

Mix milk and cream together, and warm to lukewarm—not hot, then add sugar and vanilla. Dissolve junket tablets in the cold water, add to the milk, stir well a moment, then pour immediately into the freezer can, and let stand in a warm room until firm—about 20 minutes. Place can in freezer, pack with ice and salt and freeze slowly to a thick mush, then finish freezing rapidly.

Crossword Puzzle Fun Is Blind

For the blind, a crossword puzzle has been produced in Paris. It consists of a piece of stiff cardboard made of many lines of individual squares, in which the blind can "peg" letters that make up words. Squares marked by cross lines take the part played by the solid black squares of ordinary crossword puzzles. Directions are given in Braille printing.

PRE-NATAL DIET

There is a phrase respecting Motherhood "Her every child a tooth"—which is to say that during the period of formation of the little life certain changes take place in the mother's teeth causing them to decay and be more easily lost. And this is so. But why?

For the rearing of the little structures that is so quietly proceeding the little bone-builders in their construction of the bones and teeth, depend chiefly on the calcium salts. Should the mother's diet be deficient in these building stones, the little workmen are obliged to go to the only other available source of supply, the bones and teeth, to meet their wants. Robbing Peter to pay Paul—if you will yet the little structure must be reared at all costs in such a case the mother's teeth are so structurally weakened as to invite disease. Not only to avert this disaster is herself, but keeping uppermost the welfare of the coming infant, and remembering that she must contribute generously towards the influence that will make for normally developed teeth in her offspring, the expectant mother should select her diet with the utmost care. Here she should choose plenty of lime-containing foods, milk, eggs, cereals, the leafy-topped vegetables and fresh fruits

Following birth also, the demand for calcium in the mother's diet is still high since, with the infant now being naturally, as it should, the mother's milk requires large amounts of these salts. An inadequate diet on the mother's part certainly affects harmfully her own teeth as well as those developing in the nursing child

Moreover, it should be stressed that if the teeth are to be of good quality, the infant should at this time be naturally fed. The ravages of tooth decay have been found to be much greater among children who as infants had been artificially fed.

The expectant mother should take at least a quart of milk a day in addition to her other food. This will ensure a proper start of the teeth in the days of the infant at birth and as well the proper bony development of the child generally

Poultry and Egg Business Ranks High in the Province

The poultry and egg industry ranks high in British Columbia and the total value of eggs and table birds consistently produced annually in the province in 1927 is estimated at $6,300,000. In that year it is estimated there were 1,500,000 laying hens and British Columbia poultry farms and, in addition, close to 2,000,000 young birds.

GIVE CONFIDENCE TO YOUNG MOTHERS

By Always Keeping Baby's Own Tablets In the House

A simple and safe remedy for the common ills of babyhood and childhood should be kept in every home where there is either a baby or a young child. Often it is necessary to give the little ones something to break up a cold, allay fever, correct sour stomach and banish the irritability that accompanies the cutting of teeth.

Experienced mothers always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the home as a safeguard against the troubles that cause their little ones so suddenly and the young mother can feel reasonably safe with a box of these Tablets at hand and ready for emergencies.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative that act without griping and they are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or other harmful drugs. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LOCAL NEWS

The Fort was tried by fire last Thursday and by water on Sunday. We all seem to be here, however, and still smiling.

A meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion will be held in the hall next Wednesday at 8 p.m. to hear and discuss the report of 24th May celebration.

The ladies of St. George's W.A. will hold a tea and sale of home cooking on Saturday, June 9, from 3 till 5 p.m. in the parish hall. All church members are asked to kindly donate.

The Hon. J. E. Brownlee, Premier of Alberta, will address a public meeting under the auspices of the Canadian club of Fort Saskatchewan on Friday, June 1, at 8 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all everybody.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the First United church will be held at the home of Mrs. T. B. McClellan on Thursday, June 7, at 2:30 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies of the congregation.

Another argument in favor of a fire circus as mentioned elsewhere in this issue was one small boy chasing through the excitement of the fire on Thursday and now has a grievance against his home town even as against the man who pulled the switch.

The Fort troop of Boy Scouts participated in the pageant put on by the Boy Scouts of the Edmonton district at the Arena, Edmonton, last Friday. Several covers of oats took the boys there, and a peculiar coincidence of the return trip was that, for no reason that was apparent, almost every car had either one or two fast tires. It is suspected that someone who knew the cars himself went the tire valves.

A storm of unusual severity occurred on Sunday when Fort Saskatchewan and the immediate vicinity got its first thorough drenching this spring. The water lay in pools and lakes for a while but was quickly absorbed, the earth being so dry. At one time during the heavy rain, hailstones as large as pigeons' eggs fell with it, causing damage to early vegetables and flowers. Plant life should

PREMIER BROWNLEE SPEAKS AT THE FORT

Last Friday the local branch of the Canadian Club was responsible for another interesting event for the townspeople of the Fort. This was the occasion of a visit to the town of Premier Brownlee under the auspices of the Canadian Club. A fair number of members of the club and the public were present when A. E. Gibson, president, introduced the speaker

Mr. Brownlee then commenced an address on Canadianism. He outlined the intense feeling of the pioneer for his country, their love of country which was always so noticeable in Britishers and others from the older countries who had emigrated here. There seemed to be a peculiar warmth of sentiment expressed when these spoke of their homeland.

Mr. Brownlee attributed a large part of this feeling to the attractiveness of their respective countries. The beautiful heights, flowers, walks and the hundred and one natural beauties assisted by the hand of man to touch the heart of nature lovers. The Premier went on to say that the Canadian Club was an excellent institution to endeavor to educate the love of country into the hearts and minds of us Canadians. In many ways could this object be accomplished and particularly by the aid of beautifying our towns and districts. He stated that the future generations would always look back with pride on the works of natural beauty and beautiful buildings commenced in this generation. He emphasized the importance to the country and to the feelings of the people of this laudable effort.

Another view was also offered to the Canadian Club by the Premier at being material to patriotism. That was for a greater interest on the part of the people in the laws of the land, in their making and the observance of them when made. The speaker dwelt very forcibly on the fact that it was impossible for a group of men styled the government, to make laws satisfactory to the public unless they were acquainted with what was desired and needed by the public. Without the majority of the people were supporting the government in laws in the course of construction then those laws were of no value. He urged the necessity of all people to read and take an intelligent interest in the work of the government so that they would have a clear conception of what was taking place, as it was for their benefit that these things were being done.

The welcoming of the emigrant to this country and giving him the feeling that he was wanted and being assisted to become Canadian and being helped to develop that patriotism in his new home, could also be accomplished by the Canadian Club. Mr. Brownlee stated that recently he had travelled a lot and had learned and was now trying to impart to his fellow Canadians why the immigrant had that deep rooted love of his homeland.

The Premier spoke for just over an hour and not a moment was a dull one and at the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered by John Galloway. The Premier expressed his pleasure at being able to meet the people of the Fort, which being so near to the seat of government, seemed to see the least of its representatives. Mr. Gibson then introduced the people present individually to the Premier.

Announcements will be made in the future by the Canadian Club of speakers and others visiting here. Please keep watch for these announcements as these events are worth attending.

BASEBALL

Fort Saskatchewan received their first defeat of the season this evening at the hands of a snappy aggregation from the city. Ashdown's quartette was over the plate and the Fort never, and at that the local boys did very well to hold the visitors down to such a small score.

The Fort Saskatchewan and District baseball league games played to date and the results are:

Namao 16—Pleasant View 2.
Cloverdale Bar 5—Fort Saskatchewan 11.
Ardrossan 1—Brunner 23.
Fort Saskatchewan 15—Ardrossan 2.

The Pleasant View has dropped out of the league and this necessitates a new schedule being drawn up for the six remaining clubs. This is being done by Mr. Ewer and the schedules will be off the press and in the mail Thursday. Games played on the old schedule will be void and the opening game of the new schedule will be played on the Fort diamond Friday evening.

COLONEL NEWCOMEN DIED AT HIS ABBOTSLEA FARM

The death occurred at his farm at Ardrossan last Wednesday of Colonel A. H. Glendowe Newcomen, C.I.E., aged 76 years. After spending the winter at Victoria, B.C., he had just returned with Mrs. Newcomen when he was stricken with a heart attack from which he failed to recover.

Born at Cantham, Yorkshire, England, he received his education at military colleges and while still a young man went to India, where for many years he was in the thick of almost every frontier scrap, eventually being gazetted colonel of the United Provinces Horse, remaining in command of this crack cavalry regiment until his retirement some years ago. He also saw service in the Boxer rebellion, the South African war and the great war, and was the possessor of no less than five whole rows of medals.

Talk Peace To Have Peace

It is now fairly well recognized by students of international relations that one of the causes of war is to be found in the constant predictions of war, in reference to "the next war," and sometimes as to the varying terms which constitute it will take when nations again light up arms against each other. Those who constantly predict war are, says a college president, "not simply reporters of probable events, they are actual causes of war, generally speaking, the chief causes." That is, talk war and you have war.

Undergoing the correctness of this theory, it is equally true that if the statesmen and leading men in all countries cultivate the habit of talking peace instead of war, the world will have peace. "The citizens world peace is concerned are going to know more men and women," says a United States paper, "the better the prospect that war can be at last conquered," and it adds that the more intelligent leaders of democracy the world over can be brought together to consider steps for peace. As they gather from time to time and foresee the brighter horizon the prospect that ultimately perhaps no war than most or its now before war will be abolished.

War after all is largely a state of mind. Let the people of any community begin to take a pessimistic view of things and confidently harp upon business depression and hard times, and it is inevitable that depression and hard times will come. Equally true is it that when people talk prosperity and adopt an optimistic tone, a revival in business and the desired activity follows. If, instead of thinking of "the next war" and talking war, people think and talk peace, then peace rather than war will prevail.

It has been reported that the Supreme Court of the United States has settled one hundred disputes between States, and in Canada our Supreme Court and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council have settled numerous disputes between provinces and between provinces and the Dominion. Why should not disputes between nations be settled in a like amicable way? There is quite as much justification for two States or two Provinces to declare war and fight as each other's interests as there is for two nations to take such drastic action.

War is a stupid business. It settles no issues. It comes about when a little group of men get into a quarrel with another little group. The law does not allow individuals to murder each other because they have a court and international law should, in like manner, outlaw war as a means of settling disputes between nations. War between nations is a relic of barbarism. The leaders in these countries have not sufficient intelligence or sufficient patience to find a way out, so they select the finest men on both sides and set them pounding each other into the flesh and blood and blowing each other to bits. The fact that men stand this the longer is the wiser and give its own way. There is no reason employed in the settlement.

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador at Washington, in a recent address said: "If it can be proved to a man that if his country goes to war for any issue short of its absolute liberty of action at home, and in defence of that liberty, he will in future stand a very good chance of being brushed to his home; if we can show him that even though his country may be victorious, he will certainly have his taxes increased by 200, 300, 400 or 500 per cent.; if we can make it clear to him that for the sake of some issue to which he is probably an entire stranger he risks having to occupy some next month, or, even worse, that he may very probably be thrown out of work, he has been the loss of millions in Europe after the last war; then perhaps he may find war less piquingly dramatic and may bestir himself to see that as a means of settling disputes between nations it is quite obsolete and condemned. So far as statecraft is concerned, the fear of war is the beginning of wisdom."

Some people may be inclined to doubt the value of Peace Talks, Disarmament Conferences, and treaties between nations outlawing war, but the fact is these are all factors in educating people and helping to create and develop a peace consciousness in all countries. And, as it is repeated and emphasized, the creation of such a consciousness is the strongest of all guarantees for the maintenance of peace.

Parachute Lands Plane Safely

Invention Of Chilliwack Man Proves Possible In Time

A small biplane has been landed safely from 2,000 feet by means of a large parachute, without injury to its pilot or damage to the plane. The experiment, performed privately at Troy ney, Cal., was designed to prove the possibility of using a parachute for disabled planes to insure safety of passengers. A Jenny biplane, piloted by E. J. McKeown, was used in the test.

The plane dropped about 2,000 feet with its motor idle, when the huge parachute more than 100 feet in diameter, opened out. McKeown stayed with the ship as his speed rapidly slackened. He said he felt only a slight jar when the plane landed and the folds of the parachute enveloped him. The biplane was not damaged except for a minor bend in the tail skid.

The parachute is the invention of Charles Broderick, San Francisco man with numerous other patents, to represent satisfaction over the result of the experiment.

Tractors On the Farm

Western Farmers Investing More Heavily In Motors For Horses Daily

There are in Alberta today 77 192 tractors who have 834,231 horses in use, and 32,707 tractors in Saskatchewan records show 116,762 farmers with 1,199,586 horses and 24,367 tractors in Manitoba, 7,000 farmers with 256,480 horses, and 10,823 tractors. The survey would indicate that while the horse is yet far from being the chief motive power in Western Canadian farms, the day of the tractor has decidedly arrived.

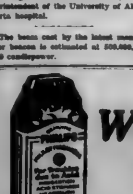
FIGHTING FOR BABY'S HEALTH

Is the Constant Care Of Every Young Mother

The young mother has a constant fear that the little one's welfare may suffer at this time. Childhood ailments come on suddenly, sometimes without a minute's warning the mother may have a very sick baby on her hands before help can be obtained. That is unless she has a remedy in the house which she can safely give the baby for any of the many minor ailments of babyhood and childhood.

Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of mothers throughout the country always keep a box of the Tablets on hand and they proclaim them to be without an equal for preventing baby's stomach; regulating the bowels; curing or preventing colds, simple fevers, and making the dreaded teething period easy.

Baby's Own Tablets are the absolutely safe remedy. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any other narcotic drug which are so harmful to the future welfare of the baby. Mothers, if you value the life of your little ones give him Baby's Own Tablets when he is ill, or, better still, give him an occasional dose of the Tablets to ward off illness. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or will be sent to any address, post paid, at 25 cents a box by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.



When Pain Comes

What many people call indigestion very often means excess gas in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians for the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

Progress Has Been Made

Messages By Beam System Is Marvel Of Speed

What beam wireless has done for long-distance communication was explained by J. H. Thompson, chief engineer of the Marconi Wireless Company, to the members of the Montreal branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, recently. Using slides, the speaker produced a graphic picture showing a telegraph operator at Drumsmondville, Quebec, using an instrument resembling an ordinary typewriter and sending messages at the rate of 180 words to the minute, to be received almost instantly by an operator at Dorchester, England.

Mr Thompson illustrated the progress made in wireless transmission by showing the crude instruments used in the early days of wireless, the progress having been so rapid that equipment of stations used 15 years ago is of no use today. The beam system itself, he said, was the result of experiments by which all the energy available at the sending station was successfully sent in one direction thus establishing a beam of energy.

Tribute To British Flag

Union Jack Made Union Flag Possible Says South African Councillor

A great tribute has just been paid to the Union Jack, and satisfactorily enough from that country in which there has been some connection about it—South Africa. A prom dequadish from there says that native affection for this flag was eloquently demonstrated at a General Council of the Transkeian Territories which might be described as a native Parliament, when the Council unanimously passed a resolution that the Government be requested to permit the Union Jack to be flown with the Union of South Africa flag on all Magistrates' offices in the native territories. A Councillor asked the members not to discard their old friend the Union Jack, which had freed them from slavery and which was the only flag they knew. He did not object to the Union Flag, but pointed out that were it not for the Union Jack there would be no Union flag. We might also venture to say that were it not for the Union Jack there would be no Canada as there is today.

Seed Growing In B.C.

Industry On Vancouver Island Rapidly Increasing In Importance

Seed growing is one of the latest industries of Vancouver Island of steadily increasing importance. Vancouver Island sweet pea seed sells on the English market from three to four shillings per pound more than the California seed. The largest sweet pea seed farm is at Duncan, which produces yearly about two tons. From 15 to 30 women are employed each year to pick, clean and pack the seed whose excellence and high quality is becoming world-famous.

Spare the children from suffering from worms by using Miller's Worm Powders, a most effective vermifuge with which to combat these insidious foes of the young and helpless. It is a safe, excellent worm destroyer, and when its qualities become known in a household no other will be used. The medicine acts by itself, requiring no purgative to assist it, and as the name roughly that nothing more is desired.

A man could learn a great many things if he didn't think that he already knew them.

Railways and Aircraft Companies In United States Join Hands To Supply Transcontinental Service

The coming generation will probably not be able to annihilate space, but it is certainly destroying distance. Air lines to the other planets and the nearer stars are not yet in sight, but the strokes of the earth are being turned into aerial land jaunts. Always as to man's habit when he is determined to cover great distances in brief time, the earlier hardships of swift travel are being eliminated. The latest combination of speed with comfort is announced in the formation of the "plane-train service to Los Angeles from New York and return.

It has not yet been begun, but the personnel of its sponsorship assures its early establishment. Within a few weeks it will be possible to reach Los Angeles in forty-eight hours from New York, with two nights of sleep aboard a Pullman. Two railroads—the Pennsylvania and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe—the two leading aircraft companies—Curtiss and Wright—and many strong banking houses are combined in the project. Capital stock up to $5,000,000 has been supscribed with no public offering, and the company is said to be built its rates, its time schedules and the names of its pilots. The "planes, which will carry transcontinental passengers during the daylight hours, have a capacity of fourteen persons each; meals will be served in the air as on the Pullmans, and the travelers will be in their hotels at Los Angeles or New York before the light fades on the second day. It is part of the new miracle wrought by the union of science and finance, with planes and railroads acting as auxiliaries instead of rivals. Passenger by has become a conventional daily affair in Europe, where generally the scope of form's business has been limited to the few hours between cities. The journey only from one country to another and without the handicap of such distances as we have here. To meet the spread of this broad land the new combination has been devised by men equally responsible for management and for transportation. It may be only the beginning of an entirely new system of general travel in this country.

Trips to the moon will probably have to be left to succeeding generations, which will have left cozy interstellar spaces as their objective. But news like this about the transplane almost lends ordinary citizens to expect a time when their vehicles, Pullman cars by night will take wings by day and, rising from the tracks, will soar through the air until night comes again. —New York Times

Total Distance Of Stars

Beef Cattle Market

Good Prices Are Secured For Prime Beef

J. T. McCallum, of Melita, Manitoba, last month sold 26 head of prime beef grade Shorthorn and Hereford steers at prices ranging from $10.50 to $12, per hundred pounds to a Winnipeg buyer. The same buyer purchased 13 Aberdeen Angus steers from George Tait, a well known breeder, of Warren, Manitoba, for $11.50 per hundred weight. These steers dressed 63.5 per cent. They were purchased last October for $7.50 per hundredweight. At the time they weighed 1,015 pounds, which had increased on farm grown feed to 1,306 pounds at time of sale. They left two nights of sleep aboard a Pullman. Two railroads—the Pennsylvania and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe—the two leading aircraft companies—Curtiss and Wright—and many strong banking houses are combined in the project. Capital stock up to $5,000,000 has been supscribed with no public offering, and the company is said to be built its rates, its time schedules and the names of its pilots. Farmers' Profitable Venture

Farmers Of Manitoba Own Creamery Valued At $30,000

Since the Manitoba Co-operative Dairies, Ltd., Winnipeg, began operations in 1921, it has returned to its farmer patrons in interest and bonuses, in cash or credit, nearly $75,000, according to a recent report by the management. During the same time the members of the association have subscribed and paid for capital stock in the organization to the amount of $77,202. Thus the farmers of Manitoba now own the creamery and its equipment, valued at $90,000, and have received nearly identically covering their investment. At the same time they have received better prices for their butterfat, and the quantity of butter produced has increased from about 300,000 pounds in 1921 to 1,637,000 pounds in 1927.

Mosquito Control

Circular Gives Instructions Regarding Permanent and Temporary Control

The females of the majority of species of mosquitoes drink blood, and warm-blooded animals and man are the sources of this particular form of mosquito food. This makes the mosquito an interesting subject for study, and a circular, just published by the Department of Agriculture, entitled "Mosquito Control in Canada," is timely.

While some of these pestiferous insects only live for a few days others live for several weeks, and the best way to control them is to make an attack on their breeding grounds. The Entomological branch advocates in this circular "the draining and filling in of low places where water accumulates, and the screening of receptacles holding water such as water-barrels. Temporary bodies of water formed by melting snow, rain and floods are common breeding places for mosquitoes.

"Mosquito Control in Canada," which may be obtained on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, deals at length with the life history, permanent and temporary control measures, procedure in control campaigns, and protection from mosquito bites. Those who desire to identify the particular species concerned should send specimens for identification to the Dominion Entomologist, Ottawa.

Flats Given Fund For Fort William

It is announced by Frank Spence, M.L.A. for Fort William, that the Polsper Glass Company, of Detroit, intends locating a factory at the head of the lakes for the making of plate glass. The company is negotiating to take over the plant and equipment of the Canada Steel Co., located on the Kaministiquia River, with both rail and shipment facilities at hand. The new industry is expected to give employment to about a hundred workmen.

English Visitor Sees Excellent Prospects For the Growth Of Sheep Industry In Canada

A bright future for the Canadian sheep industry is painted by R. H. Hollings, editor of The Wool Record, of Bradford, the wool-marketing centre of England. Mr. Hollings visited this country in 1927.

"As I travelled through Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, I could not help noting: 'Where are the sheep?'" writes Mr. Hollings. "Apart from passing a small flock or two on the train I had little opportunity of seeing them.

"It was too early to see any of the new clip, much as I desired to do so. For a wool I saw was specially suitable for hosiery manufacture. This will always be a big industry in Canada, the climate making warm underclothes essential. The cattle are evidently doing their best with the raw material available, and I was pleased to see that farmers are keeping a suitable type of sheep. I noticed also that the bulk of the woods range from 56's to 58's quality. I was asked if I thought manufacturing needs are such that the flocks in Canada could be increased to 25,000,000, and unhesitatingly replied in the negative.

"I have never known a time in the history of the wool trade when the outlook for sheep men was so encouraging. I am not now referring to the anticipate lower prices. Mutton values are also good, and I think the outlook for the fat lamb trade over a series of farm produce has fallen in value in England during the past two or three years, those who have kept sheep have found much mutton and wool to sell well. I would appeal to every Canadian farmer to keep as many sheep as possible, because I think it will pay him to do so. Since returning home I have given three lectures on my trip to Canada and have no wolf as on every other possible occasion. I have received a reply from the opportunities in Canada for any one with sufficient pluck and energies.

"One of the most satisfactory things about my trip was that I met so many Yorkshiremen who had gone out to Canada and made a success of the enterprises upon which they had entered. Sometimes discouraging comments are made upon industry in the Old Country, particularly its agriculture. I hope Canadian readers will not accept all such comments literally, for there are many prosperous men in England.

"If Canada is to fill its place in the Empire it needs men of the same type to develop its pastoral and agricultural interests. Quite a large number of Englishmen with a good knowledge of the affairs of their native country have settled in Canada, and those should be able to give some good advice, particularly after they have lived long enough in Canada to become acquainted with its climatic peculiarities

The Co-operative Wholesale Society embraces almost every conceivable kind of business industry and commerce. It manufactures everything from the modern household utensil. It owns a fleet of ships, a printing establishment, a bakery, warehouses, fishing stations, tea plantations in Ceylon and farms in the Scottish Isles. It operates a bank. It issues has an annual turnover of several million dollars. Its flour mill is the largest in Europe and works day and night. Here great quantities of Canadian wheat are regularly used. It is one of our world point of inspection. We were all equipped with long white coats and spent two hours seeing this tremendous mill.

Following our visit to the C.W.S. we were the guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting arranged by representatives of the Fruit and Provisions Trade, who gave an address on the requirements of the Manchester market. We were then again established in rather more modern accommodation.

We now hurried back to our hotel and to get ready for one of the outstanding functions of our pilgrimage to enjoy during our trip—the reception given by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Manchester. Over 1,200 citizens of Manchester assembled in the Oddfellow's Hall and in the adjoining halls as all these people—bound in the main body by the brilliantly lighted hall, while we were welcomed by the Lord Mayor. I know that will never be forgotten by those who attended.

On the morning of the 20th we were taken through Trafford Park, one of the greatest and most modern industrial areas in England. Here there are over vast storages and handling facilities for the importation and distribution of the timber that find their way to Manchester. Some 1 million pounds were on view, but competing products from Ireland, Denmark and other countries were much more in evidence. We saw the great sales rooms where cotton is sold and also which the latest cotton storage sales of New Orleans have been modelled.

We were here privileged also to see one of the greatest industrial plants of England—the Metropolitan Vickers Electrical Works the magnitude of which could not be comprehended by one who has not seen it. There is made everything—all the way from the equipment of super-power stations to the smallest domestic appliances. In the main shops each of the great aisles is 900 feet long and 90 feet wide, the over-all width of each shop being 640 feet, and 80 feet from the floor to the top of the roof. Each of the two main aisles is spanned by three or four 100-ton electric cranes, which can pick anything up from any part of the floor.

We were next taken for a trip down the great Manchester Canal, by which ocean-going steamers reach the very doors of the city, 35 miles inland. Accompanied by the Chairman and Board and many other officials we were aboard the launch Lindow, a replica of the port and pass through lock after lock formed the run. During this trip we saw a swing bridge over the Canal open to let our steamer pass and when it closed we were to our astonishment that the swing bridge itself was part of a road canal on a higher level and a few seconds afterwards a number of barges passed over it.

The Manchester Ship Canal might be said to be one of the wonders of the world. Though a private enterprise, it is owned by 40,000 shareholders, many of them laboring men. The rise of Manchester to its present position as a port, is almost entirely due to the completion of the Ship Canal. The long hard parliamentary fight for its construction developed in Manchester a co-operative spirit and civic pride which would be hard to duplicate in even a modern Williamson Canadian town.

After visiting the Ship Canal we were the guests of the company to a magnificent lunch in the Midland Hotel, to which were gathered the leading business men of Manchester.

Following this we paid a short visit to the Royal Exchange the largest Exchange in the world with a ground floor space of one and three-quarter acres. Under these roofing changes in our country seats are not owned, but members join on an annual fee basis. The Royal Exchange of Manchester represents chiefly the cotton industry and those allied to it.

High change is on Friday, when as many as 7,000 men may sometimes be seen gathered together buying and selling on the floor of the Exchange.

Our journey from Manchester to Wolverhampton provided a mild adventure, for by the time the coach had reached Sandbach, a little town made famous by Mrs. Gaskell, in her story "Cranford," a fog blanket had set in. Progress was so retarded that we would be able to continue the remaining 50 miles, or if this fog would mean a night in the coaches by the side of the road, with every chance of being rammed from behind by lorry or motorists. After an hour's wait Pilate decided to have some refreshment and we descended upon an inn long at our drivers could find a yard ahead of them. The hospitality were turned to the side of the road and we were soon standing on the running board we made progress for five miles an hour. During this long and tedious journey we sang songs and told stories, and when we arrived after all quite pleasantly.

The reception at Wolverhampton at 11.30 where, notwithstanding the late hour, the Mayor and Mayoress (Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wood), waiting for us and a welcoming supper with tea certainly was a welcome sight. Afterwards, the Mayor cut out all formality inviting the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress to the lounge where we were entertained. Here also we met Mr. E. W. Brown of the London Office of the Canadian National Railways, who, besides his business qualifications, has a first class reputation as a Canadian singer, and kindly gave us of his best. We left Wolverhampton immediately following the concert, and visited the famous factory of Messers March & Pascall Limited, where every phase of the industry was carried out. Birmingham. Here also we met Mr. R

ALBERTA FIRE LOSSES IN 1927

Thirty-three deaths and property losses totalling $3,338,777.92 resulted from fires in Alberta during the year 1927, according to the recently issued report of Henry Brace, provincial fire commissioner. Fire waste from the burning of dwellings, stores, barns and garages amounted to over $1,000,000, or 65 per cent. of the total fire losses for the year, and it is pointed out in the report that practically all of these fires were due to carelessness in some form or other.

During 1927 a total of 720 cities, towns and villages in the province were visited and inspected by officials of the fire commissioner's office and 6987 orders were issued for the correction of defects. Convictions under The Fire Prevention Act during the year totalled 36, of 94.7 per cent. of these brought to trial.

FIVE REASONS

WHY WHEAT PRODUCERS SHOULD SUPPORT

THE WHEAT POOL

1. Because your self-protection as a producer is incomplete and ineffective if private organizations can still exploit you by manipulating prices against you.
2. Because co-operation helps to uphold the standard of living by suppressing the element of profiteering in the grain produced by your labor
3. Because co-operation eliminates unnecessary middlemen and dividend hunting shareholders, who take a heavy toll of the wealth produced by the farm workers.
4. Because the co-operative principle of "each for all, all for each" is the work-ers' ideal which alone can bring economic and social justice, peace and prosperity, to all throughout the world.
5. Because the farm workers ought to concentrate their resources in co-operation instead of supporting exploitistic organizations hostile to co-operative movements.

"I don't see any reason why—" stuttered Jack miserably; "I only—only made the same threat—some of the other women do sometimes—and I'm not—I'm not—I'm not going to do it again—I'm not—I'm not either—I will do my part—and I'll bring her I will take her word for—against the world."

The magistrate laughed softly, but there was no mirth in the sound. "Have a drink my dear young friend," he said "and forgive her."

"No thank you said Jack "I do not drink, and I am pretty sure I will never forget her."

There was something in the young man's voice and in his face that made the Blackwood wonder if he had portrayed the right reasons. Perhaps he should tell of her coming to him to tell all about the marriage. Perhaps he should tell ed she had been impertinent to him, and she had threatened him.

When Jack had gone the magistrate sat a long time, wondering. Then he went to the cupboard and poured himself a drink; another drink. Ah! that was better. He knew he was right; another drink, and he was sure that he had done not only a right, but a noble thing in leaving the marriage unrecorded. After the third drink, he sat in a useless haze, musing pleasantly on the fine that young Jack Doran would come to him with tears standing in his eyes and thank him for what he had done. "You saved me, and through I should live a thousand years I should never be able to thank you adequately, Sir." And he would reply "Have done, my boy,—have done: one brave man must ever help another."

But he might save pleasantly on.

CHAPTER XXV.

Not so pleasantly did the night pass with Jack Doran, who sat in the station waiting for No. 8 and listening to the wires telling their nerve-racking story a dull, gray station, dusty even when the snow had covered all the dust. A red stove in the middle of the floor, ugly-shaped, fuelled, and other lifeless or red hot according to the mood of the agent; torn posters showing palatial white steamers ploughing green seas and carrying pleasure-seeking Canadians to tropical lands, all for trifling sums "and return;" a bill of sale, where furniture had been given to the auctioneer to spare nothing, in health the cause of the owner's desire to sell, a stray mother to a half pup answering to the name of "Buster" with a reward; a dance and a ball—at Bannerman by St. Faith's Ladies' Aid program and refreshments, and cordial invitation to all. Save the Forest! poster "The forest is ours, let us keep it always." John Ferguson's obituary—mean of his ability to cure aches, old country methods and moderate prices try me once.

Jack came back to his own bitter thoughts, to which the telegraph instruments made a weird accompaniment ghostly and grim. He could see the settlement from where he sat, sod-turfing, tapping, clicking with its mysterious Linger, silent for a few minutes then convulsed and a shout with the desire to be understood. He thought of all the suggestions of comfort the heart-broken aunt had made to her wife—started to dead's face along the miles, and how they drank into strange tappings here chokingly and almost articulate.

Life was like that, he mused, we all carry one load of emotions—are unable to bubble but we cannot all throw it out at intervals in hot and strong like the Wops.

Reaching the city Jack went to the Mansell Hotel, where he found his partner, Keith, whom he had not seen since the night of the recruiting meeting in Prince River. They discussed their plans for the future

"I am going to have our operations amalgamated at the University, and I will go at once to Victoria to see our claims," said Jack.

Jack told him briefly of his dear-est trouble. "I believe she is here in the city," he said in conclusion—and I want to find her. I will not believe a word she says unless I hear it from her."

Keith whistled softly. "This is bad work, boy," he said, "and I sure am sorry. Women are like fiends in the hour of their wrath: if they're not one they are the other. When you begin to break off the coupons from your gold mines stock you'll have a flock of them pursuing you, anyway."

Jack was looking out at the wide view of the winter landscape, with the Saskatchewan river, covered with snow, winding away into the blue distance. "I don't want a flock," he said, "but I do want Helmi. If you know her as Keith, you would know she couldn't be crooked. She has eyes that are like the little girl's, full of wonder and innocence."

"I don't believe there are any innocent girls these days," Keith replied, lighting his pipe for the twentieth time. He could never keep his pipe going, and when he sat still half an hour in one place he had burnt matches strewn around him like confetti around a bride. Keith was a sweet man, very dark complexioned, tanned now to a rich mahogany.

"My own opinion is that you are well out of it, Jack," he continued, "but I'll admit I'm no judge of women. They can all fool me."

"Sometimes I think of existing," said Jack. "When I listened to that boy leaning on his crutch I wanted to go. The other old souk rather puzzled it, though."

"Gosh! I liked him," said Keith, grinning; "he told us some of the richest stories I ever heard."

"I couldn't stand him and his stories," Jack said with warmth, "he's the sort that makes war, he loves it, you can see that—but you'll notice he will never do any of the fighting. It looks as if the thing had to be finished up now that we are in it."

Keith was watching Jack closely, even though he was so busy keeping his pipe going. "I'll certainly look after your interests, Jack, if you want to go. I'll file for you on everything I get while you're gone, and I've got to get right after the potassium deposits and the oil as soon as I get the gold clinched."

"I know you would," said Jack gratefully, "I am not thinking about that."

"And I'll do my best to locate the Helmi girl and see that she has plenty."

Jack remembered Helmi's outbreak of rage when Keith's name was mentioned, and hastened to say, "I hope I'll find her before I go."

He, gradually, the thought of relating took shape in Jack's mind. It was with him when he stepped into the white bath-tub and enjoyed the luxury it afforded, with its shining appointments, snowy towels, foaming soap. But he couldn't forget what Private Crowe had told about the dirt, the mud, the lice, the scratchy underwear. He was glad to think of the wealth coming to him from the gold mine, for he craved all the luxuries of life, and he wanted to be able to give them to other people. He loved white sheets, smooth and satiny, and beautiful rugs with deep rich colorings, music, pictures, but especially did he want those things for Helmi who had such a love for beauty.

No matter where Jack's thoughts began they would soon come back to Helmi. He wondered if she had got the two hundred dollars all right. At first he had thought that he would send her it when they were outfitting at Prove River, but Keith said no—he could send them there were all right. He had even written out an order for a friend of Keith's who offered to advance the money and get it when he went to Eagle Mines What had he done with that order? Yes, he remembered Keith got it back from his friend and destroyed it.

The first day Jack was in the city he made a thorough search of all the chinese places, but without result. When he came to Sam's he was met by the lady proprietor, who had learned in a hard school that it is foolish to give information Sam could lay down all his knowledge of English in a fraction of a second. "I not know," all at once became his entire English vocabulary.

NEGLECTED ANAEMIA

Often Leads To the Most Serious Consequences

In no disorder is delay or neglect more dangerous than in anaemia. Usually the first noticeable signs are pale lips and cheeks, dark rims under the eyes and a feeling of weakness. Then follow headaches, backache, palpitation and breathlessness. The only way that anaemia can be overcome is to enrich the blood, and it is because of their wonderful blood-enriching and blood-making properties that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have won such great success in the treatment of the often most stubborn disease.

Thousands of young girls who were in an anaemic condition owe their present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. One of these, Miss Katie McEachern, Port Hood, N.S., says: "I was in the day I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not been feeling well for some time. I was very pale, had severe headaches, dizzy spells, and occasional fainting spells. The least exertion would leave me tired and breathless. In this condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I continued their use until I had taken six boxes, by which time I was again enjoying good health. I hope my experience will lead other sufferers to give this medicine a fair trial."

If you are at all run-down, or weak, you should begin at once to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon be well and strong. These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Teeth and Health

Issued By The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council and Published By The Canadian Dental Society

DENTAL HEALTH FOLLIES

"Sugar and spice and everything nice" may be what little girls are made of, but certainly such a diet would never build strong, healthy little girls and boys.

With the child properly started on the road to health, through the mother's careful dietary habits, there must be no slacking in this regard, if it is to continue safely along the way.

Proper diet from the nursing period up through adolescence has much to do with teeth and health. It is now that nutrition plays the chief role in the formation of healthy tooth tissue or in their early degeneration and decay. But hand in hand with this must go the maintenance of cleanliness through training the child in the best and most thorough mouth hygiene

The notion that the deciduous teeth being replaced by successors can therefore be allowed to go without the care necessary to keep them sound and comfortable is most mischievous. Too early loss of these little teeth from any cause, leads to disturbances of the permanent dentition with consequent general disorders.

It would be better for the young child not to know the taste of candy at all, than thereby avoiding their craving at this early age when they may be started on the road to dental ruin. Preferably the first visit should be made before there are any cavities in order to establish the confidence of the young child in these services. Much of the dread of dental treatment, with its consequent neglect of mouth conditions among adults has arisen through recollection of a painful first visit during the tender years.

It may be further noted that the responsibility to teeth decay is greatest in youth, most cavities appearing before the twenty-fifth year; and that the period of adolescence and beyond, with its rapid bone and tissue growth, marks the high-water mark of dental decay; due to the rapid physical changes demanding a liberated calcium supply present in the diet. Early and frequent visits to the dentists for semi-annual dental examinations are the three pillars of dental health.

Ocean Ships For the Great Lakes

Transp Steamers From Europe Passing Their Way Into the Lakes

One indication that if the St. Lawrence canals were deepened, sea-going freighters would come up to the ports on the great lakes is that they is already done by tramp steamers which are able to go through the shallow St. Lawrence canals. A German freighter from Hamburg is now lying at the docks of Detroit taking on a cargo of motor-cars which it will unload at Barcelona, Spain. For years past an occasional small tramp steamer has pushed its way into the great lakes in search of a grain cargo. If these things happen with 14-foot canals it is a safe prediction that a 27-foot channel would bring whole fleets of tramps to the lake ports. The tramp steamer will go where there is trade if it is possible to get there.—Manitoba Free Press.

Over Fifty Minerals Being Produced

A notable feature of the program of the Dominion as a mining country is the diversity of lines along which Canadian mining has advanced. Some fifty mineral substances, metallic and non-metallic, are listed in the production figures for 1926, and this number includes a variety such as nickel, cobalt, asbestos, gold, lead, silver, copper, and zinc, in which Canada either leads world production or ranks among the greater producing nations.

Cardinal Newman On Style

To Produce Good Literature Put Your Thoughts Into the Simplest and Cleanest Dress Possible

"I have no style," wrote Cardinal Newman. "All my life I have tried to think out clearly what I know, what I see, what I feel, and to put it into the simplest and clearest words. That is all my style. To produce literature you must first of all know what you are writing about; write in as simple words as you can; cut out the purple patches. Be sincere without being dull; grip the subject before you; feel it, and translate it into the best words our fathers have handed down to us"

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CLOVER BAR, No. 517

The council of the Municipal District of Clover Bar, No. 517, held regular monthly meeting on Saturday, June 9.

Mr. Cholouski was granted leave of absence for three months to allow him to take a trip to Poland.

Mr. Keith was given authority to make an agreement with the Canadian National railways regarding the crossing between sections 7 and 8-53-25-4 in order to eliminate the present deviation in section 8.

Messrs Fred McCalla, Roy Schroder and Clyde Reynolds were appointed as a committee in charge of the Brunner recreation grounds.

The application of the Canadian Pacific railway company for the approval of the Municipal District for highway crossings through the district on their Willingdon to Strathcona branch line was approved.

Mr. J. W. Doss, A.L.S., was instructed to make a survey of the proposed road through section 7-54-22-4.

Mr. D. Bard, road engineer, department of public works, was in attendance to discuss the question as to where the government grant is to be spent during the present season.

J. Robinson was awarded the contract of constructing the Yorkville ditch cutoff. The awarding of the contract for the work of cutting down Sherry Hill was left in the hands of Mr. Keith.

The Non-poisonous weed killer is now on hand. Small quantities for experimental purposes may be obtained from the local councillor. The council wishes to advise that anyone wishing to obtain this in larger quantities should send in their order to the Municipal office within the next ten days, when it will be procured for them at cost.

With the passing of paysheets and accounts and the reading of correspondence the meeting adjourned at eight o'clock.

BASEBALL

The only league game of the new schedule played up to going to press was the one of June 11, when Nadlac defeated Gibbons 18—2. The Fort Saskatchewan—Ardrossan game was postponed on account of rain and will be played at a later date.

A fast aggregation of ball players belonged to be the Journal team but which it is surmised was thrown with a view to win the game willy-nilly neat the local boys on the Fort diamond this evening and a snappy game resulted. The first man to bat for the Fort, "Red," of the Chevrolet showrooms, knocked a beautiful homer and inspired his team mates to play up to that class of ball with the result that at the end of the ninth the score stood at 3—3. A tenth inning was played, the Journal batting first and achieving a duck egg. "Red" for the Fort cracked out a two-bagger and Val Berg followed with a home run but was nipped at the plate. However, "Red" had crossed the plate some time before Val reached that point and the game was won with that run. Bert Robinson, the Chevrolet man, umpired the game in fine style. There was only a slim crowd present and it is disappointing to the boys. They deserve support and are playing ball which warrants encouragement from their townsfolk.

GOOD PRICES PAID AT LACOMBE BULL SALE

Very satisfactory prices were secured by the contributors of the 56 animals disposed of at the Lacombe annual bull sale on June 1. The Aberdeen Angus sales averaged $126.76; the Herefords, $173.55 and the Shorthorns, $146.15, with a grand average of $146.06.

East Is Coming West

The recently announced decision of the General Motors Corporation of Canada to proceed immediately with the erection of a million 'dollar manufacturing and assembly plant at Regina is gratifying news, not alone to the citizens of the capital city of Saskatchewan, but to all Westerners, because it indicates that at long last the leaders of industry in the East have come to a realization of the fact that they cannot continue indefinitely to supply the rapidly growing western market from factories located thousands of miles away, and compelling the western purchaser to pay greatly enhanced prices by reason of freight charges based upon the high classification imposed upon finished articles.

Western people have contended for some time now that the logical industrial development in Canada is the establishment of branch factories in the West. There was a time, not more than a couple of decades ago, when the view prevailed that the western market could be supplied not only from Eastern factories, but from Eastern wholesale houses. Gradually, as western population grew and the volume of business increased, branch wholesale houses were opened in Winnipeg, and since they have gradually spread all over the West, until today wholesale establishments located in all the larger western centres of population very largely supply western needs.

The same development which thus characterized the business of wholesaling and distribution must inevitably now follow in the work of manufacturing. Freight charges on the transportation of necessary raw materials into the West will be substantially lower than charges on the finished products, while the opening of western factories may, and in all probability will, encourage the production for use of certain raw products of the West which today lie undeveloped because of a lack of market.

The decision to locate branch industries in the West is furthermore pleasing to Western people because it indicates recognition by Eastern industrial leaders of the fact that, if they are to command the confidence and sympathy of the West, and if past lines of separation between east and west are to be wiped out, and a new national viewpoint developed, the East cannot continue to merely accept the cream of western trade and profits in years of good crops and times of plenty, but must come west and throw in their lot more whole-heartedly with the people here and, while benefitting in years of abounding prosperity, also carry their share of the burden in years of slim crops and business depression.

With wonderful activity prevailing in the work of prospecting and developing the immense mineral areas of the northern portions of the three provinces, with large schemes of power development now receiving attention, and with the new, larger, more national viewpoint gaining headway among the financiers and industrial leaders of the East, there is every reason for saying that a new era in the history of Western Canada is opening.

While the West will long continue to excel as an agricultural country, and will steadily expand its annual production from its rich prairie lands, it seems safe to predict that from this time onward industrial development will move along in keeping with the agricultural growth and mineral development of the country.

Such development offers the best and most practical solution of one of the West's big problems, namely, the unemployment difficulty which annually presents itself because of the seasonal nature of the basic industry of this country. In this connection it is pointed out that the "peak" load of production in Regina's new industry will be in the late winter and early spring months, before active outdoor building operations, railway construction and road making gets under way, and when under present conditions unemployment is at its maximum.

Viewed from all standpoints, therefore, the whole West can unite in welcoming the momentous decision of one of Canada's greatest industrial concerns to establish a large branch plant in the heart of the prairie west. Its action will be but the forerunner of many similar decisions by other large manufacturers, and a resultant development from which every Western centre, and every Western citizen, will benefit.

Air Patrol On Hudson Straits

Straits Open For Navigation Much Earlier Than Ever Friends Of Scott Anticipate

Flying operations have been resumed in Hudson Straits, and reports from the air bases reveal that the ice has already cleared out of the eastern end of the channel and is broken up in the centre and western sections. It is the opinion of the airmen and marine officials stationed in the straits that an ice breaker could open a channel right through the straits at present. No ice breaker is available, but the department announces that a vessel of this type will be available before next spring.

The time when the straits will become easily navigable is as yet doubtful, but it is quite clear that ice conditions are not nearly as heavy a handicap as has always been supposed and that the straits will be open much earlier than even the friends of the route anticipated.

"Modernize" Your Farm This Modern Way

Nearly every building on the farm can be greatly improved and "modernized" by Gyproc.

This famous wallboard is recommended by leading contractors for both new and old construction because it gives advantages offered by no other material—fire-safety, rigid strength, economy and cold and heat resistance.

All these vital advantages! And you get them for nothing—because Gyproc costs no more than products that have none of Gyproc's remarkable qualities.

Gyproc makes durable, permanent walls and ceilings in less time and at less cost. Gyproc Joint Filler on the joints assures a smooth, flat surface which takes any decoration—particularly suitable for Alabastine.

GYPROC Advantages for Farm Buildings

Easy to use.
Low cost.
Workable as lumber.
Cannot warp, bulge, crack, shrink or burn.
Takes any decoration.
Resists heat and cold.
Vermin proof.
Eliminates repairs.
Protects your stock.
Ideal for living quarters, poultry houses, garages, grain bins and other farm buildings.
Easily installed by farmers or handymen with ordinary tools.

Prediction Is Made That Canada Will Eventually Produce A Billion Bushels of Wheat a Year

A few days ago Hon. T. A. Crerar, former Federal Minister of Agriculture, made the prediction that Canada would eventually produce a billion bushels of wheat a year and find a market for it. At first sight, says The Globe, this appears to be a tremendous volume, but is in reality not much more than ideas the crop produced by the Dominion at the present time. Since approximately 94 per cent. of the wheat crop of Canada is raised in the Prairie provinces this territory would presumably be looked to for the attainment of this figure. This raises the question of the potentiality in agricultural development of the Prairie provinces, and it may be mentioned that in the past quarter of a century the wheat production of this area has increased nearly twenty-fold.

At the time of the 1921 census, but 60.3 per cent. of the possible farm land in Manitoba was occupied; 47.1 per cent. in Saskatchewan, and 29.2 per cent. in Alberta. These proportions have not altered drastically since, as new settlement for the most part has been directed to established communities. In a consideration that it is only about 50 years since the first homestead was filed upon in the area, and the first quarter of Canadian Pacific Railway land sold, the transformation that has been made is remarkable, and presages the development of the next quarter of a century with a magnitude undreamed of. Affected in all conditions affecting colonization.

When it comes of the Prairie provinces was taken in 1926, it was found that there were 268,168 occupied farms in the territory, 53,351 being in Manitoba, 117,787 in Saskatchewan, and 77,130 in Alberta. The total area occupied by farms was 85,-929,062 acres, which makes the extent of the average farm throughout the territory approximately 350 acres. These farms, which half a century ago or so were unsettled and unproductive, the buffalo ranging over them and the Indian pitching his teepee there, given away or sold at substantial figures, have a high value by reason of their productiveness. Occupied farm lands in the Prairie provinces are the cheapest of their kind in the world, being valued at $27 per acre in Manitoba, $36 per acre in Saskatchewan, and $38 in Alberta. Yet at these low figures occupied farm land in Manitoba has a total value of $309,313,-119; Saskatchewan, $1,184,770,080; and Alberta, $980,643,060. In considering the scope of expansion it is to be noted, too, that, according to the 1926 census figures, but 58 per cent. of the acreage of occupied farms has yet been improved.

Already the revenue going in farms in the area is tremendous. This has been particularly true of the past few years of fine crops, and good prices, which have placed the farmers of that territory in a very enviable position. Field crops alone, which account for about 85 per cent. of the agricultural revenue of that territory, returned in 1927 the sum of $464,687,-300, Manitoba receiving $83,280,000; Saskatchewan, $309,084,400; and Alberta, $272,743,300. This would indicate that the total agricultural revenue of the territory was in the neighborhood of $350,000,000

Grain Shipment From North

Marked Increase Over Alberta Lines Shown In Last Report

A goodly volume of grain is still trickling out of the northern part of the Alberta government railways, according to the latest figures furnished by officials of the lines. The period covered by the latest report in from August 1, 1927, to May 14, 1928. For the purposes of comparison, figures for a similar period of the previous crop season are also appended.

Over the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway; Peace River Central Canada railways, a total of 9,784,747 bushels of grain has been handled south, as compared with the 439,002 bushels for the same period of the preceding year.

The Alberta and Great Waterways railway has a total of 1,305,574 bushels hauled out, with a total of 446,-429 bushels for the same period of the previous crop season.

Tyne Workmen Going To Singapore On Floating Dock

On a great floating dock, built for the naval base at Singapore by Swan, Hunter, and Wigham Richardson, Ltd., in ten months, a number of Tyne workmen have embarked on a hazardous voyage from the Tyne to Singapore. The dock, which was inspected at Wallsend by Admiralty officials and engineering experts, is 985 feet long, one of the largest in the world. Three and a half million rivets were used in its construction. It was reduced to sections, which will be towed across, 8,500 miles of ocean. The voyage will take four months, provided no storms are encountered. Only at certain periods will it be possible to be the passage through the Suez Canals. There will be a margin of only two or three feet of water between either side of the dock and the embankment. The greatest navigating skill will have to be exercised as the slightest deviation from the course will spell disaster.

White-hot steel can split icebergs into harmless fragments and break up bags too large along the North Atlantic steamer route, says Howard T. Barnes, professor of physics in McGill University, Montreal, in a research report to the Engineering Foundation.

Since 1893, Professor Barnes has been making scientific investigations of the physical properties of ice and practical methods of controlling it. The energy from molten steel, he shows, supplies rays that equal or surpass those of the sun in power to penetrate ice.

"For a reasonable expenditure the menace of icebergs can be removed from the North Atlantic steamer route," the scientist asserts. Farmers' Marketing Tour

Before entertaining to lunch Mr March gave a very informative and comparative talk on the British farm industry, illustrating his remarks with a number of slides from many different countries, and special tests arranged for the purpose.

From the March and Ongar railway proceeded direct to Birmingham, where we were received by the Lord Mayor, Alderman A. E. James, C.B.E., J.P., after which a motor tour through the magnificent City Hall and shopping scene of Birmingham was given. In the evening we saw a charming musical comedy "Up with the Lark," a blend of the modern and in the house having been received by the Sunday was spent quietly in Birmingham, every itinerary including a motor tour of the environs of the city and a talk on Canada by Mr. J. Mugent Harris, of London. Mr. Harris had lived for some years in Canada, and like many that country whose all through his delightful address, which was given under the most remarkable selection of Scottish airs. On Monday morning, after a brief tour of the Birmingham Market, we occupied by the Kenilworth motor, one of the most extensive baronial ruins in England, Kenilworth dates from 1120 and was founded by John by Queen Elizabeth to her favorite, Robert Dudley, who was to be entertain her there in magnificent style. Our next stop was Warwick Warwick Castle, described as the "most princely seat in the kingdom," is still occupied by the Warwick family, occupied by the Warwick in a fine old country town with winding streets and many ancient buildings. The castle, which was visited by some of our party, dominates the town. The earliest building dates from the 12th century, although the present castle is 18th century.

Shakespeare's country is a few miles from Warwick. The house in which Shakespeare was born remains little altered, and wandering through the rooms we saw the walls still ceiling the signatures of many famous visitors to the house, Scott, Tennyson, Thackeray and Browning. The village of Shottery Hathaway is about a mile away. It was a delight to visit this beautiful and well preserved old home, the property of the nation. The cottage contains much of the old furniture and relics of the old Stiings. We also visited Holy Trinity Church, where the yew trees on the bank of the Avon. Here Shakespeare is buried and his wife and the grave of his wife. The font at which Shakespeare was christened is still to be seen in the church and the parish register, containing a record of his birth on April 23rd, 1564, and of his death on April 26th, 1616, is also preserved.

Our stay at Oxford was short, but we were fortunate in being able to stroll through the grounds of one of the colleges and in seeing the memorial to the port-holders. The stately, beautifully wrought in marble; shows the dress and port of the gentry as he was found after having been washed up by the sea. Mr. Harris drew up his stark realism created a sensation.

Our next stop was at Windsor Castle, which is still occupied by the Royal Family. Here we were privileged in seeing the Queen Mary's Dolls' House, a magnificence of which words fail to describe.

The castle overlooks the River Thames and has been the place of residence of England's Royal Families. Here James I., of Scotland, Henry John, of France, King Duncid, of Scotland, were held prisoners, and it was in one of the towers that I saw from his prison Joan Beaufort, his future wife.

We visited the castle in which reposes the remains of Henry VIII., Charles I., Jane Seymour, Nelson, and Edward VII. Queen Victoria and her daughter, Princess Alice, are buried in Frogmore Mausoleum which lies in the grounds adjoining the castle.

Home Window Castle is Eton College, which was founded by Henry VI., in 1440.

From Windsor we proceeded to the King's farm, in Windsor, over the buildings by Mr. Murray Cowcher, the manager. Mr. Cowcher paraded some of the King's Hereford's and showed us fine examples of Devon and Jersey breeds. The Royal Farm is 1,300 acres in extent. During the luncheon hours entertainment is a delightful tea in the Royal Dairy.

This was our last stop before London. After a delightful run over fever heat as we proceeded down the magnificent paved road which leads from Windsor to the Metropole. Night was falling as we entered our way through the steadily increasing traffic of the Double Arch lanes with which we were to become more familiar in London, began to make their appearance as we reached the outskirts of Greater London. At last after passing many unbroken miles of buildings, we found ourselves in Oxford Street, then Regent Street, and finally to our hotel, the "Regent Palace" just off Piccadilly Circus in the very heart of the West End.

We were tired and early on our first day in London, for we had seven engagements facing us, including the reception by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Our first trip was to Covent Garden, once the garden and burial ground of monks but now London's greatest distributing centre for fruit and vegetables. Here we were given our first inkling of the enormous consuming power of the people of Greater London in one town before us one day's supply from one vegetables for a population equal to Canada. It was easy to believe that one province of Spain sent over 6,000,000 cases of oranges to this great market and a great pleasure to learn that some varieties of Canadian apples had won a leading place in public favor.

Our next engagement was to visit the Cheapside Street offices of the Canadian National Railways, where we were cordially received by Mr. C. J. Smith the European Vice President, together with his department chiefs. The run of this fine building, owned by the C.N.R., was given to us, and we had the pleasure of seeing the latest copies of Canadian papers, an interesting feature of the fine offices which house a busy staff of some one hundred people, is a complete C.N.R. rail fit-up by Frank Brangwyn, R.I.A.

No Red With Asthma. Asthma usually attacks at night the victim when rest is needed most. Here's the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the fear of death and other evils that must be expected unless relief is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved its merits through years of service. A trial will surely convince you.

Wool Prospects Good

Substantial Increase In Export Of Wool From Canada

A very substantial increase is to be noted in the export of wool from Canada for the last fiscal year. This increased from 5,223,981 lbs. worth $1,538,060 the year before, to 10,101,-101 lbs., worth $3,160,962.

According to the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Limited, wool prospects are very good with the condition of the new wool bright and the shrinkage average. Foreign market conditions are also reported excellent.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

SCALLOPED BANANAS

Pour over layers of well-seasoned meat, fish or vegetable enough medium cream sauce to cover. Sprinkle well with buttered crumbs and bake until brown. When combined with stewed chicken and potato or macaroni, use thin cream sauce. Medium cream sauce calls for 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons flour, and 2 tablespoons butter. Thin cream calls for 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour and 1 tablespoon butter.

ORANGE STRAWBERRIES

1 box strawberries.
Juice 2 oranges.
½ cup sugar.
½ cup heavy cream.
2 tablespoons powdered sugar.
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Wash and hull strawberries, cover with orange juice, mixed with one cup sugar, and chill thoroughly. Serve in champagne glasses. Beat the cream until stiff. Add powdered sugar and vanilla, and, with the pastry-bag and tube, pipe a border around each glass.

Travelling Clinic in Alberta

Visiting Sparsely Settled Districts Where Medical Services Are Hard To Obtain

During the month of May, a travelling clinic, with two doctors, a dentist and three nurses, is touring through the northern sections of Alberta. The travelling clinic is a new phase of public health work, developed to cope with conditions in sparsely-settled districts where medical and dental services are difficult to obtain. Where there are doctors or dentists, the clinic co-operates with them. It does educational work, examinations and, in special cases, minor operations.

THE CRUCIFIXION

Golden Text: "God commendeth His own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Romans 5:8.

Lesson Mark 15:16-47

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53:7-12.

Explanations and Comments

The Crucifixion, verses 22-27. — They led Jesus away to be crucified, going outside the city, as was the Jewish usage (Acts 7:58). In Golgotha (Golgotha means "the place of a skull") we call the spot Calvary, from the Latin word calvaria, skull. It was customary to give one about to be crucified a stupefying drink, and they offered such to Jesus, which mingled with myrrh, but He refused it. Matthew says He tasted it and then refused it. Jesus regarded the suffering, before Him as part of the cup which the Father had given him to drink, and He would drink it to the dregs.

The garments of the crucified the soldiers, shoes, outer garment, girdle and scantling mat. rule were the perquisites of the executioners, and the soldiers cast lots to see what each should have.

There have been many like these soldiers, unconscious of the sinful tragedy, save by what they could get out of it. In the Great War, when mothers gave their sons, wives their husbands, and men themselves, and the nation poured out its money in a passion of service, the profiteer thought only of his own greed. He had no call to service; he was content to get rich. He got rich, but his wealth is blood money."—Joseph Fort Newton.

Love. In the third hour, nine o'clock in the morning, when they crucified Him. The accusation placed above Him on the cross was "The King of Canada in this form: "The charge of which Jesus had been guilty, and by this inscription he sought to annoy the Jews, who, as he expected, considered it an insult to themselves, John 19:21-22. This was the accusation written in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek (John 19:19, 20), the languages spoken at this time throughout the civilized world.

On either side of Jesus a thief was crucified. Christians was terrible and disgraceful enough in itself, but it did not stop Him. His cross with nothing near him to disturb the impression of His calm serenity and love in dying. It will stop sloughing that carry away the proud flesh, draw out the pus and prepare a clean way for the new skin It is a recognized healer among men and numbers of people testify that it healed where physicians failed.

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation which parents have caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated rag doll for amusement, for parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Loading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. Those are many imitations.

CONSUMERS OF BRITAIN HAVE NO FEAR OF POOL

Regina. At the international Pool Conference held here, a message of goodwill was brought by the delegates from the British Isles.

Four distinguished visitors from England and Scotland told the conference of the desire of hundreds of thousands of co-operative consumers in the Old Land to remove the barrier that appears to exist as between the two classes of co-operatives and each work for the other in complete confidence with the one object in view — the creation of a truly co-operative body composed of both producer and consumer.

A. W. Golightly, representing the English Co-operative Consumers' Organization, broke the ice on the question and told of the suspicion with which the creation of the wheat pools of Canada was viewed at the start. The Rochdale co-operatives, he said, had had bitter experiences in the last few years with trusts and combines, and the formation of the wheat pools had first appeared to them as a trust in Canada by improving the overseas medical inspection system and the granting of assistance to the Canadian co-operatives similar to that given by the British authorities to British evaporated fruit growers. The report Roberts of the Canadian pools pronounced the railway rates are also advocated.

Reindeer For Northern Canada

Would Supply Food For Eskimo Bands In Northern Areas

Ottawa. Importation of herds of reindeer into the Mackenzie basin with the object of supplying food for the Eskimo bands which inhabit this remote part of Canada is being undertaken by the government.

In the House of Commons, when estimates of the department of Indian Affairs were under consideration, Dr. Bruce Northern Inverness, M.P., in charge of the department, told of privation which had been suffered by the Eskimos in the Arctic regions and which were being made to eliminate it.

Mr. Stewart also informed the House that the department was making some trouble providing relief for halfbreed children in the territories, and declared something must be done, in co-operation with provincial governments, to provide hunting grounds outside the settlements, as, if placed in competition with white men the Indian would starve to death.

Conducting Aurora Search For Fliers

Quebec Man Believes Nungesser and Coli Landed in Labrador

Quebec. That he was morally convinced that Lieut. Nungesser and Capt. Coli had landed with their monoplane, White Bird, somewhere in the Labrador country and that he had the intention of conducting a search party this summer in that region with the statement made here by Dr. Louis Cuisinier, Dr. Cuisinier has returned from Greenly Island, where he had gone to the rescue of the stranded crew of the Bremen. Dr. Cuisinier said that the search party would be sent in specially equipped aeroplanes.

Many Nations Represented

Toronto.—It is expected that 65 nations will be represented in Toronto when the Baptist World Alliance holds its fourth congress here, June 24 to 29. 7,000 delegates are expected, representing some 12,000,000 baptists throughout the world. The roll call of nations on the 25th June 25, probably will be the most picturesque session.

Change In Approved

Toronto. Reorganization of the Canadian Dental Association with provision of an executive body in which all provinces will have representation, was approved at the annual convention. Dr. J. W. Clay, of Calgary, president, stated the change would make for a strong national body.

No Evidence Of Grafting

Immigration Inquiry Report Exonerates Members Of Parliament

Ottawa. The parliamentary board-aviation inquiry report was tabled in the House of Commons. The document contains little of a drastic nature, but thirteen recommendations for the improvement of Canadian immigration activities in Canada.

Evidence in detail respecting the organization of the department of immigration was heard at thirty-six meetings of the special committee which conducted the inquiry. All phases of the department's immigration and colonization work carried on both separately and in connection with governmental and voluntary organizations were examined into and the testimony of a long list of witnesses was received.

Add M. J. Coldwell, Regina, who made charges last summer that members of Parliament had trafficked in land concessions in Canada by improving the overseas medical inspection system and the granting of assistance to the Canadian co-operatives similar to that given by the British authorities to British evaporated fruit growers. The report Roberts of the Canadian pools pronounced the railway rates are also advocated.

Pass Estimates For Defence Department

Amendment Presented To House On Cadet Training Is Defeated

Ottawa. When estimates of the Department of National Defence were before the House of Commons, Miss Agnes MacPhail, Progressive, Southeast Grey, moved that a vote of $500,000 for cadet service be reduced to $1. Miss MacPhail's amendment was declared lost and the item read as carried.

During the debate, Miss MacPhail asked Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, how he accounted for the fact that his department was the only one which "interfered" with education which was under provincial jurisdiction.

To this the minister replied that no training was carried out without the consent of the provincial governments. No teacher was compelled to take cadet training nor were any of the schools under compulsion to do so. He declared the strongest advocates of peace were those who had done their share in military training in their youth.

Included in the votes were $2,818,-000 for the non-permanent militia, $4,950,000 for the permanent force, $2,735,000 for the naval services; $1,-000,000 for the Royal Canadian Air Force, and $3,190,000 for civil air operations.

May Hold Exhibition Of Canadian Goods

Plan For Publicity Campaign In Britain Being Discussed

London.—Canadian products should receive very well known in Britain if Parmalee's scheme successful Exhibitions of Canadian products are going to be held on the near future at Birmingham, Aberdeen, Belfast Manchester, Glasgow, Dublin, Leeds, and Bristol, and a striking publicity campaign will be put into operation. A permanent staff, composed entirely of Canadians, will be created in London so as to be ready at any moment to run exhibition campaigns on behalf of Canadian products. Canadian artistes will design the stalling and posters.

Parmalee is staying two months in order to perfect his scheme, which has been welcomed by trading authorities and the British government as a noteworthy enterprise.

Request For Railway Cars

None Available And Five Shipments Accumulating At Prince Rupert

Ottawa.—A request for railway cars to carry an accumulation of halibut from Prince Rupert, B.C., to the Eastern markets was made in the House of Commons by J. C. Brady, Conservative, Skeena.

Within the last few days 490,000 pounds of halibut have been brought to Prince Rupert ready for market, but only three cars were available and these had been secured by U.S. shippers. He asked the Minister of Railways to take some action to relieve the Canadian shippers to obtain cars.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, promised assistance.

Universities Enrol Dr. Laing

Montreal. Dr. G. H. Laing, dean of the faculty of arts of the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, has been appointed to the staff of the Conservatory of Canadian Universities at a session of the conference.

PRESENTED AT COURT

Miss Ruth Draper, the American actress, caused a stir in English society when she was presented at court. In the past the understanding has been that it was useless for any actress to seek presentation while she was still actively engaged in her profession, but court officials have pointed out that the general ban on stage folks has been a dead letter since the days of Queen Victoria.

Agree On Peace Pact

No Difference Of Opinion Between Canada and Britain

Ottawa.—There is no conflict of opinion between the Prime Ministers of Canada and His Austen Chamberlain British Foreign Secretary with regard to the proposed Kellogg treaty for outlawing war.

This was made clear by Premier Mackenzie King in the House of Commons, when he replied to a question put by R. J. Garland, U.F.A., Bow River, who will know in Britain if Parmalee's scheme succeeds Exhibitions of Canadian products are going to be held on the near future at Birmingham, Aberdeen, Belfast Manchester, Glasgow, Dublin, Leeds, and Bristol, and a striking publicity campaign will be put into operation. A permanent staff, composed entirely of Canadians, will be created in London so as to be ready at any moment to run exhibition campaigns on behalf of Canadian products. Canadian artistes will design the stalling and posters.

Parmalee is staying two months in order to perfect his scheme, which has been welcomed by trading authorities and the British government as a noteworthy enterprise.

Burial Of Hon. C. W. Cross

Edmonton.—With every manifestation of sorrow and respect, the body of the late Charles W. Cross, K.C., first attorney-general of Alberta, and since 1905 prominent in public life in the province, was laid to rest here. The crown, the province, the city, the bench and bar, the various law learned professions, and men who are leaders in many diverse activities united in the last tribute. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dr. D. G. McQueen, pioneer Edmonton pastor.

Grant For Health Department

Ottawa For the Federal Health Department, $857,740 has been granted by the House of Commons. The votes included $1,000 for administration of food and drug acts; $250,000 for quarantine, and $100,000 for venereal disease.

PROTEIN CONTENT BEST BASIS FOR GRADING WHEAT

Ottawa. The proposal that the protein content be made the basis on which wheat be graded was dealt with by the committee on agriculture in its report submitted to the House.

It came to the conclusion that the nearest approach to an ideal index of the baking strength of wheat was by determining the variety and quantity of protein, the latter to be ascertained by chemical test. At present the baking strength is determined on the variety and percentage of hard by-nuts.

The report stated that so far no expert trade was concerned there was not sufficient evidence as to the effect of the proposed changes from the present system of grading to that of the protein test to warrant a recommendation that it be made, but did recommend that a full inquiry into that phase of the question be made.

The committee also urged that seed wheat should be encouraged to collect and distribute seed of approved varieties; that an experimental flour mill be established and that inspectors be stationed at all transfer points between the Head of the Lakes and the seaboard in order to prevent mixing of wheat.

The changes, if carried out, would necessitate amendments to the Canada Grain Act.

The resolution states that in Canada, Great Britain and the U.S., and probably most other countries consuming Canadian wheat, baking strength was an important factor in deciding its value, and that protein means the quantity and quality of protein.

Except in the case of Durum wheat, at present graded in a class by itself, and possibly one or two other varieties grown in relatively small quantities, the grades of contract grades could be assumed to be good quality.

Cost of making protein tests should be from 50 to 75 cents, which would not be a serious difficulty notwithstanding the fact that laboratories would have to be installed at all inspection points. The committee suggested that data be obtained as to the cost of installing said mechanical laboratories. Individual tests would require about two hours. A large number of tests could be conducted simultaneously and there would be no delay in testing and dispatching cars to terminal points.

The evidence proposed in the resolution could be put into effect immediately as carlot shipments were concerned but the committee was not satisfied that wheat sold locally in wagon loads could take advantage of the protein test. The practice of Kansas City wheat pool members, whereby farmers and elevators forwarded supplies jointly to laboratories, pointed a way to solution of the local wheat problem and should be investigated.

Introduction of protein as a factor in wheat grading would be an incentive to grow the best milling varieties.

According to L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist, and in the opinion of the agriculture committee, those grades are classed as Manitoba Early Red Fife, Marquis, Ruby, Red Bobs, Selections, Renfrew, Kitchener, Garnet and Reward.

The cereal division of the Federal Department of Agriculture and provincial governments should continue efforts to zone Canada's wheat area with a view as to varieties most likely to prove satisfactory in each case.

The committee approved the resolution that Garnet Wheat, hitherto excluded from No. 1 Northern, should be eligible for that grade.

Brandon Go-s Wet

Brandon, Man. Brandon, noted prohibitionist centre of the province, went "wet" when the electors voted in favor of the opening of beer parlors in the city. The vote was "For," 3,-214; "Against," 1,951, a majority of 1,263.

The tourist who takes his automobile to Europe with him, was now encouraged to have it ready for him at the time he lands, with the tank filled and the licenses procured.

DEPARTMENT OPPOSES INTRODUCTION OF CHESTER WHITE HOGS

Further active moves have been taken by the Department of Agriculture to check the activities of salesmen representing the Central United States Swine company who have been taking orders for Chester White swine and boars in various sections of the province.

Officials of the Department have been busy in a number of districts advising farmers to have nothing to do with the contract offered them by these salesmen. The proposition, which at first sight appears attractive, proves on investigation to be very unsound from the standpoint of the farmer and information secured by the Department shows that farmers in a number of sections of the United States suffered heavy losses by becoming involved in similar schemes. The Breeders' Association has completed the warning being issued by the Department by advising local band managers throughout the province of the unsoundness of this scheme.

WHEAT POOL NEWS BULLETIN

Members have until June 15th to send in their nomination for delegates. Nomination blanks are to the membership lists which recently were sent out. Each nomination to be valid must have the name of ten Wheat Pool members on it. Non-sub-district as nominee. See to it that the man you want is properly nominated. Don't be content this matter and then when it is too late complain about matters. The selection of delegates is a very important matter. The delegates are your representatives on the Pool organization. Their authority is supreme when it comes to a decision on Pool policies.

ALBERTA SCHOOL WEEK

An "Alberta School Week" is planned to arouse the public to greater appreciation of the work and organization of the schools and to stimulate a spirit of co-operation by public, parents, and school workers in the matter of education, according to a decision of the Educational Committee of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance.

All publicity is to be of a non-controversial character and it is planned to enlist the co-operation of press throughout the province, in the form of educational news day by day throughout the week, dealing with local or general educational topics and special articles by school inspectors and local teachers. Special sermons on education will feature the Sunday services in the churches on the same day of the week; there will be a rally of parent-teacher associations or federations as well as special addresses by teacher speakers at service clubs and similar organizations. It is expected that all parties and organizations interested in education, including the Department of Education and the Alberta Trustees' Association and local school boards may be enlisted in the endeavor, and in the schools themselves special programs, community singing and exercises by pupils and addresses by prominent citizens on the value of education will be featured.

The date tentatively planned by the committee is October 1 to 7.

The Educational Committee is representative of every section of the province and it includes every member of the Provincial Executive of the A.T. Alliance and the following in addition: W. L. Irvine, Ogen; F. Spankman, Calgary; H. C. Hoyland and Miss Mary Crawford of Edmonton; P. L. F. Bishop, Medicine Hat; R. E. Hinton, Cardston; J. Wash, Banff; A. J. H. CHAPTER XXV. Continued.

Sam had been in our law courts. He had listened to many learned friends disagreeing with other learned friends, and he had become somewhat of a learned friend himself. He had one rule, which nothing on earth could shake, namely, that everything remember you were not there when it happened." So, when a well-dressed young man came to the writing for a Finnish girl with red hair Sam knew nothing. In Sam's limited sphere the relation between men and women were elemental and simple. Maybe the police wanted his redhaired girl that might be. Well Sam did not want to lose her, she was a good girl, honest girl she rang up the right change. Sam did not usually trust any white girl with change, but he was glad now that he had found one whom he could not catch, for it might be she was honest all the time.

"No," Sam did not know Sam did not know anything. Sam did not tell Helmi, either, "nice girl, Helmi—it wants folin she could get plenty—no one gettin' nice girl all excita."

Helmi went back to the "Good Eats Cafe" one day to see if it would be possible for her to be given longer hours. The dollar a night was not going to be sufficient for her needs. Her room was fifteen dollars a month, and even at that she suspected the Corbetts were paying some of it. She would like to go to work at two o'clock in the afternoon if Sam can arrange it. He had been away for a few days and another Chinaman had been in charge.

When Helmi arrived old Sam was at his accustomed place behind the desk, very elegant in a new black suit and a white tie over a white flower in his buttonhole, and remembered a church usher on Mother's Day. Helmi remembered how they looked in Miss Abbot's church. He was very friendly with her, and bowed ceremonly over her hand. Helmi had learned to suspect polite men of being drunk, but old Sam was always sober. The suit, too, was festive in its appearance. Flowers in bloom were on the tables. A dropping fuchsia in the window raised its crimson and purple blossoms down like a spraying fountain, and squares of embroidery hung on the walls. Helmi wondered if the changes in them must be some Chinese holiday, she thought.

Sam came around from the desk to greet her, and she noticed further improvements. Sam had fallen heir with some gold ones. His nails were daintily manicured and his hands heavily perfumed. "Nice hot-haired girl," he said, shaking her hand rudely, "good girl really (lay Old Sam and nice kiddie white girl now all his own Room she come, my girl grand girl Mrs. Sam Lee drives big car my girl"

As he spoke a big gray car with silver mountings drew up to the curb, and a lady in a smart suit came out. She came into the dining room and, seeing the stranger of the color, like some strange tropical bird to Helmi's eyes were so dazzled by the vision that in her admiring survey she had not yet reached the face.

A shout came from under the drooping black hat, and the beaming lady bore down upon Helmi. "Helmi, my boy here, come to me! I always knew I would find you."

"Rose Lamb!" cried Helmi, breathless with excitement. "Rose, are you out?"

"Hush," cautioned Rose, dumping and drawing her shoulders up, "I was never in. You and I met at a Young Ladies' Seminary no tradesman's daughters allowed remember. Not that any good old Sam Lamb has been in jail, and it makes them broad to go to jail; but for the sake of my social position, mum's the word. Listening for a Finnish girl with red hair Sam knew nothing. In Sam's limited sphere the relation between men and women were elemental and simple. drunk, but old Sam was always sober. The suit, too, was festive in its appearance. Flowers in bloom were on the tables. A dropping fuchsia in the window raised its crimson and purple blossoms down like a spraying fountain, and squares of embroidery hung on the walls. Helmi wondered if the changes in them must be some Chinese holiday, she thought.

Sam came around from the desk to greet her, and she noticed further improvements. Sam had fallen heir with some gold ones. His nails were daintily manicured and his hands heavily perfumed. "Nice hot-haired girl," he said, shaking her hand rudely, "good girl really (lay Old Sam and nice kiddie white girl now all his own Room she come, my girl grand girl Mrs. Sam Lee drives big car my girl"

As he spoke a big gray car with silver mountings drew up to the curb, and a lady in a smart suit came out. She came into the dining room and, seeing the stranger of the color, like some strange tropical bird to Helmi's eyes were so dazzled by the vision that in her admiring survey she had not yet reached the face.

A shout came from under the drooping black hat, and the beaming lady bore down upon Helmi. "Helmi, my boy here, come to me! I always knew I would find you."

"Rose Lamb!" cried Helmi, breathless with excitement. "Rose, are you out?"

"Hush," cautioned Rose, dumping and drawing her shoulders up, "I was never in. You and I met at a Young Ladies' Seminary no tradesman's daughters allowed remember. Not that any good old Sam Lamb has been in jail, and it makes them broad to go to jail; but for the sake of my social position, mum's the word. Listening for a Finnish girl with red hair Sam knew nothing. In Sam's limited sphere the relation between men and women were elemental and simple. Maybe the police wanted his red-haired girl that might be. Well Sam did not want to lose her, she was a good girl, honest girl she rang up the right change. Sam did not usually trust any white girl with change, but he was glad now that he had found one whom he could not catch, for it might be she was honest all the time.

"Yes," Sam did not know Sam did not know anything. Sam did not tell Helmi, either, "nice girl, Helmi—it wants folin she could get plenty—no one gettin' nice girl all excita."

Helmi went back to the "Good Eats Cafe" one day to see if it would be possible for her to be given longer hours. The dollar a night was not going to be sufficient for her needs. Her room was fifteen dollars a month, and even at that she suspected the Corbetts were paying some of it. She would like to go to work at two o'clock in the afternoon if Sam can arrange it. He had been away for a few days and another Chinaman had been in charge.

When Helmi arrived old Sam was at his accustomed place behind the desk, very elegant in a new black suit and a white tie over a white flower in his buttonhole, and remembered a church usher on Mother's Day. Helmi remembered how they looked in Miss Abbot's church. He was very friendly with her, and bowed ceremonly over her hand. Helmi had learned to suspect polite men of being

Helmi went with Rose to the car and stepped in after her. The sudden rush of air, the delightful feeling of motion, the sensation of freedom, with these Helmi's fears fell away. Impulsively she hugged her friend's arm. "Oh, Rose, its good to see you," she said.

Two men on the sidewalk regarded them closely. One watched them with wicked-wise eyes, rym-al and hard, the only gleam of gladness in them due to his suspicions being verified. The other man's eyes showed still a great sorrow and a bitter disappointment.

"You see what I said," remarked the first, "that woman driving the car is well known in the underworld. Lately she has come here as the mistress of a rich Chinaman. The Finnish girl is one of the gang, or you can see. Mr. Doran, you are well out of it."

Jack leaned back against the doorway, sick at heart

"Now I want to tell you something," said Major Clements, for it was he, "that girl has no legal hold on you, Col. Blackwood did not record the marriage. He knew her history you see. She has therefore no hold on you, so do not worry about that."

Jack turned away without speaking.

The loom of life went on with its weaving, but from Helmi's life the golden thread was gone. But, of course, the flying shuttles cannot stop to look for ends. The loom of life does the best it can with the threads the shuttles are able to bring, but it takes no responsibility for the pattern

CHAPTER XXVI.

Mrs. Kalinski and Mrs. Corbett were having a cup of tea in the living room one afternoon when Mrs. Corbett had finished her duties as janitor's wife who could be got by the hour to "do out" rooms for the tenants.

"I've turned out Mrs. Flowers and Mrs. Snider lady, given Mrs. Brown a lick and a promise, and put Mrs. Pilchdahl off until tomorrow," said Mrs. Corbett, as she set the peanut butter and strawberry jam on the table and proceeded to cut slices from the loaf. Mrs. Kalinski was still waiting.

"It's a long time—the last month," said Mrs. Corbett soothingly, "sure every day brings it one day nearer, and it's yourself has everything ready and fine and nothin' to do but to lay into bed and call the neighbors and good old Dr. Eckhardt. I never saw a woman any readier than you are, with the name and all.

Our Foreign Words

Few People Know That Hundreds Are Used Every Day

How many foreign words do you use in a day? Perhaps hundreds.

It is true that by usage many words have become part of our own speech, but pool is Celtic, ill is Scandinavian, yacht is Dutch, loot is German, phantom is Greek, and extra is Latin.

Nearly every military term is French, grenade is Spanish, macaroni is Italian, coats is Portugese, chintz is Hindu, bloc is Persian.

Sabbath comes from Hebrew, alcohol is Arabic, bosh is Turkish, sago is Malayan, and tea is Chinese.

SUMMER COMPLAINT
Nearly Lost Her Little Girl

Mrs. Theodore Bivett, Anthony, Ont., writes:—"Last Fall I nearly lost my little girl as she was suffering terribly from summer complaint. She became very ill and weak; had no appetite and could hardly walk across the room without falling down. At last my mother advised me to get a bottle of and after she had taken a few doses she was relieved.

I also found it a good remedy for cramps, and would not be without a bottle of it in the house for anything."

Glass Windows in Ancient Times

Art Of Glass Making Was Known To the Early Egyptians.

Glass windows are not the relatively modern things they are commonly reputed to be. According to Dr. M. Blanchie, a German ceramic chemist, they were in use in ancient Rome. Most of the panes did not exceed 13 by 16 inches in size, though a few larger ones have been found.

Glass-making, known for many centuries in Egypt, came to Rome relatively late. During the time of Cicero, who died in 43 B.C., glass objects of any kind were rarities, and glass windows were unknown. A hundred years later most households owned some, and by the time the empire was well established glass was fairly common. The famous mosaics of the later empire, notably at Ravenna and Constantinople, were made largely out of bits of glass

AVOID THE PAINS OF RHEUMATISM

This Trouble Comes Through Weak, Watery Blood

Many people suffer rheumatic pains that could be avoided by building up the blood. Rheumatism comes with thin, watery blood, and can only be driven out of the system by enriching and purifying the blood. To make rich, red blood no medicine equals Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new blood, driving out all poisonous secretions, and creating a condition of robust health. Thousands of rheumatic sufferers can testify to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among these is Mr. Jos. A. Tully, Bathurstpeake, Ont., who says: "As a worker in the woods for years I was exposed to all kinds of rough wintry weather. The result was that I was finally laid up with rheumatism. I could hardly stir, and was confined to bed. Medicine and liniments failed to relieve me, and seemed to have little or no effect. At the best encouragement the doctor gave me was that with the coming of warm weather I would be better. But instead of getting better, I grew worse. My joints were badly swollen, and my legs so stiff they would hardly support my body. At this stage I read that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended for rheumatism and decided to try them. The results were beyond my expectations. After a few weeks the swelling had disappeared, and the stiffness gradually wore away, and much sooner than I expected all traces of rheumatism had disappeared. The next winter when I went into the woods I took a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with me and they kept me in the best of condition. My experience should give encouragement to other rheumatic sufferers."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CROOKED TEETH

Nature is no bungler; but plans wisely. So it is that she has intended teeth should occlude, or come together, in certain definite relationships. This type interlocking as "the cogs of two wheels which work in harmony."

But quite frequently her aim is thwarted, and there is an abnormal relationship known as mal-occlusion.

Many and varied causes are said to have been cited contributive to this condition as: maldigestive extractions; decayed shedding; tardy eruptions; improper masticating habits; faulty diet; deforming habits of the young child; and general diseases affecting tooth development.

But there is a type of mal-occlusion without the so-called "crooked teeth." The teeth may in fact be exceptionally well formed and placed normally in the arch, so that in this type the arch "per se" is at fault, either exhibiting a deformity, or being in improper relationship to its fellow.

Mal-occlusion may be very noticeable, evincing a protruding or retruding jaw, or other facial deformity; but again, the facial contour may not be altered from normal to any appreciable extent.

Apart from this relationship to facial expression, however, mal-occlusion may lead to serious disturbances of the teeth themselves.

It may be that, due to this condition that one or several teeth are receiving excessive stress, resulting in a diseased condition of the tissues enveloping the tooth, or teeth, and menacing the life of the teeth involved.

Moreover, teeth that are not functioning properly through disease, may be weakened structurally, leaving them more prone to decay; and in any event, they are not receiving the benefits of normal tooth exercise or of the mechanical cleansing, through excursive masticatory movements, which, after all, is the best defense against the forces of tooth decay.

Queer Law in Venezuela

Two Horns Must Be On Every Motor Vehicle

One horn is not enough for the automobiles of Venezuela. Under the latest law, double facilities for making a noise are required in that republic, a hand horn for the city and electric horn for the country.

Actual practice shows that the drivers usually do not stop with two horns, but have three, one hand operated and the other two electrical.

The button for one of the electric horns is on the steering wheel, while the other is placed on the left door of the car and is operated by pressure of the driver's knee.

Gum-Dipped Tires Save You Money
Gum-Dipping is an exclusive Firestone process which saturates and impregnates every fibre of every cord with rubber and prevents the cords from chafing against each other.

In ordinary tires these cords are merely laid in flatly, one above another, without being separated and the friction, generated by internal heat and friction, which softens the rubber, causing blowouts and the failure.

These latter three cost you no more, yet they give three times as much value. See your nearest Firestone Dealer.

WEDDING

HOLT—WINGFIELD

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the First Presbyterian manse, Edmonton, on Saturday evening, June 16, when Annie Isabella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wingfield was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas Holt of Fort Saskatchewan. The Rev. Dr. D. G. McQueen officiated.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was dressed in old rose georgette and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and fern. Miss Dorothy Whitehead, the bridesmaid, was dressed in navy blue canton crepe and cream colored picture hat. Her corsage was of dark red carnations and fern. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Herbert Holt of Fort Saskatchewan.

Mrs. H. J. Wingfield, the mother of the bride, was dressed in navy blue poplin.

The bride and bridegroom were the recipients of many beautiful gifts including a handsome dinner set from the staff of the University hospital, of which the bride was a member, and a tray of Tudor silver from the staff of the Provincial coal where the bridegroom is employed.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a beautiful wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a necklace of pearls and to the groomsman a gold cuff links.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt will reside in Fort Saskatchewan.

ALBERTA'S CROPS ABOVE AVERAGE CONDITION

Alberta's wheat crop this year is in better condition than the average for the past ten years, according to the report issued at the end of May by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Taking the figure of 100 as the ten year average, Alberta's spring wheat crop is shown by this report as 103, Saskatchewan's 96 and Manitoba's 105. In Ontario the average is shown as 97 and in Quebec, 100.

ELKS CLUB FORMED AT FORT SASKATCHEWAN

Mr. P. A. Mignacca, grand organizer of the Elks, who has been in town during the past two weeks has succeeded in enrolling a sufficient number of applicants to secure a charter for a lodge and club here and though the date has not been set, the institution is sure to take place early next week.

The "Elks," whose motto is—"to make life sweeter, men better, and the world happier," is an organization that has made phenomenal strides in Canada in recent years. Its general activities embrace community service work on a large scale, and the feature of the club, together with its efforts in child welfare work, has endeared it to the hearts of a progressive people.

The order is primarily a social one, absolutely non-sectarian, and not organized for gain or profit—based purely—seeking and accepting none but men of character and intelligence. Its extended social sphere, in both lodge and club, is notable throughout the country.

It is a service club of a national character, because it is essentially founded on patriotism and its constitution provides for special days designed to inspire the children of the country—future men and women of Canada—with a spirit of patriotism and love of God and country.

Its outside activities make a special appeal to the young men of a community and this is said to be one of the strong features of this popular organization.

GOVERNOR GENERAL TO VISIT PEACE RIVER COUNTRY

A week's trip through the Peace River country during July is planned by Viscount and Lady Willingdon, according to word just received by Premier Brownlee. Their excellencies hope to leave Edmonton on their northern trip on July 15, going by train to Peace River, from there by motor to Dunvegan, thence by Hudson's Bay steamboat up-river to Peace Cooge and driving back through the Vermilion district to Grande Prairie, from where they will return by train to Edmonton. It is the intention of the government with the co-operation of various organizations in the north, to make the excursion into the northland a real event for the governor general and his party and to show them as much as possible of the farming districts where such marked development is taking place this season.

WEDDING

Under a canopy of lilac and wild roses a pretty wedding took place at St. George's church on Wednesday evening, June 20, when Gilda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston Carscadden, was united in marriage to John Russell, son of Mrs. and Mrs. John Russell, Glasgow, Scotland. The Rev. E. R. Lockyer performed the ceremony and the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride's sister, Helen, was bridesmaid and the groom was attended by Mr. James McLellan.

The bride was charming in a gown of ensemble georgette beige with hat to match and fur choker, carrying a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid wore a gown of powder blue georgette and large Leghorn hat and carried Pink Laddie carnations.

The bride's mother wore a gown of rose beige Canton crepe.

A reception for intimate friends was held at the home of the bride after the ceremony.

The bride's travelling dress was a tweed suit of tan shades with hat to match.

The honeymoon will be spent at Jasper, after which the happy couple will take up residence at Lacombe.

Obituary

The funeral of Pearl Janet Carscadden, whose death occurred in an Edmonton hospital Monday morning, aged 24 years, was held Wednesday afternoon, June 20, from the Fort Saskatchewan Anglican church, the Rev. E. R. Lockyer officiating. Interment took place in the Fort Saskatchewan cemetery.

Deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Carscadden of Andrew, Alta., and besides her parents leaves one brother, John, and three sisters, Mrs. A. H. Irwin and Mrs. C. A. Norton of Andrew and Mrs. E. Ashton of Fort Saskatchewan.

RECITAL BY PUPILS OF MISS BESSIE SMITH

The piano recital held in the United church on Monday evening by the pupils of Miss Bessie Smith gave much pleasure to the audience. The different numbers by the young folk were very creditably rendered and reflected much credit on their teacher.

Those taking part were the Misses Gladys Hodgins, Verona Adamson, Marjorie Lesker, Sarah Friedman, Revel and Fern Butler, Adela Frey, Marjorie Frey, Bessie Alton, Gladys Osbaldeston, Evelyn Cranston, Gladys Willmoreth, and Masters Donald Rye and Teddy Osbaldeston.

Miss Smith gave as a concluding number the "Rondo-Caprichoso" in splendid style and so well received that a second number was given. A hearty expression of appreciation was extended by the audience to the teacher and class.

Rev. Mr. Hodgins acted as chairman.

"Safety First" on the Highways

The phenomenal growth in the number of motor driven vehicles on the highways of this continent constitutes one of the most amazing developments of modern times. The motor car has, in fact, completely revolutionized modes of living in the space of a very few years, and, equally so, has ushered in an entirely new era in the history of transportation.

It is not necessary to even enumerate the many changes which the general use of the motor car has brought about. These changes are patent to everyone. The result has been, of course, to likewise create entirely new problems which did not confront, and were never dreamed of, by the people of a couple of generations ago.

The motor car has forced governments and municipalities to completely re-organize plans and the work of road building because what was regarded as an excellent road for horse drawn buggies and wagons is quite obsolete in these days of motor traffic. The result has been to compel huge expenditures upon all governmental authorities, not only in the construction of much higher standard of road, but in annual maintenance charges in order that such roads shall be kept up to that high standard, and shall be available for use at all times in all weathers.

In large cities, the multiplicity of cars has created congestion and traffic problems of the most difficult kind, and the number, power and speed of modern cars not only an hourly danger to each other and their occupants but to all pedestrians. Laws governing rate of speed, have proliferated of glaring headlights for night driving, and innumerable rules of the road in an effort to regulate this enormous and ever increasing traffic, have been passed. Many of these enactments were experimental and found be ineffective. Amendments to have have followed amendments in rapid succession, yet the toll of accidents and violent death mounts steadily higher and higher.

The fact might as well be faced.—It must be faced,—that only through the practice of the principle of "Safety First" by the people themselves,—all the people —can the civilization of today really control this modern juggernaut which the inventive genius of this generation has brought into being and to such a high state of power and efficiency.

Legislative enactments, and arrests and fines for violation of these laws, will not, and can not meet the existing problems. Public sentiment and the public conscience must be aroused against those who habitually and wilfully disregard the laws and regulations passed in the interests of all people. The speed maniac, the man who persists in flashing blinding headlights in the eyes of all other car drivers, the crank who considers it an insult and a reflection upon himself and his car to allow any other car to pass him on the road, the crazy fool who not only disregards all safety precautions for himself but who is callously indifferent to the fate of others, and the common "roadhog" who ignores everybody's rights and selfishly arrogates whatever he desires to himself,—all these enemies to the welfare, enjoyment, rights, and even lives of others, must become taboo throughout the land and be ostracized by his fellow citizens in the community.

Every driver of a car should keep constantly in mind that it is a powerful machine he has in his control, and that the only way in the same way. Common sense will prevent accidents. Apply it. There is not only the law but an etiquette of the road. Observe it. Protect person and property—your own and the other fellow's.

Two controllable factors enter into accident prevention on the streets and highways,—your car; yourself. Always observe, among others, the following simple rules for safety:

1. Keep your car right; see that the brakes, steering gear and headlights are in perfect working order.
2. Keep your eye on the road and your hands on the wheel.
3. In passing traffic, look ahead.
4. If a "road-hog" tries to pass you—let him.
5. Entering main streets and highways—stop and listen.
6. Don't rush through car "lead" in heavy traffic.
7. Signal before you slow down, stop, or change your course.
8. Look before you back up.
9. Obey the "Stop" signal.
10. Watch your "Step"—Don't "step" on the gas, the train will win.

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has entered. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes soon. But don't use crude soda. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 80 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its action, so harmless, so effective.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn the fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 80 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

NEW STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACHS

Indigestion Disappears When the Blood Is Enriched

The most urgent need of all who suffer from any form of indigestion is a tonic to enrich the blood. Pain and distress after eating is the way the stomach shows that it is too weak to perform the work of digesting the food it takes. Now strength is given to weak stomachs by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they purify and enrich the blood. This accounts for the speedy relief in stomach disorders that follows the use of this medicine. The value of this medicine in cases of indigestion is shown by the case of Mrs. George W. Johnson, Lequille, N.S., who says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was greatly distressed with indigestion. Always suffered from pains in the stomach and other distressing symptoms. I tried different remedies, but without getting relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I readily did, and I am feeling very grateful ever since to the person who gave me the advice. The very first box helped me and before I had taken a half dozen boxes I was restored to my former good health and all traces of this distressing trouble disappeared. It is now about a year since I took the pills, and I have not been troubled with indigestion since. I have taken every opportunity to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to those in need of a medicine and shall continue to do so."

A little booklet, "What To Eat and How To Eat It" will be sent free to anyone asking for it. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ship Mankind To Europe

What is believed to be a record for muskrat shipments from Canada has been left on board the Canadian Pacific vessel "Benvorlde," bound for Antwerp. It consists of 140 muskrats, the foundation stock for muskrat ranches in Germany, Finland and France. The consignment was made up of 70 pairs and operated at a muskrat farm at Lindsay, Ontario.

For Burns and Scalds. — Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will take the fire out of a burn or scald. It should be at hand in every kitchen so that it may be available at any time. There is no preparation required. Just apply the oil to the burn or scald and the pain will abate and in a short time cease altogether.

(By Betty Barclay)

— ECONOMICAL PUDDING —

1 quart water.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup pearl tapioca.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
4 tablespoons butter.
1½ cups brown sugar.

Cook tapioca in water until transparent. Add other ingredients. Bake one-half hour.

— LEMON DROP COOKIES —

1-3 cup butter.
½ cup sugar.
1 egg
1 teaspoon soda.
2 tablespoons hot water.
½ tablespoon lemon juice
Grated rind 1 lemon.
¾ cup flour.

Cream butter; add sugar, gradually, and egg, beaten until thick and light, soda, dissolved in hot water, lemon juice, grated lemon rind, and flour. Mix well, drop from tip of teaspoon onto buttered baking sheet, and bake in a quick oven.

To make crisp cookies, use one and one-half cups flour when mixing; chill thoroughly, roll very thin, sprinkle lightly with sugar, cut out, and bake.

Millions of Acres of Farm Land In the Western Provinces Still Available For Settlement

Information furnished by the department of the interior provides some interesting light on the extent of farming lands now available for settlement in Canada.

The bulk of farm lands available, of course, is in the western provinces. In Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, there is altogether a total of 209,639,144 acres of land in the surveyed area. Of this amount Alberta has 67,888,793 acres, Saskatchewan, 78,813,816 acres, and Manitoba, 37,136,135.

It is rather surprising to note that of the total acreage in the surveyed area of the three prairie provinces, there remains but 12,167,000 undisposed of, or available for homestead.

In addition to the area of surveyed lands undisposed of there is available for settlement some 73,000,000 acres held by other interests. The Hudson's Bay Company holds 7,028,800 acres, the railways have 21,752,000, for school land endowment purposes there is a reserve of 9,343,700 acres, and over 40,000 grazing leases there are 25,799,800 acres, practically all of which represents farm lands.

Of the above total, aggregating 96,000,000 acres, a large proportion is at present rather remote from railway and transportation facilities, and much of it is in the dry belt or otherwise not available for immediate farming operations. The exact extent of the land available for farming purposes is not known although the topographical survey branch of the department of the interior has done a great deal of work in the direction of soil survey in recent years and has plans made for continuing the work over the next few years.

There is another factor contributing to the area of lands available in the three prairie provinces, of which Manitoba has 2,400,000 acres, Saskatchewan, 7,500,000 and Alberta, 5,—,000,000.

In British Columbia it is estimated there is a total of approximately 18,-000,000 acres of land available, and as well, that is the land held by private owners for purely speculative purposes. It is estimated that the farm settlement in the western provinces and in the old provinces that there are in the neighborhood of 4,-000,000 acres of good farm land available for settlement along what is known as the railway belt and in the Peace River district.

There is therefore approximately 110,967,000 acres of land available for farm settlement in Canada west of Ontario.

To Overcome Goitre

New Discovery is Outlined At Meeting Held In Toronto

The discovery of a chemical compound which will compensate for deficiencies in the thyroid gland which gland not only controls the growth of individuals but is responsible for that insidious growth, goitre—was outlined by Prof. George Barger, F.R.S., at a meeting of the Canadian Chemical Association at Toronto.

One of the principal elements in thyroxin is iodine, and it was found in the United States. He demonstrated with a map, that the less iodine in the water supply of a district the greater was the growth of goitre.

A resolution on the use of the word "Canadian" was passed as follows:

"We have a federal statutory right to call ourselves Canadians, therefore we recommend that the provincial councils petition the provincial governments asking that in the matter of vital statistics, registration of births, issuing of death certificates the word 'Canadian' shall be used by those entitled to do so, and that as it is desirable with a view to building up a strong, loyal and homogeneous Canadian citizenship as an integral part of the British Empire, that the citizens of Canada, whatever their race or origin, should be designated as 'Canadians.'"

A Charming Frock For the Large Figure

The attractive novelty silk crepe model pictured here is one of the season's smartest frocks. The long collar and front panel are of contrasting material and give the much-desired slenderizing lines. There is a shirred insert at each side of the front, tucks at the shoulders and long sleeves gathered into wristbands. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust. Size 38 requires 3¼ yards 36-inch, or 2¼ yards 54-inch material. Price 25 cents the pattern.

Home sewing brings nice clothes within the reach of all, and to follow the mode is delightful when it can be done so easily and economically by following the styles pictured in our new Fashion Book. A chart accompanying each pattern shows the material as it appears when cut out. Every detail is explained so that the inexperienced sewer can make with out difficulty an attractive dress. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

The Granting Of Credit

Banking Facilities Available To Farmers Have Greatly Improved

Credit used to be extended for the most part only to governments and rulers and potentates. With the growth of commerce came commercial borrowing. But the granting of banking credit to individuals not engaged in commerce only recently became an important factor in this country.

To buy on the instalment plan meant the granting of credit on a scale never before known. This credit was extended by the seller, but the instalment seller usually turned to some financial institution to share the burden.

Meanwhile machinery has been organized in most parts of the country to enable farmers to borrow on reasonable terms. The banking facilities available for our farm folk today are incomparably better than they were even a few years ago.

Both movements represent the democratization of credit.

The Effect of Sun Spots On Living Conditions Is the Subject of Scientific Investigation

The Sun is usually looked upon as a permanent body radiating steadily a life-giving stream of energy. True, he comes and goes with day and night, and rises and declines in the heavens with the changing seasons, but these apparent defections are ascribable to the vagaries of the earth. However, on many occasions during the past twenty centuries, keen eyes have detected and recorded the presence of dark spots on the Sun, at times when he was sufficiently dimmed by smoke or haze to be clearly observed. These spots march across the surface of the Sun indicating a period of rotation of about twenty-six days. They wax and wane in size and numbers in an irregular period with an average length of about eleven and a half years. The telescope and spectroscope reveal the fact that the dark spots are accompanied by brilliant clouds especially rich in the light of glowing hydrogen and of calcium, the ultra-violet light of the latter constituting a relatively large proportion of all the ultra-violet light of the Sun.

Ultra-violet light has the power of disrupting germs at low pressures and liberating electrons. Hence it is not surprising that the northern lights and magnetic effects on the earth have been found to pulsate with the spottedness of the Sun.

It has been observed also that the polar caps of the planet Mars increase more rapidly when spots are plentiful on the Sun than when they are few in number; and that Encke's comet in its return every three and a half years is brighter at or near the times of sun-spot maximum than at minimum; and also that certain errors in the predicted positions of the Moon and planets coincide with a longer period in solar spottedness of sixty or seventy years. Consequently, it has not been without reason that a great number of investigations have been made in the search for a relationship between the variations in the Sun and in the weather and in living things. This is one of the objects of research at the Dominion Observatory, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

In such a search effort has naturally been mainly confined to those records, unfortunately too few in number, which cover long periods of time. Scanty as they are they have revealed an eleven-and-half-year period existing in various terrestrial phenomena, and in a few cases where records of both living things and the weather were kept, the relationship to sun-spottedness is still more convincing.

In the case of the natural and electro-magnetic effects, as mentioned above, the relationship is at once apparent; in that of rainfall in some localities the pulsation of eleven-and-a-half years (in the mean), shows a decided correspondence to the solar variations. temperature, barometric pressure, and numbers of storms have likewise shown the same periodic pulsations. A similar rythm has been noted in dates of migration-arrivals of birds in France (Chaudeau records, Mouldidier), numbers of rabbits in Canada (records of Hudson's Bay Company); marriages, births, and deaths in Russia (for the longer period of seventy years); influenza; growth rules of cotton and of corn in some localities in the United States. But perhaps the most valuable of all records are those obtained from the varying thickness of the annual rings in the giant redwoods of California during their three thousand years of growth. The measurements of these rings correspond so consistently with the European records of sun-spots of the last three hundred years, that they may be regarded as yielding information concerning the solar variations during the centuries for which we have only the fragmentary Chinese records of sun-spots. The existence of the eleven-and-a-half-year sun-spot cycle and its reflection in terrestrial conditions probably many thousand years ago, appears likely from the testimony of a Biska picture recently released by the recession of a glacier in northern British Columbia and measured as the Dominion Observatory

We may confidently look forward to the time when accumulated knowledge of sun-spots and other solar effects will provide a basis for valuable predictions concerning the weather and business and economic conditions. At the present time, however, notwithstanding statements which have appeared in the press, our knowledge is too incomplete to make definite predictions. The realization of our dependence and that of all the forms of life within our ken, upon the Sun is inducing astronomers, scientists, and statesmen, the world over, to bend their efforts to a clearer elucidation of the relationships of sun-spots and other solar phenomena to conditions on the Earth.

Two High Hatted

Captain McPhee is very high hat. The "Beaver" was presented to him by "Miss Fort William" on behalf of the barter officials upon the arrival of the Canadian Pacific S.S. Keewatin, the first steamship to reach the head of the lake this season.

Incidentally, this vessel opened the port of Sault Ste. Marie, where the skipper received his first tapper. Captain McPhee thinks that the hats may be handy when he receives Kings and potentates aboard the Keewatin this summer, but he will stick to uniform on the bridge.

Demand Exceeds Supply

Government Poultry Plant at Oliver, Alta., Doing Large Business

Over ten thousand chicks have been distributed during the past spring from the Provincial Government poultry plant at Oliver, Alta. Officials in charge of the plant report that the demand has been greatly in excess of the supply and that many applications have been referred to other breeders and hatcheries for their requirements. The breeds represented in the shipments include White Leghorns, Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes. Over three thousand chicks are being reared on the farm this summer. In view of their increasing economic importance, a beginning is being made this year with turkeys.

STUDEBAKER PLANT AT WALKERVILLE, ONT.

Studebaker To Build Canadian Automobiles For Canadians

Friendly Bestowment Of Canadian Organization From Studebaker Corporation Of America

With the announcement of a far-reaching reorganization of both administrative and manufacturing policies, the Studebaker Corporation on Canada, Ltd., has assumed a front rank position among the Dominion's largest independent manufacturers. The announcement, which indicates a friendly divestment of the Canadian Studebaker Organization from the Studebaker Corporation of America, was issued by A. R. Erskine, president of both industries.

The new Studebaker organization will be directed by D. R. Grossman, formerly sales manager for Studebaker in the Dominion. Mr. Grossman's title will be vice-president and general manager. Having been associated with Studebaker in Canada for the past six years, Mr. Grossman is well known in the Dominion's automobile leaders.

"The motive behind the reorganization is a new mood in our desire to build Canadian Automobiles for Canadians," is the statement. "The Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Ltd., is Canadian. We will use more and more of Canada's great supplies in the product. Not only will our local consumption of these commodities be increased, but new commodities will be added to our purchasing agent's order lists.

"We want to build automobiles for Canada and we want Canadians to approve of them. It is felt that the time has come to go ahead and no time will be lost in increasing the number of cars actually built in Canada. We hope to secure greater efficiency than has been possible in the past, which will result in greater satisfaction to the Canadian purchasers.

"Continuing the precedent already established, the personnel of the Canadian organization will be almost exclusively Canadian. In addition, present plans contemplate that advertising and printed matter shall be prepared in Canada, and, in short, a large percentage of every dollar spent in connection with the Canadian business shall be paid to Canadian individuals and Canadian firms.

"The new arrangement will mean a greatly increased pay to the members of employees at the Walkerville plant. Branches are now established at Montreal and Calgary. Those will also be greatly increased.

"This move is a result of Studebaker's faith in Canada," said Mr. Grossman recently. "We believe there will be wonderful developments in this country and through this expansion program, we will naturally become a part of those developments."

It was just a step to Canada House and a reception by the Hon. Peter Larkin, High Commissioner for Canada. We were all impressed by the appearance of Canada's booth in Great Britain overlooking Trafalgar Square. Canada House occupies one of the most commanding sites in London and does it no injustice. There was no formality by no space—just a friendly handshake and a few words for all in the private room of the high commissioner.

Now came the event of the day, the reception at St. James'. It is not without awe that we entered this simple stately palace of red brick after passing its castellated gateway guarded by sentries wearing the famous busby. For a long time the town council has had under consideration offers from two or three electric light and power corporations to supply the town with electric energy. They have given much time and thought to the matter, considering every clause in each company's agreement and seeking expert advice where and when it was deemed best. The council has exhibited a great deal of caution and care in their guardianship of the people's interests and the citizens of Fort Saskatchewan should be grateful to them for assuming so much voluntary labor and worry in their behalf.

Important news will shortly be made public concerning the latest proposals made to the council by two rival firms and a public meeting will be called in the near future. A special meeting of the council was held Tuesday for the expectation of coming to a decision and being able to announce after the regular meeting on Thursday the final agreement to be placed before the citizens, but two knotty problems required further expert opinion and a delay was unavoidable.

In all probability the whole matter will be placed for the consideration of the public in next week's issue of the Record and some reasonable time given for its ample digestion. After that it will be a question of the "will of the people."

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Corcoran and family wish to thank their many friends for the kindness and help extended to them in their sad bereavement. They also wish to thank all the donors of the beautiful floral contributions.

Ypres Valley

The annual Ypres Valley picnic will be held at the school grounds on Friday, June 29, commencing at 2 p.m., with a full list of sporting events, including tug-of-war, Ypres Valley vs. All Comers; senior baseball, Ypres Valley vs. Partridge Hill; junior baseball, Ypres Valley vs. Brookville. Horseshoe competition, open to all, with a dance to follow at 9 p.m. Refreshments at both picnic and dance.

As a special attraction Dave Gunn is going to appear in full Highland costume. Everyone should come to see Dave's sporran.

The baseball team under the management of Joe Irwin is practising twice a week. Joe says he is developing a pitcher with a puzzling corkscrew delivery.

The tug-of-war promises some excitement as there will be no less than three "Big Gun (n)s" on the team.

"Shorty" announced that he will be on hand with his boat gat.

J. T. Lalonde of Fort Saskatchewan will do the catering, so the most fastidious will be well served.

Mrs. F. T. Davies, Bill Pearce, Art Potts, Cliff Lee and Joe Brandy have been appointed as the picnic committee.

Come one and all and have a good time.

BORN

GUNN—To Mr. and Mrs. D. Gunn, Ypres Valley, on Sunday, June 17, a girl.

Mrs Kalmahi looked very smart in her black satin tea-gown and gold embroidery that her leader had brought from the store. She took her neighbour into her confidence. "No matter what I could earn myself. The woman said she paid seventy dollars for it once, and lay out it for fifteen. She wanted thirty but I told her it was the worst thing to sell. Who was wearing tea-gowns now? they was out of date like leg o' mutton sleeves. And all the time Ivy was thinking of me I had a red cashmere one with Watteau pleats when our Rachel was comin', and his papa says little Isaac will be served as good, even if it did cost fifteen dollars and could be used for thirty easy. He's that good a man, and spares no expense in reason."

Mrs. Corbett brought the tea from the kitchen and filled the cups. "You and me are lucky women," she said, "to have two good men like we have. Ain't some of them the easy goin' devils, though? I don't know what to think of Helmi's man, though she sticks up for him and is afraid he's been lost in a storm or drowned in a river. Poor girl, it's a shame to see her have to work in a Chinks for what could the poor girl do? Not one of these dainty ladies would have her, they all had some reason."

"If she were just a Hebrew girl now," said Mrs Kalmahi, "one could go to the Hebrew Association of Women and they would find a place for her. We would not have any nice white girls of ours workin' in a Chinaman shop and havin to take lippy talk from every Harry, Tom, Dick an' and maybe worse. Mrs Steinberg and Mrs. Swartz are grand on that and good girls they have found for our people."

Mrs. Corbett paused, with her mouth half way to her mouth. "Look at that now! Ain't the Jews wonderful to think of things? We've got grand workers too and I never once took thought of them. Sure we've got societies. They're all up to their eyes in pneumonia jackets and many soiled babies now and never a one for the mid-ers but they're grand women, too. When I came here first I used to take care of the Chinese at the "Y" and I used to see them there passing blood, very child spoken we was too sad tryin' to make the world better and God knows it needs it! I'm glad you spoke of the Mrs Kalmahi. Maybe we can get a decent place yet for Helmi though if she takes the baby away I don't know what I'll do with Rose and Pam."

Mrs Corbett went that evening after Helmi had gone on work leaving the baby to the watchful care of Rose, who set in No. 18 to do her lessons.

Mrs. Bell was at home, and would speak of Helmi's case at the meeting of the Lloyd George Chapter the next day.

A week later a new place was found for Helmi. Mrs. Bell said it was an ideal place, and while ten dollars a month was very little, still it was not every place she could have the privilege of keeping her baby, and Mrs. Herriott would be very kind to her. Mrs. Herriott was young and inexperienced, and found her baby a great care. Helmi could mind the two babies and Mrs. Herriott would do the work.

Old Sam was sorry to part with Helmi, and gave her a feather fan. "You come back some day and Sam be glad. Good girl only trap—teacher make chop suey come back! You come see my girl too, and have chop suey."

The Herriott home was a six-room bungalow on 137th Street, three blocks from the car line on 124th Street. It was a little house, low-roofed, square, with but little pitch in the roof, and high pillars in front, much too high for the height of the house, giving one the sensation as Helmi thought of seeing a cow getting up hind legs first. Rosie and Danny conducted her to the place, Rosie carrying the baby and Danney helping Helmi with the heavy valise.

"I hope you don't like her," said Rosie, "and then you'll come back. I'll bet her baby cries more than ours, and just when you got little Lil asleep, her kid will wake up whinin'. Well, anyway, Helmi, you can always come back, and we'll manage some way."

Helmi kissed her two good friends at the back door, but Rosie refused to go until she saw if the lady were at home.

"Maybe she's changed her mind," she said speaking from her experience with ladies —"or has got baby—or somethin' has happened. You can't depend on these women in the West End. Ain't that right Dan? They don't pay their debts, either, very good. They always say 'Come back again.' Dan collected for a tailor, and he knows. They don't remember anything less than five dollars, and when they're stuck for another excuse they perp out of one of the windows to see who it is, and won't let you in."

Mrs. Herriott was in and had not engaged anyone else, and so the escort had to go home alone, which they did regretfully.

Helmi found the house in a state of siege. Confusion reigned everywhere. The invader slept in a baby carriage which filled the greater part of the living-room, and when he slept all noises were muffled. The grandmother, who had been conscripted into service, padded about in her bedroom slippers. The telephone bell was stuffed with paper. No one was admitted to the house not even the paper on a neatly carmined lip Heath. "Look," she said, "don't spoil her, leave well enough alone. Come on, we'll take the Bunnings they have no kids to want to come. Hurry Bob"

TOOTH STRAIGHTENING

Your child has "crooked teeth," and wisely you are thinking of his future, and are not content to let him continue to have them.

Irregular teeth are in a sense, a deformity, and often mar one's natural attractiveness, and indeed, in many instances may also lead to general systemic disturbances.

Now, can anything be done by way of correcting this mal-occlusion?

A great deal, especially if treatment is commenced while the child is very young.

Each case, of course, presents its own problems with their special solutions, but in the main, your dentist, or the orthodontist who specializes in this branch of dentistry, will correct this condition by making use of metal bands and bars which your child would need to wear continuously for some little time, the period of wearing being determined by the severity of the case in hand.

But you wonder, perhaps, how a tooth can be moved when fully erupted, encased as it is, in dense and seemingly unyielding bone.

However, it is simply a matter of making use of a natural physiological process whereby bone tissue is resorbed and broken down in advance of a properly applied and pertinent force, thus permitting the tooth to move bodily through its supporting bony structure.

There is tooth straightening a painful process?

Not in the least, where too rapid movement is not attempted.

And when should it be commenced?

Many operators like to take the case in hand while the child still has the temporary set, and generally at about the eighth year, when success is more readily and quickly secured.

Then, of course, where treatment is delayed, the case becomes progressively more difficult of correction because the muscles and tissues are becoming more or less fixed. When early adult life is reached, "tooth straightening" is not advisable except in the very simple cases.

For Frost Bites and Chilblains.—Chilblains come from undue exposure to slush and cold and frost-bite from the icy winds of winter. In the treatment of either an excellent preparation is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, as it counteracts the inflammation and relieves the pain. The action of the oil is prompt and its application is extremely simple.

The airplane is becoming the long-distance taxicab of Alaska. Department of Interior figures show that Alaska makes more use of aerial transportation in proportion to population than any other section. The territory has forty flying fields.

One of the commonest complaints of infants is worms, and the most effective application for them is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

DIARRHŒA Was So Bad Child Passed Blood

Mrs. Harry Nesbitt, R. R. No. 8, Shannon, N.B., writes:—"Last Fall my little boy took very bad with diarrhoea and before I knew it was passing blood. I went to our medicine case and gave him a dose of and a little later gave him another, and half an hour after the second dose he got relief and by the time he had taken six doses he was like a different child."

This wonderful bowel complaint remedy has been on the market for over 50 years; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Little Helps For This Week

'He that hath a pure heart shall receive the blessing from the Lord."
Psalm xxiv 4 5.

O God! the pure alone,
Who in their deep confessing
Can see Thee as their own,
And find the perfect blessing;
Yet to each waiting soul
Speak in Thy still, small voice,
Till broken love's made whole,
And saddened hearts rejoice.

How does Jesus make men pure? He made Himself one with our human nature that He might feel and bless it through its contact with His divinity. He filled it around His eternal presence. "He made it His own. He made it a power which could bless and restore us; and then by the gift of His Spirit He bound to it. He robed us in it, and henceforth Christian humanity became conscious of a Presence before which the unclean spirit cannot but shrink away
—Cannon Liddon.

The use of Miller's Worm Powders insures healthy children as far as the ailments attributable to worms are concerned. A high mortality among children is traceable to worms. These sap the strength of infants so that they are unable to maintain the battle for life and succumb to weakness. This preparation gives promise of health and keeps it.

Two French engineers have invented an aerial torpedo for transporting letters and packages at a speed of nearly 300 miles an hour.

Human nature's funny. No sooner does a man "get on his feet" financially than he wants to get off them physically.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three —and it's Dangerous
by Ruth Britton

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or indice adenoids. It always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand, attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle at it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhoea, sour on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper as you'll get the genuine.

H. J. McCulloch, of the Shepherd bank staff, left on Saturday for two weeks' holiday at the coast.

The apartment has been installed on Government street and connected up with the water pipe line from the goal. The knowledge of its existence is wonderfully reassuring and it is to be hoped that should it ever be necessary to use it in case of fire the key will be readily accessible. We suggest the town secretary carry it on his watch chain.

THE POWER OF THE POOL
Lies In Volume Control

The Canadian Wheat Pool Now Handles ONE FOURTH of the World's Exportable Wheat Surplus.

The Wheat Pool has given ample evidence of its usefulness to wheat growers since last harvest. Faced with the handling of a damaged crop and with a large increase in world production, the Pool has been successful to a considerable degree in preventing disastrous slumps. Every wheat farmer in Western Canada owes a debt of gratitude to the Wheat Pool.

The power of the Pool lies in its control of volume. Every bushel placed in the Pool means greater strength. The organization needs YOUR assistance.

The ideal of co-operation is working together for the common good. It is opposed to any system that makes a profit on the result of the labors of the producer. Its operations mean more wealth for all the producers.

Co-operation is not only a sentiment but an economic necessity. Let the hearts and minds of our farmers become enthused with its ideals and there is hope for the economic future of agriculture.

You who have not signed the Second Series Wheat Pool Contract gain nothing by delay. You only endanger the welfare of an organization that has proven the best friend the farmer has ever had.

MANY DISTRICTS TO SHOW EXHIBITS

Exhibits from a large number of districts throughout the province will be shown this year at both Calgary and Edmonton exhibitions. As a result of the keen interest known in these district exhibits in previous years it is stated that the number of localities represented in this way will be considerably increased in 1926.

In judging the exhibits points will be awarded for the best display of fruits, flowers, vegetables, roots, threshed and sheaf grains, forage crops, honey and other agricultural products and for the attractiveness with which the exhibit is arranged. A handsome bronze shield is offered by the Department of Agriculture for the highest-scoring district exhibit at each of the exhibitions, the shield to be won three times before becoming the permanent property of the district.

ACTIVITY IN WAINWRIGHT OIL FIELD

Conditions in the prospects for increased oil production in the Wainwright field is expressed by a party of Edmonton business men who visited the district during the past week. Keen interest was shown in the heavy flow of crude oil being produced on the Wainwright location and in the preparations for further developments by the Wainwall company and other firms.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN LODGE NO. 202, ORDER OF ELKS CREATED

Fifty initiated into B.P.O.E. at Fort Saskatchewan—Officers installed—Enthusiastic meeting

Hello Bill! An important event took place this (Wednesday) evening in the Memorial hall. Fifty men of the town and district were initiated into the newly formed lodge of the Order of Elks, from now on the Fort Saskatchewan Lodge No. 202, B.P.O. E., of Canada and Newfoundland. With others who were already members of this order the nucleus of a strong organization was formed, out which will undoubtedly be of great service to the district. Its motives and aims were set forth by grand organizer P. A. Mignsion, who had the initiation ceremony in hand, these being touched upon in last week's issue of the Record, if you will recollect, and also by D.D.G.E.R. Heller, of Edmonton, who made a stirring speech after the candidates had been put through the ropes.

The following officers were then installed:

Trustees—James Graham, Enoch LaPage, S. O. Jones.
T.—Fred Berg.
I.G.—R. Armstrong.
E.—J. Earl Graham.
Secretary—P. Weber.
Treasurer—W. A. Dubue.
L.K.—O. Beigdel.
E.L.K.—J. B. Gaur.
E.L.K.—E. D. LaBiche.
E.R.—S. M. Robinson.
P.E.R.—E. A. Brown.

Eighteen members of the Lamont lodge were present and were given a hearty welcome. There were also a bout thirty members present of the Edmonton lodge and officers of this lodge conducted the ceremonies.

After the closing of the lodge and merely as a side issue to provide entertainment, some of the younger members were permitted to try their luck with the goat and the poor animal was ridden so hard the two who came on last had an easy task to ride like.

Refreshments were then served in the buffet room where Bert Robinson, E.R., tendered thanks to visiting officers and members of other lodges for their attendance and assistance.

WEDDING

SIMMONS—TOMLINSON

A pretty wedding took place at Ardrossan United church on Wednesday evening, June 30, when Gertrude Elizabeth, daughter of Mrs. E. Tomlinson was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Simmons of Fort Saskatchewan. The Rev. Nelson Chappell officiated.

The ceremony was performed beneath an archway of wild roses and foliage, and hanging baskets of flowers and pots of lilies banked the platform steps.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, was beautifully gowned in white georgette over satin, with silver trimmings and wore a large picture hat of mohair with satin flower and insets of lace. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and fern. The bridesmaid, Mrs. J. McPhee, wore a pastel shade of lilac crepe de chine with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of red carnations and fern. The bridegroom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Frederick Cinnamon. Messrs. Tom and Frank Hanlan acted as ushers.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a light sand colored crepe de chine dress with hat to match. The bride's mother wore a dress of sand crepe back satin, with hat of mohair and flowers in the same shade.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a toilet-ware set, and the bride's gift to the bridegroom a dressing case; the gift to the bridesmaid was a gold vanity case; to the Lamont man, a gold cigarette case; to Mrs. Hugyard, the organist, a cut glass flower basket; to the bride from her mother and brother, a cheque; from Mr. and Mrs. Simmons, sr., to the bride a gold necklace; from the bridegroom's brother a dinner set; from the parents of the bridegroom, a small watch. Numerous other beautiful gifts were

CAR OR EVERY NINE PERSONS IN ALBERTA

Alberta has 11.8 passenger automobiles per hundred of population or approximately one car to every nine men, women and children in the province, according to figures issued from Ottawa during the past week. In this respect Alberta stands fourth among the provinces of the Dominion, Ontario leading with 13.1 cars per hundred of population and Saskatchewan and British Columbia following presented to the young couple, who are very popular in the district.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the Orange hall. A short program of vocal and instrumental music was given, varied with readings and recitations and short speeches, and followed by a most enjoyable dance and supper served by the hostess and assisted by a number of the bride's and bridegroom's friends. The bride looked charming in a going-away suit of sand Kasha cloth, with a fox stole, the gift of her sister. The newly married couple journeyed by motor to Edmonton and other points and later will take a trip through the Rockies.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Simmons will make their home near Fort Saskatchewan, where Mr. Simmons is engaged in farming.

Signs Of A Better Era

The period of prosperity now so generally prevalent throughout Canada and the United States, and the marked rise in industrial activity in all lines all over this continent, and which is being felt to a steadily increasing extent in Great Britain and other European countries, seems to present to some ill-informed minds and agitators an opportunity to once again revive the old "strike" weapon. When times are hard, business depressed, with large numbers of men unemployed and anxiously seeking work, the agitator urging men to rejoicing in employment to "strike" for a hard year to lose, but when business is brisk, the vast majority of men employed, and an increasing demand for labor, the agitator sees his opportunity to make trouble.

Fortunately, both employers and employees have learned from past bitter experiences that industrial warfare does not pay, any more than does war between nations, that the victor suffers almost as great damage as does the vanquished; and the general public which after all is the greatest sufferer is now more and more inclined to sternly oppose the calling of a "strike."

Relations between the bosses on the one side and the men on the other have been bettered and become more cordial in recent years through a realization of a truth, which ought to have been recognized long ago, that, in the final analysis, their interests are common. Employers today do not regard their men as mere machines, but as real and active partners in the success of the business in which they are jointly engaged, and the average workman today recognizes that his employer has huge problems and difficulties to face in successfully administering and maintaining his business in these highly organized and fiercely competitive world fields.

Recently an attempt was made to induce all the employees of the Toronto Street Railway system to go out on strike to enforce a series of demands made by them. To tie up the street railway system in a city like Toronto would be a public calamity, resulting in great inconvenience to everybody and an enormous loss to the entire community. The Toronto street railway is municipally owned,—that is, it belongs to all the people. The management pointed out that to meet the men's demands would necessitate an increase in fares. This brought the home right home to every resident, and particularly to all classes of workmen in the city who are known as the principal users of the cars. Had the system been privately owned, people would probably have felt that any increased expense to meet the men's demands could be met out of profits, and that any increase in fares was not necessary, but in a municipally-owned system, operated to provide service rather than to accumulate profits, the statement of the management was accepted and as a result, and that either increased fares, or operating deficits to be made up out of increased taxes, must result.

So, when the matter of calling a "strike" finally came to a vote of the street railway employees, the men themselves rejected it by a ten to one vote in favor of arbitration, a very healthy indication of sane thinking on the part of the men and of the present trend of public sentiment.

Another Toronto labor incident may be cited as indicating the newer and more reasonable point of view now actuating labor unions. The structural steel workers on three of the largest buildings in the city went on strike to compel their employers to establish a closed shop and employ only union men, which would be a reversal of the Company's policy during the last forty years of making no distinction between union and non-union men but treating them all frankly and alike. The steel workers have sought to induce other branches of the building trades to go on strike in sympathy with them, but without success, and even the International Union, it is understood, refuses to endorse the attitude of the strikers.

The fact is becomingly increasingly evident that in this way the bludgeon methods of war are growing more and more in disfavor, no matter in what direction or cause they may be employed. People are becoming more insistent all the time that causes of dispute, whether between nations, or in the industrial arena, or between individuals, be settled through the orderly processes of law and arbitration, and not by flying at each other's throats and engaging in combat in which countless thousands of absolutely innocent persons are made to suffer.

More Deadly Than Disease

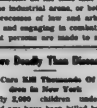
Motor Cars Kill Thousands Of Children In New York

Nearly 2,000 children under 15 years of age have been killed by motor cars on the streets of New York during the last five years, according to figures made public by the health department. Three times as many boys as girls were victims.

Health Commissioner Haven Emerson said that in this city deaths caused by motor cars are more than double those from diphtheria, scarlet fever, and typhoid combined.

NOT SORRY THEIR DYSENTERY COULD BE RELIEVED

Mr. John Melling, Fraser, Alta., writes:—"I am a returned soldier, and when I came home from overseas I suffered greatly with dysentery. The doctor said it was chronic and did not think it could be relieved. However, he doctored me for quite a while, but did me no good. One day the druggist asked me if I had ever tried



"On his recommendation I bought a bottle and after I had taken it got some relief, so I got two more, and have never had the dysentery since then."

Artificial Tooth Can Be Made From Coal Tar, Says Toronto Doctor

Dr. F. W. Barclay, Toronto dentist, announced a remarkable discovery in which fake teeth are made to stay in place by means of suction called "negative retention," for use on either or the upper or lower jaw. By this fake vulcanite plate formerly covering the palate of those with artificial upper teeth and which used to interfere with diction, and the sense of taste, will be entirely left free, allowing a much freer play of the tongue.

GREAT HELP TO YOUNG MOTHERS

Baby's Own Tablets Have Many Uses and Are Absolutely Safe

To have in the home a simple, harmless remedy for the minor ills of babies and children is a great boon to young mothers, and this is exactly why Baby's Own Tablets have been found in thousands of homes. The Tablets regulate the stomach and bowels, break up colds and simple fevers, allay the irritation of cutting teeth, in fact they have no drug traits and the children like them.

Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Ruthven Crossmiller, Ruthven, Ont., writes:—"I recently used Baby's Own Tablets for one of the Baby. I found them very helpful and gave them to her and she after a year and a half. Both are in excellent health and the baby is growing fine. I think Baby's Own Tablets. I always keep them in the house and am happy to recommend them to those needing."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Alberta's Coal Resources

Official Figures Place Total At Over a Billion Tons

An estimate of Alberta's coal resources, made recently by the International Geological congress, places the total at 1,035,629 million tons, according to figures received by the provincial government. This is 14 per cent. of the world's coal supply, 72 per cent. of the British Empire's resources, and 27 per cent. of Canada's resources.

The mines presently operating in Alberta are capable of producing 15,000,000 tons annually, and it has been estimated that if this production were increased 100 times, the available supply would not be exhausted for 18 centuries

Tourist Traffic Helps People Of United States To Become Better Acquainted With Canada

Figures recently issued by the secret indicate that American tourists United States Department of Commerce to Canada last year spent four dollars for every dollar spent by Canadian visitors to the United States. The respective amounts were $206,000,000 and $51,000,000 From a per capita standpoint the comparison appears altogether different with Canadians spending $5.36 in the United States for every head of the Dominion's population against $1.13 spent in Canada for each person in the United States.

However that is made from the point that Canada officially welcomes the tourists and desires that each and every one shall have a most pleasant and enjoyable holiday while in the Dominion's borders, and that they shall go home with pleasant recollections is the latter consideration the Natural Resources Service at the end of the tourist season last year reported that its correspondents [illegible] that the visitors noted for the most part satisfied and pleased with Canadian hospitality Allowances were willingly made for roads under repair and Canadian courtesy was fully recognized; what complaints there were were based on the lack of accommodation except in the larger centres, and to overcharging. The Service issued a warning "Don't Overcharge the Tourists," in which it was stated that there were some very definite complaints of such ill-treatment This warning received very wide publicity, and it is not expected that there will be complaints this year Nevertheless before the season is far advanced it is believed to be in the public interest to repeat the warning and no doubt the boards of trade, municipal officials, automobile associations and the merchants will be on the look out for offenders.

A pleasing feature of this year's correspondence is, that a great many more people in the United States are better acquainted with Canadian geography. In place of writing "Please tell us about Canada" they now want to know about the roads connecting certain cities, the accommodation and the sporting and recreational attractions. Many are interested in points of historical interest

A great many persons who visited Canada last year will come again this season and this is highly significant of the interest in our country when they plan to afford the time for another visit in the immediately succeeding years. The following is from a letter written by a woman in Maryland, who motored in Canada last year, and asks for help in planning a trip this year.

"I had heard so much about Canada before last year, but I'd always thought of it as some far away place, and having people different from us in the States. I don't know when I've ever felt more at home than I did while in Canada, and your people are some of the finest on earth I'm sure. So hospitable, and even the people you don't know were many willing to assist visitors and even bearing with them in their traffic errors. Make up your minds for many letters like this but I'm sure that some folks with whom I've talked about Canada have the same opinion that I have."

Canadians who have helped to entertain and assist our American visitors in their journeying through Canada will appreciate that kindly expression of appreciation and there are very many more like it. Canada welcomes the tourists and does want to see them come again.

Simplex Bituminous Roads

By means of actual tests in road construction it has been definitely established that the bituminous sands of northern Alberta can be successfully employed for paving purposes. As the present supply of these sands is practically unlimited, their presence and use appear to have solved the problem of permanent paving and road construction in the western provinces.

Lived On Strange Food

Rare Meals in British Museum Evidently Ate Ghee

The retire force of the British Museum knocked off work recently and devoted itself to searching for one of the rarest snails in its collection, which disappeared suddenly and inexplicably after having remained sedately glued to a piece of cardboard for twenty years.

After a frantic search, the gastropod was discovered admiring the exhibits in a far distant wing of the museum. The nonrobbed savants put their brains together on the problem, and decided that during his lonesome and sedentary existence of twenty decades, he had lived on the glue which held his apparently inert carcass to the cardboard on which he was mounted. The glue finished, there was nothing to keep him at home, either from an alimentary or adhesive point of view, so he went. The wandering mollusc has been returned to his position, where he is secured this time by enough glue to keep him in food for at least another century

Moscow Has Glass Houses

New Type Of Architecture Becoming Popular In Russia

If new school of Russian architects has its way, the Soviet Union in time will be a place where people literally live in glass houses Already they have begun to construct a number of new buildings in which glass is the predominant material, with a mere framework of steel and concrete to hold the transparent walls together

Set among the shabby ornate houses of old Moscow, these structures in the transparent area is larger than the opaque. One wonders how these houses, which are all windows and no wall, would fare in the event of excitement, such as the cities knew in 1917. A few well-aimed bricks would have them in ruins.

The new houses are simplified to the point where they seem built with a child's toy blocks, with wide windows of glass all round. Straight lines everywhere, and the few curves are full circles, without any of the decorations and ellipses of the older structures. They seem to be the other extreme perhaps deliberately so of the chastened work architecture with their spirals and onion-shaped domes characteristic of old Russia.

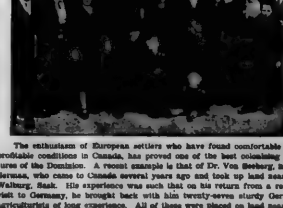
NEW SETTLERS FOR SASKATCHEWAN



The enthusiasm of European settlers who have found comfortable and prosperous homes in Canada, has proved one of the best colonizing features of the Dominion. A recent example is that of Dr. Von Seeberg, noted German, who came to Canada several years ago and took up land near St. Walburg, Sask. His experience was such that on his return from a recent visit to Germany, he brought back with him twenty-seven sturdy German agriculturists of long experience. All of these were placed on land near St. Walburg, by F. J. Freer, Superintendent of Land Settlement for the Canadian National Railways. The photograph shows Dr. Von Seeberg (holding boy's hand) and some of the party on their arrival in Winnipeg.

The new houses are simplified to the point where they seem built with a child's toy blocks, with wide windows of glass all round. Straight lines everywhere, and the few curves are full circles, without any of the decorations and ellipses of the older structures. They seem to be the other extreme perhaps deliberately so of the chastened work architecture with their spirals and onion-shaped domes characteristic of old Russia.

Reverted To Law

A clergyman who had given up his former position as a magistrate in order to enter the church, was conducting his first marriage service.

"Will thou take this woman by the lily wedded husband" he asked the bride.

The bride answered eagerly: "I will."

"And you," he continued, addressing the bridegroom, "what have you to say in your defense?"

NEW SETTLERS FOR SASKATCHEWAN

The enthusiasm of European settlers who have found comfortable and prosperous homes in Canada, has proved one of the best colonizing features of the Dominion. A recent example is that of Dr. Von Seeberg, noted German, who came to Canada several years ago and took up land near St. Walburg, Sask. His experience was such that on his return from a recent visit to Germany, he brought back with him twenty-seven sturdy German agriculturists of long experience. All of these were placed on land near St. Walburg, by F. J. Freer, Superintendent of Land Settlement for the Canadian National Railways. The photograph shows Dr. Von Seeberg (holding boy's hand) and some of the party on their arrival in Winnipeg.

National Museum Of Canada Planning Extensive Research Throughout West This Season

The National Museum of Canada will according to an announcement made by Dr. W. H. Collins, Acting Director, have several parties engaged in field work in Western Canada during the season of 1926. Collections will be made for the museum and for study, and scientific investigations will be carried on that cannot be conducted except in the field

H. I. Smith, who has been investigating the ancient village site, shell heaps and rock carvings of the Indians on the mound of British Columbia, will continue this work around Prince Rupert during the summer. During part of the season he will take motion pictures illustrating the manners and customs of some Indian tribes not represented in the Dominion's borders, and that they shall go home with pleasant recollections is the latter consideration the Natural Resources Service at the end of the tourist season last year reported that its correspondents [illegible] that the visitors noted for the most part satisfied and pleased with Canadian hospitality Allowances were willingly made for roads under repair and Canadian courtesy was fully recognized; what complaints there were were based on the lack of accommodation except in the larger centres, and to overcharging. The Service issued a warning "Don't Overcharge the Tourists," in which it was stated that there were some very definite complaints of such ill-treatment This warning received very wide publicity, and it is not expected that there will be complaints this year Nevertheless before the season is far advanced it is believed to be in the public interest to repeat the warning and no doubt the boards of trade, municipal officials, automobile associations and the merchants will be on the look out for offenders.

A pleasing feature of this year's correspondence is, that a great many more people in the United States are better acquainted with Canadian geography. In place of writing "Please tell us about Canada" they now want to know about the roads connecting certain cities, the accommodation and the sporting and recreational attractions. Many are interested in points of historical interest

A great many persons who visited Canada last year will come again this season and this is highly significant of the interest in our country when they plan to afford the time for another visit in the immediately succeeding years. The following is from a letter written by a woman in Maryland, who motored in Canada last year, and asks for help in planning a trip this year.

"I had heard so much about Canada before last year, but I'd always thought of it as some far away place, and having people different from us in the States. I don't know when I've ever felt more at home than I did while in Canada, and your people are some of the finest on earth I'm sure. So hospitable, and even the people you don't know were many willing to assist visitors and even bearing with them in their traffic errors. Make up your minds for many letters like this but I'm sure that some folks with whom I've talked about Canada have the same opinion that I have."

Canadians who have helped to entertain and assist our American visitors in their journeying through Canada will appreciate that kindly expression of appreciation and there are very many more like it. Canada welcomes the tourists and does want to see them come again.

Simplex Bituminous Roads

By means of actual tests in road construction it has been definitely established that the bituminous sands of northern Alberta can be successfully employed for paving purposes. As the present supply of these sands is practically unlimited, their presence and use appear to have solved the problem of permanent paving and road construction in the western provinces.

Lived On Strange Food

Rare Meals in British Museum Evidently Ate Ghee

The retire force of the British Museum knocked off work recently and devoted itself to searching for one of the rarest snails in its collection, which disappeared suddenly and inexplicably after having remained sedately glued to a piece of cardboard for twenty years.

After a frantic search, the gastropod was discovered admiring the exhibits in a far distant wing of the museum. The nonrobbed savants put their brains together on the problem, and decided that during his lonesome and sedentary existence of twenty decades, he had lived on the glue which held his apparently inert carcass to the cardboard on which he was mounted. The glue finished, there was nothing to keep him at home, either from an alimentary or adhesive point of view, so he went. The wandering mollusc has been returned to his position, where he is secured this time by enough glue to keep him in food for at least another century

New Type Of Architecture Becoming Popular In Russia

If new school of Russian architects has its way, the Soviet Union in time will be a place where people literally live in glass houses Already they have begun to construct a number of new buildings in which glass is the predominant material, with a mere framework of steel and concrete to hold the transparent walls together

Set among the shabby ornate houses of old Moscow, these structures in the transparent area is larger than the opaque. One wonders how these houses, which are all windows and no wall, would fare in the event of excitement, such as the cities knew in 1917. A few well-aimed bricks would have them in ruins.

The new houses are simplified to the point where they seem built with a child's toy blocks, with wide windows of glass all round. Straight lines everywhere, and the few curves are full circles, without any of the decorations and ellipses of the older structures. Modern Miracles

On Victoria Day, Premier MacKenzie King gave a broadcast message from Ottawa to a 100,000 crowd assembled in Hyde Park, London, England, and a little later High Commissioner Larkin telephoned from the British metropolis to exchange greetings with reference to the incident. Hitherto would have been regarded as a miracle not so very long ago, yet the two combined scarcely caused a ripple of public attention, so used have we become to modern marvels.

The trouble about worshipping ancestors is that people who do it seldom provide the same privilege for posterity.

Red Cross Editorial Contest

Congratulations Are Extended To the Winners in Both Daily and Weekly Sections

Congratulations are now being widely offered all over Canada to those who have won prizes in the recent editorial contest inaugurated by the Canadian Red Cross Society, for the best editorials published in the daily and weekly press of the Dominion, in honor of the memory of Henri Dunant and the founding of Red Cross for the world.

Prizes have been awarded to: Robert Henderson, of the St. Thomas Times-Journal, St. Thomas, Ontario, for the best editorial published in any daily paper, while Miss Mary E. Stuart Clendenan, of the Farmers' Advocate, London, Ontario, took the leading place in the weekly paper section in English. The other bright and clever people who won honors and prizes were: Second for dailies, H. B. Christie, The Expositor, Brantford, Ontario. Third, Miss Kenneth M. Haig, Manitoba Free Press, Winnipeg, Manitoba. It is worthy of note that Miss Clendenan is the present president of the Canadian Women's Press Club, while Miss Haig is a past president.

Prizes for the weekly papers in English: second, C. J. Allison, The Asquith Record, Asquith, Saskatchewan; Third, C. W. Peterson, The Farm and Ranch Review, Calgary, Alberta.

For the French section, prizes were awarded respectively to Adjutor Savard, Le Patrie, Montreal, P.Q.; J. M. Bernal, Le Soleil, Quebec, P.Q.; and to Charles Gautier, Le Droit, Ottawa, Ontario.

The judges for the English section formed into an adjudicating committee headed by Dr. James W. Robertson, chairman of the Central Council of the Canadian Red Cross Society were: Dr. Lorne Pierce, Editor, the Ryerson Press, Toronto; J. F. B. Livesay, general manager, Canadian Press, Toronto; J. M. Elson, Canadian Author's Association, Toronto; Professor H. M. Whitney, History Dept., University of Toronto.

For the French section the adjudicatory were: Dr. Leon Lamarche, of the Commercial High Studies School, Montreal; Mr. Robert Choquette, professor of the University of Montreal, and Dr. Victor Morin, past president of the Canadian Authors' Association.

The contest was entered by sixty-one papers, but dozens more contributed editorials without actually entering the contest. Several million readers were thereby informed that it was Henri Dunant who actually originated the idea of Red Cross for the world, whereas, formerly, only a vague idea that Florence Nightingale had done so, existed in many people's minds. Florence Nightingale, however, was publicly acknowledged by Dunant in a speech in London in 1873, as having been his inspiration.

Fur seals have been unusually plentiful this season along the west coast of Vancouver Island, the Indian, to whom pelagic sealing is permitted if guns are not used, have been taking them in large number of the section in English. The other bright and clever people who won honors and prizes were: Second for dailies, H. B. Christie, The Expositor, Brantford, Ontario. Third, Miss Kenneth M. BRITISH TRADE AND FOREIGN COMPETITION

Sir Charles Sykes, former coalition Liberal member of the British House of Commons, is concerned over foreign competition and its effects on British trade. "Trouble remedies are required" he said in a speech a few days ago on the White Star liner "Regina," "if Great Britain is to be restored to that position in the world which she formerly held."

Farmers' Marketing Tour

The next morning saw us out early ashore. At 8.30 we were viewing the Shaw Hill Police Station adjoining Smithfield Market, the finest police station in Great Britain, yet, notwithstanding its modernity, cleanliness and hygienic advantages and the interesting picture of lovely Lydia which we found in the policemen's recreation room, none of us really wished to stay

From this last word in police stations we went to the smoke house and provision establishment of Messrs. George Bowles Nicholls & Co., Ltd., where we were shown sides of bacon from twelve countries including Canada. Mr. George F. Nicholls, Managing Director compared the various qualities. Canadian bacon he said, was placed fourth in public favor First English, then Irish, then Danish, and then Canadian. Cooperation was also made with butter, cheese and eggs. Two thirteen eggs six years old were broken until all but to be perfectly fresh as far as edibility was concerned. Such bad eggs said we, were examples of what eggs should be. A good deal was learned from Mr. Nicholls regarding the requirements of the British market and also what measures brought forth many questions from the party.

We were now taken in hand by the Central Markets Committee of the Corporation of the City of London in the person of Mr. Alfred Hall, Meat Market and Spitalfields Fruit and Vegetable Market including the extensions which are being made to the latter at a cost of $10,000,000 We had scarcely time to reflect upon the history of this seven-hundred-years-old market place. But we had to be content in the world, except to recall here that Wat Tyler was slain by Sir William Walworth in the presence of King Richard II., and that it had been the scene of the burning of Protestant martyrs, for soon we were travelling through scales of meat which never seemed to end There were 5,000 meals upon the hooks All this meat had come into the market that morning and would be sold if it by three that afternoon! Such is the meat-consuming power of Greater London. One of the features of the expeditious handling of meat is the Great Western Railway's depot which lies immediately below the market. Here, through the carting of meat through the streets. Access from the depot to the market is by two hydraulic lifts from each of which 100 to 150 sides of beef can be cleared every hour. The delivery facility was afforded in reply questions of anybody in the market, both meat and fruit are available, and a mass of information was obtained having a direct bearing on the marketing of Canadian products.

After three hours of tireless inspection we were ready for the Mansion House and the reception of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, Sir Charles and Lady Bathe In this imposing house, where since the 18th century, the Lord Mayors of London have received kings, princes, statesmen and other representatives from all lands, we were given a cordial welcome and made to feel at home. During a pleasant and privileged half hour we were shown the old kitchens with the spits on which used to be roasted barons of beef, entertained in the great Egyptian Hall, and accorded a view of the City's gold plate.

Leaving the Mansion House with some regret at the shortness of the stay, we made the brief walk to the Guildhall as guests of the Central Markets Committee.

We entered the Guildhall with a feeling akin to reverence. For London is the heart of the Empire, the Guildhall is the heart of London. It has been the centre of stirring episodes throughout many centuries and the pillars of the Great Hall which were pilloried by James to a height of thirty feet, still bear the marks of the Great Fire of London. Here the great images Gog and Magog are still on guard, and in this room on July 28th, 1915, Sir Robert Borden was accorded the Freedom of the City of London, and tributes was paid to the gallant and immediate defence of the Canadian Force in the Second Battle of Ypres.

Our luncheon table was set in the famous Art Gallery, a colorful surrounding. Of these historic and most artistic interest. It was fitting that Alderman W. C. Nell should preside at a luncheon to Canadian farmers for he was foremost in the efforts which secured the abolition of the embargo on Canadian cattle. With us was the High Commissioner, Vincent Larkin. The principal toast was "The Great Dominions of Canada," in reply to which a striking tribute to the opportunities which Canada possesses was given by the Hon. George Lansbury, who revealed that as an English workman he had passed and re-passed the Guildhall daily for eight years or more, but never in his wildest dreams had he thought he would one day dine there! It is difficult to convey the cordiality, the spirit of friendship which marked the speeches on this occasion when London accorded to the Dominion people the honored seat, as the prize won which the Corporation's most treasured possessions was brought from the vaults for our inspection This was the sceptre which for over 1,000 years has been symbol of the City's dignity and is carried before the newly crowned monarch at every coronation With this we were shown a purse that was the gift of Queen Elizabeth. The dated souvenir mash container unmounted with the City's coat of arms given to us after the luncheon will be treasured by every member of the party no less than the memory of the great day on which Canadian farmers were guests of the Empire's Capital.

Entertainment gave place in the afternoon to a session with representatives of the Provincial and Public Trades of London under the auspices of the London Chamber of Commerce Here we listened in plain talk on both sides which brought forth information of the greatest value. An eventful day concluded with an evening at Drury Lane the largest and most famous of London's theatres, where we saw Dorothy Brunton in one of the most successful musical shows ever presented in London.

THE EARLY LIFE OF SAUL

Golden Text "Remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youth" Ecclesiastes 12:1

Lesson: Deuteronomy 6:4-9; Philippians 3:4-6, Acts 22 3, 27 28

Recommended Reading Psalm 119. 33-40

Explanations and Comments

The Religious Training Of a Jewish Boy. Deuteronomy 6:4-9. Jehovah is the one absolute God. He must be loved with all the heart, soul and strength. His commandments must be laid to heart, must be taught to children, must be constant subject of conversation, must be everywhere there and at all times at home, and when on the road, by way, in the evening lying down, and in the morning on rising. They must be bound upon the hand for a sign, and worn as bands (frontlets) between the eyes. This "sign" was worn by the Jews to this day in the same way as children tie knots in their handkerchiefs, or change rings on their fingers, to remind the wearer of something he should not forget.

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget"

Religious Training Of a Jewish Boy

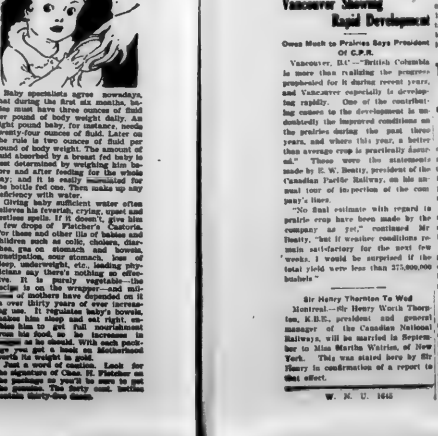
This was the teaching of Deuteronomy, and we may be sure that this was the teaching which Saul received while a lad in his father's home at Tarsus.

"Oh, if our children all were brought
Hetimes to God and duly taught
To honor and obey,
Pre-eminently blest were they;
And blessed as with a threefold cord
Would be our gallon to the Lord."

"How Much Water Should Baby Get?"

"A Famous Authority's Rule

By Ruth Britton



Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. As eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid needed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily measured for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, sour stomach, constipation, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians agree there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, so children run to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With such proof, are you not a book on Motherhood and Baby's Welfare?

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the wrapper, so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottle is the thirty-two dose.

HALIFAX MAY BECOME A GRAIN SHIPPING PORT

Montreal—Halifax may become a grain port, shipping some 85c or 40 million bushels of grain per season, if three loading berths are provided for the present, elevator instead of the one berth there now. This was held as a definite probability by representatives of the Canadian Wheat Pool at the royal commission investigating Maritime Provinces' matters.

The port, as provided for now, however, was presented in very drab colors so far as grain was concerned It had not sufficient berth accommodation, steamer space was lacking, the expedience of the pool in shipping Buenos Ayres bushels through there in the past year had not been favorable, and it was not known as a grain port.

B. L. Smith, general sales manager, and Albert Blake, traffic representative in Montreal were the witnesses appearing for the Wheat Pool and they were subjected to close examination by the commission chairman, Sir Andrew Rae Duncan.

Five or six million bushels was given by Mr Smith as the probable limit for the present to which Halifax could be used owing to the lack of liners making their terminals there. Something per cent, the pool's best year, since space, this type of accommodation being especially good because of the small ice boiling down in Europe

France Near Breaking Point With Russia

Trouble Arose Over Soviets Action Regarding Moscow Fair

Paris.—A controversy which may result in France breaking all relations with the Soviet or Russia is going on between Premier Raymond Poincare and Commissar Christian Rakovsky, Soviet Russia's new ambassador to France, and is becoming more embittered daily. The trouble arose when the trade plenipotent Paris with posters announcing that a fair would be held in Moscow the last of March, urging the French manufacturers to send their exhibits to be represented

A number of concerns here leased stalls and show grounds through the commercial bureau of the Soviet embassy, prepared the products for shipment to Russia to show as the fair and sought their return to Paris when the exhibits were taken charge of the exhibits and take orders for the wares.

The Soviet Government then refused to grant passport visas or Parisport firemen, so that the exhibitors were unable to participate. Many of the firms asked for reimbursement of the money paid in advance, the fee visits refused.

Vancouver Showing Rapid Development

Owen Much to Praises Says President Of C.P.R.

Vancouver, B.C.—British Columbia is more than realizing the progress prophesied for it during recent years, and Vancouver especially is developing rapidly. One of the contributing causes to the development is undoubtedly the improved conditions on the prairies during the past three years, and where this year, a better than average crop is practically assured." These were the statements made by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, on his annual tour of inspection of the company's lines.

"No final estimate with regard to prairie crop have been made by the company as yet," continued Mr. Beatty, "but if weather conditions remain satisfactory for the next few weeks, I would be surprised if the total yield were less than 375,000,000 bushels"

Sir Henry Thornton To Wed

Liberal Leader In Nova Scotia

Final Week of Campaign to be Spent in Ontario

Antigonish, N.S.—Surpluses in the public accounts reductions in taxation, old age pensions and the continental issue were the matters dealt with by Mr. Mackenzie King here.

"What about Wall Street," called out someone who looked in through a window of the rink building for a moment

"Isn't that a fine example of Tory inertia" asked Mr King.

"Sir, by night shower his breed in a lumber shanty and runs away" it is apparent to Mr. Coolidge that France will submit the debts to arrangement with the agreement reached by his duly authorized representatives with United States officials.

The president, it was said yesterday, is entirely judgment and patriotism of Mr Baker, but he realizes it is a matter beyond his own power to settle who is no longer charged with the responsibility of administering public affairs, to suggest large expenditures of the taxpayers' money or payment of it out of the taxpayers' pockets.

To Analyze Minerals Of Saskatchewan

No Gold Found in North Says Mining Engineer

Regina.—Completing a survey of the Lac la Ronge mining area in northern Saskatchewan, W. H Hastings, mining engineer of the Saskatchewan department of labor and industries, has returned with several hundred pounds of samples for analysis.

Some of the minerals are: Pyrite, magnetite, copper sulphide, glass-sand, fire-clay, iron sand, coal and pyrrhotite Several copper claims have been staked in the Sturgeon Weir Rivers district

Lack of transportation, said Mr. Hastings, was one of the chief problems in the opening up of the northern resources. Another was the failure to find silver or gold in any value of the minerals, and prospectors fought shy of less valuable claims

Contest In Prince Albert

Hon. Mackenzie King Will Be Opposed By J. E. Diefenbaker

Prince Albert, Sask.—Rt Hon. W. L. M. King, leader of the Liberal party, will be opposed by J. E. Diefenbaker, Conservative, unanimously chosen at a convention of 300 delegates in a three-cornered contest Oct tober, Mr. Diefenbaker was opposed by Charles Marlenath, the present Liberal candidate and Andrew Knox, Progressive. The vote was Marlenath, 5,391; Diefenbaker, 5,412, Knox, 2,624.

Mr Marlenath later resigned to make way for Mr. King, then premier, and in a by-election held Feb. 28, 1926, the Liberal leader defeated Captain R. L. Burgess, independent, by a large majority The vote was: Mr King, 7,320; Capt Burgess, 2,290.

Thousands Take Part In Diamond Rush

Population in Transvaal District Increased Nearly by Fifty Thousand

Johannesburg.—South Africa's latest diamond rush brought 15,000 persons by motor car, train and by foot using kit or bathing costumbo, to a farm in the Transvaal district. Five posters in one of the finds have already found diamonds worth $150,000

Among the spinters were several runners with good track records. One syndicate employed 30 university athletes as runners.

More than 25,000 claims were pegged out in all, the population of the district was increased from a few hundred to about 50,000 almost overnight.

NO CHANGE IN U.S. DEBT POLICY SAYS COOLIDGE

Paul Smiths, N.Y. — President Coolidge knows of no reason for making any change in the government policy toward the foreign war time debts owned the United States.

All the great powers, with one exception, it was added, had funded their debts to the United States and it is apparent to Mr. Coolidge that France will submit the debts to arrangement with the agreement reached by his duly authorized representatives with United States officials.

The president, it was said yesterday, is entirely judgment and patriotism of Mr Baker, but he realizes it is a matter beyond his own power to settle who is no longer charged with the responsibility of administering public affairs, to suggest large expenditures of the taxpayers' money or payment of it out of the taxpayers' pockets.

No Monopoly Of Union Jack

Hon. J. H. Thomas Speaks at Luncheon in Toronto

Toronto Saying that with a general election pending and that for that reason he must refrain from discussing politics and thus disappoint the press, Hon. J. H. Thomas, who was colonial secretary in the Macdonald Labor government, delivered an address at the exhibition directors' luncheon here

"The greatest mistake was ever made," he said, "than to assume that the Union Jack, which has stood for democracy for generations and for the most Democratic constitution, is the monopoly of any class or creed."

Says Conservative Star Rising

Premier Meighen Addresses Large Gathering in Montreal

Montreal Six to seven thousand people were assembled in the Forum when Premier Meighen addressed a meeting here On the platform were distinguished visitors from every part of Canada Sir Alfred Mond, member of the British cabinet under Lloyd George, was there with Lady Mond.

Premier Meighen received a great ovation Different groups in the big hall gave him their songs and cheers He began in French His voice was heard at first, but steadied after a few minutes He expressed confidence in the success of his party in the coming elections.

The Conservative star is rising from the Atlantic to the Pacific, he said. Mr Meighen spoke for about fifteen minutes in French.

Resuming into English he said he would review within the compass of a single hour," problems which presented themselves for solution.

Mr. Meighen took up what he described as "the most vital of all topics, the tariff"

His fiscal policy, he said, was not different tonight from what it had always been.

"A stable tariff on a public basis" he said "is the policy of the Conservative party, he said, having established a tariff he would leave it there and let Canada's chance to grow.

There will be no hermine made at the expense of the fundamental industries of Canada for the purpose of votes in the House of Commons."

he added.

Moving Western Crop

Grain Movement From the West is Now Under Way

Winnipeg —The task of moving the bumper crop in the Western Provinces has begun. The grain movement report of the car service department of the C.N.R for the week ending June 15, landed with 548,000 bushels, which is almost double that of the last report, August 28. Grain marketed totalled 848,000 bushels and an increase of 278,000 bushels in storage at country elevators is also noted. The task now is storage in the elevators on the lines of the system amounts to 1,191,000. Most of the movement to date is from points in Manitoba where shipping is well advanced, but the report also specifies a shipment of new grain from Alberta 1913 on the Drumheller division of the Alberta district for Port Arthur and a similar shipment from the same point to Vancouver.

German Immigrant's Top U. S. List

Washington, D.C. — Immigration figures, issued by the state department, showed that the largest number of visas so far this fiscal year which began July 1, have been issued to immigrants from Germany, with the Irish Free State second in the list and Great Britain and Northern Ireland third.

Hail Insurance Rate Increased

Directors Municipal Association Decide on Increase of 1 Per Cent

Regina —An extra levy of 1½ cents per acceded area in addition to the annual flat rate of 4 cents on all cultivated land under the municipal hail insurance scheme was decided on by the directors of the Saskatchewan Municipal Hail Insurance Association at a recent meeting

The heavy losses of the season as far, which the amount is $1,250 000, were given as the reason for the additional levy. There is still a few acres to raise before the liability of the association ceases and to meet this a further $60,000 was provided. Thus the total levy will be $1,250,000 to be collected from the farmers in municipalities subscribing to the scheme

Some of the individual liabilities to the association the one suffering the heaviest loss was Marquis with a total of $161,000

British House Adjourns

Amendment For Meeting Earlier Than November 8 Was Defeated

London —A proposal that members of the House of Commons should not sit on 21, it rise until November 8, was adopted by the House by a vote of 23 to 189

Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader, moved to amend, by substituting October 31 for November 8. In view of the number delegates representing which he said the government should be able to get the real opinion of the Winston Churchill replied the government was perfectly free to call upon parliament at any time circumstances warranted

The emergency regulations in view of the coal strike were continued for another month at last night's session

Less Crime In Britain

Present Respect For Law In England Never Exceeded

Quebec —Quebec welcomed to Canada Right Hon Lord Justice Greene on the invitation of the Canadian Bar Association, to address the organization during its annual convention, which will be held at St. John N.B.

Asked if crime was on the increase or showed a tendency towards decreasing as compared with a few years ago Lord Darling said he thought that as a whole the English people's respect for the laws of the land had not yet been as great as it was at present

Britain May Oppose Mineowner

London —Rt Hon Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, in an unusually temperate speech intimated, in the house, that the government might support a national settlement of the coal strike, even against the wishes of the mineowners, if the workers would be reasonable on the question of wages and hours.

SCHEDULE "A"

AGREEMENT made this 21st. day of June, A.D. 1928.

BETWEEN:

THE TOWN OF FORT SASKATCHEWAN, (hereinafter called "the Town")

OF THE FIRST PART,

and

CALGARY POWER COMPANY LIMITED, having its Head Office at the City of Montreal, in the Province of Quebec, (hereinafter called "the Company")

OF THE SECOND PART.

WITNESSETH, that the parties hereto covenant, promise and agree each with the other as follows:

1. The Town shall sell to the Company and the Company shall purchase from the Town the whole of the electric undertaking as a going concern and profitmaking, but in no wise limiting the generality of the foregoing, the whole of its electric distribution system consisting of all switch-boards, supplies, spare parts, meters, transformers, tools, fixtures, wires, poles and all other plant, apparatus and equipment of every nature, kind and description, the property of the Town and now being in or upon the streets, alleys, private or public buildings within the Town, the foregoing being hereinafter referred to as "Town's electrical undertaking."

2. The purchase payable by the Company to the Town for said "Town's electrical undertaking" free and clear of all liens, charges and encumbrances, and for the franchises and other rights and privileges herein granted, shall be the principal sum of Twenty-Six Thousand (26,000) Dollars, which said sum shall be paid in cash, upon the execution of this agreement.

PROVIDED that the said Calgary Power Company shall not be called to pay said purchase price until the Town has complied with all the formalities and requirements of Law empowering it to enter into this agreement.

3. The Town hereby grants to the Company the sole and exclusive right, license and privilege for a term or period of ten (10) years from the date of this agreement, of the streets, away from time to time be extended, pursuant to the provisions hereof, to erect, maintain, operate, and keep those of the Town as at present constituted or as the same may from time to time be extended and to the inhabitants thereof, all such electric power and energy for all purposes for which electricity is or may hereafter the said term or any extension thereof become suitable or adaptable to the Town and its inhabitants.

4. The Town hereby grants to the Company for said term of ten (10) years the permission and right to enter upon, use and occupy such of the streets, lanes and alleys of the Town as may be required by the Company for the purpose of erecting, maintaining, repairing, renewing and operating the said electric distributing system, including poles, wires, conduits, cables and all other apparatus and appliances necessary or convenient to erect, maintain and operate an electric energy and power, transforming and distribution system, including poles, wires, conduits, cables and all other apparatus and appliances of every kind and description and including the right and privilege to the Company to lay and maintain on private or public places to trim and remove all parts of trees interfering with the proper erection, maintenance and operation of poles, cables, wires, towers and other fixtures necessary or incidental to the due and efficient performance of the authority hereby granted.

5. The Town shall discharge and pay as and when the same become due and payable, and indemnify and save harmless the Company against the payment of all rates, taxes, assessments and liabilities including all unpaid debentures which are now or shall hereafter be or become charged upon or constitute liens, encumbrances or charges, on any part or portion of said "Town's electrical undertaking" and shall cause the same to be discharged and released.

6. The Company shall, subject to the provisions herein contained on or before the 30th day of November, A. D. 1928 and during the currency of this agreement and any extension thereof, supply at all times and continuously and as herein provided the Town and the inhabitants thereof with sufficient electric power and energy for the Town and the inhabitants thereof, subject only to interruption by unavoidable act of God or other matters beyond the control of the Company.

7. IT IS AGREED AND UNDERSTOOD that this agreement is entered into on the condition that the Company shall have the right after execution of a high tension transmission line from any of its hydro electric power plants or sub-stations within a radius of twenty-five (25) miles of the Town, connect said high tension transmission line to the Town's distribution system in the Town so that electric energy and power can be furnished to the Town by means of such high tension transmission line, PROVIDED ALWAYS that the Company covenants and agrees in any event to connect, prior to the 30th day of November, 1928, the distribution system in the Town with a high tension transmission line from one of its hydro generating plants.

8. The Company shall supply the Town and its inhabitants the electric energy and power required as aforesaid, in the following manner:

(a) For lighting and heating purposes and for use in small motors single phase alternating current at 110 Volts (1 wire system) or at 220 and 550 (3 wire system) and at a normal frequency of sixty (60) cycles per second.

(b) For motors of five (5) horsepower and over and for small motors at the option of the Company, three phase alternating current at 220 volts and at a normal frequency of sixty (60) cycles per second. Where the consumers demand for power is of such magnitude as reasonably to warrant a special transformer installation for his exclusive use, he shall be supplied at such other standard voltage as he may require.

The general variation in the voltages specified in the foregoing subsections of this clause shall not exceed six (6) per centum, above or below the specified voltage and the general variation in frequency shall not exceed one (1) per cent above or below the specified frequency.

9. The Company shall take all reasonable precautions to guard against interruption or variation in the supply of power and energy and shall terminate the same with all reasonable dispatch. If it become necessary to limit or to diminish the supply of power in order to make repair or changes to the Company's equipment, the Company shall give reasonable notice to the Town and shall arrange to make such interruption or diminution at such time as will cause the minimum inconvenience in the use of the same.

10. The Town shall purchase from the Company and the Company shall sell to the Town, during the currency of this agreement, and any extension thereof, all power which the Town may require for any municipal purposes.

11. The Company shall, during the currency of this agreement, and any renewal or extension thereof, maintain and keep in good repair and proper working order a complete system of electric power and energy, including the replacement of lamps. The Company shall furnish on all night street lighting services at dusk up to twilight, the outstanding all the present street lights or lamps at such time however as may be designated by the Town Engineer and such time when the Town Engineer and such additional street lights or lamps as the Town may from time to time demand, for which the Town shall pay to the Company at the following rates:

Each lamp on overhead 250 candlepower—$2.00 per month.

Each lamp over 250 candlepower but not exceeding 600 candlepower—$3.00 per month;

Each lamp over 600 candlepower but not exceeding 1,000 candlepower—$5.10 per month.

PROVIDED that in the event of the Town requiring the installation of the line extensions to the present system of more than 250 feet for each additional lamp, then the Town shall pay to the Company in addition to the foregoing monthly rates an additional charge of 20 cents per month per lamp for each 100 feet over 250 feet extension per lamp. Provided that the number of street lights shall at no time be less than thirty-five.

AND FURTHER PROVIDED that the Company will move any existing street light or lights as may be required by the Town from time to time on condition that the Town pay the Company the actual cost of any such removal.

12. The maximum rates or prices which the Town and (or) Villages for electric energy and power in the Town, during the term of this agreement, and any extension thereof, shall be in accordance with the following schedule:

(1) Domestic service, available only for lighting, heating, cooking, domestic power and other uses in houses and apartments and institutions of a domestic character.

Service charge of 50 cents per month together with an energy charge as follows:

First 30 kilowatt hours per month —10 cents per kilowatt hour.

Next 20 kilowatt hours per month —8½ cents per kilowatt hour.

All over 50 kilowatt hours per month—7½ cents per kilowatt hour.

With a minimum monthly charge (including service charge) of $1.50 subject to a prompt payment discount of 25 cents, making $1.25 net per month.

2. Commercial service, available for all purposes where other rates do not apply.

Service charge of 50 cents per month for the first 100 watts of connected load and 25 cents per month for each additional 100 watts together with an energy charge on the following basis:

First 100 hours' use of installed capacity 10 cents per kilowatt hour.

All over 100 hours' use of installed capacity 10 cents per two kilowatt hours.

With a minimum monthly charge (including service charge) of $1.50 subject to a prompt payment discount of 25 cents making $1.25 per month net.

3. Power Service; (alternating current) available for motors and commercial heating apparatus such as boilers, irons, coffee urns, hot water heater and stoves in commercial establishments.

Service charge of $1.00 per month per kilovolt ampere (K.V.A.) of installation (one motor horsepower or one kilowatt in electrical heating apparatus to be considered equivalent to 1 K.V.A.) together with an energy charge on the following basis:

First 100 kilowatt hours per month per K.V.A. of installation 10 cents for two kilowatt hours.

All over 100 kilowatt hours and up to 300 kilowatt hours per month per K.V.A. of installation 10 cents for 1 kilowatt hours.

All over 300 kilowatt hours per month per K.V.A. of installation 10 cents for six kilowatt hours.

With a minimum charge (including service charge) of $2.50 subject to prompt payment discount of 30 cents making a minimum net charge of $2.00 per month.

PROVIDED that when the total revenue derived by the Company from the sale of electric power and energy within the limits of the Town exceeds for any calendar year the sum of Twenty Thousand ($15,000.00) Dollars the service charge therefor shall be reduced by the sum of ten (10) cents per month to each domestic and commercial customer and the rates for each additional increase of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars in such total revenue for any year thereafter for such additional increase of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars in such total revenue for any year thereafter for further reduction of ten (10) cents per month on the service charge to domestic and commercial consumers, more until such service charge has been reduced to fifty (50) cents per month per consumer.

13. The service charge to all Churches in the Town shall be in accordance with the domestic service rate but the charge for energy consumed shall be in accordance with the commercial service rate.

14. All accounts other than for street lighting shall be subject to a prompt payment discount of ten (10) per cent. computed on the dollars thereof if paid within ten (10) days from the date of rendering, and the account on all accounts under $4.00 being 30 cents. All accounts shall be rendered at such time as may be agreed upon between the Company and the Town as shall be designated by the Company.

15. In the event of the Company at any time hereafter granting any reduction in the rates now charged by the Town and (or) Villages between Calgary and Edmonton in which the Company has a sale and exclusive franchise for the supplying thereto of electric energy and power, then and in such event and unless such reduction in rates in each other municipality and (or) Village be subject to conditions not existing in the Town of Fort Saskatchewan the Company shall grant a corresponding reduction in the rates herein provided for the supplying of electricity to the Town and inhabitants thereof.

16. In the event that the existing under power rentals and (or) taxation in which the Company is liable be increased or that any new charges or taxes be imposed on the Company by the Parliament of Canada or the Legislature of Alberta or by any Government Department either Dominion or Provincial, or by any taxing authority whatsoever the foregoing rates, at the option of the Company, shall be increased commensurately.

PROVIDED that this clause shall not operate so as to increase the rates charged to consumers in the Town unless there is a corresponding increase in the rates charged to the Town and Villages mentioned or referred to in paragraph 15 hereof.

17. All meters shall be supplied by the Company and no rentals shall be charged to consumers for the same. Any meter may be inspected by the Company or by the consumer at any time, and may at any time, upon the request of the consumer and after seven days' notice to the Company, be tested or calibrated by the proper official employed by the Department of Trade and Commerce of Canada. If such test shows that any meter is in error by more than 2 per cent. either way, then such meter shall be forthwith corrected or be replaced by one that is accurate. If a test made pursuant to notice from a consumer shows the error to be less than 2 per cent. the expense of such test shall be borne by the consumer, but if the test shows the error to be more than 2 per cent the expense shall be borne by the Company.

18. The Bills for power supplied during the two calendar months preceding such tests shall be corrected in accordance with the error of the meter provided such error exceeds the aforesaid limit of 2 per cent. and such correction shall be computed by both parties as settlement in full to the date of all claims on account of inaccuracy of the meter.

19. Subject to the provisions of this agreement the Company shall supply electric energy at the meter on the consumer's premises and the cost of the necessary connection from the Company's distribution system to the said building shall be borne by the Company and the meter shall be the place of delivery of electric energy. The consumer shall assume all risk and responsibility in connection with his own wiring on his own premises, PROVIDED THAT that the Company shall not be required to make a connection with any consumer's premises unless there is a good indebtedness or agreement with the Company a sum equal to twice his monthly minimum charge for such making a minimum net charge of $5.00 per month.

PROVIDED that when the total revenue derived by the Company from the sale of electric power and energy within the limits of the Town exceeds for any calendar year the sum of Twenty Thousand ($15,000.00) Dollars the service charge therefor shall be reduced by the sum of ten (10) cents per month to each domestic and commercial customer and the rates for each additional increase of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars in such total revenue for any year thereafter for further reduction of ten (10) cents per month on the service charge to domestic and commercial consumers more until such service charge has been reduced to fifty (50) cents per month per consumer.

18. The Company shall not be bound to extend the distribution system (as acquired by the Company from the Town) further than 250 feet to provide service to any one new consumer. In the event of service to any new consumers involving an extension of the distribution system greater than 250 feet for each consumer to be served by such new consumers, then the said consumer or consumers shall jointly deposit with the Company, either a total cash deposit of the sum of $5 for each of said extension in excess of 250 feet per consumer or the sum of Ten Dollars ($10.00) per foot for each of said extension in excess of 250 feet per consumer, whichever sum is greatest, and said deposit shall bear interest at the rate of four (4) per cent. per annum for each full year and the said consumer or consumers shall also so jointly pay in addition to the usual rates as herein provided, a total monthly charge of one (1) per cent of the actual cost of the extension in excess of 250 feet per consumer so long as such excess continues. In the event of any additional consumers or consumers subsequently taking service by means of any such extension they shall make a proportionate deposit and pay their proportion of the monthly charge of One (1) per cent. and the proper proportion of the deposit shall be refunded by the Company to the original depositors in or upon the deposit in the hands of the Company shall at no time exceed one-half of the cost of that part of the extension in excess of 250 feet for each consumer served by the said extension.

19. All accounts shall be due and payable when rendered. If any account to any consumer shall remain unpaid for more than thirty (30) days after the same has been rendered the Company shall have the right, after giving forty-eight (48) hours' notice, to discontinue service and to remove the meter, and it shall not be bound to supply any electric energy to the said consumer thereafter until the said account shall have been paid, together with a reconnection charge which shall be a sum equal to twice the monthly minimum charge for such service, and the said reconnection charge shall be payable whether the meter has actually been removed or not. Any consumer whose premises

EFFORTS MADE TO PUSH WORK ON H. B. ROAD

Further work continues to be pushed on the Hudson Bay Railway, with considerable grading in progress. Whether the road will be finished by the end of 1929, as anticipated, cannot yet be said, but all efforts are being made during the season to finish those parts that can be worked on.

The northward course of the road occurs at Mileage 256 (from The Pas), a few miles northeast of Kettle Rapids. From there the railway will run almost due north to Fort Churchill, avoiding contact with Fort Nelson altogether. Churchill is at Mileage 512, which would indicate that 256 miles of steel still remain to be laid.

With regard to the Fort Churchill itself, officials of the department of railways recall that when Hon Mr. Dunning was asked as to his policy respecting real estate speculation there, he declared that the government had expropriated all lands on the east side of the harbor, where the dock works will be constructed. Compensation for this will be decided in the exchequer court in due time.

Most of the land for the townsite of Churchill was the property of a settler named Ross, who established himself there and homesteaded many years ago. He is now dead but his heirs are scattered through the country. Canada and they will be recompensed for the expropriations.

The loss of the dredge off the Labrador coast last year may delay the harbor works for some time. Throughout the winter a great deal of material was salvaged at Port Nelson and forwarded to Fort Churchill by motor-tractor; other material has been floated up the bay.

As a aeroplane base will be established within a few weeks as soon as the ice conditions in the immediate vicinity of Fort Churchill have become such as to enable the department of national defence [illegible] now at Cormorant Lake north of The Pas, to make the trip to the port.

Caught In Snowstorm

Colorado Tourists Marooned At Summit Of Pike's Peak

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Twenty-five tourists have been rescued from the summit of Pike's Peak after being marooned there for 24 hours by the worst spring snowstorm to visit that region in several years.

Several children were in the group, which had been isolated by gravel banks of snow which covered the upper regions of the 14,000-foot mountain. Word of their plight was brought down when telegraph communications were restored and a snow plow fought through the drifts and reached the stranded tourists.

"Hats" With Cruisers

Warsaw.—The Government has ordered three light cruisers to be built in the mouth of the Vistula as a gesture to Danzig that Poland will brook no interference with her development of merchant marine. This action followed recent difficulties with Danzig Port and Customs authorities, which refused to allow several Polish freighters docking or anchoring facilities at Danzig piers. Danzigers have declared that the ships are a menace, and constitute a danger to the safety of the city.

Privy Council Ruling Important To Dominions

Judgment Rendered In Regard To Writ (4) Madness Corpus

London. A judgment of grave constitutional importance to His Majesty's subjects in Britain and the overseas Dominions has been rendered by the judicial committee of the Privy Council on an appeal from Nigeria.

In effect, their Lordships decided that although by the Judicature Act various courts have been combined into one high court each judge of that court still has jurisdiction to entertain any application for writ of habeas corpus subject to term time or vacation and he is bound to hear and determine such application on its merits, notwithstanding any previous judicial findings

This principle must apply to the Supreme Court of Alberta, and may aid in allowing the appeal of Eshugbayi Eleko, native chief, from a decision of the Nigerian supreme court which has found that Mr Justice Tew, of Nigeria, had no jurisdiction to entertain Eshugbayi's motion for a writ of habeas corpus.

Must Make Restitution

Chicago Mayor and Three Others Owe $4,782,179 To City Treasury

Chicago, Ill.—Mayor William Hale Thompson, Michael J. Faherty, Peter J. Brennan and Percival E. Coffin, public administrator and three real estate experts, were found in circuit court to have conspired against, or in stirring the real estate men to do special work under the last Thompson administration, to the loss of the city of $1,732,279. Judge Fugo Friend ordered the defendants to make restitution of that sum to the city treasury.

The court, terminating the two year old suit, found the conspirators guilty of fraud in connection with the political activities of the Thompson administration, and for the private benefit of the members of the conspiracy."

Window Cleaner Clings To Sill On Third Story Until Rescued

Winnipeg. — Clinging desperately with his fingers to a window sill on the third storey of the Grain Exchange building here, Steve Hahnan, window cleaner, was rescued from death. He was cleaning windows and was adjusting his safety belt when the heavy steel sash fell, knocking him off the ledge. As he plunged downward he caught the sill just before the sash crashed down on it. Fifteen minutes he clung there, his hold on with all his strength until his plight was discovered and he was rescued.

Credit For Latest Atlantic Flight Given To Stultz

London.—Talking to London's assembled newspaper men recently, Miss Earhart declared firmly and emphatically that during her brief stay in England she did not want to be the subject of "hero worship." "I have done nothing to merit it," she said.

"It is because I am a woman that you have forced into the limelight. The credit for the success of the flight is due to Stultz. He controlled the plane practically throughout and was just splendid."

New Serious Crossing

London.—The families of 30 soldiers will be settled in Canada next spring under the new scheme of land settlement for military and naval families, it has been announced. The age of the head of the family will not exceed 40 years except in particular circumstances where the family is regarded as very desirable, in which case the age limit will be raised to 45 years.

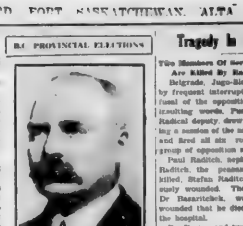
Minneapolis.—James W. Davidson, author, explorer and diplomat, a resident of Calgary, Alta., has accepted appointment as special representative of International Rotary for a tour around the world to visit chief Rotary organized in some countries and other countries not yet in Rotary.

B.C. PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS



Hon John D. MacLean of British Columbia, who will lead the Liberal party in a test of strength in July in a general election will be held. Premier MacLean who is a native of Prince Edward Island succeeded to the chieftainship of the provincial Liberal party on the death of the Hon. John Oliver last year.

Scottish Youths For Canada

Inspector Comes To Dominion To Study Conditions Here

Toronto James M. Mailman is relief inspector of the Glasgow, Scotland, parish council. Interest in migration problems affecting the old country has brought him to Canada for the purpose of studying conditions as they relate to youths who come out under the land settlement act.

There are 8,000 people in our parish receiving relief," he said. "We quite appreciate that migration to Canada is not a solution to our problem, but we do feel that many Scotch lads, after they are handpicked, tested and trained in farm work, may make good settlers for Canada.

"We are most particular as to what type of boy we select. We accept those who have been in a reformatory or are of doubtful character." He brought out with him 19 youths who are already placed on farms in the Dominion.

Storm Takes Heavy Toll

Tornadoes Cause Death and Destruction In Southwestern States

Kansas City, Mo. Three more deaths and millions of dollars of property damage were added to the toll taken by storms in the Southwest.

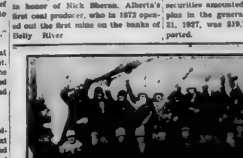
Tornadoes ago visited communities in Oklahoma, and high winds, floods and hail scattered destruction in the states of Kansas and Missouri.

The three deaths reported recently, brought the total dead to 13 and more than a score of names were added to the long list of injured.

The Red Cross reported 2,200 persons homeless, many of them destitute.

Memorial To Coal Miner

Lethbridge, Alta.—Plans are progressing rapidly for the unveiling here, July 18, of the memorial cairn in honor of Nick Sherman, Alberta's first coal producer, who in 1872 opened out the first mine on the banks of Belly River



WILL GIVE CANADA HELPING HAND

Photograph shows a happy group of young women who arrived in this country recently for domestic work, positions having been assured them before leaving the Old Country.

They arrived in Montreal after a pleasant voyage on the Canadian Pacific Steamship "Melita" with the ship's conductress, who is seen in the centre of the group, and who advised them that it were better to work for a salary and be independent than just to work at keeping house.

Tragedy In Belgrade

Two Members Of Serbian Parliament Are Killed By Radical Deputy

Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia. Infuriated by frequent interruption and the refusal of the opposition to withdraw insulting words, Puniesa Raditchitch Radical deputy, drew a revolver during a session of the national assembly and fired all six rounds into the group of opposition members.

Paul Raditch, nephew of Stefan Raditch the premier leader, was killed, Stefan Raditch himself seriously wounded. The Croat deputy Dr Basaritchek, was so gravely wounded that he died on his way to the hospital.

Dr Pernar and two other deputies Granajin and Jelanitch, also received bullet wounds of a dangerous nature. This was the culmination of fierce controversies and hand-to-hand fights which have recently taken place in the Jugo-Slav parliament. The crime is considered the most terrible since the memorable assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga. Just 24 years ago this month it has thrown the whole of Jugo-Slavia into a ferment of excitement.

The parliament had scarcely opened this morning when the opposition, led by Stefan Raditch, began its obstructionist tactics against the government's legislation in the form-front of which is ratification of the Rome convention with Italy.

At the height of the angry debate Stefan Raditch, turning to the government benches and shaking his finger, shouted "You are not men, you are swine!"

Lynching Is Condemned

Proposition Of Texas City Is Stirred Over Outrage

Houston, Texas. Stirred by the first lynching here in 50 years, municipal, county and state officials joined in an indignation meeting to condemn the colored white men who took Robert Powell, 24-year-old negro slayer, from a hospital cot and hanged him from a bridge.

The fact that the lynching took place while the national political spotlight is turned on the city council officials particular concern and quick steps were taken in an effort to fix responsibility.

An appropriation of $10,000 was voted by the city council for an investigation by a committee of five, two members of which are negroes

Says Navy Best Defence

Preserves Unity Of Empire Declares President Of League

Saint John, N.B.—Treaties and conferences never take the place of the "sure shield" the navy—declared President Sam Harris, Toronto, before the annual meeting of the Navy League here. The unity of the Empire, he said, depended on the naval defence. He asserted Canada principally pays a fair share towards protection of its overseas trade.

The session was taken up with a presentation of the financial statement of the organization, which showed the League with highly satisfactory resources. Disbursements during the year amounted to $450,000. Surplus in the general fund December 31, 1927, was $29,721.83. It was reported.

NOBILE PARTY RECEIVE RELIEF AFTER LONG WAIT

King's Bay, Spitsbergen.—General Umberto Nobile and five of the crew of the lost dirigible Italia were found on an ice floe by Major Maddalena, Italian aviator. He dropped them guns, ammunition, food and cigarettes, while the castaways shouted joyfully about their desolate encampment. Maddalena was unable to make a landing

This first relief for the Italian explorers came twenty-six days after their dirigible, returning from a flight over the North Pole and weighted with ice, suddenly descended, smashed the gondola in which Nobile and eight of his crew were riding, and carried the remainder in the unmanageable balloon northward before a gale

The S-55, a huge seaplane, was sent from Italy by the Italian Government in the hope that the wide cruising radius would be more useful in the search than the smaller seaplanes furnished by the Swedish and Norwegian governments.

The S-55 was manned by Maddalena, Lieut. Cagnu as co-pilot, with radio operator Abelli and Mechanic Sergeant Rampini, who had come with the plane on its flight from Italy.

All Europe, moved for days by the dramatic plight of Nobile in hearing of sealed orders "planes overhead" but being unable to give them positions, tonight was anxiously waiting for word from Amundsen.

Captain H Riiser-Larsen returned from his fourth reconnoitering trip over the ice without finding any trace of Nobile or the other two parties of the Italia's crew

Larsen said the radius of flight of his machine was too small and suggested an icebreaker be sent to North Cape to rescue the three men who have built a bridge of ice in an attempt to walk to the mainland.

The rescue ship Braganza is understood to be advancing [illegible] but cant because of packed ice.

May Be Lost In North

Four Entertained For Missing Trapper In Northern Alberta

Edmonton, Alta. — The hazards faced by the men who go into the Northland in quest of furs is once again exemplified by reports from northern detachments of the Alberta provincial Police reaching Edmonton headquarters.

A telegram received from Constable Haynes of Fort Fitzgerald, says four Indians have been expressed for the safety of Walter Reamer, a trapper from the northernmost post in Alberta. The trapper is now long overdue, and a party headed by the constable are on the trail in search of the missing man.

In his lonely shack on the Athabasca river 70 miles down river from the town of Athabasca, John Wickstrom, 70, old-time trapper, was found dead in his bed. It is thought that he peacefully passed away in his sleep

Planning Westward Flight

Trip Not Yet Properly Accomplished Says Hardy Lyon

Sydney, N.S.W. — Marry W. Lyon, the American navigator of the trans-Pacific plane "Southern Cross," announced that when he and his fellow countryman, James W. Warner, the plane's radio operator, returned to the United States, they would prepare for a flight from Ireland to America. He added that they would invite Captains Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm, the Australian pilots, to participate in it.

Lyon contended that the westward crossing of the Atlantic had not yet been properly accomplished.

Wins Coveted Medal

Portland, Ore.—Sir Robert Philips, of Edinburgh, president of the British Medical Society, was awarded the Trudeau medal, most coveted prize offered to scientists fighting tuberculosis. The award was announced at the convention here of the National Tuberculosis Association.

28. In all cases the Town may for any reasonable purpose make use of the poles of the Company for municipal purposes, so long as the use thereof by the Company is not interfered with, and any extra or additional cross-arms, insulators, or other fixtures required by reason of the use of the said poles by the Town shall be supplied and erected at the cost of the Town, the Town covenanting and agreeing to be responsible for and to indemnify the Company absolutely against any loss, damage or injury suffered by or recovered from the Company as the direct or indirect result of the said use of the said poles by the Town.

29. This agreement shall be read subject to the terms of Section 300 of the Town Act, namely that at the expiration of the term hereby granted, the same may be renewed for a period not exceeding ten (10) years (and so from time to time) with such alterations, if any, as may be agreed upon by the parties and approved by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners and that if either party refused to renew such contract, or if the parties fail to agree as to the conditions of such renewal, then the Council of the Town may, subject to the approval of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, purchase all the rights of the Company in all matters and things under this contract and in all poles, machinery, equipment, apparatus and property used for the purpose thereof, for such price and on such terms as may be agreed upon with the Company, or failing such agreement, then, for such price and on such terms as may be fixed and settled by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners on the application either of either of the parties. Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to any portion of the Company's main transmission line and step down substation.

34. Subject to the observance and performance by the Company of the terms and conditions of this Agreement the Town shall not, for a period of ten (10) years from the date of the execution of this agreement or during any extension thereof, either by itself, or grant to any other person, firm or corporation the right to, erect, construct, establish, maintain or operate an electric light and electric power system, or to use or dispose of electric light or electric power in the Town for any purpose.

35. PROVIDED that it is distinctly understood and agreed that in the event of default being made by the Company in the observance and performance of the terms, conditions and covenants of this Agreement and such default being unreasonably continued, the rights and privileges hereby granted shall (at the option of the Town) cease and determine in the same manner and to all intents and purposes as if the full period of ten (10) years herein mentioned had elapsed and the Town shall have the right to purchase the plant and property of the Company on the same terms and conditions as at the expiration of the said period of ten (10) years; provided that none of the rights or remedies of the Town under this agreement and in particular any right to recover damages from the Company for such default be in a direct or consequential jurisdiction, shall be in any way decayed, waived, suspended, prejudiced or affected by the exercise of the said option on the part of the Town. Failure on the part of the Town to exercise the said option shall not operate as a waiver of the Company's default or prevent the exercise of such option in the event of any later or similar default of the Company.

36. The Company shall be liable for and shall indemnify the Town for any damages arising out of the construction and operation of its works owing to the negligence of the Company, its servants, agents or employees and the Town shall be liable for all damages to the plant and equipment of the Company caused by the Town, its workmen, employees or licensees.

37. All the rights, powers and privileges reserved to and conferred upon the Town by this agreement may be exercised or enjoyed by the Council of the Town and any person or persons from time to time authorized by the said Council for that purpose.

38. The Company shall before proceeding with the construction, reconstruction, extension or alteration of any of its distributing system submit plans therefor to the Council of the Town and shall obtain the approval of the Council to such plans and will, where reasonably possible and convenient construct, erect, and lay its poles, wires, conduits and cables and other works and undertakings through and along lanes in preference to streets and avenues.

39. The Company shall contract and it hereby agrees to submit the business and operations thereof, pursuant to this agreement to the control and supervision of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners of the Province of Alberta, in all respects as the Company would have been subject to such control and supervision had it come within the provisions or description of paragraph (g) of Section 2 of "The Public Utilities Act."

40. Notwithstanding anything contained it is mutually acknowledged and understood by and between the parties hereto that the Company is a licensee of the Provincial Water Power and as such is subject to and bound by the provisions of "The Dominion Water Power Act" and (or) "The Dominion Lands Act" and the regulations passed pursuant thereto so far as the same may pertain.

41. THIS AGREEMENT and everything herein contained shall respectively enure to the benefit of and be binding upon the parties hereto, and their respective successors and assigns.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the parties hereto have caused these presents the day and year first above written.

When they were in the car, Maudie finished the conversation. "Helmi is doing well, but don't fuss her up by taking her baby. They get to know too much. How Mrs. Bell when she spoke to me said I would have to get some one to wash; Helmi would be busy all day to do the bathing, especially the hanging out of the clothes, on account of nursing her baby—she might catch cold. But Lee, she does it and washes beautifully. I just kept quiet. So we're saving two dollars a week there. Now, here's that! Am I a good wife for a poor man? I'll say I am. These foreign girls are strong as horses. Well, she's good to the baby anyway, but don't spoil her, for Heaven's sake. The more you do for people the more they expect—take it from me!"

To which Mr. Herriott replied: "I bet she'd like a ride, though; she's only a kid. She's younger than you are, and I think she looks pretty pale and tired sometimes."

"Look here," said his plump little wife, asserting her dignity. "Who is running the home?"

And when she said it she looked so utterly sweet and plump and pink and white, so much like a spoiled but very pretty child, that her husband kissed her and forgot all about Helmi.

Helmi had a friend in the bread man, who gave her snatches of news from the outside world. The soldiers from out at the Exhibition Grounds were going away soon. They would go direct to Valcartier Military Plains. His boy was with them—"as good a boy as ever stepped." But he would go "a chip off the old block," he had been in South Africa in the War—was mentioned in dispatches, too—but nobody knows anything about it now. The world soon forgets. These soldiers will be forgot, too, for all the bands are playin' for them now.

Helmi was not unhappy she had pleasure in her work and in caring for little Lili, who grew lovelier every day. The Herriott baby was a heavy, jowled child who slept well and cried profoundly. "Has she taken to her grandmother asked, each time she came.

From her room Helmi could look down in the railway tracks and see the Peace River train come in as it crossed the street, moving silently along, like a square, black, jointed snake. She found herself watching for it every Tuesday and Saturday.

It was queer that Elim had not answered her letters.

One night in April, when Mr. and Mrs. Herriott were away to a dance, Helmi, sitting by her baby, suddenly ill the usual symptoms. Rifle her hands, fevered brunch and restless tossing head. Helmi was walking the floor with him when the parents came in at two o'clock in the morning.

"Lay him down, and let him cry," said his mother, as she threw her cloak on the dining-room table; "it's his teeth! All kid's have it; you've got him."

"You'd better send for the doctor," said Helmi. "She how red he is—I am afraid of tubicules— the red fever."

"Phenomen!" Maudie Herriott had just come from "The Macdonald." She had danced every dance and the exhilaration of it was still in her brain. "I'll phone for Dr. Flint girl is his doctor should be brought!

Helmi was frightened. The baby's eyes were burning and rolled unseeingly, and the night was heavy with the sudden heat of spring. "Please do get a doctor, Mrs. Herriott," she said. "It's just the sudden sickness; sometimes it brings on convulsions and babies die."

Mrs. Herriott took another look at the baby and felt his head and his hands. "Oh, he's all right—his head is a little hot, but his hands are cool to feel!"

The finger tips were cold.

"Well, I am going to bed; I've had a hard day, and there's another ahead of me tomorrow. I don't see that there's any sense running up a bill with a doctor when there's no need. All kids get sick sometimes, and the less notice you take of them the better."

The next day Lili grew hot and restless and Helmi sent for a doctor. In three days the doctor declared it to be scarlet fever, and the Herriotts decided that both children should go to the Isolation Hospital.

"Let me stay and keep them," pleaded Helmi; "I cannot let my baby go—she will fret for me—she will die among strangers. Please Mrs. Herriott, let me stay, I will work for you for a year—for five years—for nothing—if you will let me stay here and keep her. And I will nurse Roland, too." Helmi was rocking herself from side to side in her anguish.

Mrs. Herriott did not hesitate a moment. "No, Helmi, we can't do that—they'll be all right at the hospital—it's the right place."

"But my little Lili will die! I nurse my Lili."

"Well, you'll have to wean her—they'll look after that. I can't help it anyway, so don't stare at me."

Helmi sprang to her feet and shook her mistress fiercely.

"I care! I love my baby; you do not love yours. You can send yours. If he dies you will be glad. If my Lili dies I die too. Let me keep both, please, please!"

"Hey, Bob, listen to this—wouldn't it jar you! Helmi, you have your nerve. Now, listen, they are both going. I guess if the Isolation Hospital is good enough for Roland Herriott it will do for Lili, so cut out all the fireworks and get them ready."

Plump and pink and white, with a baby smile, was Maudie Herriott, the petted child and wife, but hard and cruel as any toothless old crone.

Both mothers rode in the ambulance to the hospital, and strangely enough it was Mrs. Herriott who became hysterical when the nurse took her baby from her.

The brown-eyed nurse who had received Lili read the misery in Helmi's white face, and patted her shoulder kindly. "I do not think your baby will have it very hard—she is a lovely little thing and looks quite strong. Don't worry over her, please; mothers have splendid success with our babies here. She will have every care, I promise you. No, she will not fret much."

Helmi kissed her hand with a rage both in her eyes, but she could not speak. Her heart would have broken when she saw Lili carried into the fever ward—away from her with a door shut between them. If the kindly touch of the nurse's hand had not been laid on her shoulder. The hands were warm, human and strong, and its touch went with her when she went down the dark stairs to the ambulance which waited at the door.

Mrs. Herriott was weeping violently but Helmi sat tight-lipped and pale, her fourteen years of life and its fame beyond the seas. If it were double the price it would be a cheap ransom.

CHEERFULNESS

You are anxious that your child should have nice white teeth, and you are endeavoring to get him to form the habit of daily care with perhaps good success.

But you notice a dark greenish stain on his teeth right next to the gum, and which persists in spite of careful brushing.

This, then, is "greenstain," and is commonly found on both the temporary and permanent teeth of children, being generally confined to the interior upper teeth, well up towards the gums.

The greenish color is due to bacterial pigment which had lodgement in those areas afforded by the remnant of a dead cuticle which often persists for a few days after the tooth.

Where "greenstain" is permitted to remain for a considerable time upon these surfaces, the enamel will be found to be "etched" or roughened by dissolution due to an acid which these bacteria also produce. Unfortunately, this injury to the tooth substance is permanent.

Now, you can readily understand that these roughened areas will hold food particles and epithelial matter such as are found in a mouth where brushing is neglected—and with resultant decay.

The removal of greenstain had better be left to your dentist, who, by employing some abrasant such as pumice, would be able also to smooth and polish these areas and thus check further deposits of this nature.

So, not only, as you see, should greenstain be removed for appearance sake, but also as a prophylactic measure in the prevention of decay.

These Have Tested It.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has been on the market upwards of fifty years and in that time it has proved a blessing to thousands. It is in high favor throughout Canada and its excellence has carried its fame beyond the seas. If it were double the price it would be a cheap liniment.

Little Helps For This Week

Though then in outer dark remain; One sweet, sad voice embodies death. And for eighteen centuries saith softly, "Ye meet again."—James Russel Lowell.

Those who are gone you have. Those who departed loving you, love you still; and you love them always. They are not really gone. those dear hearts and true.—they are only gone into the next room: and you will presently get up and follow them, and yonder door will be closed upon you, and you will be no more seen.

—William Makepeace Thackeray

For Catarrh.—It is one of the chief recommendations of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil that it can be used internally with as much success as it can externally. Sufferers from catarrh will find that the Oil when used according to directions will give prompt relief. Many sufferers from this ailment have found relief in the Oil and have sent testimonials.

Plans Difficult Climb

Mount McKinley Peak Is Objective Of Fourth Expedition Soon

An attempt to climb Mount McKinley, the highest point in North America, will be made this summer by Harry Karstens, superintendent of Mount McKinley National Park in Alaska.

The Department of the Interior has announced that the attempt would be made in the interest of science to determine whether the Alaska peak is the coldest spot on earth.

Karstens, who climbed the peak with a party of three in 1913, plans to recover a recording thermometer he left on his previous ascent. The mountain is 20,300 feet high.

RHEUMATIC PAINS DUE TO THIN BLOOD

Relief Comes Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for is relief from suffering as the swollen, aching joints is a little rubbed, and all the while the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted. It is now known that rheumatism is rooted in the blood, and that as the trouble goes on the blood becomes still further diluted or watery. To get rid of rheumatism, therefore, you must go to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved so beneficial when taken for this trouble. They make new, rich blood which expels the poisonous acid and the rheumatism disappears.

There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada, now well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains of this dreaded trouble. One of these Mrs. W. F. Tait, McKellar, Ont., who says:—"I am one of the well ng cases to tell you of the great benefit I received from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After being in bed for seven weeks suffering untold agony with inflammatory rheumatism, I was pronounced incurable by the doctor in my home. I could not move in bed only as they lifted me and I could only sip milk. Opiates soon gave me no relief. The medical treatment was not really of any avail. Then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and soon I began to get relief. After taking two or three boxes the rheumatism vanished and I had never felt better in my life. It is several years now since I was cured and I have had no return of the trouble since. I must add that I recommended the pills to two of my friends who were suffering with rheumatism and in both cases were equally effective in both cases."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion or nervousness. Take them according to directions and you will get prompt relief. Many sufferers from this ailment have found relief in the Pills and have sent testimonials.

Of course the fittest survive, as Darwin said. We're all here, aren't we?

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless teaspoonful neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting stomach ills. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

Mr. Philmore is building an implement shed on the site of the one occupied by E. T. Flintoff up to the time of the recent fire. E. T. Flintoff will rent the building from Mr. Philmore.

The Altar Society ladies of Our Lady of Angels R.C. parish are holding an afternoon tea and sale of home cooking on the church lawn on Saturday, June 30, from 2 to 6:30. Everybody welcome.

You may be asked to attend a benefit dance to be held soon. By all means attend it if you feel like it, the cause is a worthy one, but first ask where the proceeds for it was done. Support home industry!

A Dominion Day celebration will be held at Bruderheim on Monday, July 2, with a band in attendance all day. There will be baseball and horseshoe tournaments, games and races of all kinds. Fireworks and dance in the evening.

W. R. Abraham, Lethbridge, paid a brief visit to the Fort last Friday, having been called to Edmonton early in the week on account of the illness of his mother, who died on the day following his visit here.

Work has commenced on the new community hall at Goss Haye. Quotations were received on the lumber from Edmonton firms and it is an interesting fact that the Hunter Lumber company of Fort Saskatchewan quoted the lowest prices and got the contract.

The fire brigade had a practice Tuesday afternoon, the call for the volunteers emerging from the fire hall as is customary. The practice was good for the fire buddies, as they are sometimes unnecessarily called, and also was the means of disclosing some faulty sections of hose.

The Partridge Hill U.F.A. will hold their annual picnic on Monday, July 2, on the recreation ground. There will be a good variety of races and games and a baseball game between the Bremner and Partridge Hill teams. There will also be a special attraction for the evening in the form of a play entitled "Is An Optimist." This is to be presented in the church by the Lamont Dramatic society with a cast of fifteen people.

BASEBALL

Fort Saskatchewan defeated Bruderheim 8-3 on the latter's diamond last Thursday. This was a good game though disappointing to Brewner, who were confident they could trim the Fort.

On Monday Clover Bar played the Fort at the Fort and were within an ace of defeating them. A dispute in the last inning caused Clover Bar to quit with the score 10-9 in their favor and we are informed the rule book states that the game comes under the category of an "unfinished game," and must be played over.

Ralph Pocock gave a dazzling exhibition of pitching this evening, contributing largely to the decisive triumphing the Fort handed to Ashdown's (Edmonton). The score was 16-4 and about represented the play; the Fort outclassed an brightly the Edmontonians could not become accustomed to the brilliant light surrounding them. This is eleven games out of twelve the Fort has won to date.

Gibbons will play Fort Saskatchewan Friday evening on the latter's diamond.

CHESTER WHITE HOG SELLING SCHEME

The attention of farmers and live-stock men throughout the province is called by the Department of Agriculture to an article appearing in the Calgary Albertan of Thursday, June 21, over the name of S. G. Freeborn, District Sheep and Swine Promoter for Alberta.

This article answers very thoroughly the arguments previously published in defence of the scheme being promoted in different sections of the province by representatives of the Central United States Swine Company, and Mr. Freeborn effectively points out the economic unsoundness of the proposition from the point of view of the farmer and produces a good deal of substantial evidence to prove that similar experiences have been very costly to farmers in a number of the American states.

Obituary

The funeral of the late Mrs. T. W. Hodgins of Ardrossan was held from the residence to the Clover Bar cemetery on Monday, July 2, and was very largely attended, Mr. and Mrs. Hodgins having been resident in the community some twenty-seven years and very highly respected by a wide circle of friends.

The service was conducted by Rev. E. J. Hodgins of Fort Saskatchewan, assisted by Rev. N. Chappell of Ardrossan.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss beside her husband eight children, five girls and three boys: Mrs. J. Alexander of Ardrossan; Mrs. Stuart Hay of Edmonton; Mrs. L. Fawcett of Ardrossan; Leslie of Ardrossan; Allan of Fawcett River, B.C.; Percy, Eva and Ida, and one brother, Edd, of Casadoyya, Ontario.

Many beautiful floral tributes were given by the family and by a large number of friends.

TREASURY SHOWS SUBSTANTIAL SURPLUS

The highly satisfactory condition of Alberta's finances is reflected in the announcement during the past week by Hon. R. G. Reid, provincial treasurer, that the treasury of the province has a surplus of $670,762.13 at the end of the fiscal year on March 31, 1928. According to the official estimates the government expected to report a surplus for that period of only some $46,518.21, and the improved showing at the end of the fiscal year is felt to be cause for considerable satisfaction.

At the end of the calendar year, December 31st last, the interim statements showed a deficit of $216,980.33. This has not only been absorbed in the interval, but has been turned into a very substantial surplus when the accounts for the completed fiscal period are available. In future the accounts will all run to the end of March, in twelve month periods, this being the first year under the new financial system.

HONOR PIONEER COAL MINER

The unveiling in Lethbridge on July 19 of a cairn to mark the site of Alberta's first coal mine, will be made the occasion of a ceremony that will pay tribute to the pioneers of the province's mining industry which in recent years has grown to such impressive proportions.

With the co-operation of the Alberta government and coal brokers, a programme has been arranged which will do full honor to the event. The cairn is being erected by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada and will mark the site of the coal mine opened by Nicholas Sheran in 1872 near where the present city of Lethbridge stands. Sheran at that time was hauling coal across the border into Montana, a distance of 200 miles, by ox-team. With the exception of furs, this was the first of Alberta's resources to be exported.

In this connection it is interesting to note that out of the 4,996,780 tons of coal mined in Alberta in 1927, a total of 2,326,514 tons was exported to other provinces and to the United States.

JONES, GRAHAM & O'BRIEN

Another Step Toward Permanent Peace

Throughout the years of the Great War, the people of the allied nations were repeatedly told that it was a war to make the world safe for democracy, "a war to end war." And when at last the great struggle ended and the League of Nations came into being it was thought that, with the bitter experience of the war fresh in all minds, there would be little hesitation on the part of any country to join the League, and that, with 100 per cent world membership in the League, world disarmament would follow in due course.

The refusal of the United States to have anything to do with the League of Nations, the very country in which the idea originated, came as a rude shock to all lovers and advocates of peace. It discouraged Europe, revived all the old fears, and actually led to renewed activity in the piling up of armaments. Nevertheless, the League struggled on, gaining new adherents, and, with each succeeding success in settling international disputes and preventing open rupture, the League grew in strength and prestige. Nonetheless, so long as the United States remained aloof it was felt that the structure for world peace was imperfect and insecure.

Because of this fact, the recent action of Mr. Kellogg, United States Secretary of State, in inviting the nations of the world to enter into a multilateral treaty to outlaw war, was enthusiastically welcomed by all lovers of peace, and nowhere quite so heartily as in Canada and other parts of the British Empire.

Already fifteen nations, including, with the exception of Russia, all the Great Powers, have signified their willingness to sign such a treaty. The draft of this momentous international document is brief and to the point, and, as it may well prove to be the Magna Charta of world peace, it is worthy of the widest possible reproduction in order that all people, everywhere, may read it. The preamble, in part, is as follows:

"Deeply sensible of their solemn duty to promote the welfare of mankind;

"Persuaded that the time has come when a frank renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy should be made to the end that the peaceful and friendly relations now existing between their peoples may be perpetuated;

"Convinced that all changes in their relations with one another should be sought only by pacific means and be the result of a peaceful and orderly process, and that any signatory power which shall hereafter seek to promote its national interests by resort to war should be denied the benefits furnished by this treaty.

"Hopeful that, encouraged by their example, all the other nations of the world will join in this humane endeavor, and by adhering to the present treaty as soon as it comes into force, bring peoples within the scope of its beneficent provisions, thus uniting the civilized nations of the world in a common renunciation of war as an instrument of their national policy."

Then follows the names of the fifteen nations who have signified their willingness to sign such a treaty, namely: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Czecho-Slovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, Italy, Japan, Poland, South Africa, United States of America.

To what do they agree? Having approved the declarations in the preamble quoted above, they bind themselves as follows:

"Article I. The high contracting parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

"Article II. The high contracting parties agree that the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means.

"Article III. The present treaty shall be ratified by the high contracting parties named in the preamble in accordance with their respective constitutional requirements and shall take effect as between them as soon as all their several instruments of ratification shall have been deposited at (———————).

"This treaty shall, when it has come into effect as prescribed in the preceding paragraph, remain open as long as may be necessary for adherence by all the other powers of the world. Every instrument evidencing the adherence of a power shall be deposited at (———————), and the treaty shall immediately upon such deposit become effective as between the power thus adhering and the other powers parties hereto."

That is the whole document, beautiful in its simplicity, momentous in its sweeping renunciation of war under any and all circumstances. It does not replace the League of Nations, but adds power and strength to it. No loopholes are left, and should any nation signing this treaty ever again revert to war it would become, as never before, an outlaw among the nations.

Pistols have given way to cards in the settlement of "affairs of honor" in Czecho-Slovakia, judging by the method adopted by a business man of Strasbah, near Prague, to avenge an insult.

An engineer in the town is said to have given offense to the business man, who challenged him to a duel. The engineer, who was a crack shot, suggested that each should write the affair at cards "another man suggested. The men agreed, and sat down at the cards table to play for a stake of £1,000. Alberta Act Invalid

Privy Council Upholds Ruling Of Supreme Court Of Canada

Both the appeal of the province of Alberta and the counter appeal of the Dominion of Canada from a Canada Supreme Court decision respecting the question of whether the right of the Crown upon intestacy in a provincial or Dominion right were dismissed without costs by the judicial committee of the Privy Council. The case involved the validity of the Ultimate Next Act of the legislature of Alberta.

The judgment of the Privy Council upholds a ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada that the Ultimate Heir Act of Alberta is invalid. The Act provides that where a person dies without legitimate heirs, certain of the property goes to the University of Alberta.

HOW DELICATE GIRLS ARE MADE STRONG

Rich, Red Blood Needed To Keep Up Their Vitality

It should be borne in mind that pale, delicate girls need plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep and regular out-of-door exercise to overcome the blood supply, they help the heart and lungs to function properly, relieve the weary back and limbs, thus bringing good health and true strength and transforming anaemic girls and women into cheerful happy people.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best Pills in the case of anaemic girls is proved by the case of Miss Lucy Stoddart, Margaretville, N.S., who says: "From the age of 13 to 15, I was in an anaemic condition. I was very thin and nervous, had no appetite and could not go to take part in the doings of those of my age. My mother got Gold Medal Pills for me, but they did me very little good. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and almost from the first they helped me. In just what was needed to restore my strength. After taking the pills for a time I felt an altogether different girl. I got up in the morning feeling healthy and active, and ready for work or play. Since then I have always taken a couple of boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the spring as a tonic and have thus kept in the best of condition.

"Every weak girl should promptly follow the example of Miss Stoddart, feeling sure that the pills will renew her health. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Arresting Decay in Wood

New Treatment Being Used May Make It Imperishable

A new tool has been invented for the purpose of giving logs a "hypodermic injection" to preserve them. This new scientific method is being used to inject into telegraph poles a spreading paste that is said to keep fungi at bay. Many years are said to be added to the pole's life. This treatment of wood is a step that may lend eventually to complete arrest of decay. If that ideal is accomplished, buildings of wood can be erected that will be as imperishable as structures of stone, brick, or steel while the cost will be much less. The effect will be that of transmuting wood into rock.

France Has Too Much Coal

Production Above Unit There Is No Need To Import

France, desperately short of coal for ten years, and always an importer, now has too much of it. For the first time French production equals consumption and imported coal is threatening to break the market.

When the Germans flooded French coal mines in the north during the World War, France lost half of her fuel and it has been a long struggle to get back to normal. Not only was the pre-war figure of 40,000,000 tons annually reached, but last year it went up to 60,000,000 and the Sane Valley has added another 13,000,000 tons.

All European coal mines have been working hard since the war because British strikes, the occupation of the Ruhr and the trouble in Upper Silesia created big shortages. Now that all are at work, Europe, according to French figures given to the League of Nations recently, has a surplus of 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 tons a year.

As all countries for generations have considered France as an importer of coal, they all still try to capture the market there, ignoring the fact that France now mines all she burns. Therefore the French coal operators are pressing now to reduce costs; curtail production and restrict imports so coal won't become too cheap.

Railways Arrange New Circle Tour

Convenient Visit To Glacier, Waterton and Jasper Parks Is Made Possible

An arrangement has been completed by the Great Northern and Canadian National Railways to make available to tourists a circle tour to three of the greatest playgrounds in the world. Under it tourists will be able to visit Glacier National Park in Alberta, without loss of time and at a considerable reduction in cost.

The inter-change point between the two companies will be Calgary where passengers for Jasper will take the Canadian National Railways and those for Waterton and Glacier will take Great Northern automobiles. The autos and the trains will make connections at most convenient hours, fares will apply in both cases. In the past it has only been possible for travelers to combine these places in one visit by making a round-about and expensive trip.

In Glacier and Waterton Parks the Great Northern Railway operates a number of splendid hotels, among which are The Prince of Wales Hotel, the Glacier Park Hotel, and the Many Glaciers Hotel. In Jasper, the Canadian National Railways operate Jasper Park Lodge, a unique and distinctive summer resort.

Canadian Arctic Explorer Heads Expedition For Purpose Of Locating the Magnetic Pole

In quest of treasure relics and to conduct important Arctic research work, Major L. T. Burwash, war veteran, Arctic exploratory engineer and Canadian government official, will leave shortly on a 5,000 mile journey to end at the magnetic pole.

Travelling by rail, boat and dog team, Major Burwash will traverse nearly 500 miles of icy Arctic waters with only native Eskimos, a stray trapper or fur trader, to assist him to navigate a forty foot government launch His destination is the magnetic pole cannot be reached until late in September or October. His task will not be completed before the autumn of 1929.

At "the top of the world," Major Burwash will make a scientific examination to determine the extent to which the magnetic pole has shifted since Amundsen made his investigation about 1906. Each year the magnetic pole varies in a westerly direction; and its present position, once secured, will be noted on the charts of mariners who ply the seven seas.

Records of the ill-fated expedition of Sir John Franklin central figure in the chapter of Arctic exploration of the nineteenth century will also be sought by Major Burwash. The two ships "Erebus" and "Terror," carrying the Franklin party, met disaster near the magnetic pole in 1845. Some of the records were found on Boothia peninsula; and it is said that one of these ships may be seen in the Arctic ice-pack between King William Island or Boothia Peninsula. If this theory is found to be correct, the Thos may be lifted to obtain for Canada the invaluable records and relics believed to be aboard her.

Conditions among the Eskimos north of the districts of Mackenzie and Keewatin will be examined by Major Burwash, and his survey in that district will be the first since care of the Eskimos was transferred from the Indian department to the North West Territories and Yukon branch early this year. An examination of navigating conditions in Franklin Strait and Peel Sound will be made; and, in addition, Major Burwash, will investigate the proposed trans-Arctic route from Wager Bay on the west coast of Hudson Bay to Cockburn Bay south of King William Island.

Asphalt Highway Across Canada

Unites Of Canadian Municipalities Has An Ambitious Program

Immediate construction of an asphalt highway right across Canada was urged at the 28th Annual Convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities at Winnipeg. Dominion and Provincial Governments will be memorialized as to the necessity for such a road. It is estimated that the cost would be $50,000,000 and construction would occupy five years. It would afford to motorists access to much of the most beautiful scenery on the continent, and in view of the vast number from the United States who are now touring in Canada each summer the expenditure would not be without direct financial returns

Developing Talc Industry

Establishment Of a Manufacturing Plant In Calgary Is Being Considered

National Talc, Limited, is considering the establishment of a manufacturing plant in Calgary to utilize the new talc deposits of the Rocky Mountains. About seven miles of the new road up the Red Earth Valley from Mountain to the blue talc property on Red Mountain were constructed last summer and work is again proceeding with the idea of completing the road by August. Production will be started on the blue talc property as soon as weather conditions permit. The American Lava Corporation of Chattanooga, Tennessee, are reported willing to purchase all of this year's production of the plant.

Great political reforms are set in motion by the hand that rocks the cradle.

Geographical Misconceptions That Have Retarded The Development Of Canada

Partial knowledge and assumptions based on insufficient data have been responsible for many mistakes, judgments and belief in obstacles that had no real existence. Evidence of this abounds in the pages of history, and the process of revising and rectifying long-established opinions continues with little sign of abatement. Until recently belief persisted that the interior of the island continent of Australia was a rocky and barren desert, where explorers ran grave risk of perishing miserably for lack of water. Now, with more extensive and accurate knowledge, the vast central region of Australia has assumed a widely different aspect, with many districts well adapted for productive use and with ample water resources, that only need to be tapped to make the wilderness blossom as the rose.

Canada is now undergoing a similar process, with the result that many obstacles to unification of interest, once deemed insuperable, are now disappearing in the light of better knowledge. Not so long ago men whose views were regarded as authoritative saw in the risky belt of North Ontario and in the so-called barren lands of the great Northwest barriers that doomed Eastern and Western Canada to perpetual isolation, one from the other. These imaginary barren and infertile tracts it would afford to motorists access to much of the most beautiful scenery on the continent, and in view of the vast number from the United States who are now touring in Canada each summer the expenditure would not be without direct financial returns

FOLKSONG AND HANDICRAFT FESTIVAL

This orchestra playing Ukrainian airs, the members of Ukrainian origin and arrayed in peasant costume of that country, made a great hit at the New Canadian Folksong and Handicraft Festival, held at the Royal Alexander Hotel, Winnipeg, from June 19 to 23. Over 400 performers, representing different European nationalities, participated.

Partial knowledge and assumptions based on insufficient data have been responsible for many mistakes, judgments and belief in obstacles that had no real existence. Evidence of this abounds in the pages of history, and the process of revising and rectifying long-established opinions continues with little sign of abatement. Until recently belief persisted that the interior of the island continent of Australia was a rocky and barren desert, where explorers ran grave risk of perishing miserably for lack of water. Now, with more extensive and accurate knowledge, the vast central region of Australia has assumed a widely different aspect, with many districts well adapted for productive use and with ample water resources, that only need to be tapped to make the wilderness blossom as the rose.

Canada is now undergoing a similar process, with the result that many obstacles to unification of interest, once deemed insuperable, are now disappearing in the light of better knowledge. Not so long ago men whose views were regarded as authoritative saw in the risky belt of North Ontario and in the so-called barren lands of the great Northwest barriers that doomed Eastern and Western Canada to perpetual isolation, one from the other. These imaginary barren and infertile tracts occupied an area amounting approximately to one-sixth of the total area of the Dominion. Until recently these ideas remained fixed convictions in the minds of most Canadians, accepted as handicaps imposed by nature and incapable of more than alleviation to a limited degree. Gradually, through the penetration of these regions by the surveyors and prospectors of the topographical survey, it has increasingly become evident that the older conception is due for radical revision.

Officials and travellers, in the days when Central and Western North America were unknown quantities, often registered judgments for reasons that now seem ridiculous. A British official is said to have condemned the territory, now occupied by the states of Oregon and Washington, as worthless because the fish of one of its numerous streams would not rise to a favorite artificial fly. Now the name "Barren Grounds" came to be applied to what has been proved to rank among the most fertile areas in the world, is contained in the account of the explorers-surveyors of Hudson Bay Railway in the last quarter of the seventeenth century. Among that traveller's longest journeys one came between 1690 and 1692, when he journeyed from Port Nelson on Hudson's Bay westward by way of the Hayes and Saskatchewan rivers. Undertaken primarily to investigate the fur trade possibilities of the country, its agricultural potentialities never seem to have dawned on him.

A thousand miles north of Kelsey's route, beyond the forested lands of the Canadian west and stretching to the Arctic Ocean and Hudson's Bay, are the Great Northern plains to which his descriptive epithet has been mistakenly transferred. The picture drawn by the explorers of today, remarks the Brandon Sun, reveals a tract of gently undulating country w th lichens and mosses on the hills, and shrubs, flowers and grasses flourishing in the valleys True, no trees grow north of the timber line, and certain areas lack vegetation but the greater part of the region is far from being barren that is actually supports at the present time, in addition to the fur-bearers and game-meat, hundreds of thousands of caribou.

Spain Insures Travellers

Beginning July 1, all persons travelling by rail or water in Spain will be insured against accident, the cost being added to the price of boat or train tickets. The insurance covers injuries to passengers first and carrier employees next. Proceeds will be devoted to an agency encouraging tours in Spain.

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is enough acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Just a tasteless dose in water if is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

New connections awaited us the following day when as guests of the Port of London Authority, we were taken to see something of what London's shipping facilities are. It was not possible to see more than a small part, for the Port of London, in one year, handles merchandise to the value of hundreds of millions of pounds sterling. For example, the imports and exports passed through the port in 1926 totalled in value $3,580,000,000 and included 43,000,000 bushels of wheat. In the same year 50,000,000 tons net register of shipping entered and left the port. Walking through one set of showrooms, ten acres in extent we visited the Ivory Room, where we were assisted to see a perfect specimen of pre-historic mammoth tusks 11 feet long, weighing 363 pounds, and having an estimated age of 36,000 years. In the State Room $250,000 worth of furniture stored, and an interesting exhibit was a 35 lb. weight floating in a bath of mercury. The Wool Room which contained a number of bales of Canadian wool was in a single year nearly 2,000,000 bales.

Another interesting warehouse was the Indian Room, holding 20,000 small hide-bound kegs of sedine, every one of which, $1.25. The hide covering is necessary because of the rotting effect of sedine which destroys the ordinary kegs in a comparatively short space of time.

At the end of the day came when we explored a portion of the Port's wine vaults before descending to the cellars we were handed out torches fastened to the end of long sticks as we have been used for 120 years. The temperature of the vaults never varies from 60 degrees, yet the only means of regulating it are incandescent lights, and the amount of mankind on the floor. Passages radiated on the roof of the cellars by the fumes of the wine is a curious characteristic. In the brandy room dide lamps in almost Twenty-two thousand pipes of wine, each worth £ 60 can be accommodated in the vaults which have twenty-eight miles of metal runways, apart from the vast stores of spirits contained in other vaults not included in the day's itinerary.

Again in the open air we boarded a launch en route to the S.S. Illimo wanka, where we were due to lunch as guests of the Port, under the chairmanship of Lord Ritchie of Dundee. The novelty of luncheon on this beautiful ship, surrounded by great liners from almost every country in the world made a deep impression. This was followed by a river trip back to London.

In the evening we were the guests of the Empire Marketing Board at dinner in the Hyde Park Hotel and had an opportunity of learning at first hand the valuable work being done by this organization to encourage the consumption of products produced within the Empire. The sum of five million dollars per year has been placed at its disposal by Parliament to further the marketing of Empire products. The Board is a non-party body and includes representatives of the Dominions and Colonies. Agricultural research is also an important phase of its work. The chairman, on the occasion of our visit, was Lord Lovat, the Under-Secretary of States for the Dominions who told us something of the work of the Board, which was further explained by Sir Halford Mackinder, chairman of the Imperial Economic Committee.

The next day a programme presented one of the most interesting novelties of our stay in London. This was a visit to the Tower, a grim fortress which we entered with mixed feelings, for here and on Tower Hill perished some of the most renowned men and women of their day. Here the beautiful Anne Boleyn was beheaded; and here Lady Jane Grey saw the headless body of her husband carried past her on the morning when she knew that she was to die. In it Sir Thomas Moore, Archbishop Cranmer Sir Walter Raleigh and the little Princes met their tragic fates and through these things happened in the days gone by, one feels the Tower to be sinister still. Even in our own time was it not chosen as the place in which the spies in the time of war should meet their doom?

We were admitted by Yeoman of the Guard "Beefeaters" who still wear the quaint uniform which was adopted in the time of Henry VII. We were shown the Bloody Tower where the babes of the two murdered Princes were found and the room (reconstructed), in which Sir Walter Raleigh, when a prisoner wrote his History of the World.

In the White Tower we saw the chamber in which Guy Fawkes and his fellow-conspirators were tortured in 1605. Here too, were the apartments occupied by Queen Elizabeth when she herself was a prisoner in the Tower. We saw the block and execution axes, one of which has a notch in the blade where it struck the neck of a victim. And then how down to our Canadian hearts it came to see the block on which Wolfe died on the Heights of Abraham.

Many quaint forms are still retain in the administration of the Tower. The gates are shut at night to the accompaniment of ancient ceremonial and after midnight no one may enter the precincts without giving the password.

In one of the strong rooms of the Tower there repose the Crown Jewels, including the crowns of King George and Queen Mary, a display of treasure which amazed us all.

The Tower of London was built by William the Conqueror, and it is said that the site on which it stands was selected by Julius Caesar as a location for a fortress. One of the most interesting features of the Tower is the portcullis, said to be the oldest one in existence in working order. On our way to the Tower we stopped at St Paul's Cathedral. Sir Christopher Wren's masterpiece but owing to the grouting operations on the piers which support the great dome, it was not possible to see its interior to advantage, most of it being boarded up and inaccessible. However, we did see the crypt or entombment of the Ironsides Dundee.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 8

SAUL AND STEPHEN

Golden Text: "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." Revelations 2.10.

Lesson: Acts 7.54 - 8.2. 22.2, 6, 19, 20. 26.6, 9, 9-11. Galatians 1.13, 14.

Devotional Reading Psalm 116 12-19

Explanations and Comments

Stephen's Arrest and Defense, Acts 6.8 to 7.56 - When the Greek speaking Jews who were temporarily or permanently staying in Jerusalem attempted to dispute with one of the leaders among the disciples of Jesus, they found this man Stephen, more than a match for all their logic and religious philosophy. Their original hatred of him, as a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit (Acts 6.5), and therefore full of grace and power, then turned into cunning malice. They resorted to calumny, raised up false witnesses against him, seized him and brought him before the Sanhedrin.

From Stephen's defense, 7.66, it is evident he had correctly taught that God could be worshipped not only in the temple, but everywhere. As was true with Jesus (Mark 14.58), Stephen's words were distorted by false witnesses. He was accused of teaching that Jesus of Nazareth would destroy the honored temple, and would change the revered Mosaic law. Patiently Stephen undertook his defense. Rehearsing the ancient history of Israel he skilfully showed that God's revelation to His people had been progressive; that there was a spiritual religion, and that God had no need of an earthly temple for worship. Intimately associated by the purity and truth of his words, his hearers were greatly affected. But as they caught the drift of his argument they manifested signs of anger which Stephen could not fail to see.

Just before the coming of the violent end which he saw approaching, Stephen was to apply his words to his hearers, he must speak quickly. "Ye do always resist the Holy Spirit," he cried boldly. "Of the Righteous One ye have become murderers." At once they "were cut to the heart"; they gnashed on him with their teeth," that is only by a forcible grinding of their teeth" were they able to restrain their unreasoning rage. But he, still filled with the Holy Spirit, saw "the heavens opened" in familiar Jewish figure of speech signifying one's insight into divine things; "and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God", and, in apparently utter disregard of the frenzied fury around him, he told of what he saw.

Receives Large Salary

Chief Harpooner Earned $30,000 In Nine Months' Whale Hunt

Few occupations tax the nerves of man more than whale hunting but few occupations pay better. When the whale-hunting fleet recently returned from the Antarctic after a nine-months' cruise, the chief harpooner had earned a "normal" income of $33,000. In addition to this sum he had a contract granting him $30 for each whale he killed. During the nine months he killed 300 whale, and his extra income amounted to $6,000. Hardly one man in a thousand may hope to be a really good harpooner. It is upon his ability that the result of the expedition largely depends, and though his profits may seem high, it is modest compared with the profit he brings to the expedition.

Changes Name Again

Peking Will Be Known As Peiping Meaning "Northern Peace"

The nationalist government political council has decided to change the name of the historic Manchu capital, Peking, to Peiping, meaning "Northern Peace."

The action is considered at Shanghai as an attempt by the Nanking government to destroy Peking's political importance and further that of Nanking, which they insist is now the National capital.

The announcement of the action of the council states "It is hoped Peiping will continue as a centre of art and culture, but as a political centre it is dead."

Question Of Relationship

In a recent court case at Toronto a nice question in relationships was propounded. The plaintiff, a woman, was testifying against a chauffeur. "Am I be your brother-in-law?" she was asked by counsel. "Didn't you say he was?" "No. I said he was good husband's sister's husband's brother!" The counsel gave up any more questioning on this point.

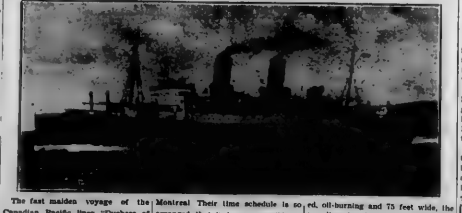
MINARD'S KING OF PAIN LINIMENT

POPULARIZING THE ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE



The fast maiden voyage of the Canadian Pacific liner "Duchess of Bedford," just put into the service of the St. Lawrence route as the finest of a quartette of 20,000 ton Canadian Pacific steamers has called forth attention to the increased prosperity of the St. Lawrence route.

In addition to the "Duchess of Bedford" three other "Duchesses" will shortly be commissioned and this fleet of Cabin Class steamers will constitute the largest ships to call at Montreal Their time schedule is so arranged that it is now possible to breakfast in Liverpool on one Friday and in Montreal the following Friday —an unique service for the St. Lawrence.

Excellently appointed and furnished, the "Duchesses",open a new era to Cabin Class travel and experienced travellers who have seen the new liner compare her accommodations very favorably with first class ships. She boasts of fast long, two-funnelled, oil-burning and 75 feet wide, the new liner has broad decks, spaces and many marine innovations, all conducive to passenger comfort. She is commanded by Capt. H. Hall, R.N.R., whose 21 years in the service of the Canadian Pacific Steamships have taken him through the seven seas. He was formerly in command of the "Minnedosa" and "Montroyal," having been in charge of the latter vessel on several occasions through the West Indies—a feature to be repeated by the "Duchess of Bedford."

FOURTH FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton.

June 23, 1928

Early seeded wheat is now in the shot blade in many sections of the province and all grains are making rapid and vigorous growth, according to the telegraphic reports received on Friday by the Department of Agriculture, for the fourth fortnightly crop report of the season. The entire province has benefitted by the rains and have been general during the past two weeks, and the set-back which exists in some areas received by the unseasonably cold weather is rapidly being recovered although some fields are somewhat patchy. Warm growing weather is now the most urgent requirement for crops to take full advantage of the abundant supply of moisture.

Never in the history of the province has a crop been sown under better conditions and the high quality of seed and treatment of disease are concerned, and never has more concerted action been taken to keep fields free from noxious weeds.

Conditions are reported generally to be ideal for breaking and summer-fallowing and the opinion is expressed that the acreage of new land brought under cultivation this season will again be of record proportions.

Some seven thousand acres have been seeded to sugar beets in the southern part of the province, and of this acreage fully one-third is reported to be showing a perfect stand, with the remainder giving promise of a good average crop.

Cutting of alfalfa and sweet clover has commenced,

The Canadian People

In rounding out the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, the Dominion Parliament at its next session might well take one more step to further promote a united Canadian sentiment and develop a stronger Canadian national spirit by making legislative provision for the recognition of the Canadian race, and to enact that a person born in Canada, whatever their racial descent, shall be designed in the census returns of this Dominion as a "Canadian."

At the present time, tens of thousands of native-born Canadians are made to suffer a feeling of inferiority, not only in their own eyes but before the world, through their inability to record themselves as Canadians in the census regulations of the past they have been forced to designate themselves as English, Irish, Scotch, French, Dutch, German, American, -- anything but what they really are, Canadians.

As a result, the census statistics of this Dominion advertise to the world that this country of Canada is inhabited by all manner of races and conditions of people, except Canadians. That in all this broad Dominion, a self-governing nation in the British Commonwealth of Nations, with a status equal to that of Great Britain itself, and a full-fledged member of the League of Nations, there is no such person as a Canadian

If in England the same antiquated and obsolete system of census enumeration prevailed, many families who have lived in England for centuries would be compelled to classify themselves as Dutch, or French, anything but English. His Gracious Majesty the King, the Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal Family would be recorded as German in the United States if our absurd system existed there would be known there under the son, except Americans. It is time to assert standardized the Citizen authorities in the matter which is one of the causes of people in other lands failing to understand and appreciate the national and international position of Canada today.

Furthermore, the existing state of things is most unfair to the people of Canada. There are thousands of Canadians whose parents, grandparents, great-grandparents, were born in Canada, and who do not know, and much less appreciate, their proper status in the world, because they are classed under the British Isles, the continent of Europe, or the isles of the seas. They are Canadians. That is good enough for them, and is ought to be good enough for the Canadian Government.

In some cases a man's great-grandfather may have been Scotch and his great-grandmother French; they may have married a German, the female offspring of this latter union may have married a Ukrainian born in Canada the issue of whose parents was a Hungarian, who in turn had Russian blood. What is the nationality of such a Canadian-born man? He himself does not know, and it is doubtful if the average census enumerator can figure it out. The only point on which the enumerator is clear, and because the Government in its instructions to him makes it absolutely clear, is the song is not a Canadian regardless of the number of these generations of varying racial descent who were born in Canada.

"Canada our Country" was the motto of the Diamond Jubilee celebrations. "Our people Canadians" should be the record disclosed by the census returns, and a conglomerate mixture of peoples is not the kind of enumeration it is not at all surprising that so many false statements are being made to the effect that Canada is rapidly becoming a non-English country, and that the foreign-born predominate. If the children of these foreign generations of native-born Canadians are classified as Russian, or German, or Austrian, anything and everything but Canadian. It is small wonder that people who do not understand our uniquely shaped system are misled and arrive at conclusions the very reverse of the truth.

Canada's Diamond Jubilee year is a most appropriate time for Parliament to right this injustice to so many of its citizens and to the Dominion as a whole.

To Cross Ocean in Small Boat

Steel Vessel Twelve Feet Long Will Be Used By Daring Navigator

In a tiny, submarine-like steel vessel of his own construction, built during his spare time, William Orthern, of Warrington, Lancashire, proposes to set out shortly on an adventurous voyage from Dover to New York. The boat, which is only 12 feet long, with a beam of 6 feet, will be propelled by a navigator with a pedal mechanism much like bicycles operating the two bladed propeller.

A "windmill" geared to the shaft, will relieve him when the wind is fair. Two persons are to accompany Orthern, although there won't be much length sleeping quarters. There are six water-tight compartments and many portholes and windows. Orthern will be able to button himself down when the weather is bad and keep a lookout from a small "conning tower." He has estimated that the trip will occupy 40 days, and he is doubtful of finding more one to share the hazards with him.

Insulin Causes Mule

Insulin may prove the ideal tonic, according to investigators at the University at Breslau, Germany, who claim to have found a substitute for the pancreatic insulin theretofore the remedy for diabetes could not be given in the form of drops, powders or tablets, but must be injected under the skin. Prof. J. C. Minkowski, who conducted the method of giving insulin takes note of festive in a number of cases.

Quick Step for Airplanes

New Device Will Permit Planes to Land on Roofs of Buildings

Airplanes can now be safely brought in a step within a distance of three city blocks under a reversing propeller arrangement patented by C. France Joslin, noted Washington inventor.

The propeller cannot be operated until the plane has left Joslin's explained, and when thrown in reverse halts the airplane with the ease of powerful brakes

The inventor predicts his device will permit air fields for mail and commerce to be established on the roofs of large buildings in the business and county housing of mail, express and passengers from suburban areas.

DEBILITY DUE TO INDIGESTION

Perfect Digestion Comes Through Rich, Red Blood

There can be no perfect digestion unless you have rich, red blood This is scientifically true. It is also true that there is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every other part of the body. The way, then, to tone up the stomach is to tone up the whole system.

The many so-called stomach remedies supply try to digest your food for you. How much better it is to tone up the stomach so that it will do the work itself as it should do it. There is no pleasure in eating prepared food. You get the stomach and your appetite and digestion will come back.

If your digestion is weak and your blood thin you need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to enrich the blood and restore strength. In addition they act directly on the stomach, liver and bowels. Mrs. Peterborough, Ont., tells as follows what they have done for her: "Some years ago "Something over a year ago I was a mantle salesman when I was taken sick. I felt very miserable and lost twelve pounds in weight. I did not sleep well and could not eat as I could scarcely retain anything in my stomach. I took a lot of medicine but I had lost sleep well and could eat anything. I have since had splendid health and cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pills.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Farmers Market Tour

An Exceptional Opportunity for Farmers of Western Canada to Visit the Old Land

For the fifth year in succession the Canadian Pacific Railway has arranged a farmers' market tour from Western Canada to the British Isles. This year the tour will leave Winnipeg on July 15th, and will visit the principal markets of Great Britain, including Belfast, Liverpool, Manchester, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Birmingham, London, Bristol, Cardiff, Plymouth, Southampton and Dublin. The tour will be under the personal escort of Mr. Frank Ross, Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture for Manitoba, and Mr. Sidney Dillon Ripley, Canadian National Railways Director of Colonization and Agriculture, who will be accompanied by a party of Canadian National Railways officials.

The tour is essentially for the Canadian farmer. No farmers or shippers in Canada or anyone vitally interested in agriculture and handling of produce, and in the development of wider markets for Canadian products may join the party, and it will also be possible for women who are interested in any phase of agriculture to go.

The cost of the tour from point of leaving Halifax, Canada, until the return to that port will be $500.00. This cost includes all ocean fares and all rail, railway and bus fares in the old land, accommodation at good modern first class hotels, meals and ordinary wines incidental to the tour while overseas.

In addition members of the party will pay their own fares to and from and travel to and from the port of sailing at special rates provided, and will be required to bear passport, meals, tips, entrance tax and commodity ticket tips on board ship crossing the Atlantic and personal expenses such as laundry, etc., and such other incidentals of entertainment incurred by them personally.

Ocean accommodation is being provided by the White Star Line-Canadian Service. The party will sail on the Canadian Cruiser "Ausonia" on July 15th, the accommodation for the party being in the cabin class. Similar accommodation and service on these vessels will be arranged for the return journey which will include a two days' cruise of the Norwegian fjords.

Further information may be secured about the Farmers' Marketing Tour by communication with W. J. Black, Director of Colonization Agriculture and Natural Resources, Canadian National Railways in Canada.

Alberta For Production

Official figures show that Alberta's total for production for the fiscal year 1925-26 was valued at $51,122,778-a gain of approximately $4,000,000 over the preceding year, and puts Alberta in third place among the provinces in the value of farm production.

Gum-Dipping

A Firestone Contribution to Economical Travel

The greatest enemy to tire life is not the chopped-up road, the broken pavement or the harsh grind of rough city streets but heat, which is created by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the tire rubber and causes blowouts and tire failure.

Firestone chemists and engineers know that if they could find a way to eliminate the destructive heat and internal friction, the mileage giving qualities of tires would be greatly increased. Such a method was found and called "Gum-Dipping."

The Gum-Dipping process is one of Firestone's contributions to economical travel to motorists and impregnates every fiber of every cord with rubber, reducing internal friction and at the same time bonding the cords together by a stronger union of rubber, thus giving greater strength and flexibility to the tire

Firestone dealers everywhere familiar with Gum Dipping and its advantages will gladly explain how thousands of extra miles are built into Firestone tires by this exclusive method. Take advantage of the Gum Dipping process to lower your tire costs this year.

Russia Preparing For War

Military Sports Advocated to Awaken Enthusiasm of Youth of Country

A campaign is on foot this autumn in the Soviet Union for the promotion of military preparedness in the form of military sports, which are regarded as threats of war by the Communist party and its followers. The plan was launched at the meeting of the Communist party in Moscow, when the leaders urged the carrying out of their policy of "militarizing the masses." Emphasis on such a term to the general improvement of the agricultural industry in Canada.

The tour is essentially for the Canadian farmer. No farmers or shippers in Canada or anyone vitally interested in agriculture and handling of produce, and in the development of wider markets for Canadian products may join the party, and it will also be possible for women who are interested in any phase of agriculture to go.

The cost of the tour from point of leaving Halifax, Canada, until the return to that port will be $500.00. This cost includes all ocean fares and all rail, railway and bus fares in the old land, accommodation at good modern first class hotels, meals and ordinary wines incidental to the tour while overseas.

In addition members of the party will pay their own fares to and from and travel to and from the port of sailing at special rates provided, and will be required to bear passport, meals, tips, entrance tax and commodity ticket tips on board ship crossing the Atlantic and personal expenses such as laundry, etc., and such other incidentals of entertainment incurred by them personally.

Ocean accommodation is being provided by the White Star Line-Canadian Service. The party will sail on the Canadian Cruiser "Ausonia" on July 15th, the accommodation for the party being in the cabin class. Similar accommodation and service on these vessels will be arranged for the return journey which will include a two days' cruise of the Norwegian fjords.

Further information may be secured about the Farmers' Marketing Tour by communication with W. J. Black, Director of Colonization Agriculture and Natural Resources, Canadian National Railways in Canada.

Any neighbor would tell you that Dr. St. John had built this house when he got married, and if you had time to wait you might hear that the doctor would not have an office in his house because his young wife was not strong and the overflow of human misery from a doctor's office seen the morning doing would be too much for her. So the doctor had an office down town, where visiting patients and in rubber heels reading the selected magazines on the waiting table while they waited.

The doctor's wife had her own ear points of music, and all the time the day or night lasted.

When Helmi had been with Miss Abbie three months she had a birthday one day to call. It was not a perfect social call. Indeed he who addressed it on invitation, and Helmi knew perfectly well that Miss Abbie had known each other in Cannington, where they had lived on the same street, and had been in the same high school together, and were taught in the same school house on the hill.

Helmi had come to Miss Abbie's front door with a package of fresh doughnuts, and stood waiting. "But needs must," she thought in English. You need how to understand, do you? Yes, well, here's my point. My wife needs more sister at in life she sees how satisfied and happy I remain at home. And the cause I think if you would ask her she might consider teaching your girl for an hour every second day or so. And Helmi, with a low bow, and smoke a sketch of her the day she has gone darken."

"She would like it," said Miss Abbie apologetically. "I cannot keep work ahead of her. She wanted me to let her visit with you, but I was afraid it would be keep her busy one morning. She does seem in such a little time, and she tells me she has a real talent for it. I'll take a man to dig the garden but she's assured me of that. I gave in."

The matter was settled. Helmi's first lesson was to be given on the following day, and Miss Abbie, relieved of responsibility, went back to her sewing.

Helmi opened the door promptly. The lesson lasted an hour, coinciding exactly with the duration of the chocolates, and Helmi was invited to come every day.

So Helmi there seemed to open a new world, rapturous, rainbow hued and golden — something she had dreamed about. The subtle perfume of the sun room, the air of indolence and luxury, of freedom from care or responsibility, the delicious meals in the house, as if every one walked on carpets of plush all this seemed a kind of dream.

When she came out into the sunshine and ran across the road Helmi, for the first time, was able to think in English, and the words that she said were, "Home-sick."

Young Methodist Church, though not set on a hill, was determined that it would be seen and heard in spite of that geographical handicap, and resorted to the wholly worldly but nevertheless effective method of advertising. RUN-DOWN AFTER BIRTH OF BABY

Ottawa Woman Made Strong by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottawa, Ontario. "I was terribly run-down after the birth of my third baby. I had awful backing-cough spells and was afraid I had serious trouble. I was tired all the time and had no appetite. My sister-in-law is taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and cannot praise it too highly and asked me to try it. I have had splendid results and feel fine all the time now. Any one who needs a thorough good reconstructive tonic should give it a trial. You may use testimonial from me what to take."—Mrs. Rose Pasque, 318 Cumberland Street, Ottawa, Ontario.

Terrible Backache

Hamilton, Ont.—"After my baby was born I had terrible backache and headaches. I could not do my work and felt tired from the first minute I got up. But worst of all were the pains in my sides and I moved about. I had to sit or lie down for a while afternoons. I could keep my home in order, but many things had to go undone at the time, because of my ailments. I was told by a neighbor to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as she said it would build me up. I was relieved before I had taken the first two bottles and now I do not feel any trouble like it since."—Mrs. T. Mabbs, 49 Burton Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

Canada's New Carillon

Is Considered Finest and Most Complete Ever Constructed

Canada's splendid new carillon, installed in the Memorial Tower of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa, seems to have met the highest anticipations of the Government and added another laurel leaf to the crown earned by the famous foundry at Croydon, England. Both the thousands who heard the bells peal forth their joyous message at noon of Jubilee Day, and the millions to whom it came by radio throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, were enthralled by the rich quality of the sound and amazed at the ability of the bells to reproduce every kind of music This had been deemed strange in England as the mental given on by M. Lefeuvre, the distinguished Belgian carillonneur, at the foundry but moments prior to the time stated that no less than 1,200 people visited the Croydon works to see the Canada carillon, described as the finest and most complete ever constructed in the home of bell ringing.

Ottawa has indeed been favored in becoming the possessor of the carillon installed at the present time, and that will remain a proud monument of joy and happiness to the people of today and to generations yet unborn. In England it has pioneered a movement which the latest production of a craftsmanship unequalled by any other country of the world. It is a gift of great significance to the Motherland from the Dominion, reminded of the process now being installed. One unit, turning out 20 tons an hour, for 24 hours of the day, will be in operation by December 1st, he said. H. S. Hartley, of Seattle, is president of the new company.

Millions of "Dead" Letters

Yearly Report Shows Necessity of Being Careful About Address

It will come as a surprise to most people, and as a shock to many to learn from the Canadian Post Office Department that nearly 2,000,000 letters were handled by that department during last year. More than 1,000 of these letters were registered — and the remainder, nearly amounting to thousands of dollars. In fact, the sum of $19,456 was received from the sale of stamps on this large quantity of undelivered mail. The number of such letters is far too great. While it will never be entirely done away with, perhaps it could be reduced to a negligible quantity through a little carefulness by the writers.

It is above rare instance on the part of the public that the Post Office employs that is the primary reason for the majority of the 2,000,000 "dead" letters. A week or two ago a man handed this huge quantity of undelivered mail Think of it. Two million persons in the world wondering why they haven't had a letter, slightly in the letter I wrote." Hopes may have been blighted, hearts broken, fortunes lost. While it is not how many undeliverable letters are sent out, but perhaps the number of undelivered letters that is the primary reason for the majority of the 2,000,000 "dead" letters. A By-law to authorize the Mayor and Secretary-Treasurer of the Town of Fort Saskatchewan, to sign and execute on behalf of the Town a certain agreement between the Town and Calgary Power Company Limited for the purchase of the electric distribution system of the Town, and for the supply of electricity to the Town and the inhabitants on the terms as set out in the agreement hereto annexed and herein referred to as Schedule "A."

WHEREAS CALGARY POWER COMPANY LIMITED has requested the Council of the Town to enter into an agreement on the terms of and subject to the covenants, provisoes and conditions contained in the agreement hereto annexed and marked in the Schedule "A" hereto annexed, said agreement providing for the purchase by said Calgary Power Company Limited from the Town of the electric distributing system of the Town, and for the supplying to the Town and the inhabitants thereof of electricity for light, heating and power purposes.

AND WHEREAS it is deemed by the Council of the Town that it is advisable and in the best interests of the Town that the said agreement and terms in the Schedule "A" hereto should be ratified and confirmed and that the same should be executed by and on behalf of the Town.

NOW THEREFORE the Council of the Town of Fort Saskatchewan enacts as follows:—

1. That the said agreement hereto annexed as Schedule "A" be and the same is hereby ratified and confirmed, and the Mayor and Secretary-Treasurer of the Town are hereby authorized to sign and execute said agreement for and on behalf of the Town and the Secretary-Treasurer is hereby authorized to affix thereto the official seal of the Town.

2. That said agreement hereto annexed as Schedule "A" is hereby embodied in and made part of this by-law.

3. That the Council of the said Town shall appropriate and set aside from the moneys received by it pursuant to said agreement hereto annexed as Schedule "A," a sum sufficient, with the estimated interest thereon, to pay the outstanding debentures of the Town relating to said electric distributing system as and when the same shall become due and payable, and to purchase and retire such debentures as and when they may be acquired by the Town on such terms as the Council of the Town may deem reasonable and satisfactory.

4. That the moneys appropriated as aforesaid in the manner hereinbefore limited from time to time, together with the remainder, if any, of the moneys received by Town, pursuant to the aforesaid agreement, shall be administered in accordance with and pursuant to the directions to be furnished by the Council from the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, or by such other Board, Commission or Department thereof.

SCHEDULE "A"

AGREEMENT made this 21st day of June, A.D. 1928,

BETWEEN:

THE TOWN OF FORT SASKATCHEWAN, (hereinafter called "the Town")

OF THE FIRST PART,

and

CALGARY POWER COMPANY LIMITED, having its Head Office at the City of Montreal, in the Province of Quebec, (hereinafter called "the Company");

OF THE SECOND PART.

WITNESSETH that the parties hereto covenant, promise and agree each with the other as follows:

1. The Town shall sell to the Company and the Company shall purchase from the Town the whole of its electric undertaking as a going concern, and generally, but in no wise limiting the generality of the foregoing, the whole of its electric distribution system consisting of all switch-boards, supplies, spare parts, meters, transformers, tools, fixtures, wires, poles and all other plant, appurtenances and equipment of every nature, kind and description, the property of the Town and now being in or upon the streets, alleys, private or public buildings within the Town, the foregoing being hereinafter referred to as "Town's electrical undertaking."

2. The purchase payable by the Company to the Town for said "Town's electrical undertaking" free and clear of all liens, charges and encumbrances, and for the franchise and other rights and privileges hereinafter granted, shall be the principal sum of Twenty-Six Thousand ($26,000.00) Dollars, which said sum shall be paid in cash, upon the execution of this agreement; PROVIDED that the Company shall not be called to pay said purchase money until it has in all respects complied with all the formalities and requirements of Law empowering it to enter into this agreement.

3. The Town hereby grants to the Company the sole and exclusive right, license and privilege for a term or period of Ten (10) years from the date of this agreement or on the same may from time to time be extended, pursuant to the provisions hereof, to manufacture, supply, sell and distribute to the Town as at present constituted, and to the inhabitants thereof, from time to time and to be extended, and to the inhabitants thereof, all such electric power or energy as the Company may from time to time be required to supply for which electricity is or may during the said term or any extension thereof be lawfully required or available to the Town and its inhabitants.

4. The Town hereby grants to the Company for the said term of Ten (10) years or any extension of such term in accordance with the provisions hereof, the right and privilege of using under and upon the streets, lanes and other public places within the limits of the Town as the same may be extended from time to time and to be used by the Company's own expense and as the Company shall deem necessary or convenient, but thereby and thereafter as an electric energy and power, generating and distribution system, including poles, wires, cables, switches and all other works and undertakings of every kind and description and including the right of ingress to and egress from the Company in all streets, lanes and other public places to trim and remove all parts of trees which may in the sole proper opinion, maintenance and operation of poles, cables, wires, towers and other fixtures and appurtenances installed or to be installed in pursuance of the authority hereby granted.

5. The Town shall distribute and pay, as and when the same become due and payable, and indemnify and save harmless the Company against all payments of the costs, all its debts and liabilities including all unpaid debentures which are now or shall have or be at the time charged upon or constitute a lien, charge, encumbrance, on any part or portion of said "Town's electrical undertaking" hereby agreed to be transferred and sold.

6. The Company shall, subject to the provisions herein contained on or before the 20th day of November, A. D. 1928 and during the currency of this agreement and any extension thereof, supply at all times and continuously to the Town and inhabitants thereof, under the terms hereof, electric energy and power required by the Town and the inhabitants thereof, and subject to interruption by accident or Act of God or other matters beyond the control of the Company.

7. IT IS AGREED AND UNDERSTOOD that this agreement is entered into on the condition that the Company shall undertake the construction of a high tension transmission line from any of its lines generated, shall be the principal sum of Twenty-Six Thousand ($26,000.00) Dollars, which said sum shall be paid in cash, upon the execution of this agreement; PROVIDED that the Company shall not be called to pay said purchase money until it has in all respects complied with all the formalities and requirements of Law empowering it to enter into this agreement.

3. The Town hereby grants to the Company the sole and exclusive right, license and privilege for a term or period of

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1928

THE INSOLENT PEDESTRIAN

Have you ever walked along a dark road at night and cursed the motorist whose fender barely missed you as he whirled past at thirty miles an hour?

Did you ever stop to realize that the motorist probably did not see you until he was almost upon you and that it was merely lapsense of expert work at the wheel that you lived to curse?

Many motorists prefer to drive with dimmers. Others do not have lamps properly focused. In either case it is often impossible to notice a pedestrian until almost upon him. Some pedestrians feeling that the road is as much theirs as the motorist's insist upon walking in the centre and forcing the driver to swerve aside—even when a mandolier is coming in the opposite direction and such swerving is extremely dangerous.

Far too often the driver notices the pedestrian too late—and we have another fatality. Pedestrians can often see and hear an approaching automobile long before the driver sees them. Stop aside and be safe. No motorist wants to kill you—but his way do it if you are too pugnacious.

Half a million automobiles from the United States and the provinces of Canada carry as a million and a half persons to the Canadian National during the coming tourist season, according to the estimate of the Montreal Tourist and Convention Bureau.

The area of the counties is expected to be increased by more than ever in the 1928 harvest. In 1926 there were 178 counties in the Prairie Provinces, 148 being in Saskatchewan, 21 in Alberta and 9 in Manitoba. In 1927 there was a total of 626 in Saskatchewan, 221 in Alberta and 23 in Manitoba, 770 in all.

There is considerable tree planting activity going along the Medicine Hat division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Shelterbelts aggregating twenty-five hundred of small trees were received the other day from the Forestry Branch at Indian Head, Saskatchewan, being all sent here planted. Cluny and other villages are competing actively.

Breaking the speed across the Atlantic ocean made by pacemaking liners of modern size, the five 10,000 ton vessels of the "Beaver" class have been achieving records in seasonable freight transportation for the Canadian Pacific Steamships. The speedy quintette of freighters joined the company's fleet this year and have been running ahead on as frequent and rapid a service between Canada and England as many passenger boats.

are temporarily directed at his request, he required to pay the said reconnection charge before service is resumed by the Company: PROVIDED that this provision shall not apply to the cutting and sealing rink in the Town. Any such reconnection may be considered as a new connection and the Company shall have the right to require a deposit as herein provided by subclause (a) such reconnection charge before making such reconnection.

22. In all cases the Town may for any reasonable purposes make use of the poles of the Company for municipal purposes, so long as the use thereof by the Company is not interfered with, and any extra or additional cross-arms, insulators, or other fixtures required by reason of the use of the said poles by the Town shall be supplied and erected at the expense of the Town, the Town covenanting and agreeing to be responsible for and to indemnify the Company against any loss, damages or injury suffered by or recovered from the Company as the direct or indirect result of the said use of the said poles by the Town.

23. This agreement shall be read subject to the terms of Section 389 of the Town Act, namely that at the expiration of the term hereby granted, the same may be renewed for a period not exceeding ten (10) years (and so from time to time) with such alterations, if any, as may be agreed upon by the parties and approved by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners and that if either party refused to renew such contract, or if the parties fail to agree as to the conditions of such renewal, then the Council of the Town may, subject to the approval of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, purchase all the rights of the Company in all matters and things under this contract and in all plant, machinery, equipment, property and property used for the purposes thereof, for such price and on such terms as may be agreed upon with the Company, or failing such agreement, then, for such price and on such terms as may be fixed and settled by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners on the application of either of the parties. Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to any purchase of the Company's main transmission line and step down substation.

24. Subject to the observance and performance by the Company of the terms and covenants of this Agreement and those upon the part of the Company to be observed and performed, a period of ten (10) years from the date of the execution of this agreement or during any extension of the term hereby by itself, or grant to any other person, firm or corporation the right to, erect, maintain, operate, use upon or operate an electric light and electric power plant or to sell or dispose of electric light or electric power in the Town for any purpose.

25. PROVIDED and it is distinctly understood and agreed that in the event of default being made by the Company in the observance and performance of the terms, conditions and covenants of this Agreement and such default being unremedied continued, the rights and privileges hereby granted shall (at the option of the Town) cease and determine in the same manner and to all intents and purposes as if the full period of ten (10) years herein mentioned had elapsed and the Town shall have the right to purchase the plant and property of the Company on the same terms and conditions as at the expiration of the said period of ten (10) years; provided that none of the rights or remedies of the Town under this agreement, and in particular any right to recover damages from the Company for such default in a Court of competent jurisdiction, shall be in any way merged, waived, suspended, prejudiced or affected by the exercise of the said option on the part of the Town. Failure on the part of the Town to exercise the said option shall not operate as a waiver of the Company's default or prevent the exercise of such option in the event of any later or similar default of the Company.

26. The Company shall be liable for and shall indemnify the Town for all damages arising out of the construction and operation of its works owing to the negligence of the Company, its servants and employees and the Town shall be liable for all damages to the plant and equipment of the Company caused by the Town, its workmen, employees or licensees.

27. All the rights, powers and privileges granted to and conferred upon the Town by this agreement may be exercised and enjoyed by the Council of the Town and any person or persons from time to time authorized by the said Council for that purpose. The Company shall before proceeding with the construction, reconstruction, extension or alteration of any of its distribution system submit plans therefor to the Council of the Town and shall obtain the approval of the Council to such plans and will, where reasonably possible and convenient construct, assent, and lay its poles, wires, conduits and cables and other works and undertakings through and along lanes in preference to streets and avenues.

The next day Helmi went to the North Star Rooming House, walking wearily in the rain to get there.

Mrs. Corbett opened the door to her as she had four months before, and again the anguish in the girl's face told its own story

"My God! Helmi, is she dead?" gasped Mrs. Corbett.

Helmi sat down before she answered.

"Is that all? Sure that's nothin', every child gets scarlet fever. They're grand at the Isolation Hospital. I know big Miss Shaw up there, so grand a girl as ever went on rubber heels Cheer up, Helmi, the little pet will be all right, please God. I thought the gypsies had stolen her by the look on your face, and I'm glad it's nothin' worse than scarlet fever."

"My man has gone to the war!" said Helmi brokenly; "I saw him on the train. He did not see me he does not care about me."

Mrs. Corbett paused. This was a harder complication than the illness of little Lili, and for a moment even this determined optimist was floored — but only for a moment.

"Well, sure, when he's there you know where he is, and it's noble of him to go, Helmi- remember that. Now here, dear, take a cup of tea. Yes you can; a person can always take a cup of tea, no matter who's gone, and it makes life look a little brighter. Drink it down, dear, and have another. You look better now. Don't get down to mourning, Helmi: there's nothin' happened, yet that can't come right, remember that: and your darlin', blessed child with God's blessin,' will come through the fever just the way we all did, and your man will come back again."

"But he doesn't want me any more. . . . I know now. The magic trade has turned him against me I said I would kill that man, and I will."

"No, dear, no, you mustn't talk of killin anyone God will deal with the wicked in His own good time You come with me to the Army and you'll find comfort in God's love No killin', though, Helmi, that's bad And see dear, I was forgettin' there's two letters for you just came yesterday."

Helmi took them eagerly and opened one. "It's a mistake," she said, listlessly "See, there's money in it No one would send me money But has been opened too, and sealed up again."

Mrs Corbett took it out of her hand. "It's a for you, right enough," she said, "here's your name on it It's a separation allowance for Britven dollars from Arthur Warner Eagle Mines."

"I do not know anyone called Arthur Warner," said Helmi

"Well, he knows you, and that's better anyway, he wants you to have the money, and you're a fool if you don't take it. Send the other one maybe it will tell"

Helmi opened it and read It was the letter Jack had opened at Eagle Mines. Helmi read it aloud to Mrs Corbett. "I know now," she said "It is a good man that Mr Engelish. I will take the money he means good by me "

"Sure he does," agreed Mrs. Corbett; "he must like a good fellow, a good Englishman, and there's nothin' finer in the world Now Helmi, I'll want you to lie down in Rosie's bed and have a good sleep, poor child. Now you'll be havin' trouble with your breasts, cuttin' off the baby so suddint, so I'll run in and borrow Mrs. Kalinski's breast pump she's the grandest woman for that or a neighbor, for she has everything from a bust-jack to curtain stretchers. You see in their home here they get a nurse, and she gives her the run of the store but have your sleep now, honey."

But Helmi's thoughts were not of sleep. She had a duty to perform, and which she had no desire to evade. One great purpose dominated her heart and cried aloud for fulfilment. The money which had come to her and made it possible. When Mrs. Corbett came with

CHAPTER XXVII

Dr. St. John lay one evening on the chesterfield in his den, before a cheerful wood fire. Eva was entertaining her Wednesday night bridge-party, and tinkles of laughter, high-pitched and nervous, shot through the velvety murmurs of conversation.

The doctor had listened to such conversation many times, and knew the little razor-sharp points of antagonism it hid. He had seemed to pop out like needles from a squeezed pin-cushion, thin, sharp, unexpected, for the temper of the guests was uncertain. They had no community of purpose—they were pursuing no particular trend of thought, they were social killers, sensation hunters. He knew the very odor of the room — sachet powder, cigarette smoke, flesh of women too scantily clad, perfume heavy and exotic, a sweet smell, yet not wholesome—like good apples wasting air.

The doctor could see it all like a picture. The dark brown background, shot through here and there with little flashes of pale lightning that began in nothing and ended in nothing, led nowhere. Eva's friends met, chattered, parted, met again. No one wiser or better, none inspired to nobler living. They were doing nothing wrong—it was even worse than that, he thought—they were doing nothing.

The doctor recalled that it was Wednesday night. His mother always went to the prayer-meeting on Wednesday night. How Eva would laugh if anyone mentioned prayer-meeting. And yet human nature was the same. But somehow it was getting off the track. His mother had spent years on a treadmill, her days laid out for her in regular lines. Work stared at her from morning till night, and she did it, and held her head above it all. She was always sweet-tempered, interesting, sympathetic, Eva having nothing to do, did nothing, and doing nothing, degenerated, grew shallow, selfish, cross-grained and hard.

In his straggling days Dr. St. John had dreamed of having a home like this and a wife who would help him by her sympathy and understanding But something had spoiled his dream He had the house and the practice, and some one to spend his money, but—

In some ways he had been to blame - he had been too easy, indulgent and foolish. Eva and her friends laughed at him, he knew The ease with which Eva was able to deceive him furnished many a good story for the lively company which sat the bridge tables.

It was when his mother came to visit him a year ago that the doctor began to see Eva as she was. He had tried to imagine what she would be like when she was as old as his mother, who at sixty-five was as alert and eager-minded as ever, doing many of the things she had been wont to do all her life To Eva she was a puzzle. How could anyone get such joy from going to the New Year Baby or Sunday School children? Or why did anyone get up early on Sunday morning to go for a walk? Eva's studied politeness toward his mother irritated him, and it was a relief when his mother went over to Miss Abbey's to finish her visit. He passed another month. He had often thought of what a pleasure it would be to have his mother with him She was such a good sport, his mother.

Another matter was weighing heavily on the doctor's mind. More surgeons were needed at the front Why should he stay here at ease" Dr. Brown, his young partner was seriously considering the matter Dr. Brown had a wife and children a wife who loved him. Dr Brown had said that he would go, he being the younger man. That did not matter. Dr. Brown was needed here more than he, who had no one dependding on him. Eva would be happier without him so long as the money held out.

These thoughts occupied the doctor's mind as he lay listening to the commotion across the hall. The first year of their married life, when he began to see that Eva had no intention of entering into his life seriously, he was sorely hurt. He had had dreams of domestic happiness since he was sixteen, and it is the loss of a dream that hurts the most. Now he was still hurt, but he was critical.

MEDICINE FOR YOUNG GIRLS

Ardmore Endorses Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydney, N. S. — "My seventeen year old daughter took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and pains. She could not go about much with the other girls as she was not strong enough. We got the bottles and it did her a great turn. Since working out now in a store and walks three miles every morning and back in the evening." — Mrs. MARY VARCE, 44 Logan Road, Sydney, N. S.

Pinewood, Ont.—"I constantly had pains in my back and side and spent two days in bed every month. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets. They have done me good and I always have them in the house. I have recommended your good medicine to several friends and have given it to my 17 year-old girl." — Mrs. ALFRED OSBORNE, Pinewood, Ontario.

Eczema Formed Painful Blisters Caticura Healed

"Eczema started with a fine rash on my arms. Later it formed blisters about the size of a bean which would fill and break out in scales. It burned and was so sore I could not bear to touch it. The trouble got so bad I could barely make a move without pain. I had my hands and arms tied up from the ends of my fingers to my shoulders. Sometimes it kept me awake for hours.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in about three weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Emily M. Davis, R. R. 3, Northwood, Ont.

Teeth and Health

FOOTBALL HE

As a child, you may have thought a tooth solid right through just as a piece of ivory stuck it resembled Then one day you noticed that when something sweet got into the "hole" in a tooth, it hurt a little but this soon passed away

So you kept mum for fear you would have to go to the dentist.

Until, one night you wakened your parents with crying and announced between sobs that your tooth was hurting

Then what had happened? While your tooth in a childhood time or more with soft tissue lined by sensitive nerves, and the decay which is a disease process had been steadily progressing towards the "inside" until the soft tissue had become infected by the disease bearing organisms. Then nature had rushed to the defense to combat them by sending into the tooth a greater supply of blood, containing millions of little warriors called "Phagocytes". Some of these burst through the enamel walls to attack the organisms and with this increase of blood there was a swelling of the tissue, causing increased pressure on the nerve endings—which signalled to headquarters—and so pain resulted

And, just as in battle, so the fight wages the wires grow hotter—so the pain signalled more furiously, crying loudly—until, by and by the fight is over and the little warriors cooled off and the pain was stilled and you were so glad that it was over, that you forgot to wonder how it stopped.

Little Helps For This Week

New every morning is the love
Our waking and uprising prove;
Through sleep and darkness safely throught,
Restored to life and power and thought.

New mercies each returning day

Royal Air Force Band

Will Be Heard At Western Points During the Summer Months

The band of the Royal Air Force, now on a three months' tour of Canada and an engagement at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, is the youngest among the first-class bodies of military musicians in Britain.

The band, under the leadership of Flight-Lieutenant Amers, will play for a week at the fairs at Brandon, Man., Calgary and Edmonton, Alta., Saskatoon and Regina, Sask., and for two weeks at the exhibition at Toronto, late in August. In the interval, between the western fairs and the opening of the Canadian National exhibition, the organization will give concerts at Victoria and Vancouver, B.C.; Seattle, Wash.; Lethbridge, Alta., and Winnipeg, Man., as well as other cities, and finally will reach Montreal and Quebec.

Miller's Worm Powders act mildly and without injury to the child, and there can be no doubt of their desirable effect upon worms. They have been in successful use for a long time and are recognized as a leading preparation for the purpose. They have proved their power in numberless cases and have given relief to many children, who, but for the good offices of this compound, would have continued weak and enfeebled.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby's "Babies Have Nerves"

By RUTH BRITTAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to too much stimulation during infancy. Amusing or hugging baby as a part of unstinted joy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with and cuddled for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or complaisance.

Fretfulness, restlessness and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by remembering that babies are recognized as a leading preparation for the purpose. They have proved their power in numberless cases and have given relief to many children, who, but for the good offices of this compound, would have continued weak and enfeebled.

Most people think of their Chevrolet dealer as a SERVICE dealer . . . partly because of the huge amount of new Chevrolets which they see on the streets. But, while new car sales are the Chevrolet dealer's biggest reason for being in business, they form only one side of his activities. He must not only sell cars but he must also recondition them.
Every good successful Chevrolet dealer must also be a good, good, successful Car dealer.
From his experience in selling Chevrolets new, he knows many car values . . . He knows that it is just as important for him to sell a Used Car as a new car . . . He knows that Used Car buyers have a right to as much for their money and are entitled to as complete satisfaction as new car buyers . . . He knows that satisfied Used Car owners will eventually become prospects for new cars . . . He knows the value of good will.
In short, our business as Chevrolet dealers depends on our reputation as used car dealers. That is why you are sure of a square deal and a square-for-the-money value, when you buy a used car here.

TWO INTERESTING RED CROSS EXHIBITS

The watchword of the Red Cross in Alberta is Health, Citizenship and Service, and in translating this into action the Headquarters of the Society employs many methods. The teaching of health has necessarily to begin with Mothers of babies in the cradle, and hence to women and girls. Red Cross gives a great opportunity to learn these lessons of Motherwraft in the numerous Home-Nursing classes which are formed all over the province.

Instruction in health also forms the major portion of the study of the Junior Red Cross in the schools of Alberta, boys and girls "learn by doing," and in practice of the rules of health our young people are laying up for themselves a store of sound, good health which will last them all their lives.

At the fair in Calgary and Edmonton there will be shown an unique model of a Good Health Service Station, illustrating by figures of motor car and mechanics the laws that govern the machinery of the body. Electric light on the roof of the station proclaims the great health giving agents, "Water, Food, Air, Cleanliness, etc." The repairs necessary to the human body must not be overlooked and in the persons of the surgeon and the nurse see the mechanics who examine and test the body to locate trouble and arrest it.

Another model of great interest will be the new wing of the University hospital where the Junior Red Cross patients are undergoing their marvellous cures. Here will be shown at a glance the scene of their beautifully equipped wards with children in all stages of convalescence. Service to the sick children of Alberta must commend itself to every human heart, and to partake in the privilege of curing would be the people's pride.

Partridge Hill

The school residence is being remodelled. A full-sized basement is being put in. Mr Elliott is in charge

Mr. John Alton is progressing, but slowly.

The community held a shower in honor of Miss Rosie Smith at her home on June 30. Mr. Willmot Alton made an appropriate speech. Two little boys, Harry Smith and Ralph Lawrence, presented a basket of many lovely gifts.

WEDDING

HOWARD—SMITH

The home of Mr and Mrs. Ralph Smith of Partridge Hill was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, July 4, at eight o'clock, when their daughter, Rosie Janet, and Mr. Harold Taylor Howard, son of Mrs. Howard, Edmonton, were united in marriage. The Rev. F. D. Roxburgh of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Edmonton, assisted by the Rev. E. J. Hodgins of Fort Saskatchewan, officiated.

The bridal party took their place beneath an arch of wild roses and ferns and white bells, to the strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march played by Mrs. A. Gillis of Ardrossan.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a gown of white georgette over satin, with heavy fringe trimming and veil of net arranged in bandeau style. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a string of pearls, and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Ellen Smith, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a frock of yellow georgette with beaded trimming and picture hat of yellow mohair and lace. Mrs. Violet Lawrence, the matron of honor, wore a gown of flesh pink georgette, with panels of radium lace and picture hat to match. Both carried carnations and ferns.

Ralph and Hazel Lawrence, nephew and niece of the bride, acted as ring bearer and flower girl.

Mr. Carmen Sellars supported the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a gown of fawn crepe de chine, and the bridegroom's mother a gown of peacock blue morrisain crepe.

The bridegroom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bangle bracelet, to the matron of honor, an onyx dinner ring; to the best man, gold cuff links; to the flower girl, a birthday ring; and ringbearer, a pigeot ring; to the pianist, a gold hair pin.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served. Mrs. Bell and Mrs. J. Smith poured the tea and Mrs. Hodgins cut the buns. The bridal party sat at a table which was centred by the beautiful wedding cake. Rev. E. J. Hodgins proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the bridegroom.

The bride is an A.C.T.M. and for many years has been organist of Partridge Hill church. The bridegroom is a member of the staff of the department of agriculture, Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard left by motor for Banff, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Edmonton. Mrs. Howard travelled in a dress of Copenhagen flat crepe, with flower covered turban in the same shade, and coat of grey pariet twill fur trimmed.

They were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

The committee in charge of the Victoria constituency exhibit will pay small sums of money to children who will collect bunches of wild flowers and grasses and deliver same next Saturday to Mr. Montgomery on the ground floor of the Masonic hall.

The Fort baseball team had better look out for their laurels. Ypres Valley have a real live team of players: Bill Pearce, Harold Armstrong, Joe Brady, the Burnett brothers and Norman Latimer are making the dust fly.

NEW HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS ANNOUNCED

The number of homestead entries at the various land offices in the province is showing a very marked increase as a result of new regulations announced during the past week from Ottawa. Under the new arrangement persons who had proved up on their homesteads prior to January 1, 1925 are entitled to file on a second homestead. It is necessary, however, to make application to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, Ottawa, specifying the land previously homesteaded and to secure authority from this source to enter for a second claim.

19TH BATTALION SECOND ANNUAL CHURCH PARADE

The second annual church parade of the 49th Battalion Association will be held in Edmonton on Sunday, July 22. The parade will assemble at the Memorial hall at 10 a.m. prompt. All ranks will "Fall In" in their former companies.

Civilian clothes will be worn with medals and decorations.

The services will be held on Parliament Hill park, out of doors, so that all relatives and friends of the members may have an opportunity of taking part in the service.

Major General the Honourable W. A. Griesbach, C.B., will command the parade.

Co-operation Rather Than Discord

It has been one of Canada's greatest misfortunes that periodically throughout its history campaigns have been inaugurated having for their object the division of the people into rival camps divided by lines of racial and creed difference. Probably no one thing has in the past operated quite so disastrously to retard the growth and national development of Canada. Time and time again when some large national question was up for decision, the same turmoil, not on the merits of the question and the national policy involved, but upon some petty race and creed cry. One of the outstanding cases which is still fresh in the public mind was the Reciprocity election of 1911 when, in the last two weeks of the campaign, Ontario was swept by one of those insidious cries, and tens of thousands of voters were stampeded from support of their economic convictions in favor of freer trade and wider markets.

Throughout his long career, both in private and public life, Sir Wilfrid Laurier pleaded and strove for unity and concord among all classes of the Canadian people. Hon. Mackenzie King is worthily upholding the same cause, and it is gratifying to note that hon. R. B. Bennett, as leader of the Conservative Party in the Dominion, is throwing the whole of his eloquence and influence in the same direction. Speaking at Magog, in the Eastern Townships of Quebec, last month, Mr. Bennett said: "He who sows seeds of discord and distrust in racial and religious matters is a greater enemy to Canada than one who came with an armed force. You cannot develop a country by ill-will, hatred or contempt." A few days later at Chatham, Mr. Bennett used these words: "The application of the Golden Rule in the life of a nation is quite as important as it is in the life of an individual," and he added that anyone who "in the heat of an election sought to raise old animosities or new seeds of discord, must not forget his responsibility for such unjust action."

Here in Western Canada it is absolutely vital to the welfare of the country that such words be heeded. To an ever increasing degree the people of the West are looking to and relying upon co-operative movements and enterprises to solve the economic problems of the country. To date these have attained a marvellous success in a comparatively short space of time. This has been accomplished by all classes, all racial groups and creeds, in town and country, working together. There has been no loss of domination in the upbuilding of these large co-operative organizations. The Wheat Pools of the West, for example, could never have attained their present proportions and power had any such foolishness as so often enters into political campaigns been allowed.

The unfortunate fact remains that if the people of a Province or Community are stirred up and divided upon racial or religious lines for partisan political purposes, or for any other reason, the inevitable result is to create suspicions and animosities in the community, or throughout the Province, which makes it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to get all classes together, or hold them together, in a true spirit of co-operation. If the people of the West are divided into Catholic groups and anti-Catholic groups, English-speaking groups and non-English-speaking groups, it naturally becomes impossible for them to come together in the right spirit of friendliness and co-operation which is so essential to the maintenance and development of such organizations as the United Farmers, the Wheat Pools, and other co-operative organizations.

Those racial and religious campaigns have never got their proponents anywhere, in a never accomplished good but have invariably resulted in harm, they are in no sense constructive but always destructive. Despite any and all claims that may be made for them they are the reverse of British and open denial of that liberty and freedom which, it is our proud boast, is to be found and guaranteed to all under the British flag.

Not only are these unscrupulous campaigns destructive of a real national spirit; not only do they retard national growth, development and prosperity; they render the task of government, whether in the Dominion and Province, or in municipal councils and school boards, difficult and sometimes impossible, and in all cases more expensive and less efficient.

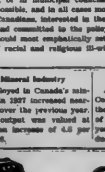
Western Canadians, interested in the growth of their country, loyal to its interests, and committed to the policy of co-operation for the common good of all, should most emphatically set their best upon the ugly head of the serpent of racial and religious ill-will whenever and wherever it may raise itself.

Canada Mineral Industry

Capital employed in Canada's mineral industry in 1927 increased nearly $18,000,000 over the previous year. The mineral output was valued at $564,389,051, an increase of 4.6 per cent. over 1926.

B.C. Agricultural Production

Agricultural production in British Columbia in 1927 totalled $76,000,000, the largest sum on record, an increase of 7.89 per cent. over the previous year. Exports of agricultural products increased by 70.3S per cent.



Sour Stomach

Just a teaspoon dose of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali, effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for 50 years among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and effective way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting the sour acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

New Quarters For Wheat Pool

Central Office Building To Be Constructed in Winnipeg

The Canadian Wheat Pool, a farmers' organization, which handles more export grain than any other organization in the world, is to be housed in a new central office building to be constructed in Winnipeg immediately. The building will be three storeys high, 150 feet, of thoroughly modern construction, faced with Manitoba stone and will cost $600,000.

The turnover of the Canadian Wheat Pools which will be directed from this office exceeds an average of a million dollars a day.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble That Usually Attacks Children

St. Vitus dance is the name generally given to a disease described by medical men as chorea. This trouble usually attacks young children, but grown people may be afflicted with it. The most common symptoms are a twitching of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses the twitching takes the form of spasms, in which the muscles of the arms and legs may be affected. Frequently the patient is unable to hold anything in the hands or walk steadily. In severe cases the speech is affected. The cause of this trouble is due to debility of the nerves and relief comes through an enriched blood supply. For this reason Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been most successful in restoring health to those who suffer from this distressing affliction as the blood, which it enriches and purifies. The following testimony proves the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this trouble. Mrs. Thomas Bowen, Bath, Ontario, says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been of the very greatest help to my family and always with good results. I believe they saved the life of my only son. At ten years of age he grew very nervous and the trouble developed into St. Vitus Dance. His legs and arms would jerk and twitch, then he speech was affected, and his condition was pitiable. Just then there came to me a little book telling of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to give them to him. By the time two boxes were used there was an improvement in his condition and by the time six boxes more were taken all traces of the trouble had disappeared, and he was well and strong. I have also given the pills to my young girls, and I know of no better strengthening medicine. I may add that the same applies to grown-up as well."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Honey Production

Honey production in Canada in 1927 was 23,647,304 pounds valued at $1,650,629, according to a statement issued at Ottawa, this being an increase of 77 per cent. over the previous year, due mostly to a favorable season but also to the greater number of colonies.

Indian Attempt

Use Mother's Worm Powders and the battle against worms is won. These powders clean the intestinal conditions of the stomach which nourish worms, and these destructive parasites cannot exist after they come in contact with the medicine. The worms are speedily evacuated with other refuse from the bowels, and health is imparted to the organs and the health of the child steadily improves.

An Alaskan Indian was sentenced to pay his squaw alimony of one hundred dollars, properly butchered and delivered; ten mink skins, dressed and stretched; five gray fox pelts, or one silver pair, and 100 fish-grown salmon delivered in season.

If the man who wants the earth succeeded in getting it he would kick about the taxes.

Kills Of Noxious Weeds

Alberta Farmer Has Invention Which May Prove Valuable

A machine to dig and destroy weeds has been invented by D. W. Warner, ex-M.P., Edmonton farmer.

A large rotary (horizontal) cylinder is the principal part of the new digger, into this cylinder are inserted hundreds of large spikes. As the cylinder revolves at high speed the teeth snatch the soil, hitting deep into the subsoil. Chunks of earth are thrown toward the rear of the machine. The dirt settles quickly while the weeds float through the air, finally coming down like spindrift over the newly-turned earth.

Weeds with extensive root systems, such as twitch grass and thistles, will fall an easy victim to the digger. The machine cannot cut smoothly, united in a field being left covered with finely minced twitch grass roots, like sod which piles up behind the thrashing machine.

Time and silence occasionally succeed where all other agencies fail.

"New Canadians" Celebrate

Picturesque and Colorful Folksong and Handicraft Festival

"New Canadians" from fifteen countries of Northern Europe joined in a celebration at Winnipeg recently to illustrate the national arts and culture which they are contributing to Canadian life. The celebration which took the form of a picturesque and colorful folk song and handicraft festival, was opened by Sir James Aikins, former Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, in the rotunda of the Royal Alexandra Hotel, where handicraft exhibits were shown representing typical European man's creations.

Settlers in Western Canada from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland, Germany, France, Belgium, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Ukrainian Finland, Hungary, Ukraina Poland and Russia were represented in the display of artistic handicraft. Programs of folk songs and dances were given every afternoon and evening with 600 performers appearing in national costumes and attracting large audiences.

The festival is regarded as a unique demonstration of the contribution of the nations of Northern Europe to Canadian life and the part which they are taking in the rapid development of Western Canada.

Prime Loses Its Engine

When the engine fell from his airplane while the crate in which he made die of a loop at a 1,500 foot altitude, Walter Brooks, of Allentown, Pa., righted the plane and glided to an easy landing. Neither he nor his passenger, Walter Marlesman was injured. The plane had just started into a loop when the heavy engine broke from its supports and dropped. It fell half a mile from where the plane landed.

Dressed Poultry Exports

Minister Of Agriculture To Investigate Market In England

Before sailing for England the Honorable W. H. Motherwell spent some time in Montreal discussing the situation with reference to exports to England of dressed poultry. Latest sales have been made on the base of 32 to 33 cents per pound for 1 pound chickens, and 29 cents seaboard for 4½ pound chickens. The total export of chicken thus year from Canada to May 31st was valued at $111,573. It is the intention of Mr. Motherwell to devote some time to this export trade and situation regarding dressed poultry while in Great Britain along with other agricultural products expected to be made as butter, eggs, cheese, bacon, beef cattle, etc.

Excellent For Craggy Children. — When a child is suffering with croup it is a good plan to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It reduces the inflammation and loosens the phlegm giving speedy relief to the little sufferer. It is equally reliable for sore throat and chest colds, for rheumatic pains, cuts, bruises and sprains. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is regarded by many thousands as an indispensable of the family medicine chest.

English Pheasants For Saskatchewan

An attempt is being made in the Alsask and Lancaster districts to raise English pheasants of the ring-necked variety. The Interesting Story of Three British Immigrants Who Have Met With Success In Canada

Premier King pointed out the other day that there were, in the Canadian Government, three ministers who came to Canada as British immigrants—Mr. Dunning, from England, Mr. Forke, from Scotland, and Mr. Heenan, from Ireland. In a cabinet of eighteen members, three Old Countrymen hold the important portfolios of Railways Canals, Immigration Colonization, and Labor. And they came to the Dominion without financial backing.

The experiences of Mr. Dunning, Mr. Heenan and Mr. Forke are of interest not only because they represent England, Ireland and Scotland, but because they set their feet upon somewhat different political ladders. Mr. Dunning climbed up by way of his prominence in business and agricultural organizations. Mr. Forke by way of agricultural and municipal experience. Mr. Heenan, by way of municipal and labor affiliations. Mr. Dunning achieved political prominence at an early age. Mr. Heenan in middle life. Mr. Forke, as an older man. They afford three interesting and quite different studies in immigrant success.

Mr. Forke came to Canada in 1883 at the age of twenty-two. He took up land in a remote part of southwest Manitoba, and for five years was interesting himself actively in municipal affairs. He was twenty years reeve of Pipestone. He spent three years secretary of the Manitoba union of municipalities and finally its president. But he had been in Canada eight years when at the age of twenty-nine years of age before he was elected to the House of Commons. The Indian and Metis districts in the border of the Progressives and in [illegible] at the age of sixty-six became a minister in the King Government.

Among the immigrants who came to Canada in 1902 were Peter Heenan and Charles Dunning. Heenan was 28, Dunning only 17.

Heenan, born in Ireland but schooled in England, and for a time a professional football player, had been working as engineer and diver for a construction company in Costa Rica, had been attached by yellow fever, and had examined the rival claims of Canada and South Africa as to healthfulness. He chose Canada, tried an Alberta ranch, preferred being a locomotive engineer, became an alderman of Edmonton and chairman of the Association of Locomotive Engineers, and 17 years after coming to Canada was elected to the Ontario Legislature. Six years later he was elected to the Dominion House from a constituency larger in area than Great Britain. And in 1926, 24 years after his arrival in the Dominion, and at the age of 53, he became Minister of Labor.

Dunning's career was meteoric. He told the House the other day how, on first coming to the Dominion, he worked for the summer on a western farm at ten dollars a month. The next year his father came. And by working at wages which never exceeded a dollar a day and board (the equivalent of perhaps two dollars), they laid by, in a summer and winter, enough money to bring out the mother and five sisters. But at 26, nine years after his arrival, Dunning appears in the picture as vice-president of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers, general manager of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, and member of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. At 34 years of age he became Provincial Treasurer of Saskatchewan; then Premier of that Province, and in 1926 became, like Heenan, a Minister of the Dominion Government at 42 years old.

In these three careers there is a lesson of hope for every immigrant and every intending immigrant. Not everyone can hope to be a Cabinet Minister; but all can hope for a greater degree of final comfort and prosperity than they are likely to attain elsewhere. Toronto Star.

World's Greatest Creditor

In a report to the Economic Committee of the League of Nations at Geneva, some remarkable figures were disclosed. Although the United States are certainly growing in importance, Great Britain is still the world's greatest creditor, her foreign investments are roughly given as £4,000,000,000. The United States investments are given at £2,000,000,000.

Poultry House Flooring

Cement Floors Give Trouble in Spite Of Dampness

Cement flooring for the poultry house has the merit of durability and it does not harbor vermin, but many poultry keepers complain that it gives trouble in winter and spring on account of being continually damp. At the Cheshunt Experimental Station the cement floor was given a coat of roofing paint but it did not reduce the dampness in any appreciable extent as the litter soon became damp and unfit for use almost as quickly as where the floor was left without treatment. In another house a wooden floor was built and laid in sections two inches above the cement. This treatment, according to Mr. J. A. Clark, the superintendent, in his report for 1927, was very effective, the section remaining dry and requiring cleaning only about half as many times as the other sections of the same house that had the cement floor only.

E. P. Ranch Ships Stock South

Important Shipment Of Pure Bred Stock Goes To California

Another important stock shipment has left the E.P. ranch for the Kenwood Stock farms, Kenwood, California. This is the third shipment made to the famous stock centre, and will consist of seven cows, five Shorthorn bulls, and five yearling bulls. Some of these were stock imported from the royal farm in England by James Watson, of the F.P. ranch, accompanied the bunch as herdsman, and will look over various prominent stock farms while in California.

Trade Within The Empire Is Being Furthered Through Efforts Of the Empire Marketing Board

The development of trade within the Empire is a matter which, during recent years, has been given the very earnest attention of all those countries making up the British commonwealth of nations. It is felt that the fostering of Intra-Empire trade will open up opportunities for trade relations that will not only serve to bring more closely together the various parts of the Empire but as well, afford much direction to production and consumption of those commodities for which the various countries concerned are best suited to produce, that the well-being of the whole Empire will be greatly added to. With this object in view, the Imperial Economic Conference, of which Canada is a member, in 1923 appointed the Imperial Economic Committee to study the possibilities for doing something to stimulate marketing within the Empire. As a result of their first and subsequent meetings, the Empire Marketing Board was created.

The Empire Marketing Board as constituted is an official non-political body, and the membership is so arranged that, though limited in size for sake of efficiency, no part of the Empire is unrepresented, and its chief executive is that of member to the Secretary of State for Dominion affairs, in the administration of the second veto of £1,000,000 as granted by the British Government to the United Kingdom. The Imperial Economic Committee and the Empire Marketing Board are now established, partly housed in their factories, so that the Board's objective may be displayed for the benefit and education of the vast army of industrial workers. Moving picture centre panel poster frames now being considered for erection at the chief railway stations in London, so as to reach the eyes and arrest the attention of the millions passing on and out of the largest single consuming area in the world and Empire.

The effectiveness of such a statement publicity secured for the assistance of research. Later, the Board established in the direction of an increased expenditure for the assistance of research.

The value of consumer publicity early engaged the attention of the Board and it was with the object of creating consumer interest in the matter of Empire trade research and within, that the Board at the outset decided with a publicity problem, both novel and difficult. The Board appreciated the fact that its main function from the royal farm in England, James Watson, of the F.P. ranch, accompanied the bunch as herdsman, and will look over various prominent stock farms while in California.

In which they were interested. This principle has been permanently adopted. Thus while the Board may draw attention in general terms to the people assume in particular varieties of Empire produce it is not called upon to undertake or subsidize special campaigns on their behalf. The effect has been that the Board has been engaged less in furthering directly the sale of individual articles of Empire produce, than in creating a consciousness of Empire among a public that might thus be led to respond more freely to the direct appeals of other advertisers. Already, there are evident signs up and down Great Britain of a fresh and growing interest in the possibilities of Empire development and trade, and as well, an alertness to preference for Empire products where quality and cost are in proper relation.

Consumer interest in the work of the board is now growing with increasing rapidity. Within recent months approximately 15,000 people have applied to the Secretary to be placed on the regular mailing list to receive the Board's posters as often as they are issued. Nearly 1,100 poster-boards or frames have been erected in different parts of the country, and a further 100 frames are in course of erection. To indicate the interest and value placed in this publicity campaign, leaders of the British Electrical and Allied Manufacturers' Association, which has made progress in developing the use of stirly attractive frames in their factories, so that the Board's objective may be displayed for the benefit and education of the vast army of industrial workers. Moving picture centre panel poster frames now being considered for erection at the chief railway stations in London, so as to reach the eyes and arrest the attention of the millions passing on and out of the largest single consuming area in the world and Empire.

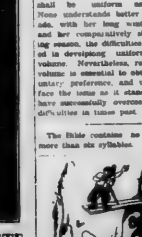
The Bible contains no words of more than six syllables.



Some of us who have been privileged to visit the leading market centres in Great Britain and those of us who have had to do a practical way with the sale of Canadian products in the British market realize how much the labels, their quality and volume represent the only credentials on which Empire produce may be given a privileged place in the consuming markets of Britain. And further, it is necessary that in the matter of volume, the same shall be uniform and regular. None understands better than Canada, with her long winter months and her comparatively short growing season, the difficulties encountered in developing uniform product volume. Nevertheless, regularity of volume is essential to obtaining, voluntary preference, and we have to face the issue as it stands; and we have successfully overcome greater difficulties in times past.

Special railway rates between interprovincial points as a means of providing help where needed harvest labor supply in the West was advised at a conference in Winnipeg of United Farmers of Manitoba, the Federal Government employment service, the Board of Trade and the Provincial Government.

Further recommendation was that the railways arrange the reduced rate tickets so that the labor supply could stop off in Manitoba and later proceed to Alberta and Saskatchewan, where the harvest is later.

Before leaving for Denmark it was our privilege to lay upon the base of the Cenotaph in Whitehall a wreath of poppies in tribute to the Empire's glorious dead. We marched past the Horseguards Avenue to the Cenotaph escorted by mounted and foot police. The wreath bore the arms of every Province, and was carried by Mr. Wilson of the Board of Trade, Winnipeg, and Mr. E. F. Augustine, of Alfenston, Ontario, both of whose had lost sons in the war. Reverently they laid it at the foot of the stone which are stood bare-headed and in silence. This was our most precious duty of our grateful task, the memory of which, whatever else in this tour may be forgotten, can never fade in us.

We had time before entraining for Harwich to see the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey. One of the most striking features of the beautiful Parliament Buildings is the towers. The Victoria Tower above the royal entrance is said to be the loftiest square tower in existence. The site of the Houses of Parliament was occupied by an ancient palace which from Edward the Confessor to Henry VIII., was the chief London residence of the reigning sovereign. The present buildings date from between 1840 and 1858 and cost $10,000,000. They cover eight acres, and contain 1,100 rooms and two miles of passages.

We passed through both Houses. The House of Lords is much more ornate than the House of Commons. At one end are the thrones of the King and Queen, and at the other is the state chair of the Prince of Wales. The Commons we were shown the Speaker's chair, and the table around which sat Lloyd George, Churchill, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Lloyd George and other Prime Ministers of their parties.

Westminster Hall, dating from William Rufus, is particularly memorable as having been the scene of the trials of Sir Thomas More, Charles I., Warren Hastings, and the Seven Bishops. We saw the latter's place marked by the spot where the ill-fated monarch sat during his trial, also where Cromwell, Ireton, Blake, and William Ewart Gladstone lay in state.

There is no nobler building, nor one that visitors from Overseas could desire more than Westminster Abbey. It is built in the form of a cross, 513 feet in length and 300 feet wide across the transepts. Every English monarch since 1066 has been crowned in Westminster Abbey. The mortal remains of kings, warriors, sailors, statesmen, poets and illustrious men in every walk of life rest beneath its pavements, and it contains the grave of the Unknown Warrior. The coffin earth in and brought from the battlefields.

The interior of the Abbey, no less than its historical associations, filled us with wonder and awe. The tomb of Henry VIII., forming the eastern end, is the finest example in the land of the Tudor Gothic style of architecture. A superb fan tracery vaulting of matchless beauty is its crowning glory. Within the grey walls of the Chapter House an octagonal room of noble proportions, the House of Commons was born more than 500 years ago. Near the Chapter House is the Chapel of the Pyx with the seven-locked door where the king's treasure used to be kept, and on the floor human skill achieving effects the gruesome evidence of the days when punishment was not so light as now.

In the Chapel of Edward the Confessor we saw the Coronation Chair and Stone of Scone, said to have been the Coronation Stone of Scottish kings from time immemorial, but carried off by Edward I. in 1297. There the tombs of five kings and six queens in this chapel and the mutilated effigies of Edward the Confessor, erected by Henry III, in 1269, originally a golden shrine decorated with jewels and golden images of the saints. Queen Elizabeth and her sister Mary lie side by side in the north aisle of the Henry VII. Chapel.

Little did we think as we gazed at the tombs of the great, that before we returned from Denmark, there would be brought into the Abbey the body of the Empire's best beloved soldier, or that in Scotland we should lay our humble tribute on his tomb!

Our busy itinerary in London completed, we left in the evening for Harwich to embark on the steamship "Jylland," pronounced mercifully not by its spell but as "Yoolan." Again fortune favoured us for in this quietest of spot and upon ships we had a perfect crossing, even the usually rutted North Sea. We thus was lost at Esbjerg, for before 3 p.m. we were in our pullman berths en route for Copenhagen, most of us too sleepy to hear the train move on land and the rail ferries as we crossed the Great and Little Belts which interrupt the journey. By eight a.m. we were settled in our new quarters, the Hotel Cosmopolite, sensing that spice of adventure which means imaginable from a foreign land.

But we did not feel foreign long in Denmark. The keenness and joy, even of the air reminded us of Western Canada. Here too was a northern people who appreciated—Stewart Haverthorne we were just prepared for the welcome, the brotherly welcome Mr. Mogridge, Hon. Secretary of the General Agricultural Council, tendered us on the Council's behalf. Never for the frank discussion on Danish agriculture which took place, following the welcome, by the presentation of a wealth of printed matter on every department of Danish agriculture. The Danish farmers and businesses of the country were explained. We are today looking forward to a still keener competition in the world market, but being, as we are constituents of the old Vikings, we are looking for the struggle with joy and glad to shake hands with a side and first class competitor and we Canadians cheered in a man and woman!

Christian Rasmussen, chairman of the meeting gave a history of co-operation, explaining that it had commenced by the leading agriculturist proposing in Lolland and the rule of thanks proposed in Danish by Mr. Christiansen, the leading agriculturist in Canada in the north.

In the afternoon we visited the private Amalienborg Palace, the residence of the Danish Royal Family, Christiansborg Castle and other interesting buildings which left us with a deep appreciation of the country. Even then we did not forget the excitement of our tour for the afternoon was made by an inspection of the Milk Distributing Depot, Copenhagen.

Tragedy Of the Arctic

Eskimo Mother Perishes In Attempt To Save Children From Drowning

A tragedy of the Arctic in which an Eskimo mother sacrificed her life in a vain attempt to save three of her children from drowning is described by Captain Burgess, of the steamer Nugawa, just back from a voyage along the Labrador coast.

The accident occurred near Rigolet. An Eskimo boy and his two sisters were fishing at the edge of the ice when a large broken away and drifted out to sea with the unlucky children.

The mother saw the predicament of her children just as the six-knot current caught the drifting floe and realized that the only means she managed to keep their heads above water by clinging to the ice while the commercial steamer Nugawa was the only one available, and with a wooden club to hole out out to the rescue.

In the face of almost insurmountable difficulties the heroic mother took the children from the icy water one by one, placed them on the ice, constantly to keep the fragile craft afloat.

Just as safety was almost assured the wooden tub held by only one hoop at the bottom, fell to pieces in the hands of the mother, and before they could reach shallow water the craft sank beneath them. All were drowned.

Good For Paving Purposes

By means of actual tests in road construction it has been definitely established that the bituminous sands of Northern Alberta can be success-fully employed in paving purposes. As the present supply of these sands is practically unlimited, their presence and use appear to have solved the problem of permanent paving and road construction in the western provinces.

DELEGATION OF ROTARIANS

Here is the largest delegation of Rotarians ever to leave Europe for the North American continent, and who chose to travel by the S.S. Lawrence route and through Canada to attend the 1929 Rotary International Convention at Minneapolis. There were 250 in the party, and they represented 14 nations. Inset is Capt. E. F. Sunnucks, commander of the White Star liner "Alberic," holding a China Rotary wheel presented to him by Rotarians on board. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 28

THE CONVERSION OF SAUL

Golden Text "Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." 1 Timothy 1:15.

Lesson Acts 9:1-19a; 22:6-16; 1 Corinthians 15:8.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 51:1-11.

Explanations and Comments

Said the Bendel, Acts 9:1, 2. The "But" indicates the continuing interest. Things as well as about the persons which Luke has just recorded in Acts 8, and Saul's zeal in regarding it. By means of a vivid metaphor, Luke shows us how Saul's present church terror in the hearts of the disciples whom he hunted. But Saul, yet breathing threatening and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, made the high priest." Breathing hard, out of a threatening and murderous desire, the Greek text emphasizes that translation it is as if Saul were fairly panting in his effort to give expression to his outraged thoughts concerning the Christians.

From the high priest Saul asked and readily obtained letters to the synagogues in Damascus, which permitted him to arrest believers in Jesus, whether men or women, and bring them bound to Jerusalem. At Damascus the captives were to be brought before the chamberlain for trial. Henry Drummond puts the situation in a striking way "In the pride of his Pharisee's heart Paul further out the idea to reverse the means of the Crucified Leader of the Nazarene sect, and go into all the world and suppress the gospel in every form."

There are similarities between the career of Paul and that of Jeanne D'arc, the chief of the Red Terror in Russia. In the one case, as in the case of the Soviet Inquisition, by which the Bolsheviks maintained their position against their enemies in the first years of their civil war for power. The Outlook said of him: "Fanatic, ruthless and implacable, he was the terror of honorable lodge who believed that people must be tortured and executed for the sake of what he held as his truth. He victims tortured to learn from them about plots against the Soviet state, to strike fear into the hearts of its foes, and so to advance the cause of Communism in Russia and as undoubtedly be hoped—throughout the world. In certain aspects Communist fanaticism is like religious fanaticism. One of its most singular and significant products was the gentle individual and cruel inquisitor, Dzerzhinsky."

Erecting Country Elevators

A Busy Season Ahead In Construcing Grain Elevators In Alberta

This summer will witness a great deal of activity on the part of the grain companies as well as the Wheat Pool in the construction of elevators at country points in Alberta to take care of the larger harvests which are expected. Another company which has just announced its intention to enter on a construction program is the Gillespie Grain Company. According to John Gillespie, president, the firm plans to erect six new elevators each with a capacity of 50,000 bushels.

Big Power Development

Development Of 30,000 Horsepower at Churchill River Is Promised

Initial development of 30,000 horsepower at Island Falls on the Churchill River is promised in an announcement made by the Churchill River Power Co. Ltd. a company allied with the Whitney interests in developing the Flin Flon mining properties and which supply power to the Flin Flon

While the initial development is not on the scale of some of the bigger power projects in Manitoba, even in its first stages, the power plant at Island Falls will be by far larger than any now existing in Manitoba.

At present Regina has the largest power plant in Saskatchewan, with a capacity of 36,500 horsepower. The one to be built at Island Falls, even at the start, could supply any two cities in Saskatchewan with all power needs and could supply Moose Jaw, North Battleford, Prince Albert and Saskatoon. The 30,000 initial horsepower will represent 24,000 kilowatts

Under terms imposed by the Saskatchewan government, the federal government, having referred the proposition, the Churchill River Power Company has undertaken to furnish to the province, while power was required, slot like a meteor across the horizon of the Saskatoon district at a rate of $40 per horsepower. A few years after the World War. Leaving Brussels for London, he built a modest fortune into one of the largest fortunes of the world. He is dead but shunned publicity with consistent success until 1926.

The reporters found many colorful events in his life and many unique habits in his every-day labor. He dictated letters while shaving; his secretary on occasions for discussion of business with men powerful in finance, from morning until night and often times he went into bath with secretaries and stenographers at his elbow while he carried on his business.

Regrets Appointment Of Viscount Byng

Has Been a Mistake Says London Daily Express

London, England.—In a leading editorial The Daily Express indicates its great regret at the appointment of Viscount Byng, former Governor-General of Canada, as Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police to succeed Sir William Horwood, who is retiring.

"Nobody questions his splendid war record," the Express says, "and one man can lead only one life."

"We feel very strongly there has been a mistake on both sides and only Viscount Byng's voluntary resignation of his office can rectify it. That magnificent form, the Metropolitan police, should have at its head a young man of enthusiasm, initiative and vision combined with driving force."

The impression is growing here that Viscount Byng will withdraw his acceptance of the commissionership of the Metropolitan Police if the present criticism in the press and the political circles of his appointment continues. The objections to his assumption of the post are that he is too advanced in years for an arduous position in which he has had no experience, and on these grounds members of the House of Commons, particularly the Labor members, and a number of newspapers are criticizing his appointment.

Cute in a Baby—
Awful at Three —and it's Dangerous
by Ruth Britton

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old. And at seventeen it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the hands over the head, attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for what nausea and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, chills, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of appetite, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its sweet tonic-laxative over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

LOEWENSTEIN MEETS DEATH IN FALL FROM PLANE

Goes Over Niagara Falls

Jean Lassiter Successfully Performs During Stunt

Niagara Falls, N.Y. For the third time in history man conquered the mighty Niagara when Jean A Lassier, 36-year-old French-Canadian now living at Springfield, Mass., went over the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side in a specially constructed rubber ball which carried of 150,000 people lining the river banks on either side, shouted and applauded him.

The start was made from Chippewa Island, about three miles above the falls, at 2.30 o'clock and Lassier was carried from the bridge eddy below the falls at 3.20 o'clock by William Hill, diving riverman, alone in a rowboat. Hill at first was feared the giant ball might be carried down stream into the rapids. Lassier plunged over the brink at three o'clock.

When Hill reached the ball it was right side up and it was a matter of only a few minutes until it was towed to shore and opened.

The first to greet Lassier with a handshake and kiss on his cheek was his sister, Madame J. P. Cautieve, of Sherbrooke, Que.

Asked concerning his sensations while going over the precipice, Lassier said:

"I don't even think. It happened too fast."

Planning Farm Credits System

Legislation Passed Two Years Ago Soon to Become Effective

Ottawa.—It is announced at the Finance Department that within a very few days will take effect with the force legislation passed two years ago and made contingent upon provincial adherence, establishing a system of farm credits. By the legislation then passed the way was paved for Federal financing of the system, but the provinces were called upon to do their part. Ontario, with a scheme of its own, will not do so, nor will Saskatchewan, which is in the same position, while Quebec has not decided as yet.

Four provinces, however Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia and Nova Scotia subscribe to it. In consequence, the project will be launched. A Loan Commissioner will be appointed, and a central organization, but not a large one, will be established at Ottawa.

The greater part of the administration, however, will be in the hands of the provincial.

Natural Resources Question

Conference at Ottawa Has Been Satisfactory, Says Manitoba Premier

Ottawa.—The conference has been satisfactory," declared Premier John Bracken, returning to the deliberations that have been in progress here between members of the Manitoba Government and the Federal Cabinet.

"The subjects discussed and the conclusions arrived at will have to be communicated to the provincial government and until they have been consulted nothing can be said at present."

The purpose of the conference was to discuss the question of the return of the natural resources to the province of Manitoba and to explore the various problems which this matter involves.

Problem For Ontario

Toronto.—The spread of communistic literature throughout the rural sections of Northern Ontario continues unabated, according to officials of the department of education at Queen's Park. Asks Help For Children

Widow of Captain Hinchcliffe Says They Are Unprovided For

London, England. The Daily Mail published a complaint from the widow of Captain Walter F. R. Hinchcliffe, pilot for the Hon. Elsie Mackay on her ill-fated trans-Atlantic flight, saying that her two children were unprovided for. The establishment of a trust fund to reduce the British national debt in memory of Miss Mackay, by her parents, Lord and Lady Inchcape, called forth the letter.

Mrs. Hinchcliffe argued that while there was no legal obligation on Lord Inchcape, there was a moral one, because the whole scheme of the flight came from Miss Mackay who hired Hinchcliffe. She said she had written four times to Lord Inchcape telling him of her position and need. He replied non-committally, to the first letter, but she received no response to the others.

The government has already accepted the trust fund of $2,500,000, which will be left to accumulate for 50 years and then be applied to the debt.

Win Garden Bennett Trophy

Detroit, Mich.—Unofficial check of distances indicated that the United States army balloon, piloted by Captain W. E. Kepner, with Lieut. W. O. Eareckson as aide, had swept over Garden Bennett international balloon race and given America permanent possession of the trophy. For the first time in seventeen years of competition one nation will have won the event for the third consecutive time.

Interested In Wireless Merger

Beatty Makes Important Announcements to British Government In Report

London, England The Daily Mail says that President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has made important submissions to the British Government embodying Canadian proposals. Until these recommendations are sifted out, delay in publishing the terms of the settlement is inevitable, says the newspaper. No confirmation of these statements is obtainable but Canadian Press understands that any modification of terms now under consideration that might be made would likely be of small importance.

Insect Menace Slight

Winnipeg There has never been a year when the west was so free from insects of all kinds as the present," declared Arthur Gibson, Ottawa, Dominion entomologist, on arrival here en route home from a tour of inspection of the west. There was no sign anywhere of any insects harmful to crops, he stated.

An Interesting Exhibit

Improved Methods of Marketing to be Demonstrated at Western Fairs

Winnipeg. With the object of bringing directly before the producers some of the lessons learned during the Canadian National Railways marketing tour of the British Isles last winter, the Dominion Department of Agriculture is preparing an exhibit to be shown at the fairs at Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Regina during July.

The exhibit will be conducted in a car which the Canadian National Railways are providing and lecturers and demonstrators will be in attendance throughout the exhibit. It will be in Brandon for the period of the fair. From there it will go to Calgary, July 9 to 16; Edmonton, July 17-21; Saskatoon, July 23-26 and Regina, July 30 to August 4.

Among the matters which the exhibit will attempt to show is the importance of marketing only the highest quality products in the British Isles market and the standardizing of grades and all the standardizing of grades and all the modern methods of marketing. Canadian agricultural products so that they can meet more effectively the keener competition of the Old Country markets. In addition to the lecturers and demonstrators provided by the Government, there will be in attendance at the exhibit at each point visited two or more of the farmers from that district who made the trip last year

Food Shortage In Russia

Soviets Buying Heavy Amount of Grain In Baltic

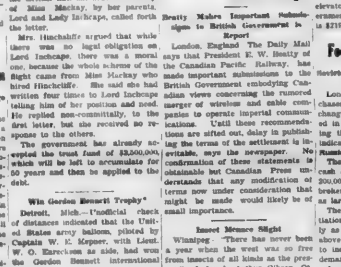
London, England. — Huge purchases of wheat on the Baltic Exchange by Soviet Russia are reported in London, leaders there expressing the opinion that the movement indicates a severe scarcity of food in Russia.

The quantity in Liverpool for spot cash amounts to between 150,000 to 200,000 tons, and Baltic London brokers expect Russia to buy almost as large a quantity again.

The prices agreed to without negotiations that far have been uniformly as much as 90 cents per quarter above the market rate, which is felt to indicate a tremendous immediate demand for grain.

London brokers say they have received long broad inquiries and a painful shortage of food in Russia which, before the war, was one of the world's largest exporters of grain.

Russia has not bought such supplies of wheat since the winter of [illegible]



SAY IT WITH SONGS

Probably what has ever been the largest crowd to say goodbye to a departing individual, omitting royalty, was recognized at the North Toronto Station of the Canadian Pacific Railway, recently when two thousand members of the Toronto Exhibition choir sang "Bon Voyage" to their leader, Dr. H. A. Fricker, upon his leaving for England and Europe.

About an hour before the departure of the train, the station was densely packed. Eleven special street cars and one hundred automobiles were used for the transportation of the group.

Drawn up at the platform the two thousand choir members sang with great effect as the train carrying Dr. Fricker started on its eastern journey

Fraudulent Currency

Fake American Bills Being Circulated In Winnipeg

Winnipeg United States wires a few days ago carried warnings of the currency of fraudulent $20 bills. Some of these have turned up here. Several merchants have been victimized in the last few days by the fake notes.

Bills used here are valid one dollar bills cleverly changed to give the appearance of the note of larger denomination.

Police fear an influx of the fraudulent notes during the next week when the conventions will draw hundreds of United States visitors. Merchants have been warned.

BASEBALL

Fort Saskatchewan had difficulty in raising a team to play a league game in Namao last Friday, but once the game was started they got to business like and won out to bat, Val Berg, knocking out a home run. The Fort, however, slumped as the game proceeded and lost out 12-4.

The return game was played here on Monday, the Fort on this occasion being slow on the start. Namao got quite a lead and the Fort began to realize it was time to play ball. The game became more spirited and finally ended in excitement, the Fort in the lead by one run. Scores 11-10.

Bremner defeated the Fort 8-2 in a game played here tonight.

ALBERTA HIGHWAYS TO BE SURFACED WITH OIL

With a view to still further improving the condition of Alberta's main highways and reducing the cost of maintenance, a series of experiments will be conducted on a number of gravelled roads in the province during the next few weeks to test the efficiency of a covering of oil. It is announced by Hon. G. I. McPherson, minister of public works, that a heavy asphaltic oil will be used in surfacing the roadbed for several miles on the principal highways. Satisfactory results are anticipated from this treatment which has proved highly satisfactory in a number of the eastern provinces.

The Duchess of Bedford, latest addition to the Canadian Pacific's fleet of passenger liners on the Atlantic, is the first of four cabin class vessels being constructed for the Canadian Pacific to be added to the company's service on the St. Lawrence route, and they will also be used for winter cruise purposes.

Winnipeg. — According to statistics received from 8,000 farms, there are 6.3 horses to each farm in Manitoba and a tractor to every 4.6 farms in the province. Each Saskatchewan farm has 10.3 horses and there is one tractor to every 4.7 farms, in Alberta there are 10.2 horses to each farm and one tractor to every 7.5 farms.

Ottawa, Ontario. — Employment stood at a higher level in Canada on April 1928, than in any April so far back as records go. Returns from 6,191 employers of labor with working forces aggregating 843,940 persons, showed the employment index standing at 101.1, as compared with 96.2 in April, 1927, and 94.1 in April, 1926.

Winnipeg.—Homestead entries in the four Western Provinces for the first quarter of the year totalled 1,816, as compared with 1,060 in the first quarter of 1927. Figures for Manitoba were 107, as compared with 183; in Saskatchewan 655 as against 513; in Alberta 962, as compared with 367; and in British Columbia 172, against 13.

Earnings and expenses summary of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the month of April, issued from headquarters of the company, show net profits up $150,944.66 as compared with April of last year. The profits for the four months to end of April are shown increased by $1,902,511.71 as compared with the same period of 1927.

The English Rugby League Football team, at the present time touring Australia and New Zealand, is scheduled to arrive at Vancouver on R. M. S. Niagara, September 14, and will play a game there next day, leaving on the Trans-Canada afterwards for Montreal, where another game will be played September 20, before sailing for England on the Duchess of Atholl next day.

Free scholarships to C. P. R. apprentices or employees under 21 or to minor sons of employees of the company covering five years' tuition in Chemical or Civil Engineering at the McGill Polytechnique or the University of Montreal and four years' tuition at the Montreal School for higher commercial studies are announced by circular over the signatures of Grant Hall, senior vice-president of the railway. The scholarships are two in number, one at each of the institutions offering specified, and are decided by highest standing in competitive examination.

CANADIAN RESOURCES AT EDMONTON EXHIBITION

July 16-21

The Natural Resources department of the Canadian Pacific railways have arranged for space for an exhibit of Canadian resources at the Edmonton Exhibition, July 16-21. This will consist of all kinds of garden and field crops, flowers, etc., all of which have been grown and matured out of doors, not under glass, also a large variety of fresh vegetables and fruits. This is only one of the many interesting and educational exhibits which will be seen at this year's Summer Fair.

The Exhibition management have made a change in the regulations for District Exhibits and Government and Experimental Institutions are forbidden to take part in the competition. A special class is arranged for such institutions and as a result both the Vermilion and Olds Schools of Agriculture have already arranged for space for their exhibits. The Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, co-operating with the Canadian National railways, are sending a very fine now exhibit.

The Provincial Department of Seeds and Weeds are preparing an exhibit, which will be very interesting in view of the present energetic campaign against the new noxious weed pests which will help to keep the farmers busy these days. R. H. Ensminger is in charge of the demonstration which will be put on by the local office of the Dominion Live Stock Branch, showing egg candling, and a number of competitive exhibits in the nature of an egg-consumption campaign.

Nine district exhibits have been entered to date which are being shown in the Agricultural building. This display will be wonderfully attractive and truly representative of the possibilities of agricultural production of northern Alberta.

The Edmonton Horticultural society have also made arrangements for a display which will be changed daily. The threshed grain exhibits will be shown under a new system of small boxes covered with glass

Now show cases for the Women's exhibits have been installed and more space reserved for exhibits of commercial manufactured goods than ever before in the history of the Exhibition

NURSES know, and doctors have declared there's nothing quite like Aspirin to relieve all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is Aspirin the name Bayer should be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box:

Aspirin

Dr. St. John would not have been critical of his wife if she had chosen to follow some profession. He would have liked that. He did not believe that every woman had to be run in the domestic mould, baking the coffee and ironing shirts anyone could do that! But the companionship the great intellectual world may be had created it! And now that craving was slowly turning to resentment. Other men had wives he had a queen of chatter, a boarder of trinkets, a bridge player, a tea drinker!

The telephone rang.

"Is that Dr. St John Who is speaking?"

"Jack Jack Doran."

"Eva's brother? On your way through? Come along, you, we are at home I'll drive down for you only thirty minutes, Grand Trunk." I'll be there you, Eva will come, too."

The Doctor hurried into the living-room and spoke to Eva. "Jack is at the station. Get on your things," he said, "my car is at the door Leave the crowd here."

"We will all go," cried one girl, with very bare shoulders; "I want to see Eva's good-looking brother. That's give him a regular send-off."

The crowd arose flutteringly, all chattering. There was something particularly exciting to the doctor in their silliness, their gaiety, their lack of seriousness. "Stay here," he said curtly; "Jack Doran has no desire to be met by a crowd of strangers for whom he cares nothing. He wants to see his sister."

Eva turned on him indignantly. "Well, I like that," she said. "Remember, a station is a public place anyone can go. Come on, kids, every one of you."

The doctor took his wife's arm with a suddenness that surprised her and said, "Hurry Eva, have you an answer?"

"You have no right to be rude to my friends," said Eva peevishly, when they were on their way to the station, "you acted abominably just now!"

"Oh forget it!" the Doctor said, and try to get a serious thought in your head for once Your only function is going to war, and the chances are against your ever seeing him again Have you nothing to say to him" Forget that cackling gang for half an hour Their feelings are not hurt."

Eva looked at him in speechless amazement

Jack had hoped that he might see his sister and the doctor alone He wanted to tell his sister about Helen. The boy's heart craved companionship he almost told someone. But the whole crowd swarmed around him with their incoherent gaiety, their senseless chatter, and the few minutes were lost by uselessly. The Doctor was furious, and it was against Eva that his rage was directed. Here was her only brother going away, and she had not a serious thought in her head, not one loving, personal word to him.

The Doctor took Jack's hand at the last as they stood at the steps of the train. "I am going over too, Jack," he said; "it is going to be a long fight, and we will all be needed. I cannot stand back and see other men go. I am proud of you, Jack. Can I do anything for you?"

A great impulse to tell the Doctor came to the boy but the conductor was calling and the train bell was ringing.

"I wish I could have had a good talk with you," Jack said, as the train began to move.

That night when her company had gone, Eva came into the Doctor's room. His light was still burning and she knew he was not asleep. Eva, anxious and grateful, in a light gown of cream satin, was determined to check what was the first sign of misunderstanding in her husband. Her married friends assured her that if a man is "let away" with an exhibition of temper or crossness he will be worse the next time. So Eva had her mind made up to be very haughty and coldly proud. She would forgive him, but only after a distinct understanding

"Well, what have you to say?" she asked him with that queenly manner that had never failed.

"Nothing," he answered, "only that it is time you were in bed."

"Is you mean to say that, after insulting my guests."

The doctor laid down his book. "If your guests had any sense, which they have not, they would have stayed here and let you and me go alone. They don't know Jack and there was nothing for them to do at the station because it was something to do, something to relieve the chilliness of their vacant minds. I told you to hurry if you wanted to see your brother. Now you can be as hurt over it as you like. I am tired trying to understand you, and have come to the conclusion that there is nothing to understand, in fact you have ceased to interest me."

Eva had not expected this. "What do you mean?" she said at last.

"Just what I said! Selfish people pay for their selfishness in the end, though they may be able to run on credit for a long time. The world is at war, Eva, but you do not know it. While you and your overfed friends were eating and drinking downstairs, boys were dying in mud and cold to save the world, brave boys like Jack. Nurses were binding up shrapnel wounds while shells fell around them, refugees were pouring into England to be cared for by the women of England. No, Eva, your type might last a long time in peace, but it shows up badly in time of war."

Eva was looking at him now through half-closed lids. Dull anger burned in her eyes.

"You are no longer a child, Eva, though I can hardly say you are a woman. You are a perfect form to hang clothes on, and a very graceful dancer, and a very free spender on yourself and if you thought you could get away with it right now you would give a violent exhibition of anger But something tells you it would be quite useless You will never be an old woman Eva don't be afraid of that Old women are patient, kindly motherly people, ready to help, ready to warn anxious perhaps too anxious You know the type, and utterly despise them You were quite ashamed of my dear old mother when she came to visit us she was so old-fashioned and quaint to you and your friends. No, you will never be an old woman, Eva it's another fifteen years you will be a stale novelty)

She turned and left him without a word finishing her room she flung herself across the bed and wept tears of sheer vexation

The next day the doctor told his wife that he had enlisted for service overseas. Eva hoped and expected right to the last minute that he would apologize and beg to be forgiven, but she was disappointed, and the hardest part of it was that he did not seem to care

CHAPTER XXVIII

The people of Beaverarian have not forgotten April 26th, 1915. The day began peacefully enough, with only a reddish tinge in the sunshine to mark it from other days, and that blinding heat which seems more oppressive in April than at July. The Spring had come early in Beaverarian and now the budding of the earth was advancing with feverish haste The red Lassels of the poplars were busy with industry (pay), and already some were to be found littering the wooodland paths. their work was done, they could take their rest

Of all the spring birds that had come back to gladden the land the crows were most in evidence for they had come in thousands from the south, filling the air with their chatter. In every flock that came, a noisy minority seemed to dominate, sometimes dividing from the company to seek their own way, and then finding their following not so great as they had expected. returning noisier than ever in demand that another vote be taken because the first one had not been constitutional. Vastly entertaining to the crows, and full of a caprice that marks him for a blood brother of the human family. But he is welcomed by the southern dwellers not because of himself or his habits, which are reprehensible, but because he is a portent of the Spring

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON THE BABY

July the month of oppressive heat, red-hot days and restless nights, is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea dysentery colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer The mother could be more constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly it will bring prompt relief. Sold by Medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW TOOTHACHE STOPS

In toothache we find a fight progressing between the invading organisms and nature's little warriors, the phagocytes.

Then what decides the tide of battle?

Should the invaders not have made too great headway through the breach in the pulp wall, the chances are that the little warriors would win the day, and the tooth get well, especially if the tooth cavity were cleansed of all decay, by this means destroying the hosts of the invading organism. Nature needs assistance at times you see.

But should this aid be not forthcoming, the attacking organisms pour through the breach in increasing numbers, and discharge their poisons, while nature, making a desperate effort to stem the tide rushes her little warriors into the conflict in such vast numbers as to prove her own undoing in this wise that the tiny blood vessels within the pulp chamber become congested resulting in an increased pressure that flattens the thinly walled veins at the constricted opening which serves as both entrance and exit to the pulp chamber Consequently, the flow of blood outward is progressively slowed up and ultimately stopped, and pulp strangulation results

So the pulp dies; and the gallant band of little warriors is annihilated; then, with the pulp death the pain ceases But is the danger past? Not at all

For the invading hosts, finding in the pulp chamber a fine condition of heat and moisture for their propagation, and growth, multiply in rapidity, and pour through the exit of the chamber into the body tissues carrying their poisons, as well as other products of decomposition of the lifeless pulp.

Thus, coursing through the body fluids, they become at once a menace, not only to the health and life of the tooth, but of the individual as well.

Edmonton, Alberta.—Looking to the improvement of wool production by the members of the Provincial Police, a party of experts has started out under the direction of the Research Council of Canada to make a survey of the representative sheep ranches of the three provinces. British Columbia is included in the tour.

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—The formation of a dairy pool is suggested as a possible means of meeting the competition of Denmark in dairy produce on the British market by Sir Thomas Allen, leader of the co-operative movement in Great Britain and joint envoy of the Empire Marketing Board at the wheat pool conference in Regina.

Indian Head, Saskatchewan. — One hundred million trees have been distributed throughout the Western provinces from the Provincial Forestry Farm here and its subsidiary at Sutherland, and the work is still progressing at an unabated rate. Practically all so free to farmers and as coverage of a car a day is shipped. The work was started in 1901.

The Alpine Club of Canada will hold its 23rd annual camp July 17-31 at the Lake of the Hanging Glaciers in the Purcell Range of the Rockies. Banff will be the rallying ground for the many who will leave motor leaving further on. Eleven peaks all above 10,000 feet, some exceeding eleven thousand feet in height, will be at the climbing disposal of the campers. There are also many others between nine and ten thousand feet high.

Most makes its annual bow to West with the University of Montreal trip across Canada in the Pacific and back, starting from Montreal July 7. Many prominent French-Canadians make this annual trip which is sponsored by the University and run on Canadian Pacific trains, motor facilities and Great Lakes steamships. All the main section of the West and the beauty spots of the Rockies are covered in this popular tour.

Younger railwaymen in the employ of the great Canadian transportation companies held their first annual conference at Montreal recently under Y. M. C. A. auspices. The young men came from all points in Canada between Halifax and Vancouver and quickly got acquainted, swapping experiences and stories in friendliest fashion after the first informal introductions. It is hoped to repeat the conference yearly.

FIFTH FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, July 7th, 1928.

Early sown wheat is well headed out in many sections of the province and all grains are making splendid growth, according to telegraphic reports received by the Department of Agriculture on Friday for the fifth fortnightly crop report of the season. Growing conditions have been ideal since the last report was issued, the entire province having benefitted from general rains during the past two weeks. Crops which appeared somewhat patchy owing to the delayed germination reflecting the drouth in May, have responded to the greater moisture, and little difficulty is anticipated at harvest time as a result of this situation.

Coarse grains have all been making vigorous growth and a great many fields of oats and barley are in shot blade. All crops have received much more heavily than was expected during the dry period, with a consequent improvement in the prospect for a heavy yield. A number of districts report that summerfallowing is being temporarily delayed by the unusual amount of moisture in the soil. Conditions have been ideal for breaking and in many localities more new land is being brought under cultivation this season than for many years.

Rain has interfered to some extent with haying in the southern part of the province where a very satisfactory crop of alfalfa and sweet clover is being cut. Good progress is being made with the thinning of the sugar beet crop and a good yield is promised from the 6000 acres sown to beets this year.

Crops in the Peace River section of the province are somewhat more advanced than at this date last year, and prospects for a very satisfactory yield are reported.

Crop damage has been confined to the effects of hail over very limited areas and is negligible. Practically no injury from insect pests is reported. Pastures have made renewed growth as a result of the rains and livestock is in very satisfactory condition.

DR. R. C. WALLACE NAMED AS UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

The appointment of Dr. R. C. Wallace, professor of geology at the University of Manitoba, to the presidency of the University of Alberta to succeed Dr. H. M. Tory who recently resigned to become chairman of the National Research Council of Canada, has been announced during the past week by Hon. Perren Baker, Minister of Education, in the absence of Premier Brownlee.

Dr. Wallace brings to the position of president not only a high degree of scholarship, but also a wide experience in administrative work outside the usual field of university activities. During the past few years he has held the post of Commissioner of Mines for the province of Manitoba, and he is also a past president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. It is felt that Dr. Wallace's training and experience along geological lines will be of considerable value in connection with many of the problems relating to the development of Alberta's mineral and other resources.

WATERHOLE RENAMED

The town of Waterhole in the Peace River country, it is announced, will be known in future as Fairview and will occupy a site some five miles from its present location. The townsite of Fairview where has just been laid out is at the end of steel on the extension of the Central Canada railway being constructed this season southwest of Whitelaw. The new name is said to be a happy choice as the town in its new location will command a view over a wide stretch of country across the Peace towards Spirit river.

The Edmonton exhibition is attracting larger crowds than ever this year. Records for attendance were broken the first and second days, and though the information is not at hand at time of writing, the same may safely be prophesied for today.

NOXIOUS WEEDS
Your co-operation with Provincial and Municipal authorities is solicited in the control and eradication of weeds. Keep your fields and roadsides free from these unsightly and costly pests.
Weeds reduce the yield and lower the grade of your grain, rob the soil of its fertility and cost money in dockage and transportation. Approximately 6,000 cars were required to haul the screenings from one season's crop in Western Canada to terminal markets. Will you not help to reduce this enormous loss?
Give your local weed inspector and the Provincial Field Supervisor in your district every possible support in dealing with the weed problem.

EVERY PLANT A PUMP

(Experimental Farms Note)

Every plant may be likened to a pump. During the growing season it is daily sucking up soil moisture through its root system and transpiring it through the leaves. When the leaf area is large, the weather hot and the air dry the transpiration process is so rapid that a half-inch rain is exhausted in short order. In a tough seed there are so many thirsty plants drinking up the moisture that an inch of rain sometimes has chance to penetrate scarcely more than a couple of inches into the soil.

The point to be emphasized is that every growing plant, no matter how small or inconspicuous, plays its part in this obstructive process. A dozen specimens of lamb's quarter, mustard or shepherd's purse may sap the moisture that a wheat plant needs to keep it vigorous. A late-starting wheat plant may be a weed in a wheat field. It uses moisture and plant food and if it comes to nothing itself it is as much a robber as though it were a noxious weed.

In 1923 when only 8½ inches of moisture fell on the Beaverlodge Station between seeding and harvest more than 19 bushels of Ruby wheat were thrushed from a measured acre of land which had raised a fair crop of potatoes the year before. There were no weeds, the crop had been evenly started, and the productive plants had all the moisture to themselves.

In gardening, in hoe-cropping and in summerfallowing, regard every plant as a pump. Destroy say not serving some economic purpose, and if possible destroy it while very young.

Dominion Experimental Station,

WHEAT POOL NEWS BULLETIN

The cut-off date for deliveries of wheat from the 1927 crop to the Alberta Wheat Pool is Monday, July 16. That will be the last day that wheat will be received for the 1927 pool. Cars of wheat billed out on that day and street wheat delivered on that day at country elevators will be included in the 1927 pool. All wheat received after that date goes into the 1928 pool.

The Board of Directors of the Alberta Wheat Pool have decided to allow 6 per cent interest on the Commercial Reserve accumulated by the organization. This interest will date from August 31st, 1927, and the payment will be made as soon as possible.

During the week of July 1 to 8 a new feature of social hygiene work in the province was established by F. T. Cook, lecturer for the provincial Department of Health, who conducted a series of lectures and moving pictures at Sarcee military camp.

The military authorities co-operated in the work to the extent of providing places for the meetings and lending their moral support to the movement with the result that the meetings were well attended and it is felt that a great deal of good was accomplished. It is hoped that this work under the direction of the Department of Health may become a regular feature in future military camps.

The Immigration Problem

Probably no single question affecting the national life of Canada has called for and received greater attention within recent months than the subject of immigration. It has been debated in church assemblies, Labor Unions, war veterans bodies, in Parliament and Legislatures, in the press and upon the public platform. Committees have spent weeks and months studying the problem and have issued reports. The net result is that the Government is advised and urged to adopt this policy and that policy, each one mutually destructive of the other.

On the one hand there are those who contend that only those immigrants should be allowed to engage in agriculture who have been born in the Dominion, and that artisans, laborers, and those who naturally locate in cities and large centres of population should be excluded. Others would throw the doors wide open to all classes providing only that they must be healthy both mentally and physically, able and willing to work, and content to abide by and uphold the laws of the Dominion.

Then there are those who would draw a purely racial line of demarkation. They would entirely exclude the so-called "yellow" races; they would bar the negro; they would put a stop to the admission of immigrants from the countries of southern and central Europe; in a word, they would rigidly restrict all immigration except that of people born and bred in the British Isles and speaking the English language.

So the Government is told that only agriculturists should be admitted into the Dominion, and then only provided they are of the white race, are of certain religious faiths, hail from British Isles, and speak the English language. Provided they are of British descent, such immigrants might also be admitted to Canada from the United States.

To begin with, no Government can bar the British flag, and having the slightest regard for that cardinal British principle. Liberty of conscience, will recognize or enforce any bar to immigration based on the religious convictions of the intending immigrant. To do so would be abhorrent to the great mass of the Canadian people and would be equivalent to declaring to the world that Canada was no longer British.

It is equally true that an overwhelming majority of the people of Canada, and this includes all Governments, would like to see a large increase in immigration from the British Isles. Every possible effort is put forth to accomplish this result. What is it, then, that the annual influx of British immigrants is not much larger?

There are many reasons, but a few may be cited. The number of the British agricultural class is not large, and the surplus available for emigration is practically negligible. British agriculturists can be well employed at home.

In the British Isles, the women largely outnumber the men. Some millions of British women are condemned to spinsterhood. For this and other reasons they are invading many employment fields formerly occupied by men, and the necessities of the war gave a great impetus to this movement.

The effort is seen in the rapidly declining birth-rate. In England and Wales the birth-rate fell last year to 16.7 per thousand of the population, as compared with 24.1 in 1913, the last year before the war. In other words, the birth-rate has declined one-third in the short space of fifteen years. There is not, therefore, the immediate numerous urge to emigrate as was the case in years gone by.

As a matter of cold fact, the birth-rate is declining among all the white nations. It has long been declining in France; it is declining in Italy, Germany, the United States, Canada. Observers and students in Great Britain, unlike some in Canada, do not appear worried over the inter-mingling of the white people of different nationalities, but they do see materials some fear that, with declining birth-rates throughout universal unmong the peoples of the white nations, the white race will lose its supremacy and world leadership. They foresee the day when the "quota" law of the United States will be unnecessary so far as Europe is concerned, because there will be a shortage of "whites," let alone a surplus to emigrate.

Notwithstanding the difficulties in the way, and the many conflicting views that prevail, it is agreed by most Canadians that this Dominion is in need of a much larger population,—a population which is not being provided by natural increase as a result of the prevailing low birth-rate. If immigration to Canada is to be increased, then there must be some compromise effected between those who insist on agricultural settlers only, and those who would admit other able bodied workers; also compromise between those who would admit only those who would serve to swell the ranks of their particular religious denomination, and some compromise on the issue that ability to speak English is the hallmark of good citizenship and the only guarantee of success.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and distress about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard for more than a generation—for 50 years since it first appeared.

The spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia relieves the sourness in acid, indigestion and sick headache and its action is prompt and thorough. Physicians prescribe it in preference to other antacid methods, never need to suffer when you can get relief quickly, here and now. Don't be persuaded to accept substitutes. If it is Phillips' you get the best. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in preventing sickness and relieving distress. Sold by druggists.

Liquor Problem in Australia

New South Wales will vote on prohibition on Wednesday, September 1st

New South Wales will come to grips with the liquor problem when it votes September 1 on a referendum offering the option of continued open sale of liquor and prohibition.

If prohibition is defeated the Government will revisit the whole position with a view to adopting a course which will effectively minimize the liquor traffic now, according to Hon. T. J. Ley, minister of justice.

Meanwhile the Government is being waited upon by delegations demanding everything from drastic home day legislation to a moderate form of Government control, such as prevails in some provinces in Canada.

WAS VERY DELICATE

New Health Came Through Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Mrs. Casper Miller, Lourdes, N.S., says that before she was married she had reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her. She says: "I was a very delicate girl going into womanhood, suffering from bad blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was a sufferer with cramps and pains every month and was hardly able to move around at all. Then when I was very sick a friend came in to see me, and she advised me to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I knew they would do her a world of good." The result was that I got all sick better and I began their use, and I soon noticed benefit from them. In time I had taken them all I felt an altogether different girl and no longer suffered from cramps and pains."

Then a few years ago I was attacked with la grippe and was sick for six weeks. Again I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and again they brought me good health. I am the mother of a family and do all my own work, so you see I have to keep in health. Yes, and I praise them pills to keep me so. Now I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any of my friends who may be sickly."

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or shattered nerves, such as Mrs. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how new strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or will be sent direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Linen Aeroplanes

Metalized linen, a new fabric, may bring about a complete revolution in the construction of aircraft. It has a tensile strength of over 1,000 lbs. per foot while it is very light. An aeroplane half the present weight, yet considerably stronger, could be constructed from such a fabric, it is said. The present time for an Atlantic flight could be made of metalized material lighter than the thinnest chambress.

The Penalty Physician—The good doctor is always worth his fee. But it is not always possible to get a doctor just when you want him. In such cases it suggests the use of reliable home remedies, such as Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which is wonderfully effective in easing internal pains, also in healing cuts, scratches, bruises and sprains. The penalty frequently for neglecting a medicine chest saves many a life.

Love Her Onions

Most onions are pretty mean akin to the average person, but those women living at south-western Texas, say there is only one real onion and that is the variety that grows in the sandy dirt of that locality. To give a idea of the fondness Texans living near the Rio Grande have for their native onions a women recently arrived in New York with a bill of fat which she turned over to the chef of the hotel where she stayed. She ordered that the Texas onions were to be served with dinner each evening. She told friends she would have been unable to have made the trip North without them.

Miller's Worm Powders are sweet and palatable to children, who show no hesitancy in taking them. They will certainly bring worm troubles to an end. They are a strengthening and tonic-building medicine, correcting the disorders of digestion that the worms have caused, and a healthy tone to the system most beneficial to de-worming.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Bertay)

CREAMED PEAS

1 can peas drained or
2 cups fresh peas
2 cups milk
4 tablespoons flour.
4 tablespoons butter.
1 teaspoon salt. Pepper.

Make cream sauce by melting the butter, add the flour to make a smooth paste. Add the milk, cooking it at a time, stir to avoid lumps. Add seasoning and peas. Heat in double boiler until the peas are thoroughly warmed

ORANGE PINWHEELS

1 cup flour
1 teaspoons baking-powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons butter
1-3 cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
½ tablespoons orange juice.
Grated orange rind.

Mix and sift flour, baking-powder and salt, rub in one tablespoon butter, or other shortening, and moisten to a dough with milk. Roll thin; spread with remaining butter, sprinkle with sugar mixed with orange juice and rind, and roll up like a jelly-roll. Cut in slices, and place cut side up, in buttered muffin-pans. Sprinkle with remaining sugar, and bake in a hot oven. When small and dainty, these are good for afternoon tea.

Sunburn? Use Minard's Liniment.

A Labor Saving Machine

New Device Polishes Glasses At Rate Of One a Minute

A device which washes, sterilizes, dries and polishes drinking glasses of any size at the rate of ten a minute, has been invented by a young Englishman.

A tumbler placed on a spindle, is embraced both inside and outside by revolving rubber squeegees. As the spindle is made to rotate by an electric motor, a flow of fresh sterilized water is ejected over the entire surface of the glass. The glass is then transferred to a second spindle, on which it is dried and polished by a similar pair of squeegees. In addition to saving labor, the machine is said to reduce breakages to a minimum.

Many Investigations Carried On By National Research Council Connected With Crop Problems

Handicaps to research work in agricultural problems, resulting from lack of funds for the purpose are likely to be overcome through the decision to hand over to the National Research Council $219,000 of accumulated "overages," from the government terminal elevators.

It is to be specially earmarked for plant pathology, grain diseases, and the like. Surpluses accruing from the elevator trade will thus go indirectly to assist the problems of grain growing.

The research council and the department of agriculture in co-operation with the universities, have been engaged in combating mainly grain rust and root rots. Recently an associated committee on field crop diseases has been appointed by the council jointly with the Federal department of agriculture for the purpose of undertaking research work into field crops diseases.

The importance of such a research will be appreciated when it is stated that the estimated cost annually in the North American continent through such diseases ranks from 15 per cent to 20 per cent of the total crop values

At the present time agricultural research work is going on in the University of Alberta summer building laboratory where representatives of the Research Council, the Federal Department of Agriculture, and the University are working together. The same arrangement is in effect in the University of Saskatchewan and the University of Manitoba the laboratories were provided by the Federal Department of Agriculture, and are being run in co-operation with the University of Manitoba.

At the present time Professor Robert Newton is undertaking an investigation of the factors governing the milling and baking quality of wheat with the object of ascertaining why the quality of wheat varies so widely from year to year, and the possibilities for improvement by the use of better adapted varieties and better cultural practices. Professor Newton is also endeavoring to obtain a better knowledge of the possibilities and limitations of methods of grading wheat on a quality basis.

A further investigation has been conducted by Professor H. H. Hirsch and into the life story and control of prairie inhabiting wire-worms and false wire-worms with the possibility of reducing the present annual losses to farmers which now amounts to many thousands of dollars annually.

Professor F. E. Roberts is conducting an investigation for the purpose of determining the exact factors concerned in the inheritance of sugar and starch in the endosperm in Indian corn, while a further investigation is being conducted by Professor A. H. R. Buller, with respect to the rise of spores in fungi, and Professor A. T. Cameron is engaged in research in the glucosides of plants indigenous to Western Canada and adjacent territory.

Technical researches with respect to the effect of light upon organisms are being conducted by Professor A. J. Klugh, who hopes to prove definitely which will have important applications in respect to the fisheries, the forests and human life, while other researches are being carried on by E. A. Lloyd in connection with poultry.

New Marketing Organization

Encouraged by the success of co-operative marketing effected by the Canadian Wheat Pool, the smaller millers in Eastern Canada are forming a co-operative marketing association. The plan for such an association was submitted at a recent meeting of the Dominion Millers' Association and was endorsed unanimously. This is a new departure in co-operative marketing, which is already applied to a variety of farm products.

Representing 20,000 Canadian teachers, Dr E. A Hardy of Toronto, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, brought greetings from Canada to the National Education Association of the United States in annual convention at Minneapolis, under Miss Cornelia Adair, of Richmond, Va national president. Dr Hardy stressed the achievements of Canada and the important part played by the teaching professions, which in the dominion maintained a uniformly high standard under the rigid supervision of the provincial education departments

"Speaking as a Canadian it seemed to me fitting that I should try to express to you, though in the briefest way, the outstanding features of Canada and Canadian life and the relations of the Canadian teachers to that national life," Dr Hardy said

"There are certain characteristics of Canada which I would note First, the high standards of life, material and spiritual Thanks to our material resources, agricultural and mineral, both beyond the dreams of the most optimist imagination, and to the marvellous development of these resources, our people live in a great measure of comfort and prosperity, unequalled anywhere except in the United States On the spiritual side we have a creditable achievement in education, painting, architecture music and science and the power of religion in our life is deep and vital. In the material standards of life both material and spiritual, Canada is second to no other country in the world

"Second Canada is a land of democracy In Canada not only have every educational and cultural and provincial, go to the people for election every four or five years but they may go at any time, if public opinion demands it We have opportunity, through our federal provincial and municipal bodies for many experiments which are not available to represent their fellow citizens. Possibly no other country elects a larger percentage of its citizens to public office. As to public ownership, Canada occupies a front rank

A third characteristic is co-operation Our area is so vast, our resources so enormous, our population so small as yet, and so scattered that we have been learning that in co-operation lies our hope of success. Two striking examples may be given The English and the French races were united in the Government and the development of Canada with marked success. The Religious Education Council of Canada is a nation-wide union of the great Protestant denominations and the YMCA for a systematic undertaking of the great task of the religious culture of our young people So far as I know this is the only nation-wide movement of the kind in the world

Dr Hardy explained the dominion's position in the British Empire of which it was proud to be a member, and continued Internationally we are taking our place One of our greatest Canadians was a member of the small group who made the League of Nations a reality and its constitution Canada has been a member of the League of Nations from the first A Canadian has been President of the Assembly of the League, and Canada is now admitted to the inner circle group the council of the League In Imperial and International affairs Canada is assuming her place and her people are developing an imperial and a world outlook."

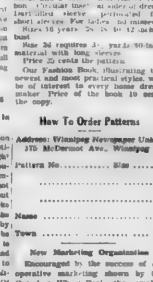
SO LONG CHAPS



Rung to protest by the shur that they are "department store" cowboys, the guides of the Rocky Mountains are reported to be discarding their picturesque "chaps" in favor of common or garden riding breeches The guides in the neighborhood of the Banff Springs Hotel are the delight of visitors, with their broad brimmed hats and shaggy sheep skin chaps, worn primarily in the early days to protect the riders from leg injury when herding long-horned steers on the prairie The fact that the unadorned riding breeches are as serviceable and can give no cause for criticism as seeking an effect, is apparently bringing about a change in fashion, and soon the bronco-buster's costume as the movies conceived it may be only a museum piece

The Rocky Mountain guides in handling parties of tourists, many experimenting with trail riding for the first time, have an amusing and exciting time, and succeed in not only making and breaking camp and catering to the needs of their parties, but in safeguarding the most timid tenderfoot and bringing all through happy and unharmed.

The Minister Of Agriculture

Hon. Mr. Motherwell Signally Honored, By the Province Of Quebec

The honor conferred upon Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, by the Quebec provincial government must surely be a particularly gratifying mark of distinction. At the recent convention of the Society of Canadian Technical Agriculturists, the province of Quebec bestowed the order of Commander of Agricultural Merit upon Mr. Motherwell.

Many statesmen in the past have been honored for having achieved great things in war and in diplomacy. Mr. Motherwell's distinction has been won in the realm of the peaceful arts rather than of the sword. Millions of blades are annually unsheathed in Canada under the energetic urge of the minister, but they are blades of wheat instead of the rattle of musketry. Those guns, the ever increasing of Mr. Motherwell's army is heralded by reapers, tractors and threshing machines. It is surely without too much generalship of peace.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

The culmination of the eventful day in Denmark's capital was a reception and high tea at the house of Mr. F. Millington Grahe, the British Charge d'Affaires, where, as co-hosts with him, were present Mr. Madsen Mygdal, the Danish Prime Minister, and other representatives of Danes. Dickness permeated the expected appearance of Prince Axel, who sent, however, a message of greeting to the Canadian visitors. The speeches of the Charge d'Affaires, the Prime Minister and our leader, Mr. Arbuthnot, during this delightful evening, were broadcast and heard all over Denmark, as we found out later in the tour. This was the first broadcast in Denmark from a private home. Never before had we found ourselves co-partners on foreign soil, with the official representative of the British Empire and never did we feel more proud of that Empire and Canada's share in it.

Many statesmen in the past have been honored for having achieved great things in war and in diplomacy. Mr. Motherwell's distinction has been won in the realm of the peaceful arts rather than of the sword. Millions of blades are annually unsheathed in Canada under the energetic urge of the minister, but they are blades of wheat instead of the rattle of musketry. Those guns, the ever increasing of Mr. Motherwell's army is heralded by reapers, tractors and threshing machines. It is surely without too much generalship of peace.

Ottawa Citizen.

Next day we saw Frederikswand Bacon Factory, a co-operative concern formed thirty-three years ago with a supply of 300 pigs a week. It now has a weekly supply of 2,500 pigs, handles eggs from 4,000 poultry farmers and has paid out in loans incurred in the building and re-building of the factory. As we saw the five factories coming in to the factory we were astonished at their uniformity, but still more at the quantity of the incoming sides which they produced, a tribute to the educational work that has been done among the farmers. It was interesting to observe, however, that at the time of our visit it only 20 per cent. of the sides were grading No. 1, 45 per cent. No. 2, and 35 per cent. No. 3. In the summer the number of firsts runs somewhat higher, up to 35 and 30 per cent. but the grading is very close indeed.

We were fortunate in meeting the director of the factory, Mr. F. L. Breck, who has been in charge since its inception. He is probably the best informed man in Denmark in the cure business. He is secretary of the committee which meets every day to fix the prices to be paid for hogs by the bacon factories throughout the country, and chairman of the committee which fixes the prices to be paid for eggs by those factories handling them. It is worth noting that Mr. Larsen, president of the factory, counts it a poor a year when he fails to make less than 2,000 per pig profit from his own farm. His worst year showed a net profit of $2,000.

This informative visit was followed by a tour of Frederiksborg Castle, founded by King Frederik II., but now a national museum of historical portraits and paintings arranged in rooms furnished in keeping with the various periods. Here we saw the finest relief ceiling in Europe, the outstanding memory which we all brought away with us was of the pictures of more recent date. The one portrayed the burial of the Danish king by the inhabitants of Schleswig-Holstein at the end of the war with Germany in 1865, and the other the welcome by the restored province to the Danish King when, after the Great War, he visited his reclaimed subjects and the buried flag was brought forth to the light of day and presented to him. Passing through the province the King picked up a child and placed her on the pommel of his saddle. In this position he carried her with him through the scenes of rejoicing, tears of joy in his and, counting down the royal backs.

From the castle we passed to what was perhaps the strangest feature of the tour in Denmark. This was the People's High School at Frederiksborg What we had been asking ourselves, was the secret that the Danes possessed that seem to make all Danes brothers, in a sense not to be observed perhaps in any other nation. How did they co-operate so whole-heartedly and yet preserve their individuality We believe we found it that afternoon, when Dr Frederik Begtrup spoke to us on the Danish Folk High School. Here was a school attended, in winter, by young men and women, between the ages of adolescent period, a school free from inspection, where examinations are unknown, a type of school which is often owned by an individual, but where supported in part by State funds, in nevertheless in no way associated with the State as in its curriculum. What object could there be in such a school? Here is the answer Schools like these do not exist for the imparting of knowledge, but for the development of understanding The fare at schools such as these is plain, the life Spartan. The pupils rise at 6.45. The masters are lived by high patriotism and high ideals. Within the soul of the young man and woman, says the Folk High School, and there will result perception of the deeper values of life which will stand the pupil in good stead in all the crises of life. The practical values need not then be stressed, but will be understood and appreciated in their natural relation. If then co-operation has arisen among the Danish people, it has grown of itself, not because it was stressed but because it seemed the natural solution to the problem that existed. Whatever may be forgotten in the memories of the trip or grow less defined, it is certain that the spirit of the Folk High School will be remembered Mr Begtrup revealed himself as the personification of the teacher who is born, whose heart and soul are in his work, and whose work will live when he and his are gone.

Devotional Reading: Romans 12. 1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Paul's Preparation in Arabia For His Ministry. Galatians 1.15-18. Luke says nothing about Paul's stay in Arabia, but Paul writes in his Epistle to the Galatians "When it was the good pleasure of God to reveal His Son in me, that I might preach him among the Gentiles, straightway I conferred not with flesh and blood, neither went I up to Jerusalem to them that were apostles before me, but I went away into Arabia, and again I returned unto Damascus Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem." It was a voluntary novitiate, a period of reflection and revelation in which the truth which he had been so abruptly called to preach might be assimilated and clarified." Paul may have gone as far as Mount Sinai, yet it is possible that he went no farther than the desert region near Damascus, which might somewhat loosely have been known as Arabia. Like Jesus at the beginning of His public ministry, before entering upon His work, Paul went into the wilderness to fight his inner battles and think his problems through.

"The soul," said Robertson, "collects its mightiest power by being thrown in upon itself, and coerced solitude often matures the moral and mental character marvellously." It was into the solitude of Arabia that Paul passed after the daring revelation on the Damascus road, and there in the stillness the great soldiership of our character was made, and the new establishing of his life in God."—Robert E. Speer.

Canada's Mining Industry

The investment in all operating mineral enterprises of Canada is now over 706 millions of dollars, and the net income derived from sales of products of the mines exceeds one-third of the total investment. During the past five years $138,000,000 has gone into the mining industries of Canada.

Industries In Halifax Township

There are now 4,135 industrial establishments in the province of British Columbia with an annual payroll of $159,956,830, an increase over 1918 of 300 per cent. The principal industries of the province are lumber and shingle mills, mining, canneries, halibut and herring fisheries, foundries and structural steel works, sugar refining, shipbuilding, pulp and paper, clothing, food products, glass and rubber.

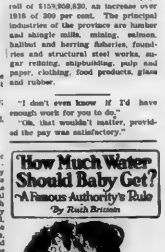
"How Much Water Should Baby Get?"

"A Reasonable Authority's Rule

By Ruth Brinton



Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, between four and five ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is easily determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day. If it is easily calculated for the bottle fed one. Those making up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless moods. Many times, too, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria, which not only relieves babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhoea, gas on the stomach, bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it for over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package as you'll be sure to get the genuine. Then buy, cost bottle thirty-five cents.

Inauguration of the new New York-Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, passenger ship service recently reported the first entrance of a vessel from New York into Yarmouth harbor for the past 20 years. This was the S.S. Evangeline, of the Eastern Steamship Line, carrying 320 passengers. She is of 1,500 tons and her sailing connects with the Dominion Atlantic Railway and en combien touristes to vacation Nova Scotia sea and holiday resorts.

This summer will witness a great deal of activity on the part of the Canadian companies as well as the Pulp and Paper Mill in the construction of elevators at country points in Alberta to handle the crop of the heavy harvests which are expected. Another company which has just announced its intention to enter on a construction program is the Gillespie Grain Company. According to John Gillespie, president, the firm plans to erect six new elevators each with a capacity of 65,000 bushels.

This aggregation was formed in June, 1926, and since then has fulfilled engagements all over the British Isles. The band will play in all the principal cities, military centres and garrison towns of Canada during their tour.

"First call for dinner!" "Last call for dinner!" The old familiar cries resounding in the hungry ears of the ship of the Canadian Pacific freight ship Empress of Asia, completed her run in eight days and twenty hours, making record time for a freight vessel between the two ports. This ship is one of the five "Empress" liners operating in the new fast freight steamship service of the Canadian Pacific. They have refrigerated cargo space and are of 10,000 tons dead weight. The service is between Montreal and London, and there is a sailing from the Canadian port every Friday. The vessels are a rude sailing before their fleet passenger vessels in the London trade.

EVERY TWO MINUTES

OF EVERY BUSINESS DAY · · · SOMEONE IN CANADA BUYS A NEW GENERAL MOTORS CAR

SINCE the days of Confederation, by Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders has been supplying Canada with transportation. Each year as requirements have multiplied, the service of General Motors has widened . . . the quality of General Motors cars has steadily improved . . . Each year more Canadians have looked to General Motors for better automobiles, until now, every two minutes of every business day, someone in Canada buys a new General Motors car. These cars are bought by people you know . . . by people like yourself . . . for the reasons which would guide you in the choice of a car.

They are bought because they are the product of the most progressive organization in the world's most progressive industry . . . because they reflect the General Motors policy of constant advancement . . . because they are better cars.

The enjoyment of the best in motoring, combined with dependability, is the goal at which General Motors engineers and executives aim in the production of every car. They are pursued in advance, at the expense of General Motors, and not the public. They are never sold because they are Canadian cars.

And they embody greater value because of quantity production and the economies of genuine leading and volume operation.

This popularity of General Motors cars holds out a challenge to you. Let the General Motors dealer demonstrate to you the qualities which have made General Motors products supreme in their fields. Get the facts about the General Motors purchase plan which is now in effect.

MANITOBA TO OBTAIN CONTROL OF RESOURCES

Ottawa.—The Federal Government and the government of the province of Manitoba have reached an agreement as to the method and basis of settlement of the question of the administration and control of the natural resources of Manitoba. Premier Mackenzie King has issued a statement covering the agreement arrived at.

Under the agreement the vexed question of financial adjustments is left to a committee which will be appointed by the Federal Government with the concurrence of that of Manitoba. The two governments have agreed on the following persons as members to comprise the commission: Hon. W. A. Turgeon, of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal; Hon. T. A. Crerar, of Winnipeg; and Charles M. Bowman, of Waterloo, Ont.

Mr. King occupied the post of minister of agriculture at Ottawa for some time and was also leader of the Progressive Party. Mr. Bowman is a director of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Canada.

Mr. King announced that three gentlemen would be appointed immediately of the agreement and that they would be invited to accept appointment.

Unusual Exhibit Will Be Seen At Edmonton Exhibition

Edmonton.—Grapes, sorghums, sugar cane, soy beans and tobacco. Such a list reads like the exports of some tropical island, or at the very least, the products of a southern state.

Visitors to the Edmonton Exhibition will have the opportunity of checking up on the list, for the products mentioned will be included in the entry from the C.P.R. Irrigation Development farm at Brooks, Alberta, which will be staged in the Agricultural building.

Throughout the week fresh supplies of the products quoted will be brought to Edmonton from Brooks in order to keep the display fresh and attractive.

Offered House in China

Jews Given Opportunity To Establish National Home

London.—An opportunity to build a Jewish national home in China to supplement the one in Palestine was offered by the minister of the Interior at Peking, says a despatch from Peking to The London Daily Express.

The offer was made as a result of a misunderstanding by the Chinese authorities of the application of a Zionist delegate who arrived in Peking and requested permission to collect funds for Palestine.

The minister of the interior at Peking thought the Zionist wanted to purchase land in China for the purpose of settling Jews there and promised a special treaty if the Zionist would indicate the site for the proposed homeland and the approximate area required.

Credit Situation Stable

Halifax, N.S. "The credit situation is stable throughout the whole Dominion in every line of business," declared Henry Dutchen, general manager of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, at their annual convention. Mr. Dutchen said that last year's failures under the bankruptcy act were the lowest in eight years and that a remarkable development was in process from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Marketing Surplus Wheat

Carry-Over Of 1927 Crop May Be 150,000,000 Bushels

Fort William, Ont. A welcome revival in the movement of western grains and favorable for the coming harvest were main features of the June report of E. A. Ursell, statistician to the board of railway commissioners. A marked improvement developed toward the end of June in the marketing of the exportable surplus of Canadian wheat with the result that lake shipments increased substantially.

The increase in lake shipments was most welcome as providing storage space for most of the grain in transit from western points.

Lake shipments during July are expected to be quite heavy and will make room for the stocks at present in country elevators at interior points which must be shipped out in readiness for the new crop.

At the end of June there were 70,000,000 bushels of wheat in store in the western division. Receipts bushels in transit to terminals approximately 82,000,000 had been milled and used for seed and another 307,250,000 bushels had been shipped out of the division. Allowing for what was on hand on July 31, 1927, it would thus appear the net total of the 1927 wheat crop already exhausted for is more than 420,000,000 bushels.

It looks as if the carry-over at the close of the present season would be very close to 80,000,000 bushels unless exports during the present month far exceed expectations.

Cruiser Dauntless Refloated

Will Be Placed In Halifax Drydock For Repairs

Halifax, N.S. The British light cruiser "Dauntless," which hung up on a prong of Tribune Ledge at the entrance to Halifax harbor on July 3, has been floated off, after a week's strenuous preparation by the wrecking crew of the Halifax shipyards.

The Dauntless was at once towed up the harbor and tied up to the piers in Mill Cove, Dartmouth, awaiting a berth in the drydock, and will be kept afloat by the compressed air pumps which were installed on her for a week ago and which have been kept going continuously ever since.

The Dauntless will be placed in the drydock of the Halifax shipyards, where, it is estimated, the repair work will keep 500 men busy for two months. It had been ascertained early that the rocks had torn a 50-foot hole in the cruiser's bottom.

Thousands of persons gathered along the shore; on Citadel Hill and on harbor craft to witness the floating of the Dauntless from its precarious position.

Toronto Mail Robbery

Five Men Under Arrest Charged With Complicity

Toronto.—Five men are under arrest here charged with complicity in the robbery of the Canadian National Railways mail car at the Union station in the early hours of June 20, it was announced by General D. C. Draper, chief of police. One woman is held on a charge of vagrancy and another as a material witness.

Although it has been generally rumored for several days that some arrests had been made, confirmation had not been obtainable from the police.

Prize List Drafted

$65 Wheat Classes In World's Grain Show Awards

Regina, Sask.—For the purpose of laying out a prize list for the World's Grain exhibition and conference to be held in Regina in 1932, a tentative classification has been prepared by a special committee nominated by Hon. W. R. MacDerwell, Dominion minister of agriculture. The committee is composed of J. A. Mooney, of Regina; L. H. Newman, Carl Dunsel, Dr. McKenzie, and G. H. Clark, all of Ottawa.

Exclusive of special classes the tentative list makes provision for $262,500 in prizes, six classes of wheat with $160,000 in prizes, two classes of oats, with $30,000 prizes; one class of barley, with $15,000 prizes; three classes of field peas, with $3,000 prizes; two classes of soy beans, $1,000; one class of rye, $5,000; one class of flax, $2,000; five classes of buckwheat, $3,000; four classes of corn, $25,000; one class of rice, $2,000; two classes of millet, $2,000; one class of red clover, $1,000; one class of alsike, $1,000; one class each in sweet clover, timothy, brome grass, mangels and turnips, $500 each.

Lord Byng's Appointment

Is Government Measure To Restore Confidence In Police Force

London.—The appointment of Viscount Byng, of Vimy, as commissioner of Metropolitan police, announced by the government to have been a measure to restore confidence in the police force was sustained in Parliament when a Labor motion of disapproval was defeated, 231 to 166.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, in making the announcement, declared that no shadow was the public faith in the police department that he had reluctantly called upon Lord Byng because the force needed, not re-organization, but re-inspiration.

Labor's opposition to the appointment of Lord Byng was based on the ground that it might tend to militarize the force. This Sir William denied.

Viscountess Astor and Miss Ellen Wilkinson, the woman Labor member, although differing on the propriety of Lord Byng's appointment found themselves in unison in expressing satisfaction at the resignation of Sir William Horwood, the retiring commissioner, who, they said, had tried to drive policewomen from the force and whose policy where women were concerned had been reactionary.

Lord Byng's appointment was announced a few weeks after the dismissal of charges of improper conduct against Miss Irene Savidge and Sir Leo Money, who were arrested in Hyde Park. In connection wenth Miss Savidge's examination the accusation was made that the police had used the third degree methods.

The Manville Tragedy

Vernon Booher Is Held As a Material Witness

Edmonton.—Developments in the Manville tragedy, in which four people on the Booher farm were shot to death, were the arrest of Vernon Booher, and the discovery that a British army rifle of .303 calibre was missed from the home of C. E. Stevenson, honored resident of the district, and whose farm is about a mile away from the Booher residence.

Vernon Booher, 20 years old, who lived his mother, brother and two hired men lying dead around the house and barn, shot through the heads, when he returned from the pasture at the sound of the shooting is being held as a material witness.

Police investigators state that the arrest of young Booher is merely routine since he was the next to reach the scene of the tragedy.

WEST'S NEW PLAYGROUND

Prince Albert National Park, Saskatchewan, which will be opened officially on August 10, bequeathing to the people of Western Canada one of the finest playgrounds on the continent. Its borders encloses 1,400 square miles of forest, lake and stream, where all is to be found that goes to make a holiday memorable.

Prince Albert National Park lies about 30 miles north of the city of Prince Albert, which is served by many lines of the Canadian National Railways. A fine motor road runs from the city to Lake Waskesiu, in the heart of the park, where the opening ceremonies will be performed by the Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Prime Minister of Canada. The Prime King represents Prince Albert in the House of Commons, and his constituents are presenting him with a cottage on this lake.

In addition to the Prime Minister, many other men notable in the public life of Canada, will attend. The programme will extend over a period of two days and special housing accommodation has been arranged by the committee.

BRITAIN WILL REPLY TO U. S. ANTI-WAR NOTE

London.—The British reply to the American anti-war proposals in the opinion of Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of foreign affairs, will be forwarded to Washington before the end of the parliamentary session. The secretary made this announcement in the House of Commons in reply to questions and he took the responsibility for what some of the questioners characterized as delay in answering the American note.

The only delay, however, said Chamberlain, was the time which was being taken for careful consideration of such an important matter and the Dominions had no responsibility for this.

Hechled by Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Labor, who asked if Sir Austen intended "to wreck this proposal," Chamberlain declared:

"I do not propose to wreck the proposal. I welcome the proposal and I wish to bring it to a successful issue."

Paris.—The Council of Ministers has approved Premier Briand's reply to Secretary Kellogg's proposals to outlaw war which France formally agrees to sign.

It was reiterated that the reply, while fully explaining France's viewpoint, does not put the explanations of the Note of reservation.

Meeting in Regina Of Metal Barristers

Representatives Attending From England, France, Irish Free State and U.S.A.

Regina.—Preparations for the most brilliant assemblage of legal talent ever to gather are progressing here. Next month, the 13th annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association will be held in this city, with headquarters in the Hotel Saskatchewan.

From the Maritimes and the Pacific Coast, outstanding public men will come for the yearly conference. From France, Great Britain, the Irish Free State and the United States, representatives of other legal bodies will be present to aid and learn in the great meeting. The convention will last three days, August 29, 30 and 31.

Hon. Mr. Justice W. M. Martin, arrest of young Booher is merely president of the Canadian Bar Association, will be in the chair when the meeting opens at 10 a.m. on August 29. He was elected at last year's annual meeting, held in Toronto.

THE RECORD

E. Oxley, Editor and Publisher

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1924

The town is deserted today. Taking advantage of the civic holiday a large percentage of the population are attending the Edmonton exhibition.

If you happen to be one of the barbecues (landowners) of the town today, Thursday, July 10, is the day set for you to register your vote on the electricity proposition. Attend to this very important matter without delay.

MY TOWN

"My town is the place where my home is founded; where my business is situated; where my vote is cast; where my children are educated; where my life is chiefly lived. It is the home spot for me. My town has a right to my civic loyalty. It supports me and I must support it. My town wants my citizenship, not partisanship; friendliness, not clannishness; co-operation, not dissention; sympathy not criticism; my intelligent support, not indifference. My town supplies me with law and order, trade, friends, education, morals, recreation, and the rights of a Freeborn Canadian. I should believe in my town and work for it."

If everyone followed the above creed the mail order houses and the bill jumpers would have a hard time.—Ex.

DIPTHERIA

Diphtheria is an acute communicable illness caused by noxious bacilli which live best in the throat of little children. These bacilli form a powerful poison which destroy certain tissues of the body. The tissues most readily affected are the nerves, the heart and the glands, as well as the throat. The effect of this poison or toxin may be temporary or permanent. Eight per cent. of all diphtheria is cured in ninety-nine per cent. of cases where antitoxin is used in adequate dosage during the first twenty-four hours of the sore throat stage of the disease. Antitoxin when given to well children will prevent them from contracting diphtheria for a period of from three to six months. Toxin-Antitoxin, however, will prevent the occurrence of diphtheria for at least five years in all people and this immunity will last for the lifetime of many. Toxin-Antitoxin is administered by a physician in three doses at intervals of one week. One series of three doses is sufficient to immunize eighty per cent. of all children. Some children who have a very low resisting power against diphtheria will require a second series of three additional doses.

The Schick test has been devised to determine definitely whether a child is susceptible to diphtheria and would contract it if exposed or whether he is immune. Nearly all children under school age are susceptible after they are over six months of age. All children between the ages of six months and sixteen years should be given one series of toxin-antitoxin. Not less than six months and not more than one year later they should be given the Schick Test. This will tell which of the children need the second series. Toxin-Antitoxin prevents diphtheria. Take your children to your doctor and have them immunized. Make Canada a country safe for children.

Canada's Market — The Empire

The Empire's Opportunity in Manufactured Goods

Of 33 groups of commodities listed under Canada's tariff, the Empire in the year of 1913 supplied but 18.76 per cent. It is believed that the Empire imports from the United States three-quarters of the total amount of import on these commodities.

ROLL down the map of the world. Follow the British Empire red through the continents and across the seas. There you see belonging markets for Canada—where fewer trade restrictions intervene, where British tradition is appreciated, where Canada is known. There we can sell. There we can also buy.

Canada is buying more Empire goods than ever before—things we cannot grow or make—raw materials for our factories. Since 1923 Canada's imports from Empire countries have increased 67 per cent. Last year we bought Empire goods to the value of $250,000,000.

And what is Canada selling the Empire? Last year we shipped $500,000,000 worth of our products to other British lands, an increase of 44.3 per cent. in six years.

The various parts of the Empire want more Canadian goods. A demand exists among them for Canadian manufactures, or for the products of Canadian lands or waters. But we must see that our exports are maintained at a rigid standard, that they are packed as consumers desire, and that our prices are right.

To encourage this growing Empire trade, eleven of Canada's twenty-four Trade Commissioners abroad, are working in Empire centres. They are familiar with the demands of the people among whom they live. Their services and the information they gather are at the command of any Canadian producer or exporter. To get into touch with Trade Commissioners, write the Commercial Intelligence Service, Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

When you buy Empire goods, you do a part in making possible greater Canadian exports to these sister countries. Where we sell, we must also buy.

The willows that grew beside the river were blushing as the sap rose green yellow or red according to their kind and the roads began to whiten with the fuss from the passers.

But, on this twenty-fifth day of April there across out of the west a sheer black cloud leaped into the bounding blue a thick deep cloud in which silent lightnings played, and as the day went on, it shot up higher and higher into the sky until at three o'clock it was ready to cover the sun.

During this time the heat had been stifling. The air grew heavy and oppressive. It was the sort of a day when horses break into fonmy sweat and people feel cross-grained, clammy, irritable, and full of aches and pains which they attribute to the weather.

The edge of the cliff had a sullen color at four o'clock, when the sun had gone under, and all the trees were standing still expectantly, as if bracing themselves for some thing which they were unable to help.

In the gathering gloom the teamers in Bannerman, grouped around the station, looked more than ever like gods about to spring. The clouds were rolling now, with white lines on their billows, and there is a distant rumble of thunder, like the roar of a train away city.

All day the rain clouds threaten and thunder growls but it is not until night has fallen that the change comes. The crows that have been sitting like birds of ill omen, bumped up on the trees, go further back into the bush, as if in dread.

On the train coming to Bannerman sits Helmi, very pale, very determined, with a purpose so terrible she does not look at her fellow-passengers, for the fear is on her that they might divine her errand and try to dissuade her from it. She has made a vow of vengeance, and she will keep it. Why should she spare the man who has wrought so much evil in her life? There is a burning, trying pain in her heart that only revenge can ease, and as she sits at the window looking out into the rain ing storm, she gloats over the scene. She can see it again as she sits at his littered table the dirty, grimy old man, who kept so many by the lying pencil, guarding, hoarding it, to do her harm. Other things he lost in the confusion and entitlement of his ugly den, but this he treasured safe, and showed it to her Jack poisoning his mind against her and now her enemies, angry and bitter to be killed, and little Lili, whom she feared cause she her had to [illegible] she would be burned back to life as brush, put Lili between her with her silky brown hair and little caressing lips.

The fever in her breasts shook all thought of Lili burned like a sword and red hot needles, until the separation broke in beside on her face. She could see the cedar fade from her enemy's face when [illegible] his wicked old heart. She had thought of it often since she saw Jack's face gibbing ghastly, apart from her she would see the old go in patches from his face and he would beg for mercy when he saw the gleaming barrel of the revolver beg and whimper as I call upon his God.

Wild streams of blood in Helmi's heart were crying to her to strike and not to spare and the pain in her bortide drawing tearing pain around her heart grew more and more denying every moment until in every fang and spasm that tortured was a tongue that cried "die, die!"

Once Helmi thought of that when she saw Lili lighting in up all the countryside revealing farm houses ghostly white, and brooding trees that crippled before the rushing wind. God? a lot He cared; God was with the magistrate and let him live no care with Jack were out with a better heart to die and little Lili loosed in her fever with no mother to comfort her!

Helmi had ceased to reason and reckon or feel; she only felt. The primitive passions were ablaze in her and she had become a beast of prey. She had been robbed of her mate and her child. Red murder gleamed in her eyes.

When the train stopped at Bannerman the storm was at its height. The wind had the whine of stretched wires in it and whistled across the deserted platform with a horrible hissing sound. The night was inky black, with bursts of lightning between her eyes, and continuous bellows of thunder like a hundred fire engines roaring past, shrieking and every other sound that I knew her way as if by instinct. In the lightning's revealing flashes the house she sought was easily found. She was breathing now like a person with pneumonia, her nostrils quivering like a wounded animal who has the quarry at bay. The revolver was in her hand, and in each flash of the lightning it gleamed like a blinding searchlight. Each chamber was loaded, for Helmi intended to do her work completely.

When she reached the verandah steps, remembering the one that was broken, carefully making no noise, and stepped all the accustomed wisdom of looking. The man she sought sat at his table with a glass and bottle beside him. A roar of thunder shook the bottle tremble on the tin tray and rattled the bricks in his chimney. He started and looked toward the window, though Helmi had made no sound.

Helmi moved a step nearer and then another. She wanted him to know to see. She wanted to see the cringing fear she had come to beg and. He came over to the window, and he must have seen her face, white and sinful in the darkness, for he reeled back in fright with a scream of horror.

Then came a crash a shuddering, sickening crash with blue fire that lights that seemed to strike at Helmi's eyes like a thousand furies. There was a sound of crashing timber and a confusion that flung Helmi to her knees. When she opened her eyes and looked through the window she saw her enemy lying dead on the floor his face livid, his eyes wide open, full of terror . . .

When Helmi came to herself she was running through the storm on feet shod with fright running as if all the fiends of the night were in pursuit, the sky opening and shutting with dazzling lights and blinding darkness; night voices screaming, and louder than all, her own heart pounding in her ears.

Sometimes she fell, rising to her feet again; sometimes she fell a sudden blow, as if a crashing tree had struck her as it fell; but always her fear drove her on.

She had no sense of fatigue as she ran on and no plan of flight; but a strange homing instinct led her in the direction of Eagle Mines. Even in her hysteria and frenzy her feet carried her toward the little house where she had been loved and secure.

Then came the rain a furious pelting rain that seemed to fall in drenching sheets of water. Every time the lightning opened with the bursts of thunder another downpour trenched the earth.

Suddenly Helmi was aware that some animal was running beside her, and in a flash of lightning she saw the noble collie, her friend showing ghostly white against the blackness of the night.

The smartness of something warm and living gave Helmi courage, and, falling beside the dog she clasped her arms around it in a sudden passion of weeping. The animal behind her but face soothingly, whimpering softly and with strange comfort, as if almost human tenderness. Her wet clothes hung on her now like heavy weights. The dog ran on ahead with encouraging barks and Helmi, following, begged the animal not to leave her alone in the darkness.

A great weariness came over Helmi now, and a growing fear that her strength was leaving her, but the dog was bounding back to her every few moments and urging her as plainly as a dog could to come on a little farther.

Suddenly at the mouth of the cave black and terrible, the dog stopped and pulled her behind. Helmi followed blindly into the midnight blackness, into which even the lightning could not penetrate. She found something soft beneath her feet, and, stooping down, found a bed of hay, dry and comfortable and on it she fell, grateful to be out of the lashing fury of the storm.

The storm still roared in her ears and the fury of the rain filled the cave with a sound like a roaring cataract.

An Open-Air Parliament

Held Yearly Since 1117 in Capital of Swiss Canton

The oldest open-air parliament in the world, known as the Landsgemeinde, which has been held yearly every May since 1412 in the market place of Altdorf, capital of the canton of Uri, Switzerland, was abolished recently by a majority vote in favor of a secret ballot to take place in the town hall.

Laws have been enacted for more than 500 years simply by uplifting arms. Its other Landsgemeinden still exist in the smaller Swiss cantons.

Teeth and Health

TOOTH IS LONGER

Your child had tooth-ache one night and you were able to relieve her suffering by applications of oil of cloves to the cavity, and when the pain had subsided, you congratulated yourself that the trouble was ended.

But in the morning he awoke to find that the tooth was sore to bite upon, and longer than the others, so he said.

Now, he was right, for in a sense the tooth was longer than its fellows. Just what happened?

Each tooth is suspended in a soft tissue sac which acts as a cushion between the tooth and its bony socket breaking the jar when the teeth bite on use.

And the inflammation which caused the tooth to ache, has spread from the pulp to this sac (or periosteum), which is richly supplied with blood vessels; then, with the accompanying rush of blood, the sac has become swollen and so its stretched.

Actually then it does let the tooth in the socket a little; permitting it to hit the opposite teeth before the others come together

Now, of course, this needs attention, not only because of the dangerous sequelæ from the inflamed condition if allowed to progress further, but also for the reason that Nonny will do all his chewing on the "well sods," in his endeavor to avoid using the sore tooth

This continued long enough, will form a habit making for a one-sided muscle development and leaving the teeth on the "sick side," because of this disuse more prone to decay

Further, should one or more of these disused teeth be allowed to remain in such condition as to cause pain when used, the food will naturally be bolted and a harmful habit formed which it may be difficult to correct later.

One of the latest mechanical devices in this mechanical age is the new switch which floods an air port with light at the sound of an approaching aeroplane. The drone of the aeroplane motor is used to start a sympathetically-tuned reed vibrating, as the aeroplane approaches the low note of its motor sets the reed in vibration, and the reed in turn switches on the powerful lights.

It is not in vain that you are called to pass through great trials and sufferings. They never leave you what they found you; God forbid they should! But how you bear them, what they lead you to do and to feel will vary according to your own attitude to them. Their trend and purpose are towards these two poles of duty: God and humanity; but it is our weakness and fault that often we do not read aright their meaning. Suffering may leave us hard, selfish, and complaining, or it may lead us into the mysteries of Providence, and into the very fellowship of God.

HEIMSTEAD DISTRICT EXHIBIT WINS TROPHY

The John Christie Challenge Cup and the handsome trophy awarded by the Alberta Department of Agriculture for the best district exhibit at the Edmonton exhibition during the past week were won by the Sedgewick constituency. The Sedgewick exhibit also captured first prize at the Calgary exhibition in a similar competition. Worthy of special mention was the excellent display of products from the Athabasca constituency.

Judging of the seven district exhibits resulted as follows:

1—$156.00—Sedgewick: 416 points.
2—$125.00—Athabasca: 381½ points.
3—$100.00—Pumoka: 356 points. *
4—$ 80.00—Victoria: 353¼ points. *
5—$ 75.00—Wetaskiwin: 326 points.
6—$ 62.00—Pembina: 305¼ points.
7—$ 40.00—Leduc: 262¼ points.

Note—The above item of information was received from the publicity commissioner for the provinces and we can only believe the misstatement occurs because he was not notified of the clerical error which gave third place to Pumoka, a mistake which was pointed out to the board of directors of the Edmonton exhibition and which immediately rectified the mistake and gave to the Victoria constituency the rightful award, the third place and $100.00 prize money.

Those responsible for the display exhibited are elated at their success in this their first attempt and are to be congratulated upon it, particularly as the decision to enter an exhibit was made only six weeks before the exhibition opened. Higher honors next year are aspired to by the men who held a meeting to be held Friday will give opportunities to talk matters over.—Ed.

GOOD PROGRESS ON NORTH RAIL EXTENSIONS

It is expected that construction work on the extensions to the E.D. & B.C. and Central Canada railway lines will be completed in time to handle the increased 1928 crop shipments out of the newly opened up districts in the north, it is announced by Hon. V. W. Smith, minister of railways.

Grading on the fifteen-mile extension from Whitelaw to the new end of steel at Fairview, north of the Peace river, will be completed by the end of August and laying of steel will commence immediately thereafter.

Good progress is also being made on the twenty-five-mile grade from Wembley to Hythe and it is hoped that much of this line will be completed before freeze-up.

SIXTH FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, July 21, 1928

Seventy-five to eighty per cent. of the wheat crop throughout the province is in head and all grain crops continues to make rapid growth, according to telegraphic reports received by the Department of Agriculture on Friday for the sixth fortnightly crop report of the season.

Practically all sections of the province have benefited from seasonal showers during the past two weeks and moisture conditions are generally reported as highly satisfactory. Only in very few districts have lodging lands suffered from the rainfall which has been well in excess of the average for July. Hot, dry weather would be beneficial now in some sections where early-sown wheat is approaching the filling stage. Oats and barley are making vigorous growth and these crops on early land are starting to head.

Cutworms continue their destructive ravages, and particularly through the central and northern sections of the province, large areas of new land are being cleaned and brought under cultivation in readiness for next year's crop. In some localities summerfallowing has been hampered to some extent by the excessive moisture in the soil, and the same difficulty is reported in connection with the cultivation of the best crop in the south.

Haying is well advanced in southern sections. A good crop of alfalfa and other cultivated hays is being cut and continued dry weather is essential to proper curing.

Some hail damage to crop is reported but this is confined to very limited areas. Crops this season have been particularly free from insect and disease injury.

With prospects of a very satisfactory crop, harvesting is expected to start a few days earlier than in 1927 in the Peace River country where the grain acreage is considerably in excess of that of last year, and harvest throughout the province will commence about the third week in August on.

VICE-REGAL PARTY VISITS PEACE RIVER

Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Willingdon have been touring the Peace River country. From Peace River where they arrived by train from Edmonton, they motored to Grande Prairie and thence to Peace Coupe, Fort St. John and Hudson's Hope, returning to Peace River by boat. This itinerary was arranged to enable them to inspect the districts where such a marked increase in settlement is taking place during the present season, as well as to view many of the scenic beauties of the far north.

MORE BUFFALO MOVED NORTH

With the final shipment which left early in July, the total number of buffalo transferred this season from the Wainwright park to the reserve on the northern boundary of the province, near Fort Smith, reached 1,500 head.

Premiums prepared from the flesh of buffalo slaughtered at the park last winter is being shipped to eastern port for transportation to the natives in the Eastern Arctic. Consignments of this product have already been forwarded by water to the Eskimos in the vicinity of Athabasca where it is understood to have met with considerable favor.

ELKS WILL PICNIC AT ELK ISLAND PARK

An informal meeting of the Elks club was held Tuesday evening in the Memorial hall at which it was decided to hold a picnic at Elk Island park on Sunday, August 5. Edmonton, Lamont and Fort Saskatchewan lodges will participate and the opportunity will be taken to look over the island which the Elks have leased from the government for a ninety-nine year period. This island is a beautiful spot right in the heart of it and is situated in the park.

District Deputy E. R. Heller and other officers of the Edmonton lodge were in attendance at the meeting.

GOOD PROGRESS ON PEACE RIVER HIGHWAY

Another link in the Edmonton-Peace River highway has now been completed, and a good road now exists between High Prairie and Peace River. Good progress is being made by the road gangs working on the section of the highway south of Lesser Slave Lake, where so much difficulty was experienced last year as a result of the unusual height of water in the lake, and it is expected that with a continuance of good weather, the highway will be opened for traffic during the coming fall.

"Safety First" on the Highways

At the risk of being somewhat tiresome, the writer of this column feels impelled to once again direct attention to the subject appearing as the title to this article. Justification for such action, if, indeed, any justification is needed, is to be found in certain well established facts.

In the three prairie provinces last year the number of motor cars registered exceeded half a million

In all three provinces, Governments and municipalities are straining their resources in the construction and improvement of good market roads and provincial highways, and every mile so constructed or improved results in an increase in motor vehicular traffic and an increase in the speed at which most of the cars will travel.

In the improvement of highways, advances are being constantly made in the direction of making them as nearly as possible "safe" through increases in width, reduction in grades and curves, guard rails at curves and danger spots, and a standardized system of marking the highways, indicating routes, turns, curves, railway crossings, danger spots, etc.

On the other hand, year by year, manufacturers of cars are increasing the power and speed of cars, and with gradual price reductions their use is becoming almost universal. It is true, of course, that four-wheel brakes, and other safety devices, are being added, and manufacturers are interested and active in making their cars as nearly "fool proof" as they can be made.

The fact is emphasized, and which it is important should be drilled into the minds of every motorist, is that no matter what Governments and municipalities may do in the matter of road construction, and no matter how strongly and carefully motor cars may be built and equipped from the prevention of accident standpoint, the human element remains. Neither roads nor cars can be made "fool proof," and the unfortunate fact is that the reckless driver is just as great a danger to others as he is to himself. If the highways of the country are to be made safe, it is evident that there must be a decided change in the attitude and conduct of many thousands of motorists, car drivers, and the public generally.

In an address before the annual convention of the Union of Saskatchewan Municipalities, Hon. H. J. Latta, announcing the early inauguration of a "Safety First" campaign throughout the Province, stated that he had recently read in a newspaper that someone was either killed or seriously injured every forty seconds in an automobile accident in the United States, and that during 1927 approximately 30,618 persons were killed and 780,700 injured in such accidents. He further referred to the fact that at a conference held in the Parliament Buildings of Ontario it was revealed that 1927 automobile accidents cost 625 lives in Ontario, an increase of 154 over 1926, while 2,976 others were injured. It was further reported that fatalities were in the proportion of eight to each one thousand car licenses.

These are appalling figures and certainly indicate the need of somehow controlling this great modern convenience. What was the cause of these accidents? Were they preventable? The results of investigations in the United States show that 11,795 highway accident fatalities in 1927 were caused principally by motorists, of which 3,765 were caused by inattention, 2,795 as the result of speeding, 2,353 through traffic violation, 1,059 from intoxication, and 1,823 from miscellaneous causes.

About an equal number of fatalities, 11,367 to be exact, were caused principally by pedestrians, of which number 3,636 occurred through children playing in the street or crossing in violation of traffic regulations, 2,989 from blind jay-walking, 1,510 through inattention, 1,391 as a result of confusion, and 1,260 from other causes.

As compared with these more than 23,000 fatalities caused by the human element, there were only 1,280 resulting from fog, snow or rain, 602 from some defect in the vehicle, 353 from road defects, 344 from strong lights, 344 from poor street lighting, and 105 from confusion in dimming lights. In other words, physical conditions were responsible for 1,430 fatalities as contrasted with over 23,000 for which people themselves were responsible.

Surely such a record provides ample justification for repeatedly urging people to exercise care, to realize that Common Sense will prevent accidents and should be applied, that the Sane way is the Safe way.

Prominent Visitors From Ireland

Marquess Of Dufferin and Ava Will Make Tour Of Canada

The Marquess of Dufferin and Ava, speaker of the senate of Northern Ireland, who is a son of a former governor-general of Canada, was a passenger on the Empress of Scotland, which arrived at Quebec recently. In a short interview, he declared it was his intention to see Canada from coast to coast on his present stay here. Regarding the industrial situation in Northern Ireland, the marquess declared that, with the exception of a slight improvement in the shipbuilding industry at Belfast, there was little change as compared with a year ago.

Prepared For Emergencies

Commander Byrd's Expedition Will Be Self-Rescuing Unit

Commander Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition will be, in a sense, a self-rescuing unit and if disaster should befall it no outside aid will be expected.

In a statement to the Associated Press, Commander Byrd said:

"We are to have three aeroplanes and the most up-to-date radio equipment obtainable. When sections of the expedition are separated there will be constant inter-communication, and if trouble should befall one section the rest would immediately go into action as an organized relief body."

Third Wrigley Marathon

Grand Workmanlike Race Entry In This Outstanding Event

While much dissatisfaction has been expressed by Vierhouter and his manager regarding the shortening of the distance for the Third Wrigley Marathon again to be conducted by the Canadian National Exhibition this year, there can be no question about his entering no be in daily training in Lake Ontario.

He seems to be carrying more avoirdupois than he did last year and experts say that he is in fine shape. This, of course, at this stage of the game, means little. George Young is the size of a young elephant and seems more or less sluggishly in consequence. Both of them will undoubtedly take this off in the course of their intensive training, so that comparisons are more or less impossible at this time.

Vierhouter is a great swimmer and unlike most distance men is fast. Witness his feat of last year when he covered the first five miles under 28 minutes each. That should be fast enough to win this year's Marathon.

From a spectacular standpoint the Third Marathon will surpass the Second. The course will be along the sea wall, and will be in full view of the tens of thousands of spectators who will again flock to see the great event.

The entries are now coming in thick and fast and it is estimated that they will exceed those of last year.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SUMMER

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The contents of their stomachs are often rotten infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery come on as quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the summer as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Many Farmers Join Pool

Estimated That About Half the Wheat Crop Of West Contributed

The Canadian Wheat Pool, which embraces 142,000 Canadian farmers, continues to add to its membership. In a single day this month contracts were received at head office covering a total of nearly 160,000 acres of grain.

Under the Canadian Wheat Pool system farmers voluntarily sign contracts in which they agree to market all their wheat through the Pool for a period of five years. About half the wheat crop of Western Canada is controlled in this way, and sales by the Pool average over a million dollars for every business day of the year. It is claimed that the Pool has increased the price of wheat to the farmer without increasing the price of bread to the consumer.

Miller's Worm Powders seldom fail. They immediately attack the worms and expel them from the system. They are complete in themselves, not only as a worm destroyer, but as a highly beneficial medicine for children, correcting weak digestion and promoting healthful conditions by establishment, without which the growth of the child will be irregular and its constitution weakened.

German Prisoners Released

Thousands Of Prisoners Regain Freedom Under Amnesty Bill

The jail doors in Germany were opened for release of thousands of prisoners recently, when the Reichstag passed by more than the two-thirds necessary majority the most sweeping amnesty bill since the success of the Republican revolution.

Among those to be set free under the measure are the last of the Imperial Army soldiers who were sentenced by the Kaiser's court martial for desertion and other offenses.

The bill was opposed only by the Bavarian Polish party of the small Hanover party.

After passage of this measure the Reichstag adjourned until the autumn.

Highland Gathering At Banff An Annual Function That Is Attracting Widespread Interest

(By C. V. Lane.)

Rupert Brooke, famous British poet who died in the war, visited the Rockies some years ago. Unable to withhold his admiration of their grandiose scenery, he dashed off with the criticism that awe-inspiring as they were, they were without human associations such as the Alps possessed. No man looking at them could imagine the tremendous adventure of Hannibal crossing the snowladen passes with elephants amid the clangor of his motley army of Carthaginians and Spaniards. The lament of northern barbarians pouring over their heights to the attack of the falling Roman Empire, even absent in our times the invasion across the Alps of Italy by Napoleon, are withheld, yet in the last two hundred years has spread itself over the whole earth, although in doing so it has never forgotten its country of origin.

They settled in Quebec, in the Maritimes, and in Ontario, where was comparatively little to remind them of the mountains of their native land. They opened wrote the Dominion in the Prairie where was much less. Yet whatever nostalgia they felt for the heather, the bens, and the glens and crags of auld Prestia, they prospered by reason of that hardihood which mountainous country seems especially to breed in its inhabitants. The Rockies attracted them from the first, and many a peak, river and lake has a Gaelic name.

Highland Scottish came derived from the early adventurers and explorers. But it was reserved for the twentieth century to bind the great mountains of Canada to the people whose whole history is inextricably tied up to the peaks flathered together in the heart of the Rockies, at a place with a Scottish name, the first Highland Gathering at Banff was inaugurated last year with such success that it is to be repeated this year, and will be an old institution in annual function in the future. In this way have the Rockies forged that soul which Rupert Brooke lamented they lacked.

Anyone finding themselves at Banff between August 31 and September 3, next, would easily imagine the set in the heart of the Highlands. Scenery, speech, the skirl of the pipes, the tartans, the tartans, dances, games, everything that is of the Scot, Scottish, will be there, drawn as by a magnet to the attraction of the young ladies. It will be as though the Fiery Cross of old timan had been set all throughout the country, but not for war. This time it will be for peace and for the celebration of the aged old songs, the renewal of the old comradeship with pipes, dances, sports, Reels, strathspeys and laments that are embodied in the history of the race, never to be forgotten while a Highlander treads the earth, will recall the ancient memories of raid and massacre, of flood and fell, of victory and defeat. And the lonely mountain tops will seem to be surveled with the color and romance of a thousand years of winding history

Electricity For Farm Houses

Investigation Is To Be Carried Out On Cost In Alberta

Modern farm houses are to be fully equipped and experimental tests carried on with a view to making the rough investigation into the costs of electrifying the average farm house in Alberta, through the co-operation of the University of Alberta, the Calgary Power Co., and the U.F.W.A. It is planned to equip two representative farm houses in the province and operate electrical appliances for a period of one year to determine the actual costs involved. One will be in the north and the other in Southern Alberta.

What a happy world this would be if there were as much enthusiasm at the finish of an enterprise as there is at the start.

The Road Of Thrift

Saying Things One Cannot Afford Is Extravagance

"To have or not to have an automobile is one of the big questions of this age. The auto is certainly a most desirable thing. It is a mighty pleasure to the owner and his family or friends, and is a great convenience and a decided adjunct to business. Every person who can afford a car should own one, but there are some who have them that are not entitled to them, such, for instance, as persons without jobs, those who have small salaries, those who are calling close to the wind financially. The auto, while it may be regarded as a necessity in business, is still a luxury so far as pleasure is concerned.

The Economic Recovery From The World War Presents A Most Surprising Historical Fact

"The economic recovery from the World War is a more surprising historical fact than that of the World War itself, and it is in many ways a more important one." This challenging statement was made by Professor James T. Shotwell, director of the division of economics and history of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, with reference to the researches which he has been conducting ever since the close of the conflict on the economic effects of the war in all the countries of Europe and in the United States.

Dr Shotwell pointed out that the war itself had not quite taken Europe by surprise. It had been long anticipated and prepared for; but as it progressed there were no economists or serious thinkers anywhere in any land, who had any glimpses of the rapidity of recovery from the appalling catastrophe

The results of the economic survey which the Carnegie Endowment has been making in the different European countries indicate a degree of recovery which shows that modern society is capable of enduring economic destruction far beyond what anyone had thought possible in 1911, or even in 1919 Europe had naturally suffered enormous losses, and yet, in spite of all the destruction of property, the standard of living of the working class is higher now than it was in most European countries then it was in 1914

This does not mean that all losses have been able to hold their own, but the working class has definitely improved its wage standard, and conditions of living

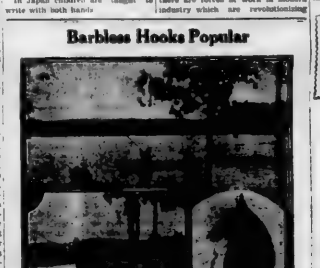
This improvement is not caused by the war, but has happened in spite of the war. All of which shows that there are forces at work in modern industry which are revolutionizing the basis of living. The causes for improvement lie in improved business methods, in scientific management, mass production and in increased technical skill. All of this has taken place with very little regard to politics and much of it in disregard of the most reactionary and uneconomical political programs.

The question whether it will continue or how much it may be resisted upon is one which any historian would be very slow to answer, in view of the mistakes which have been made in all previous guesses as to the capacity of European civilization, but S Parker Gilbert's optimistic report of Germany's capacity to pay at yes that the world is still upon the upward course

The scientific researches of the Carnegie Endowment attempt to answer the question, what does war actually do to the economic processes of modern living" The answer is an emphatic negative so far as one is concerned but it has to surrogate at the same time that modern civilization has acquired a capacity for adjustment and recovery which is almost incalculable The fundamental attack upon the war system therefore must remain a moral one for the one irreparable destruction is on human life itself. with the consequent retrogression in moral outlook.

Two new volumes have just appeared in the vast collection of the economic history of the World War which Dr Shotwell is directing They deal with the effect of the war upon Denmark and Norway An exhaustive survey of monograph on Norway appeared some time ago. A study of these volumes shows how deeply the neutral nations were involved in the blockade and economic struggle

Barbless Hooks Popular



The record catches of fish at such popular outdoor resorts as the Nipigon River Bungalow Camp, the Algonquin Lake District, reached from East Templeton on the Canadian Pacific line near Ottawa, and Devils Gap Bungalow Camp, at Kenora, are being mostly made with barbless hooks. These permit all but the largest fish to be released painlessly and returned uninjured to the water, some fish being undoubtedly caught two or three times in a season.

The barbless hook, in which a bend in the wire near the point similar to a kink in a hairpin holds the piece of the sharp barb, does not injure the hooked fish, and enables it to be removed easily and returned to the water, sometimes without even touching with the hands.

Contact, explains Court Ripley, well known sporting writer, causes often more injury than the hook itself. The protective mucus covering of the skin is removed in handling and soon after re-entering its native elements the fish contracts a fungus growth on the affected portion and dies as a result. Wetting the hands lessens the ill effect

The barbless hook requires little more skill than the older variety as it holds the fighting fish almost as surely, although it may be removed without difficulty. It has become widely popular, and is especially adaptable to fly fishing for bass, trout and salmon.

The barbless hook was invented some years ago by a man named Williams, in Utah, his model having a bend sloping away from the point that caused considerable damage in being extricated. This idea was taken up six years ago by the late "Snelling" Bill Jamieson, well known Chicago fishing tackle expert and veteran fisherman, who reduced the angle of the bend so that it was a slight kink and did much to popularize the new humane hook.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Canadian National Railways' Train to Show Models and Research, 1928

Continued.

In the evening, as guests of the Danish Government at a private session of Parliament, in the Royal Opera House, we renewed our acquaintance with Mr. Mikkelsen. Denmark we shall remember, not only as the worthy representative of the British Foreign Office in Denmark, but as a friend of Canada and the Canadian Farmers Party. Sitting with us Mr. Millington Drake entertained us with a resume of the part the farmers who were not familiar with the great work. During the evening we were honored by the appearance in the Royal Box of King Christian, a gracious courtesy which was acknowledged by representatives of the party calling at the palace to sign the Royal book, which in the Danish experience is one of Canadian courtesy of leaving cards. The next day the King telegraphed Mr Millington Drake, as follows: "Please thank the Canadian farmers who were present and me. We hope they will keep a pleasant remembrance of their stay in Denmark."

Before leaving Copenhagen on our return to Esbjerg we had two important calls to make at the Kolle Red Danish Cattle breeding farm, and the Dantrup Landrace pig breeding farm.

The Kolle farm, owned by 200 Bovland farmers, has been responsible for greatly improving the successful breeding experiments. The herd of 700 Red Danish cattle, every cow, which we inspected was of remarkable uniformity and type, worthy for their high butter fat test and their copious middle and spring of rib.

On leaving the farm the party received a present of a pedigree bull calf on van der Neergaard to visit his home and from the experience which was much enjoyed. The Danes, who is farming a large acreage, was able to show the party a beautiful cattle and a particularly fine herd of cattle.

The visit to the Dantrup pig breeding establishment revealed something of the secret of the remarkable uniformity which characterizes the Danish hog. Here it was found that the best type hogs were obtained by crossing the pure Yorkshire type with the Landrace pig. A barely native breed which is in itself rather coarse but which has length so desirable for bacon. Today breeding farms are established in different parts of the country, some for Yorkshires, and others for the Landrace, from which the Danish farmer is able to buy pure breds of both breeds for crossing purposes. The Dantrup station which we visited is the oldest, largest and best in Denmark.

Back in Esbjerg, we were introduced to one of the most remarkable achievements of the Danes. The loss of its most valuable territory to the Germans, in 1864, gave Denmark the choice of emigration or an attempt to reclaim to agriculture on a large scale vast stretches of practically uncultivated country. There were the sandy wastes along the West coast of Jutland. Over 2,000,000 acres ruined no human habitation was visible. Here and there was a man or two drifting sand was covered with grass and bushes.

The Danes bent their energies to the latter course, with the result that today there are 350,000 acres of pine forest and 1,200,000 acres, nearly two-thirds of the total area of Denmark, have been reclaimed by tree planting.

Time did not permit us to visit the older plantations but it is true to say of the last to fifteen years-old plantations outside Esbjerg, filled us with amazement. A windswept, treeless barren, sour plain there had been turned into a productive and beautiful country, thousands of acres of which are pasture land, capable of supporting a fair live-stock population.

A trip to Ribe, the oldest town in Denmark, with quaint and narrow streets; then a Royal reception on behalf of the citizens of Esbjerg, completed our stay in Denmark, a gallant little country which we left with regret. Our appreciation was appropriately telegraphed to the Prime Minister and through him to the people of Denmark.

We also telegraphed our thanks to the British Legion of Esbjerg which had proved himself not only a worthy representative of the British Empire, but had become almost a comrade.

Little need be said of the return voyage across the North Sea except that, for the first time, there was a reduced attendance at the dining table.

London again! No place like London! After all, it was good to hear around us our mother tongue, even if spoken with a different accent! Our first morning was spent at leisure, but in the afternoon we were to have the honour of a reception by the King and Queen, and Lord Bledisloe, Baron Peisco. If we had felt inexpressible, it would have been excusable, but how little need for any such feeling. The object lesson we would have been put at ease by the kindliness of the King, the gracious-ness of the Queen. Her Majesty had been indisposed for some days, and the Royal party had only returned less than one hour before from Sandringham, nevertheless she insisted on meeting the Canadian farmers party, her dress ornamented by a maple leaf brooch which had been presented to her twenty-seven years ago when she visited Canada as the Duchess of York. Her Majesty was thoroughly interested in the Danish tour and asked many questions about it. This was the crowning honour in a tour already rich in privileges accorded.

Our last engagement brought us to a sphere in which we were the experts. This was our visit to our friends, Sir Harold, the Minister of Lake's Training Farm for Overseas Settlement. Sir Harold had been generous in his appreciation of what was being done for Canada, and he, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Matthew XXVIII 20.

Explanations and Comments

The First Foreign Missionaries Chosen and Ordained, verses 1-3. In the flourishing Christian church at Antioch there were numerous prophets and teachers, men of special inspiration. Among these was the energetic and lovable Barnabas of Cyprus. Others included Simeon the Black doubtless an African; Lucius of Cyrene (the province in North Africa lying next to Egypt), who probably was the founder of the Cyrenian evangelists who had established this church at Antioch (Acts 11:20); Manaen—another form of the Hebrew Menahem (2 Kings 15:14) — who was the "foster-brother" of Herod the Tetrarch (Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great); and was seemingly a person of some social importance; and, finally, Paul of Tarsus. Apparently the historical events Paul's place, at the end of the list, to be emphatic just as was Barnabas at the beginning of the roll. These five leaders of the Antiochan church were evidently Grecian Jews.

"We know nothing of Symeon and Lucius and Manaen, and yet it is good to have their names, for they remind us of the host of faithful witnesses of the truth who stood back of the great Christian movement, and encouraged its leaders to carry on. George Eliot, in one of her fine tales, speaks of the faithful who are not famous. What should we do without them? All great movements demand great leaders. Without Paul and Peter and Barnabas the early Church would have been as an undisciplined army without officers, or as a rope of sand; but Nigor and Lucius and Manaen were needed as truly as Barnabas and Paul."—The New Outlook.

While the church at Antioch, under the leadership of these five men, was carrying on its services of worship, prayer and fasting, an advance movement was initiated under the direction of God. It is probable that the prayer of the church was "awaiting upon God for special guidance on a matter already occupying their thought: this matter was surely the question of a forward movement into the Roman Empire." Paul and Barnabas, indeed, may have been thinking of this question when they had brought with them from Jerusalem John Mark (Acts 12:25).

Extending Air Service Westward

Contracts As Far As Winnipeg Planned For Next Year

A gradual extension of the air mail services now successfully operating in the east to the west is contemplated by the Post Office Department.

Flyers have started out to determine the best route for a service between Montreal and Winnipeg and whether aerodromes or hydroplanes are the best adapted to the service.

Contracts as far as Winnipeg are planned for next year and the department has in view later an extension of this service across the prairies although to that end no definite steps will be taken for a while.

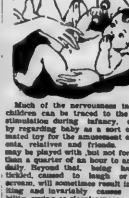
Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby "Babies Have Nerves"

By RUTH BRITTAIN



Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting and invariably will cause irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Frightening crying fast sleepers from this time on was really to be avoided by treating baby with more consideration. But when baby just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, chills, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 30 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

CONSERVATIVES WIN IN B. C. BY LARGE MAJORITY

Vancouver The Liberal Government which has held power in British Columbia for the past twelve years, and which has been led by Premier J. D. MacLean for the past year, was defeated in the provincial elections, and the Conservative party, under the leadership of Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, was elected to power.

The Premier and at least two of his ministers were defeated. Dr Tolmie was elected in Saanich.

Premier MacLean was defeated in Victoria, Hon. Dugald Donaghy, minister of finance, in Vancouver, Hon. E. D Barrow, minister of agriculture in Chilliwack.

Liberals have been elected in New Westminster, Cranbrook, and Nanaimo.

Conservatives have been returned in Vancouver six, Victoria four, Saanich, Burnaby, South Vancouver, North Okanagan, Chilliwack, Cowichan-Newcastle, Comox and The Islands.

The Liberals gained Cranbrook from the Conservatives, while the Conservatives have gained all six Vancouver seats, five from Liberals and one from Provincial party, Chilliwack from Liberals; Comox from Independents; Burnaby from Labor, South Vancouver from Labor

Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith was defeated by A. M. Whitely, in Fairview.

Of the 48 seats contested in the provincial election of 1924, in the Legislature, the Liberals carried but the last contest; the Conservatives, 17, Labor 3, Provincials, 3; independents, 1, and Independent Liberals, 3

Receives New Appointment

Dr. Delury Of Saskatchewan University Will Go To Manitoba

Winnipeg Dr. A. P. Delury, of the University of Saskatchewan, will succeed Dr. R. C. Wallace as commissioner of the Manitoba department of geology and mineralogy at the University of Manitoba. The appointment was announced by the government.

Prof. Delury expects to make the necessary arrangements with the University of Saskatchewan to make it possible to take up his work here September 1 when Dr. R. C. Wallace leaves to take over the position of president of the University of Alberta.

Dr. Delury is well known in Winnipeg and Manitoba. He was for many years the right hand man of Dr Wallace in the department of geology and mineralogy at the University of Manitoba, in that capacity he rendered valuable service to the province. One of his latest committations was a voluminous report which he prepared two or three years ago for the industrial development board.

It is only a year ago since he left to organize the department of geology at the University of Saskatchewan as professor in charge of that department.

Dr. Delury is a graduate of the University of Toronto and of the University of Minnesota, and was in charge of the department of geology in the University of Idaho before he came to Manitoba in 1913.

Russia Buys Canadian Wheat

Further Sales Of Canadian Wheat To Russia Are Announced

Winnipeg Further sales of Canadian wheat to Russia were announced at the grain exchange here. That country has taken another 1,500,000 bushels, bringing her total purchases during the past fortnight to 9,000,000 bushels.

A good portion of the grain was No. 3 Northern Manitoba. Italy is credited with the purchase of one million bushels of Durum wheat recently, mostly from the local market.

Demand from other European countries remains indifferent partly because of increased native supplies and partly on account of prospects for large crops on the North American continent this year.

Canadian Militia Promotions

A Number Of Transfers and Promotions are Announced

Ottawa The rank of "Brigadier" recently introduced in the British Army has been adopted in the Canadian Militia, with effect from July 1. The temporary rank of "brigadier" is in substitution for the temporary rank of colonel commandant and colonel-on-the-staff.

Orders promulgated from defence headquarters announce a number of important promotions in the Canadian Militia. Among them are the following:

Major E. H. Cope has been promoted to the rank of lieut.-colonel and to command the 2nd regiment of the Alberta Mounted Rifles with regimental headquarters at Pincher Creek Alta., vice lieutenant-colonel J. H. Jackson, transferred to the reserve of officers

Major W. W. Henderson has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel and to command the 2nd regiment of the Alberta Mounted Rifles with regimental headquarters at Pincher Creek Alta., vice lieutenant-colonel J. H. Jackson, transferred to the reserve of officers

May Establish Trade Treaty With Germany

Flour Would Lead Canada's Export List, Says N. B. Palmer

St. John, N.B. Canada export trade with Germany will be greatly increased by favourable trade agreements which the Dominion is now endeavoring to establish with that country, says N. B. Palmer, of Calgary, newly appointed assistant Canadian Trade Commissioner to Hamburg, who was here in connection with a tour of the Maritime provinces with a view to developing Maritime export trade with Germany.

In speaking of Canada's trade conditions with Germany, Mr. Palmer stated that at the present time Canada is doing a considerable trade as a result of existing agreements which particularly affected the export of flour as well as other commodities. Should the trade treaties being advanced by the Canadian Government when instructed to do so by His Majesty's government in Great Britain, the minister said.

Receive Royal Pictures For National Gallery

Gift Of King George Reprives Portraits Painted By Philip

Ottawa—Pictures of King George, Queen Mary, Prince of Wales, King Edward and Queen Alexandra, were received by Eric Brown, director of the National Art Gallery, on behalf of the Canadian Government. These portraits are the gift of King George and will replace the pictures of these distinguished members of the royal family which were in the old parliament buildings but were destroyed when the buildings were burned in 1916.

Considering Air Insurance

Canadian Companies Believe People Will Want This Protection

Ottawa Canadian insurance companies are considering special forms of insurance for civilians interesting themselves in aviation, it is learned. Recently a conference of actuaries and insurance medical authorities is said to have discussed the matter, realizing that soon the man who drives his own plane will be in the same category as the man who drives his own car. Some of the demand has materialized.

Will Want Tunnels

Quebec—Fifty members of the National Chamber of Commerce, of Great Britain, headed by Commissioner James Stanworth, president of the Chamber, arrived here and immediately proceeded to Montreal by train. The party will tour Canada, staying in Montreal two days before going to Ottawa.

Federal Government To Raise Pigeons

Ottawa.—The Dominion Government is going in for pigeon-breeding. The object is not, however, to increase the food supply of the country. It is to breed mail train pigeons for purposes of communication. The department of national defence is to have charge of the work.

Premier-Elect For B.C.

Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, leader of the Conservative Party in British Columbia.

Clark's Status Discussed

Duties Of British High Commissioner In Canada Debated In House

London.—The British Government's newly appointed high commissioner in Canada, Sir William Clark, who is sailing for Ottawa shortly, and the duties of the newly created position were discussed in the House of Commons when P. J. Hannon, Conservative, Moncton, asked whether the High Commissioner would take precedence over the representative of all foreign powers at Ottawa, and if he is submitting proposals respecting British commercial interests to the Government of Canada. he would have full diplomatic support of his Majesty's government in Britain.

Right Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, Dominion Secretary, in replying reminded the questioner of the similar case of the Dominion high commissioners in Britain, who rank immediately after cabinet ministers, but not before foreign ambassadors.

He was of course contemplated that the high commissioner of Great Britain, in Canada, would be authorized to make representations on commercial questions to the Canadian government when instructed to do so by His Majesty's government in Great Britain, the minister said.

Would Export Alberta Gas

Plan To Pipe Waste Gas To Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Montana

Lethbridge, Alta. Alberta's problem of waste gas seems closer to solution and it appears to be in the piping of the surplus gas to Saskatchewan and Manitoba cities, and the cities of Montana.

In an interview here, Hon. Charles Stewart minister of the interior, gave it as his opinion the shipping of gas 800 miles to Winnipeg, serving intermediate cities including Moose Jaw and Regina, was feasible.

Again expectations of gas from the Regers' field, southeast of this city, is now possible under Federal permit. The Range Oil and Gas Company has spudded in another well on the Regers' dome just south and east of the 60,000,000 foot producer, and the plans of this company and the Blackfoot Oil Company of Great Falls, who will drill the wells, are to have gas flowing though their pipe line into Montana by winter. A pipe line will be built to the Montana boundary, it is announced, either to link up with the present pipe line to Great Falls or as a separate line into that city.

Feeling Against Nobile

Leader Of Italia Expedition Under Criticism In Norway

Oslo, Norway Feeling against General Umberto Nobile, leader of the Italia expedition, is making itself felt in Oslo.

The newspaper Aftenposten has opened a picture fire of the general from a show case during the day as threats had been made to destroy it. Several Danish explorers have also exposed Fridtjof Hansen as chairman of a court of honor to investigate Nobile's leadership of the expedition. Hansen declined this but said that he thought there were several events in Nobile's expedition that need closer investigation.

No Claims Paid This Year

Government Does Not Intend To Pay Reparations Now

Ottawa, Ont.—Although the War Reparations Commissioner has made his report which was made public last session, the government does not intend to pay the claims for a year. Part of the money for this purpose is included in the Hon. James A. Robb's surplus. There was much disappointment among the big claimants at the size of their awards. These will be paid by the Government but the 2,000 small claimants will have to be satisfied with what Reparations Commissioner I. Red found due them.

Has New Financial Plan

Victoria, B.C.—Reconstruction of the financial structure of the Canadian National Railways, in a plan to be submitted to the Government at the next session, was intimated by Sir Henry Thornton in an address here to the Kiwanis Club.

Norwegian Journalists Visiting Canada

Party of representative Norwegian journalists now touring Canada, under arrangements made by the Canadian Pacific's Department of Colonization and Development—visiting the various Norse settlements in the Dominion and gaining first-hand impressions as to immigration prospects.

ASSASSIN OF GEN. OBREGON IS IDENTIFIED

Mexico City — Police headquarters sent out the announcement that the assassin of General Obregon had been identified as Jose de Leon Toral an art student, aged 22, a native of Leon, in the State of Jalisco.

He is said to have lived at Candelaja, but to have come to Mexico City six months ago seeking work. Police said they found upon him a picture of the Catholic priest, Miguel Augustin Pro, whom he was executed in connection with the attempt to assassinate Obregon with bombs last November.

It was said that de Leon Toral refused to admit accomplices and insisted throughout his grilling that he was responsible.

Federal district police arrested and held for investigation Emilio Casedo, proprietor of the restaurant where Obregon was killed at San Angel, and all twelve employees of the place.

Government ownership of despatches was still in force.

El Universal Grafico says that the mother and wife of the assassin have been arrested and are being held.

In a signed statement, President Plutarco Elias Calles declared that the assassination of General Obregon had assailed the motive of his crime was religious fervor.

There were innumerable rum-rs in the capital of uprisings and other happenings, but all proved to be untrue. Intense excitement prevailed everywhere, however, and several Dominion newspapers have been suppressed. Fridtjof Hansen as chairman of a court of honor to investigate Nobile's leadership of the expedition. Hansen declined this but said that he thought there were several events in Nobile's expedition that need closer investigation.

Libel Action Settled

Action Was Brought By Cardinal Hayes Against London News-paper

London.—Settlement of a libel action brought by Cardinal Hayes, of New York, against the Sunday Express was announced in the King's Bench division.

Counsel stated that a paragraph appearing in the newspaper had said that the cardinal was a man who excused murder of Kevin O'Higgins, Irish Free State minister of justice, on the ground that he was "an Englishireling."

Counsel said that the defendants never meant or supported for one moment that the statement, which had been made by a contributor, could be justified and promptly withdrew the honorable thing by apologizing for having published it.

Will Succeed Dr. Wallace

Winnipeg— Dr. J. S. Delury, of Saskatoon, will succeed Dr. R. C. Wallace, as commissioner of Mines of Manitoba, and head of the geology and mineralogy at the University of Manitoba. Dr. Delury expects to take over his duties when Prof. Wallace leaves to take the position of Professor of Mines at the Alberta University.

THE RECORD

H. Oxley, Editor and Publisher

FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1928

Three men dashed into the river at the popular bathing place on the Strathcona on Sunday and resumed a swim from drowning. It was about the most fortunate for the near victim that his distress was observed and that his rescuers were willing to spoil their clothing and risk taking a cold, or worse still, pneumonia, before being able to change into dry duds. It is curious that humans will take all kinds of chances to save the life of another under any conditions or circumstances except when motoring on the open road. That is a horse of another color. There are matters of life and death involved, but people who will jeopardize their own safety, that of their passengers, and of other motorists they meet, in their crazy attempts to gain a few seconds, seconds they don't or a rule know what to do with after gaining them at such great risk; there are many a tale who will take similar risks to save a life, or demonstrate their superiority in driving; and there are those who are intoxicated with the rapture of speed and power under their control, who calmly usurp that speed and power as being their own personal property and parade the nation to encourage their otherwise hidden brutal natures, who, judging by their actions most be mentally hollowing to all and sundry "if you don't want to get hurt, get out of my way!" And the irritating part is that the same man, the better man, has to get out of his way, if he has time, and one.

Showing Canada her Opportunity in World Trade

Another Striking Advertisement by the Trade and Commerce Department, Ottawa

The various striking advertisements of the Trade and Commerce Department at Ottawa which have appeared in Canadian newspapers from time to time are calculated to create an "export trade consciousness" throughout the Dominion.

It was decided last year by the Honorable James Malcolm, Minister of the Department in question, that Canadians should become more intimately acquainted with business opportunities outside their own country. In order to woo mankind the right way, it was considered the route. For instance, in the last fiscal year, ended March 31st, the Dominion's total exports were valued at more than a billion and a quarter dollars, or to be exact $1,250,403,397. This represents an export trade of more than $130 for every man, woman and child in Canada. At the beginning of the present century Canada's export trade amounted to less than three hundred dollars.

Another method of gauging Canada's export trade is found in the fact that last year the country's exports of manufactured products alone amounted to about the same as her total production of manufactured products in 1900. In other words, Canada is exporting as much in manufactured articles to-day as the total output of every factory in the Dominion twenty-eight years ago. These few figures may give readers some comprehension of the tremendous increase in export business.

Most public men and business men, no matter what their political bent be, agree that export trade is possibly the most valuable asset the Dominion can have. Canada's natural resources are enormous and so rich that it would be impossible for Canadians to remain idle. Take wheat for example, it is massively impossible for 10,000,000 people to consume 625,000,000 bushels of wheat annually. Canada's future prosperity therefore is bound up in seeking markets abroad for her surplus production.

When Canadian business men seek to sell their products in other lands, they may not hope to control prices. They have to meet competition from thousands of other business men and producers living in other countries. They are faced with fierce world competition in manufactured goods and on export business. To maintain this trade of a billion and a quarter dollars a year and to increase it, Canadians must become acquainted with every legitimate method known to business. They must learn how to push their goods in the manner desired by the foreign buyer, they must learn how to keep contracts, they must learn how to study a trade by the most economical and direct routes. And perhaps most important of all Canadian goods must always be kept up to the standard of the sample submitted.

The Department of Trade and Commerce, at Ottawa, in doing everything in its power to further that export trade "here are a Commercial Intelligence Service established and trained trade commissioners sent to the world's chief centres. In fact, Canada had the first trade commissioners abroad, thus creating a system which has been widely copied. Besides the commissioners, 21 trained trade commissioners in foreign countries and direct agents, and 200 foreign most important of all Canadian goods must always be kept up to the standard of the sample submitted.

JOINING THE WHEAT POOL IS GOOD BUSINESS

A Toronto Business Man, Owner of Alberta Farm Land, Says He Would Not Think of Staying Out of the Alberta Wheat Pool.

J. T. Todd, general manager of the J. T. Todd Lumber Company, Toronto, Ontario, is the owner of a large tract of land in the Crowfoot district in Alberta. He is a staunch member of the Alberta Wheat Pool. In fact, so interested is Mr. Todd in the Pool's development that he is endeavoring to persuade non-Pool neighbors to join the organization.

In a recent letter to a neighbor at Crowfoot, Mr. Todd says:

"Dear ——

"I have often wondered if you had joined the Wheat Pool. If you have not, I believe if you will consider this matter seriously you will find it is much to your interest to be a member of the Pool. As you know the Pool is only the farmer in business for himself, and the more members the Pool has the better it is going to be for all of us. It is simply a cold-blooded proposition as far as we are concerned and we, like everyone else in business, want to get as much for our labor and wheat as we can. This is a day of co-operation and not only the farmers are doing this but the large industries, such as automobile and steel, are doing the same. Even in the United States and automobile business are considered to be the keenest in the world and they are only industries this kind which the farmers have patterned out to them during the last few years. Stores are also doing the same.

"I believe if you will consider the matter from your own best interest and the best interests of the community and farmers at large you will decide that YOU CANNOT AFFORD NOT TO BE A POOL MEMBER. I would not think of being out of the Pool myself and I just purchased 320 acres more land this spring, and as you know, 500 acres of that is now broken and will be in crop next year. All of my land is in the Pool, and in fact, if I had ten times as much land as I have it would be handled in no other way than through the Pool.

"I would like to see you and all the other fellows in the Crowfoot district members of the Pool. If enough would come in we could have an elevator at Crowfoot and that is what we want to think. I believe that with the way the movement is growing we will eventually have it."

EDMONTON BOARD OF TRADE VISITS PEACE RIVER

Approximately one hundred members of the Edmonton Board of Trade left on Friday for a week's tour of the Peace River country. Travelling by train, motor car and steamboat the party will see the northland at its best as far west as Hudson's Hope. Included in those making the trip are Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, Ottawa; F. W. Doherty, president of the Edmonton Board of Trade, Hon. V. W. Smith, Minister of railways and telephones, S. C. Best, American Consul, Edmonton, R. J. Hutchings, Calgary, vice-president of the Canadian Manufacturers association; W. G. Mackern, western freight traffic manager for the C.N.R., George B. Henwood, deputy attorney general for Alberta, and A. Hallett, general superintendent of the Alberta district for the C.P.R.

C.P.R. LAND SALES GREATLY INCREASED

Sales of farm lands in Alberta by the land department of the Canadian Pacific railway during the first six months of 1923 show a remarkable increase over figures for the corresponding period of last year. Total sales in the three prairie provinces for the six months' period are given as follows: 1927, 106,382 acres; 1923, 354,983 acres. Of the latter amount 212,000 acres are in Alberta, 115,000 acres in Saskatchewan and 31,983 acres in Manitoba. South of the Alberta lands included in the above amount lies in the territory northwest of Drumheller and in the irrigation sections traversed by the C.P.R. in the southern part of the province.

MUSIC STUDENTS PASS EXAMINATIONS

We are pleased to congratulate Mrs. Harold Heward (nee Susie Smith) on the excellent showing of her music class at the recent examinations of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. The following students were successful:

Junior Theory—Lawrence Heward, Edmonton.

Junior Technical and Composition—Gladys Hodgins, Fort Saskatchewan.

Elementary—Bessie Allen, Dennis Rye, Partridge Hill.

Introductory — Vereen Aasness, Evelyn Cranston, Fort Saskatchewan, Sarah Friedman, (honors) Fort Saskatchewan, Gladys Oshaldeston, Teddy Oshaldeston, Partridge Hill.

PROVINCIAL HEALTH EXHIBIT ITS ATTRACTED ATTENTION

Among the exhibits which attracted a great many visitors at the Edmonton exhibition were those depicting the services of the Provincial Department of Health. The child welfare clinic proved to be so popular as ever and many children were examined by the nurses in charge. The attendant physicians were Drs. Folinsbee, Leech, Swallow, Adamson, Holmes and Folinsbee-Newell, all of whom gave their services free of charge.

One of the outstanding features of the exhibit was the display of work by the patients of the Provincial Mental hospital at Ponoka and the Provincial Training school at Red Deer. This display, the best of its kind ever shown by these institutions, elicited very generous praise from those who viewed it. Practically all the articles shown were sold and orders which were taken for work will require many months to fill.

The emergency hospital again proved one of the busy spots of the fair grounds and many accidents with minor injuries were attended to by Miss Grant, P.H.N. and her staff of nurses.

[illegible] COMPENSATION BOARD

The appointment of Alex. Ross, former Minister of Public Works in the Alberta government, to the position of chairman of the workmen's compensation board, succeeding John T. Stirling, who recently resigned on account of ill health, has been announced by Premier Brownlee. It is felt that Mr. Ross' administrative experience and familiarity with workmen's compensation legislation will particularly qualify him for the duties of his new position, which he assumed on Monday.

ALBERTA CROP ACREAGE INCREASED

Alberta's crop acreage for 1923 shows a marked increase over that of the previous year according to preliminary figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

While this estimate is subject to revision on the completion of the information secured through cards circulated to public schools, the first estimate of the acreage in various crops is as follows, the final estimate for 1927 being shown in brackets: Wheat, 6,800,100 (6,251,/081); oats, 3,213,600 (2,540,000); barley, 600,000 (400,000); rye, 168,300 (156,547); flaxseed, 12,500 (12,597); potatoes, 21,100 (21,136)

ALBERTA EXHIBITS FOR AMERICAN FAIRS

Exhibits of agricultural products and natural resources from Alberta will again be shown this season at a number of the larger fairs throughout the central states by the publicity branch of the Department of Agriculture. Reports from Canadian government agents indicate that a great deal of interest in Alberta has been shown by farmers throughout the territory visited in this way last year and that immigration to the province has been materially assisted by the favorable impression created by these exhibits.

The fairs at which the Alberta display will appear during August and September include the following: Mississippi Valley Fair and Exposition, Davenport, Iowa; Hawkeye Fair and Exposition, Fort Dodge, Iowa; Blue Earth County Fair, Mankato, Minn.; Freeborn County Fair, Albert Lea, Minn.; Inter-state Fair, Le Crosse, Wis.; Missouri State Fair, Sedalia, Mo.; North Central Kansas Free Fair, Belleville, Kan.; Brown County Tri-county Fair, Horton, Kan.; Kansas Free Fair, Topeka, Kan. and Kansas State Fair, Hutchinson, Kan.

WEDDING

WILTSE—GOSSELIN

A quiet wedding took place at St. Joseph's rectory, Edmonton, Wednesday, July 25, when Yvette Alberta, youngest daughter of Mrs. V. Lissalde and the late Mr. V. Gosselin, Athabasca, Alberta, became the bride of Mr. John Elgin Wiltse, second son of Mrs. J. Wiltse and the late Mr. Wiltse, Edmonton. The Rev. Father Nolligan officiated.

Miss Adele Reid was bridesmaid and Mr. Phil Wiltse acted as best man.

After the ceremony a buffet breakfast was served at the home of the groom's mother, at which relatives and intimate friends attended to the bride and groom their best wishes. The bestows was assisted by Mrs. R. Robinson, Mrs. J. T. Lalonde and Miss I. Wiltse.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiltse will make their home in Edmonton.

Industrial Development In Canada

Possibilities in the future development of industries in Canada, and the utilization of the natural resources of the Dominion as the essential raw materials in such development, and the manner in which all the people can assist in such development and expansion of manufacturing in Canada formed the subject matter of a recent address by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, before the Young Men's Section of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, which is worthy of the most serious consideration, and especially so because it is so simple, so thoroughly sound, and so applicable to all parts of the country.

Mr. Stewart did not widen a future Canada with a limited number of great manufacturing centres, with many large plants, located in certain sections of the country, with gigantic outputs supplying the home market and providing a large export trade, and largely controlled by a few corporations or wealthy individuals. Undoubtedly Canada has already created a number of such large industries and will continue to do so as the population and wealth of the Dominion grows. The idea submitted by Mr. Stewart for serious consideration was along quite another line

Mr. Stewart sees in Canada, east, central and west, in the north as well as in the southern portions, a country of vast resources and of varied character. Many of these natural resources of a similar nature are to be found in widely separated sections, and he feels their development should be general and that effort should be lodged at many points rather than attempted to supply the requirements of the people from one or two places located far away from the mass of consumers.

In other words, Mr. Stewart advocates study of a plan which contemplates the establishment of industries in numerous communities to utilize these natural resources which may be found adjacent to such communities and thus supply the local and regional demand instead of transporting such goods long distances from other countries or far distant parts of Canada. Such a plan, amply carried out, would not only result in huge savings in the aggregate to the public, but would lead to the development for use of resources now lying dormant, would build up communities of small industrial towns, provide more employment, and materially assist in solving the problem of unemployment which frequently becomes acute in certain parts of the Dominion by reason of the seasonal nature of the occupations of a vast majority of the people.

In presenting his thought on this subject, Mr. Stewart expressed the opinion that besides His boards of trade should take up the close study of the raw materials of their districts, and of the markets for manufactured commodities. Such local studies would, he believed, reveal many possibilities for starting new industries at appropriate points, and that the importation and movements of manufactured commodities had led to the conclusion, he said, that many of the articles could be made at home, and this also applied to goods transported from other parts of Canada in many cases unnecessarily, because the same thing could be made on the ground. The possibilities of manufacturing locally had been brought home to many towns and cities largely through the initiative of enterprising public bodies like the board of trade, assisted by the facts on file in the department at Ottawa. Raw material, as far as possible, should, he contended, be prevented from leaving Canada so that the country's resources to the greatest extent might be utilized for those living therein.

In all such endeavors, boards of trade everywhere, Mr. Stewart stated, would have the assistance of the government in a whole-hearted way. His department was always willing to co-operate with any public body in placing at the disposal of interested persons local information relative to the country's natural resources. Experts of the department would be available always, and would be sent to any localities where their services would be of assistance.

The policy suggested by Mr. Stewart should result in a particularly strong appeal to boards of trade throughout the three prairie provinces, which, up to the present time, have been so largely dependent upon the other provinces and foreign markets for the manufactured goods which our people consume in such large quantities, and for which we have been obliged to pay high prices because of the enormous distances those goods have had to be transported from the point of manufacture.

That Mr. Stewart's idea is sound, is borne out by the experience of many towns and many industries. Some of the most flourishing industrial towns and cities secured their start through the establishment of a comparatively small local industry making some raw material found in the locality, and then they is filled with instances where these small local industries have, under careful but progressive management, grown into what are now classified as among the great industries of the country. Hundreds of such instances, both in Canada and the United States, could be given.

Special Cameras For South Polar Flight

One Will Automatically Develop and Deliver Strips Of Film

Photography is to play an important part in the South Polar flight to be made by Commander Byrd. Two special cameras are being constructed, one to take pictures at the rear as an aid in navigation, and the other to record data ahead of the flight.

While the flight is in progress the two cameras will automatically develop and deliver strips of film. The second camera will be attached to the bottom of the plane and will follow the path to the Pole, recording from a height of 3 000 feet a strip of the Polar plateau eight miles in width.

COMPLETELY RUN DOWN

Symptoms That the Blood Is Thin Should Not Be Neglected

Weak, run-down, lacking strength, energy and ambition, nervous, short of breath, poor appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms named by a physician when asked what ails those who have benefitted by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These tonic pills correct the condition described and if you have any of these symptoms you should give these pills a trial. Their great success in curing this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. James A. Tibbetts, Halifax, N.S., who says: "I was completely run down in health. My blood was thin and watery, and my nerves so bad that I did not sleep well at night. My appetite was poor, and the exertion left me weak and trembling. When I went out I could have to lie down as soon as I got back home. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before they were helping me and by the time I had taken the fifth box I felt like a new woman, and have enjoyed good health ever since. For this reason I can highly recommend the pills to anyone run-down or troubled with their blood."

Not only do Dr. Williams' Pink Pills help the nerves when run-down in health to enrich and restore the blood, and in the blood support the whole body, new life is given to the entire system. Better colour, steady nerves, improved appetite, increased vigor—all these can be yours by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Begin them today. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail post paid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Anything But Peaceful

Doves Are Very Quarrelsome, Says Professor Of Zoology

The dove, for centuries the olive branch and other emblems of peace, is found to lead a very quarrelsome family life. There may be some billing and cooing in public, but in privacy the dove mates quarrel.

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, professor of zoology, at the University of Kentucky, makes the five facts known. It is his opinion that the crow and blackjay are the most intelligent birds of the land; that the spotted towhee and the catbird are the "best all-round friends of man." —Capper's Weekly.

It Testifies For Itself. — Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil needs no testimonial. Its powers other than itself. Whoever tries it for coughs or colds, for cuts or contusions, for sprains or burns, for pains in the limbs or body, will honor that remedy. Medicine could not have no guarantee. This shows why this Oil is in general use.

Pool To Pay Dividends

Saskatchewan Wheat Pool Members To Benefit Through Dividends On Pool Elevator System

Members of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool will receive approximately $800,000 in September as a result of the six per cent dividend that the Pool is paying on the money invested in the Pool elevator system. The principal for this system has been obtained from members by deducting two cents per bushel from all cheques paid to them.

The Pool members will also receive a dividend of 5 per cent on the reserve fund. C. W. King, manager of the Pool here, was unable to say what amount this would involve.

It was stated recently by A. J. McPhail, president of the Wheat Pool, that as soon as the Pool re-united, shipping facilities at every point the extra cents per bushel deducted would be returned to members and that the ownership of the system would be fresh, by the "revolving fund system" which means that two cents per bushel would still be deducted from annual payments to members, but a corresponding amount would be returned each year. Thus members of the Pool were saving an amount annually, which in many cases was as high as $200.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

ORANGE SHORTCAKE

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
4 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons shortening
½ to ¾ cup of milk.

Sift the dry materials until well blended. Rub in the shortening using a fork. Cut in just enough milk to make a soft dough. Put in greased cake pan, press with back of hand to shape of pan, and bake twelve to fifteen minutes in hot oven.

Filling

6 oranges
½ cup sugar.

Wash oranges, remove the skin, cutting off all white membrane. Cut the oranges in half and cut in cubes of uniform size. Sprinkle with sugar, then spread between the prepared crusts. Serve with a sauce made with the juice of two oranges and three fourths cup sugar.

MEDIUM CREAM SAUCE FOR VEGETABLES

2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons flour.
1 cup milk.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Few grains pepper.

Put butter in saucepan, stir until melted; add flour mixed with seasoning. Stir until thoroughly blended. Pour on milk, one-third at a time, while stirring. Bring to the boiling point. A double boiler is preferable in order to prevent burning. Use 1 cup cream sauce to 1 cup cooked vegetable.

Shortage of Russian Wheat Has Tendency To Steady Markets, But Lower Prices Predicted

Cessation of wheat crop and storage wheat is such that lower world wheat prices are promised, and lower bread costs should cheapen the loaf.

If it were not for the Russian situation, general wheat prices, which are under last year's figures, would be down still more. Russia was the great wheat power of the world for export, and farmers always hinged on her crop.

But the Soviet experiment means the Russian peasant to grow what he wants for himself only, because all surplus is taken by the government for general use. There will be a tremendous wheat shortage in Europe, caused by the Russian devastation in growing, and Canada is the only country that will ship in great volumes to Europe, local grain brokers say.

It will take years for Russia to get to the point where she can supply wheat as of old, and that won't be possible until she alters her present system and gets a superior product and you can't use it every day. But it's an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved — or colic pains or other suffering. Never be without it. The Manufacture Of Ice Cream

Now Becoming a Very Important Adjunct Of the Dairy Business

A better knowledge of the food value of ice cream has given this dessert a place in the regular diet of many people. With the growth of the ice cream business there has been a steady improvement in the quality, demanding improved machinery and a better knowledge in the operation of the ice cream plants.

The making of ice cream is recognized as an important adjunct of the dairying industry, and as such, the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner has had prepared a bulletin on its manufacture. Mr. A. H. White the author, has reviewed the opinions and practices of many of the leading makers and has incorporated these as a safe guide for the makers of this ice cream. Ice cream of the present day to something more than frozen sweetened cream. In addition to the fats and solids of milk, ice cream contains, gelatin, and such stabilizers and fillers as vegetable gums, starch and egg yolk powder and other wholesome products that have been found to improve the quality and palatability of ice cream. Various flavoring materials are used, and nuts and fruits are common ingredients.

Cars For Canadian Wheat

Railways Will Place All Available Cars At Points Where Required

Railway cars for the movement of this year's Canadian wheat crop are already being assembled in Western Canada, and ten per cent. more cars are to be placed at strategic points throughout Alberta than last year.

Notwithstanding the effect of the Canadian Wheat Pools in ensuring delivery of grain throughout the year, there still remains a vast amount to be moved each season immediately following harvest. The railways anticipate this rush by placing all available cars at points where they will be required before the actual movement begins.

Based on the present outlook the transportation companies are preparing to handle 360,000,000 bushels of export wheat alone. Besides the domestic requirements of Canada, the crop of other adverse factors would either hold present figures up or might better them. On the whole, lower prices are looked for

Canadian Farmers Tour Canada

Will Visit Western Provinces To Study Farming Conditions

A special train load of farmers from the State of Kansas will tour British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba in August. In addition to viewing the mountain scenery of the coast province they will look into the agricultural possibilities of Western Canada, where many former residents of Kansas and other grain states are now farming. Cheap lands and the favorable marketing conditions established in Canada are the attractions which have brought most of them northward.

Special Committee Has Prepared Tentative Classification and Prize List for World's Grain Exhibition

For the purpose of laying out a prize list for the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, to be held in Regina, in 1926, a tentative classification has been prepared by a special committee nominated by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture.

Following its appointment this committee was appointed as a result of the conference held two months ago between members of the World's Grain Exhibition Committee and the federal department of agriculture, where co-operation of the department was promised to the proposed exhibition

This committee has prepared six classes of wheat with $100.00 in prizes; two classes of oats with $30.-000 prizes; five classes of barley with $15,000 prizes; seven classes of field peas with $3,000 prizes; two classes of field beans with $1,000 prizes; two classes of flax, $1,000, one class of rye, $3,000, one class of flax, $2,000, three classes of buckwheat, $3,000; four classes of corn, $30,000; one class of rice, $2,-000; two classes of millet, $2,000; one class of alfalfa, $3,000; one class of red clover, $1,000, one class of mixed, $1,000; one class each in sweet clover, timothy, brome grass, mangels and turnips, $500 each.

In the wheat classes the varieties proposed are hard red spring, white spring, hard red winter, soft red winter, white winter and durum. A special class is proposed for the best bushel and millers' exhibit. In the oats class, the varieties suggested are medium or late oats and early oats. In the barley class, the proposed sections are: six rowed, bulled, brewals medium to small, brewals long; two rowed, bulled, brewers' type and Scandi or Thorpe type; bull-less as well as a special section for the best milling variety

The flax class is proposed with large white or yellow and small white or yellow varieties. The buckwheat class is proposed for black, silver bulled and rough or tan. In the corn section, the varieties proposed are white dent, other colored dent; variety white flint and any other colored flint variety. The millets class includes common and Siberian.

Farmers' Banking Tour

It was a pleasure to see the fine type of young men who were on this farm's operations, keen, happy fellows who only too evidently were anxious to "make good" in Canada. The progress they had made was good, so much so that one of our party declared that the package he had received that day by former city workers would put in shame some so-called experienced ploughmen. Another declared that he would willingly change, at current wages, men who proved capable as the young fellows he had seen that day. And still another took off his coat and gave the young men an object lesson in the swinging of an axe. Afterwards we were delightened by Mr. H. Bettiron, Under-Secretary to the Ministry of Labour, who asked us for our frank criticisms. Truth to tell, from our day's observations, there was little but unstinted praise. Whether we were glad to recognise and commend an empire-builder when we saw him in his stint.

An amusing but useful device was a number of rubber udders filled with water. These are used in lieu of the actual teaching milking. An historic feature of the Weeting Hall exhibition was the fact that it had actually be built by the son-in law of William the Conqueror.

Back in London, after having luncheon on the train as guests of the Ministry of Labor, were succeeded yet another high privilege. An interview at 10 Downing Street, by the Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin. Dignified, plain, simple, nothing could be more expressive of the British character than the unpretentious house which Great Britain allots to the man who is virtually the first house, so with Mr Baldwin. The reception given to us by the Prime Minister and Mrs. Baldwin was distinct and sincere. We might have been visiting the home of an old friend. And it was as a friend that Mr. Baldwin spoke to us. Short and straight out he told us of Britain's unemployment difficulty, appealed to us as fellow-citizens of the Empire to help as far as we could in the solution of the great problem to its mutual advantage of Great Britain and Canada. That we had investigated the Brandon experiment and had found it all was gratifying to him. He acknowledged it, asking us not to be disappointed because the men had been unemployed for a long by long and serious employment had been their misfortune, not their fault. They were men in a loyal mood, in their heart. All they needed after their training was a little encouragement. He hoped we would do so far as we could, that the encouragement was the keynote of our visit. Such, at least, struck us.

Who of us would have dreamed, when starting on our tour that, before we went back, we should enter the cockpit of a 'plane, 10 Downing Street, the Inner Council Chamber of the British Government, where so many momentous decisions have been made, affecting the fate of the Empire, but the world itself, that in that room we should be taken into the confidence of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, that he would ask our guests to help in favor of a great movement, and that we should be able to help, if we wished, in a great Empire purpose!

We had still another appointment before that day's programme was closed. The Imperial Institute had invited us to dinner, where we were to meet the representatives of the woolen industry. Under the chairmanship of Mr. Frederic A. Ackroyd, a large woolen manufacturer of Bradford, the dinner was held. We gathered in by Mr. Ackroyd, was followed by addresses from Lord Bledisloe, former governor general of New Zealand which country is one of the great instruments of the British woollen trade. The challenging remarks of our hosts were met with able defence by Mr. Arbell, of Canada's premier agricultural province where to meet the representatives of the woollen industry of the world. Mr. Ackroyd, in the markets of the United States. The dinner added new and stimulating to a delightful evening. Afterwards we were shown over a section of the Imperial Institute by Dr. Davidson, F.R.S.

One more day and then "goodbye" to the old country before actually leaving her, we were to receive an unexpected honor an unexpected invitation, and our greatest thrill of the tour, a flight from Croydon across the channel, the largest and busiest in the world.

The segregated honor came from the King, for we were accorded a splendid place from which to view His Majesty's procession to Westminster for the opening of Parliament. It was a fine sight to see the wonderful state coach go by accompanied by all the pomp which marks this ancient ceremonial. Out only regret was that Her Majesty, for the first time in the reign of His Majesty, was unable, through indisposition, to accompany the King to the opening of Parliament. Her Majesty however, was able to appear on the balcony of the Palace with the Duchess of York, and the little Princess Elizabeth.

From Mr. George Robey, the famous comedian, who had received medals for the whole party at the Prince's Theatre, where we saw his revue, "Hits and Pieces," pure to its title, featured in Canada this summer. A wonderful evening concluded with our being invited back face to face to meet Mr. Robey and his company.

The aeroplane so excited on our flight at Croydon was of the "Silver Wing" type, a luxurious 'bus' capable of carrying 14 passengers, the pride of the Imperial Airways Fleet. Strong, graceful, reliable, she had a wing-span of 71 feet and a total length of 45 feet 6 inches. Her triple engines developed 1296 horsepower. She rose gracefully into the air as true in still air, was furnished with basket arm chairs, and a notice boy, buffet and waiter on her keel. That Let it be said at once, that more than one of us had a secret nervousness as which we wouldn't show to our fellow-worlds! We need have left no qualms in the hands of Captain Olley, another Biggs pilot, she rose like a bird. Up up she climbed until she reached 2,000 feet. Below us sweet and long great London, but the land of Lilliput tiny houses, tiny plots, and ribbons for roads. There were the splendid like the bags of a house behind were the towers of the Victoria Palace. Favored by the wind we were travelling 110 miles an hour. It seemed like two, so slowly moved the landscape. Soon all too soon our journey-of-another to the air was ended. In a long graceful glide we slid to earth, landing lightly as Mercury himself. Thus ended one of the finest days in the piece of delightful. It was wonderful, exhilarating experience, in more senses than one, a "high spot" in the tour.

PAUL IN A PAGAN COUNTRY

Golden Text: "I know how to be abased, and I know also how to abound." Philippians 4.12.

Lesson: Acts 14.1-28.

Devotional Reading: Matthew 5.10-16.

Explanations and Comments.

A Cripple Cured At Lystra, verses 8-18. At Listra Paul and Barnabas were face to face with stark paganism. Apparently there were a Jews in the city, and few Romans. There being no synagogue, Paul began to preach outdoors. One day he noticed, on the ground near him, a lifelong cripple who was listening with an unusual intensity. Perceiving that he spoke a faith which was sufficient for the man's healing, suddenly Paul interrupted his address by commanding the man in a loud voice, "Stand upright upon thy feet!" Up sprang the cripple able to walk. Crying out Jesus' words to the man with a palsied arm: "Stretch forth thy hand!" (Matthew 12:13) In each case Christ was immediate cure.

The people of Lystra looked upon it as a great material miracle, but the great miracle was the spiritual power that lay behind it; the cripple's apprehension of the truth, and the spirit of faith of it to his own case; the preacher's knowledge of it, and his discernment of sight in the man his action of faith in the living Lord. That was the wonderful thing."—G. Campbell Morgan.

Miller's Worm Powders are a pleasant medicine for worm-infested children. Buy them through Canada and objection. When directions are followed it will not injure the most delicate child, as there is nothing of an injurious nature in its composition. They will speedily rid a child of worms and restore the health of the child. Numerous whose vitality has become impaired by the attacks of these internal pests.

Admits Of No Argument

Money Spent In Advertising Is Gilt-Edged Investment

The local merchant who fears to spend his money in advertising should never read the life story of John Wanamaker. If he does, he will have to revise his own life completely.

In a recent address made by Arthur Williams, Vice-President of the New York Edison Company, the speaker remarked apropos of John Wanamaker and his first venture into the retail business:

"It is notable, and perhaps prophetic of his success hereafter that of the first day's receipts of $24.67, $24.00 were spent for advertising. 67 cents being retained for convenience in making change the next morning."

There is no argument as to whether or not Ishi was a wise proportioning. There is no argument, however, as to the ultimate business success of the advertising Wanamaker.

MEMORY OF EXPLORER HONORED

Hudson's Bay Company Remembers Captain From Whom It Takes It's Name

The Hudson's Bay Company of the year 1928, has done honour in a very beautiful way to the brave sea captain from whom it takes its name.

On the day in the spring of 1607 master Henry Hudson and his crew met at the Bible Stones of Saint Elsabethgas, in Bishopsgate Street, London, England, to take communion before sailing away to seek the Northwest Passage.

The little church was old then, but it still stands. The company has given it three windows, and is the presence of some of its leading members, the first was unveiled a sort time ago on the anniversary of that communion.

In his little sailing vessel, with a crew of eleven men and a boy, the adventurous captain made two voyages to the Arctic ocean. On the third, in 1608, he sailed for the Dutch East India company. Taking a route southern course he discovered the Hudson river, and the Dutch traders who followed founded New Amsterdam by building a fort at the mouth of the river. In the three centuries that have passed the great city of New York has grown up around that ship.

In 1610 Hudson was again in the service of an English company. This time he took a crew of twenty-three men, and set sail again in search of the Northwest Passage. He discovered Hudson Bay, and spent the winter on its shores. In the spring of 1611 the explorer wished to be on his way to England. The captain, with seven sick men and his son, were put adrift in a small boat. Never word of the frail craft, or its crew, but, ever since, the name of Captain Hudson has rung through Canada and the motherland, as well as the United States. The great company that still bears that name is one of the oldest and most honorable institutions of our country.

The apple crop of Canada for 1928 is estimated at 3,157,800 barrels, an increase over 1927 of about 350,000 barrels.

The heavy rain had washed the roots of the old dead grass into the ground, leaving the tiny young shoots showing, and the air had such a balmy sweetness that Heloise was content just to sit and breathe it and watch the clouds clear and white like lamb's wool, sailing over head in the limitless blue.

She wanted to sing a song of the passing winter, with all its strong h of frost and weight of snow, its freezing rivers and leaden trees, the every budding tree and springing flower and caroling bird she was singing it, too. She remembered a song Mrs. Ill. John used to sing, which she said was an old-fashioned thing, but she always spoute a faith which was sufficient for the man's healing. Suddenly Paul interrupted his address by commanding the man in a loud voice, "Stand upright upon thy feet!" Up sprang the cripple able to walk. Crying out Jesus' words to the man with a palsied arm: "Stretch forth thy hand!" (Matthew 12:13) In each case Christ was immediate cure.

"Bless bird, true bird, bird with the golden wing,
Do you bring me a letter or do you bring me a ring?"

Heloise brought out a chair, and sitting on it, nursing her knees, she sang in perfect happiness. She had four dollars in her pocket; a sick baby in the Isolation Hospital; a boy with three pups to whom she had promised food and shelter; a husband who apparently had deserted her, but a relative nearer than Finlay, but she sang a song of hope, and love and spring, looking into the blue sky above her, for in her heart there was the peace which passeth all understanding.

Mrs. McMann, on her way to the store, saw Heimi sitting at the end of the house and heard her singing, and forthwith forgot that she had left an errand with you? Have you come back?"

Heimi quickly rose up to greet her. "There's nothing wrong, Mrs. McMann. I am all right. I'm fine. I'm happy that's all."

But Helmi, where is your child?" Mrs McMann was prepared to show a strong if somewhat belated interest in Heimi's baby.

"She is all right too," Heimi said "She is in the Isolation Hospital with scarlet fever, but is doing well and will be out in a few weeks."

Mrs McMann heard the news with dutiful forebodings.

"Oh, Heimy don't set your heart on her if she has scarlet fever it always leaves something behind it deafness, or blindness, or something."

Heimi resisted an impulse to laugh "Oh, I don't think so," she said "she will be all right. I feel sure she will be well I am not worried."

Heimi's cheerfulness seemed most unfitting. She could not explain it to Mrs McMann there was a greater bar between them now than even their old language.

"Well it's grand to take things as easy as you do, Heimy, I must say. Now when my children were little they had the fever, we all laugh'ed not very bad but I worried Mr. McMann no it was Mr. Heimi I had in mind, for he was always crying all the time, but I couldn't help it. My how I cried He could not understand a mother's grief for her child. No doubt girls are different now I was no conventional. I suppose you and you are glad to get away from the house for a year if you go there I want you to take Cleo, too, and give her a home She is wonderful she is earning at least $1 a week she has been to me And my horse. Babe, that I left with the Hammers would be handy for you to drive to town. I would feel better if I knew you were there, see Heimi and I hope you will go it does not seem sensible to keep a horse for a year if you go there I forgot to put it down in his note He won't forget no more he was struck with lightning."

"Struck with lightning"

"He was found lying on his back, stone dead, and his chimney all knocked down, and his eyes wide open."

Heimi shuddered she knew just how the eyes looked.

"If I gave me such a turn when I heard it, and I don't been an evil way. My stomach's up on me again, and I'm going to go home and see a doctor. I can't trust any of the doctors here they haven't got the time. I'll go back to the States. All my trouble is inward, Heimi, and I believe these doctors here never understand it."

"I am sorry," said Heimi, "I wish I could help you."

In her new found happiness Heimi could not feel sad. Helmi was in her pitiful little striving for praise and applause. Her morbid life, her little pretensions were pathetic to her dull gray outlook, made Heimi's heart now with pity

"You're a good girl, Heimy, as many's the time I've told you or haven't done and I've a good mind to take you back, no matter what anyone says."

Heimi looked up startled at the visitor's arm. "Where is good she Him?" she asked quickly "Is he here?" Is he going to write to me?"

"Oh, didn't you hear" He had an accident in the mine and had to go He is still in the hospital, it grieves me to say. They say he'll never be able to night-watch again. You know I miss him, too, and wish next year I hadn't been quite so angry with him. Well, won't you stay, Heimy?"

"No, I am going to the City," said Heimi, "but I want you to look after and the Finlays for me There's plenty of scraps from your table, and they can sleep in my house. I'll ask Bill Larson to shut the door at night and open it in the morning, and when Lili is better I will come back. You will my Lili, Mrs. McMann; she can smile now and play with her hands."

Mrs. McMann sighed. "I am always sorry when I see a girl baby life is so hard for us women."

Heimi got another letter at the post-office, a letter from Arthur Warner enclosing another fifteen dollar cheque. He was over in France now, on active service, and the letter was written as he sat waiting for the signal to go over the top in an attempt to capture a German position.

STOPPING TOOTHACHE

You have been fortunate indeed if you have never experienced that worst of all dental pains the "jumping toothache."

But perhaps you have listened sympathetically to your little chap as he tried to tell you between sobs how something just seemed to be jumping up and down inside the tooth that pained more and more intensely as he lay with his cheek against the pillow.

Almost instinctively, perhaps, you had him sit up, and he found happily, that it did not hurt nearly so much as when he was lying down.

Now, you thought perhaps it was because he stopped thinking about it so much when sitting up that made the pain more bearable, but why? Why it "jumped" you were not so sure.

Well, no doubt you have had a cut finger with an area of inflammation around the wound, and you noticed that the pain was of a throbbing character, that with each pulse beat there was a sharp little ache so to speak.

Now, the same with the tooth, — with each heart-beat, a new supply of blood is forced into the pulp tissue which being inflamed and already engorged with blood, is subjected to an increased and severe pressure at each beat, and a consequent response on the part of the nerves as they are subjected to the abnormal pressure This, we call pain.

Then with your little chap sitting up, the flow of blood to the head was lessened resulting in a milder rush of blood into the tooth pulp which caused a decreased pressure with lessened pain.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

In Summer When Childhood Ailments Are Most Dangerous

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are safeguarded during the hot months. Ther Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea, the scourge of summer months of little ones every summer, in most cases become less dangerous does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child they will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless even to the new-born babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Thoughtful Sportsman

Grouse season had started, and in the little Highland hotel lounge some sportsmen sat smoking.

"Yes," said one suddenly, everything I shoot I send to the hospital."

"How thoughtful and kind of you," broke in another.

"Yesterday" he continued "I shot the gamekeeper."

Mothers Value This Oil. Mothers who know how suddenly croup may seize their children and how necessary prompt action is in applying relief, always keep at hand a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, whose experience has taught them that this is an excellent preparation for the treatment of this ailment And they are sure for its various uses render it a valuable medicine.

Little Helps For This Week

"Fear not, believe only." Luke viii. 50

The childlike faith that asks not sight.

Waits not for wonder or for sign.

Serene, happy, restful, strong.

Shall see things greater, thing greater,

Than it now sees.

Heaven to that game shall open wide.

And brightest angels to and fro

On errands of love shall glide

Twixt God and Christ below.

—Bonar.

The blessed thing which the Bible calls faith is a state of the soul in which the things of God become glorious certainties. It matters not how it comes whether as to Thomas through sight, or whether through the evidence of love and trust, and yet the faith of which Christ said, "Blessed are they which have not seen and yet have believed," was a spiritual faith

TEST VALUE OF CHEMICAL WEED DESTROYERS

In connection with the campaign which has been undertaken with increased energy this season for the eradication and control of noxious weeds, every possible means of weed destruction is being tried out. In addition to the methods which have proved so effective in previous years, a number of new agencies are being utilized and it is hoped that many of these will prove to be of value.

With the object of encouraging the use of these agencies which are effective and to determine which ones have real merit, the Fields Crop Branch of the Department of Agriculture has undertaken a series of tests at a number of points in the province where various chemical weed destroyers and other methods of eradication are being given a thorough try out.

In the meantime it has come to the attention of the Department that firms promoting the sale of some of these chemicals are advertising that these materials are being used by the government. This is not correct. It may be pointed out, however, that until tests of a more conclusive nature have been made, the Department of Agriculture is not in a position to bear out the claims made for any of

CHILD HYGIENE CONFERENCES POPULAR

A feature of increasing interest in the activities of the Department of Public Health is the travelling child hygiene conferences conducted by public health nurses shilled in babycraft.

The first series of conferences of this kind was sponsored by the Women's Institute of the Taber constituency as a health project in 1921. Since that time the value of these conferences has been realized throughout the province, and this year arrangements have been made to hold conference at 90 different points in the province.

Miss E. A. Emerson, who is in charge of this work, reports an attendance of 425 babies and 433 preschool children at thirty-four of these conferences during the months of May and June.

The regular meeting of the Fort Saskatchewan Lodge B.P.O.E., No. 202, will be held next Monday.

these treatments. It is hoped however, that some of them will prove to be effective and when this is clearly demonstrated the Field Crops Branch will make a statement to that effect.

ALBERTA TRANSFER CO. TRUCK DAMAGED BY FIRE

One of the trucks of the Alberta Transfer Co. of Fort Saskatchewan caught fire last Friday morning while the gas tank was being filled by Fred Karras at the British-American oil yard. The young man was filling the tank with a funnel and a five-gallon measure and it is supposed that a spark was caused by metal striking metal, the gas fumes taking care that this small incident was not allowed to get by unnoticed. It is not an uncommon accident and does not need a cigarette to make it effective; automotive and electrical experts have often warned the public through the medium of bulletins in the press of this dangerous combination.

The alarm was raised and the truck was backed away from the warehouse by human power. The town fire patrol played a stream on it and put out the flames. The cab was damaged but it is believed the engine and body have received little injury.

ROLLING MILL PLANNED FOR MEDICINE HAT

The Medicine Hat city council has been informed by the Manitoba Rolling Mill Company of Winnipeg that plans are in course of preparation for the commencement of the mill industry in Medicine Hat, including the installation of an open hearth furnace. The company is considering the use of electricity in preference to steam for the operation of the plant and is negotiating with the city for the amount of electrical power required.

THE BABY IN SUMMER

God's greatest gift to the world is a baby. He puts the care of it into the hands of the parents. It is their duty to prepare themselves for this responsibility.

Hundreds of little lives are sacrificed every year, that intelligent care would have saved. Careful attention must be given to the health of the baby if serious trouble is to be avoided during the summer. At this season of the year, proper clothing and protection against sudden changes in temperature are points of the utmost importance in the conservation of child life. During the months of August and September the baby's life may be truly said to be in the hands of its mother. Now the baby comes through the hot months largely depends on the care it receives.

The breast fed baby has at least a six times better chance for its life than a bottle fed baby. Diarrhoea and enteritis, the most frequent cause of infant deaths during the hot months, are rare among breast fed children. Breast feeding is the most important and the most effective preventive measure we have. A baby should never be taken off the breast except on the advice of a physician.

The next best food for the baby is cow's milk. The baby's milk should be pasteurized. It is most important that the milk should be kept cold, on ice if possible. The advice of the physician should be obtained as to the proportion of milk, water and sugar to be used in preparing the feedings. All drinking water for infants under one year should be boiled for one minute.

During the hot months it is important to adapt the baby's clothing to changes in temperature. Very hot days in Western Canada are usually followed by cool nights. Baby must be clothed to meet these sudden changes. Summer diarrhoea is responsible for a high mortality among infants every summer. This condition is preventable. If diarrhoea develops however mild, stop all food at once. Give castor oil and cool plain boiled water, consult a doctor A baby is bathed every day and on very warm days sponging with water in which has been placed baking soda (one teaspoonful to the pint) will add to baby's comfort.

Literature on care of the baby can be had from the Red Cross Society, 401 Civic Building, Edmonton.

HERMAN TRELLE AGAIN WINS HIGH AWARDS

Herman Trelle, whose winnings with wheat, oats and peas at the Chicago International have done so much to establish the reputation of the Peace River country as a grain growing area, has been adding further laurels to his already long list. Following Calgary and Edmonton exhibitions where his entries of grain stood at the head of their classes, Mr. Trelle was successful in carrying off championships in both wheat and oats at the International Grain Show held in conjunction with the Regina exhibition during the past week.

WILL COLONIZE HUDSON'S BAY LANDS

Over 400,000 acres of land owned by the Hudson's Bay Company in the Vermilion and Alexandra districts have been withdrawn from the market for colonization purposes. A survey of these lands has recently been made by agents of the company with the object of carrying out a plan of settlement similar to that adopted in the Clan Donald colony.

A small area will be broken on each quarter, a well will be drilled and the land will be fenced, and settlement will commence as soon as

BUILDING NEW DORMITORY AT VERMILION SCHOOL

The cornerstone of the new dormitory building being erected at the School of Agriculture at Vermilion was laid on Thursday, August 2, by Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture. Work is progressing rapidly on the new building which in addition to accommodation for some 200 students will include classrooms, library, gymnasium and assembly hall. The construction work is being done for the Department of Public Works by Bennett and White of Calgary and it is expected the building will be completed in readiness for the opening of the new school term on October 30.

JONES, GRAHAM & O'BRIEN

A Great Achievement

Keen interest has been aroused in all parts of Canada by the announcement made at Victoria, recently, by Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, that, as a result of many years of study and work, a plan will be submitted to the Government and Parliament at the very near future providing for the financial reconstruction of the national system of railways, a plan which, in the words of the C.N.R. president, "will, we perceively, relieve the C.N.R. from being any further drag upon the treasury of Canada."

As a matter of fact, the financial reconstruction of the Canadian National Railways has been progressing apace for some years past through the making of amicable arrangements with stockholders and bondholders of several of the railways now incorporated in the national system. These arrangements were a necessary preliminary step to a final consideration and development of a plan whereby the system could be relieved of the huge burden imposed upon it by reason of its heavy over-capitalization.

In considering the Canadian National Railways, it is always to be remembered that it was not characterized, like the Canadian Pacific, as one operating unit. On the contrary, it is the result of the amalgamation of several different systems, with lines often duplicating each other in the same territory, with duplicate lots of shops, round houses, stations, and other equipment. Thousands of miles of this system were built, not for purely commercial reasons, but as a feature of national policy for the opening up, colonization and national development of the Dominion. Some portions were located for strategic national reasons rather than from the standpoint of the business to be secured or developed.

Under the circumstances, it was not surprising, but rather to be expected, that such mishaps would be operated at a deficit. Year by year these deficits have been charged up against the lines which ultimately became part and parcel of the present Canadian National Railways. These individual systems were, in reality, bankrupt when the Government was compelled to take them over to prevent a catastrophe and financial disaster which would have shaken the Dominion and pil but ruined its credit in the money markets of the world. Had these railways remained in private ownership and passed into receivorship, there would have been a drastic writing down of capitalization and holders of the stocks and bonds would have had to take their losses, while the Dominion itself would have lost all the money loaned to them.

It has long been foreseen that, if the Canadian National Railways were ever to earn sufficient revenues to meet interest charges on its capitalization, the financial structure of the system would have to be reconstructed so as to more nearly bear some relation to the actual physical value of the system as a going concern. But, as already stated, certain arrangements with the stock and bond holders of the old railways had to be negotiated if Canada was to escape the stigma of having broken faith with those investors and the accusation of being guilty of a policy amounting almost to repudiation.

Neither Sir Henry Thornton, nor Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, has given any hint of the nature of the proposals to be laid before Parliament, but the people of Canada, as reflected by the editorial expressions of papers on all sides of politics, are decidedly friendly to the development of any reasonable plan which will give the management of the national railway a fair chance to make the system self-supporting and ultimately a profit making enterprise.

When Sir Henry Thornton, at the request of the Mackenzie King Government, accepted the presidency and managership of the Canadian National Railways, it was still in a state of disorganization. From an operating standpoint it had to be completely reorganized. At that time it was not only not earning one cent of interest on its outstanding stocks and bonds, but it was being operated at an actual loss year after year, which loss had to be put up in cold cash out of the Dominion treasury. Next to the war debt of Canada, it was the greatest burden imposed on the Canadian people. The outlook was thus indeed, and many people feared it would bankrupt the Dominion.

Therefore, before any permanent reconstruction of its financial system could be undertaken, it was not only necessary to effect the arrangements already referred to, but even more necessary that these annual losses in operation be stopped. It stands to the credit of Sir Henry Thornton that in this he was markedly successful. Operating deficits ceased some years since. Within the past two or three years these surpluses have been sufficiently large to meet all interest charges on securities held by the public, leaving a small balance to be applied on the enormous sum owing to the Government itself.

Addressing a meeting in a Saskatchewan town last month, Sir Henry Thornton stated that the surplus this year would be the largest in the history of the system, and that the outlook for the future of the road on a real and very valuable asset of the Dominion was never brighter, and this despite increased wages to employees and lower freight rates imposed by the Railway Commission.

The final and definite financial reconstruction of the whole system, and the resultant establishment of the Canadian National Railways as a solvent, self-supporting, publicly-owned transportation utility, will not only give the greatest satisfaction to the taxpayers of Canada, but it will prove a guarantee to the whole world of the financial stability and strength of the Dominion, and be hailed as another great Canadian achievement.

THE UNTOUCHED MEAL

People Who Go Hungry With Food On the Table

"I simply cannot eat." Actual tragedy is the meaning of these simple words, so often heard, because loss of appetite is a condition which spells not only misery but ruin. Such a condition results from nervous dyspepsia, which is indigestion and other serious symptoms. Loss of appetite is Nature's warning, and it is a symptom you dare not ignore. If you do, much suffering will follow.

The secret of a good appetite the secret of keeping well is to keep up the quality of the blood. Rich, enriched blood gives the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills supply strength to the endocrine glands, to brighten and enable them to digest thoroughly the food eaten without causing pain or distress. Proof of this is given by Mr. William H. Kelly, Kingston, Ont., who says: "I am not recommending Dr Williams' Pink Pills too highly when I say I have been cured with indigestion in a chronic form. I was almost past hope. Everything I would eat would turn sour. I felt as though there was a big ball in my stomach all the time. I felt tired and weak and would often turn dizzy. A doctor and tried many medicines, spending many, many dollars, but to no avail. One day I heard a lady praising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I said I would try them. I see more than glad I did, for soon I found relief, and after taking the pills for a couple of months the trouble had disappeared and now I can eat all kinds of food and have enjoyed my old time health and strength."

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Bronson)

SCALLOPED EGGS AND CRUMBS

4 eggs.
¼ cup grated cheese.
½ cup soft bread crumbs.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 cup white sauce.
Few grains cayenne.

Break the eggs into a buttered baking dish and cook in hot oven until they begin to turn white around the edge. Then cover eggs with white sauce, and cover this the mixture of crumbs, cheese and seasonings. Return to very hot oven, as eggs will not be overcooked by time cheese is brown.

MOLY-POLY

2 cups flour.
4 teaspoons baking-powder.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon butter.
¾ cup milk, scald.
½ cup sugar.
4 oranges.
Grated rind 1 orange.
½ cup water.

Mix and sift flour, baking-powder, and salt. With tips of fingers rub in two tablespoons butter, add milk to make dough with milk. Roll out one-half inch thick, and cover with small pieces of butter, sugar, juice of oranges, grated rind, remaining butter, and sprinkle two-thirds of it over the orange. Roll up, cover with remaining juice in baking-dish, sprinkle with sugar, cover with orange, and bake about thirty minutes. Serve with an orange or lemon sauce.

"Fish are very much like human beings. People who have them for pets should realize this and give them some consideration," says Miss Ida M. Mellen, America's only woman fish doctor.

"Fish suffer from much the same ailments that the human species do and they cannot exist if their conditions of life are uncomfortable.

"We learn a lot about people from fish. Take the matter of exercise. If fish get lazy and won't exercise they get sick. To remedy this at the New York Aquarium, we give them a change of scenery. You would be surprised how a more attractive swimming ground and an extra amount of sunlight arouses their excitement.

"If fish eat too much of the wrong food, they get indigestion just like humans. And like humans, they hate to take castor oil. I have had fish hold it in their mouths and spit it out later, rather than swallow it. We have to watch them just like children to see that they get their medicine.

"An excellent motto to make sure your pet fish has good care is: "Try to imagine yourself in his place. That makes you think."

Quite Possible

"Excuse me," interrupted the would-be wit, "but can you tell me what the evening were on that occasion?"

"I don't know that it is important," replied the story-teller, quite unperturbed. "If you must know, however, I believe it was the close of a spring day."

League Is Fighting Illicit Drug Traffic

New International Convention Goes Into Effect In September

A general world-wide tightening-up of the illicit dope traffic is scheduled to take place when the League's new international opium and harmful drugs convention goes into effect on Sept. 25th.

Although the convention was launched in 1925, provisions were made that it could only become effective when ratified by at least 10 states of which seven must be members of the League council including two permanent members.

To date the convention has been ratified or adhered to by nearly 30 states but it was only Canada's recent ratification that gave the necessary number of council members.

Would Be Sensible Law

Motor Brakes Should Have To Pass Certified Tests Regularly

It is strongly suggested that the time is coming in the near future when brakes must be tested and certified regularly; and the careful motorist will make no objection.

Witness in last year alone that 500,000 people were killed or injured in automobile accidents in the United States alone last year and the fact that faulty brakes cause a majority of all accidents, the need for such a law may be realized. It is the height of folly to drive with faulty brakes.

We Need Forcibly Reminding Of The High Position Achieved By Canada In Recent Years

"We have been so deaned by reports of the wealth and prosperity of the United States," comments The Daily Sketch, "that we need to be forcibly reminded of the position achieved by Uncle Sam's neighbour."

This was called forth by statements made by Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in Great Britain, on the occasion of the Dominion's sixty-first birthday, to the effect that Canadians were the most prosperous and the lightest taxed people in the world today, not excluding Americans.

The Daily Sketch used the correct word, and it is applicable to many Canadians as well as to people of other countries. The prosperity of the United States has blinded us to a full realization of our own savings and position, although economists state that a very small percentage of United States citizens own stocks or bonds. A presidential reductionist at Washington has given us a false impression and blinded us to the fact that we are less heavily taxed, considering State, municipal and other forms of taxation of which we know comparatively little.

The comparison is not to the discredit of the United States. Its spectacular progress has been dazzling. We have been at its heels to the extent that we have permitted it to draw attention away from the advancement we have made, are still making, and are due to make in coming decades. It is gratifying, however, that not we have many friends at the court of public opinion ready to proclaim the greatness of the country News-papers and other periodicals at home and abroad are giving more space to the Dominion's achievements, and are finding co-operation from men high in finance, industry, mining, agriculture, transportation and general business. A notable recent example of this is a supplement issued by the Manchester Guardian devoted to "Commercial and Industrial Canada."

Sir Larkin pointed out in his interview to The Daily Express, that, according to estimates, 69 per cent. of Canadians living in cities own their own homes. This is a unique position, indicating both prosperity and stability. The cities and towns have entered on a era of big business, their net production in 1925 being estimated at $2,000,000,000. They are contributing their share to $7,500,000,000 of trade, with 110 countries, as compared with $610,000,000 twenty years ago with 35 countries. The agricultural wealth of the Dominion as years ago was $6,700,000,000, and the gross agricultural revenue $1,300,000,000. Last year the former was $7,983,000,000 and the latter $1,726,000,000. The United States cannot show so large a percentage of home owners in the city, or as large a net revenue per acre of land cultivated in the country.

The Dominion's wheat crop exceeds $600,000,000 in value yearly The revenue from livestock products is approximately half a billion dollars. The mineral output is half as much, double what it was fifteen years ago Canada stands third among the nations of the world in gold production. It is also third in the per capita use of electrical energy. It is fifth as a manufacturing country with a population of less than 10,000,000.

What is be too much to say that if other countries have been dazed by the progress of the United States, that country has been dazzled by the progress here? In 1913 United States investments in Canada aggregated $417,000,000, in 1927 they totalled about $5,000,000,000, more than half of total investment by foreign capital, including that from the United Kingdom.

This is a fact for Britishers and Canadians to keep in mind.—Toronto Globe

Heavy Marketing Of Veal Calves

Sale Last Year Heaviest In Past Five Years

The increase in the dairy cattle population as in straight milk production is invariably followed by an increased marketing of light thin veal. Last year the sale of calves was the heaviest during the past five years and showed an increase since 1923 of approximately 118,000 head, in a report just issued by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, on the "Origin and Quality Of Commercial Cattle Marketed in Canada Last Year," the quality of the calves is shown to be comparatively poor, being a preponderance of "grassers" and a large percentage of very common veal stock The report, which is compiled by the Publications Branch of the Department, shows by counties or electoral districts within provinces where the calves came from, the market classes to which they belong, and their destination. It also shows where calves of marketable stock, including cattle, sheep, and hogs marketed throughout the Dominion in 1927

Mange In Swine

Mixture Of Raw Linseed Oil, Tar Oil and Sulphur as Effective

A skin disease, sarcoptic mange, has appeared from time to time in some parts of the country. It is indicated by unthriftiness, dryness of the skin, accompanied by continuous rubbing or scratching In advanced cases rubbing is sometimes continued until the blood appears The disease is confined almost entirely to the summer season. The Scott, Saskatchewan Experimental Station had occasion to deal with this disease, and from their experience can recommend a mixture of raw linseed oil, tar oil, and sulphur prepared by heating one gallon of raw oil by sunpenses in hot water and adding to this eight ounces of oil of tar and two pounds of sulphur, stirred in while the oil is hot The preparation is applied warm by the use of a rag, to all parts of the body. The rag is liberally moistened with the mixture to avoid blistering Four treatments at ten-day intervals effect a cure Litters the third and fourth treatment the pens were thoroughly cleaned out, and the walls and floors sprayed with whitewash containing a reliable disinfectant. Further experience and experiments in the 1927 report of the Scott Experimental Station the superintendent states that it is not necessary to whitewash the walls higher than six feet from the floor

LE FOULON

The fete of St. Jean Baptiste is a day of particular celebration among the French-Canadians and although weather intervened it was forgotten, one of the most impressive spectacles was eventually presented in Montreal in which many thousands participated. "Jean le Pursueur" was the title of the oratorio given in the Mountain Stadium, which was preceded by a procession of floats representing various well known French-Canadians Pathescope The final picture above is entitled "Le Foulon," and was the contribution of the Canadian Pacific Railway towards the popular event. It illustrates the old manner of that name, sung by the inhabitants in the manufacture of homespun material during the process of shrinking. The singers are the Bytown Troubadours, who made such a hit at the Quebec Folksong Festival.

Development Of Hardy Fruits For The Western Prairies Is Meeting With Good Success

WESTERN SHELTERBELTS IS STRONG POSITION

Permanent Feeling Of Confidence Everywhere In Evidence

"Never have I noticed such a permanent feeling of confidence as seems to exist among shelterbelt planters throughout the Provinces this year," states W. H. J. Tisdale, of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, who has just returned from his sixth annual western tour, during which he motored all through the principal range areas of British Columbia and Southern Alberta, as well as visiting practically the whole of the sheep farming areas of all four provinces "Not only are the shelterbelts confident, but I found the same feeling in respect to agriculture generally among the leading banking and railway officials of the towns and cities Good crops and good prices have had a wonderful effect on prairie and British Columbia conditions and live stock is coming back rapidly."

Mr Tisdale reported a continued trend toward mixed farming. Sheep are now considered to work in well with grain farming, where the property has been fenced From 100 to 150 ewes are being kept on many Saskatchewan farms, owing to the abundance of waste feed, their feeding cost is very small The sheep have been found very useful in keeping summer fallows clean and in helping to solve the weed problem

Undoubtedly the most spectacular sheep development has taken place in British Columbia. There, farmers have doubled their sheep population in the past four years and the Grazing Commissioner, T P Mc-Kenzie assured me that there was room for 2,000,000 sheep, or more than fifty per cent of the present total for all Canada in the interior British Columbia areas alone."

Unfortunately, according to this official of the Canadian Co-operative, the range bunch crop of the past three year, due to extreme weather conditions at breeding time last fall did not run over 55 per cent, but among flocks on farms flocks of the west it was well up to average The wool coming from this part of the country this year is as good as any western clip so has ever seen, being clean and bright Of the total western clip Mr Tisdale now expects to handle about 300,000 pounds from British Columbia, 750,000 pounds from the flocks of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and 1,250,000 pounds from Alberta this season.

Experience is the only teacher that can get anything into the head of the man who knows it all.

No man is ever so friendless that he can't find some one to jolly him along

There are few districts in Canada where their vegetables can be grown than in the Prairie Provinces provided the garden is well protected from the strong winds The same thing applies to small fruits, such as currants and raspberries where proper cultural methods are employed. The growing of tree fruits is, however, a much more recent development. While it is not expected that apples and plums will for many years be raised in commercial quantities on the prairies, there is enough evidence to demonstrate quite conclusively that in most of the settled sections it is quite possible for a farmer to raise sufficient fruit for home requirements

The late A. P. Stevenson, of Morden, Manitoba, undoubtedly knows more than any other private experimenter in demonstrating the possibility of growing tree fruits in Manitoba. He propagated and sold large numbers of young trees of varieties which he found hardy, mainly of Russian origin, and of recent years reports of planters ripening standard apples have been received from widely separated points in the three prairie provinces

On the Dominion Government's nursery station at Indian Head, apples and plums originating from the Stevenson nursery were planted some years ago, owing to the additions made from time to time Reasonable crops of fruit have been secured quite regularly in some cases, some over 1,500 pounds of plums, and 1,700 pounds of standard apples have been secured The apples which have given most general satisfaction are the Hibernal, Blushed Calville and Patten's Greening, while among the plums are Assiba, Stevenson's Mammoth, Cheney and Winnipeg. One of the chief difficulties to contend with is rabbit injury, and it is doubtful whether success can be secured unless the trees are protected by a rabbit-proof fence. Good withstand of trees is absolutely essential.

Conditions for fruit growing are especially favorable all over the three provinces. Varieties which are hardy in southern Manitoba and southeastern Saskatchewan are not found to be hardy in areas further north and west. It is safe to predict, however, that by cross-breeding, varieties will eventually be produced suitable to all districts. It is only of comparatively recent years that much attention has been paid to the breeding of hardy fruits for the Canadian prairies, but a great deal of work along those lines is now being carried on under the supervision of Mr W T Macoun Dominion Horticulturist, Ottawa, at the Dominion Experimental Farms at Morden, Man and Southern Sask., also at the University of Saskatchewan, at Saskatoon, and results so far are very encouraging

Turkey Scraps Old Titles

New Turkey has decided to scrap all the old official titles left over from the old regime beginning with the highest military title "Pasha," which henceforth will be "General." President Mustapha Kemal's name will then be Westernized to General Ghazi Mustapha Kemal instead of the old form Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

No Ghmmers In War

The romantic and the poet may still strive desperately to keep up the old glamour which surrounded the business of fighting But it is not there, and they know it. There is no "shining armor" left in modern war, only mud and blood and a dulling of office work

Electric Plants Furnish Light and Pump Water For Ranch Buildings

The ranch of H.R.H the Prince of Wales, has been electrified. Two large individual electric plants, of the type used by thousands of Canadian farmers, were installed recently on the E.P. ranch, completely electrifying the many buildings which form a small city on the farmstead. Two electric motors under 2½ horsepower were also installed to supply drinking water, so that because lunge and water from a pump are two of the rarest of the rare luxuries in the Prince's home in London.

Hoped That International Agreement Will Be Reached For Final Union

The measure stabilizing Easter in Great Britain and Northern Ireland was given third reading in the House of Lords recently, will not be effective until an international agreement has been reached, it is stated.

The bill provides for observance of Easter on the Sunday after the second Saturday in April, instead of determining the date by the phases of the moon.

CHOLERA IN ANTON

Cholera infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months and unless prompt action is taken the little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent the dreaded summer complaints. They are an absolutely safe medicine, being guaranteed to contain not her op ates nor narcotics or other harmful drugs. They always do good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

We bade London an early farewell, losing on the way to Cambridge by 8.30 a.m., through the Watkins Cross with Sir Abbey of the Holy Cross, re-founded by King Harold, in 1060, Theobald, which was invaded by the Danes in 871, and Epping Forest, the former royal game preserve, which is now the Londoner's favorite playground.

It would be impossible to describe the charms of the colleges of Cambridge University. Its general setting among the meadows and gardens through which runs the River Cam or the beauty of the Tudor-Gothic masonry. Nor could one hope to convey the sense of atmosphere that time has given to this ancient seat of learning, something of which we caught even in our hurried trip through the grounds. Fortunately, we had the opportunity of visiting King's College Chapel. The tower-ed, pinnacled roof of this gem is there, the softened light mellowing through the stained glass windows, the rich, subdued beauty of the organ pealed high in the centre of the nave, all combine to lend a solemn and soul of man's aspirations to Divine Mercy. King's College Chapel is accounted by as well as architectural experts, as such an ambient heard in it is unforgetable.

Proceeding to Ely, Lincoln we had lunch at the Angel Hotel, the Vice-Chancellor, Dr. Weeks, sitting at the head of the table. Again we felt the sense of privilege of "atmosphere." Dr. Weeks spoke to lend-ened mind, and soul of man's aspirations to Divine Mercy. A Chic Frock For the Sum-er Miss

The little one-piece frock shown here is a smart and practical style for all daytime wear. The skirt has no inverted plait in the centre front, and the sleeves are long and gathered in narrow wrist-bands, or short and finished with puffed cuffs. A note of contrast may be introduced in the shaped collar and set-under cuffs, and the belt fastens with a buckle in front. No. 1908 is in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards 32-inch, or 2¼ yards 39-inch material, and 1-2 yard 39-inch contrasting (cut crosswise). Price 25 cents the pattern.

Great Britain Wishing Up To the Importance of Canada As Trade Centre

"In the past two years the British manufacturer has been waking up to the importance of Canada as a trade centre, and for this reason the Overseas Trade Department to reorganize and extend its system in this country in an effort to bring the necessary facts before the manufacturers of the Old Country," said W. J. Glenny, Inspector General for the organization in question, upon his arrival in Montreal. "We are not here to wave the flag, and ask Canadians to buy British goods merely because they are made there. What we want to create an organization here that will enable the manufacturer in England to become acquainted with the problems and requirements of Canadian importers," he stated.

Explanations and Comments

Trouble-Makers From Jerusalem, verses 1-5. Jewish synagogues were composed of Jews and proselytes, the latter being Gentiles who had received the Jewish form of circumcision. Other Gentiles who attended the synagogue services were called "God fearing" or "devout," but were not in full fellowship" with the rest. Circumcise they had not been circumcised We have seen how Paul and Barnabas preached to the Gentiles and founded churches among them at Pisidian, Antioch, Lystra, Iconium and Derbe on his first missionary journey, and how he reported to the church at Antioch of Syria, the church which had sent them on their mission, that "God had opened a door of faith unto the Gentiles." The church at Antioch, itself composed largely of Gentiles, rejoiced over the good news, and did not oppose it

FARM MATTERS

In a long-settled farming district eventually every farm is fenced around and the adjoining neighbors know the lines where their farms meet. These lines do not in all cases correspond with the original surveyed lines but from mutual agreement and long occupation they are accepted as the actual boundaries of the farms. The fact that a one hundred and sixty acre farm, for instance, is short one or two acres may not seem to be very important, but if land is worth one hundred dollars an acre as it is in many parts of Canada, it is a matter of some concern when a farm is short even an acre. The present owner would be better pleased if the first settlers in the district had been more careful of the original survey marks and had run out their farm lines in correct position. His title calls for one hundred and sixty acres, the assessed value of his farm is based on that area, and he pays taxes on it and must continue to do so unless he goes to the expense of having a survey made of his land as at present having his title corrected to the true acreage.

In those parts of our country which have been more recently settled or are being settled upon now, it should be a matter of first importance to the residents to preserve the marks of the original survey. In western Canada where all the original surveys have been made by the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, survey posts accompanied by mounds, pits, or trenches as the case may be have been placed to mark the corners of the quarter-sections. The description and location of these survey marks are recorded at the Department at Ottawa, where information concerning them is always available. The survey post, wherever it be one of the new style monuments of a cast iron pipe filled with concrete carrying a brass cap on top, the iron tree bar in use for many years, or even made of wood in the earliest surveys, should be most carefully left the pits, etc., are merely to help you locate the corner and to be refilled unless the post is or should be. If it happens that the post is gone, but remains of the pits or mound can be seen, a letter addressed to the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, will bring information as to the exact location of the true corner to enforcement on the part of the owners of the farms.

There is a survey penalty imposed by law upon persons who unlawfully remove or tamper with survey monuments, but the loss to the owner of land in the case of a casualty is not just the same whether the survey is carried out by land owners or by a surveyor. It is true that the adjoining neighbors may agree upon their lines if they are all so disposed, but any one may refuse and have the land surveyed and the expense is by agreement to be shared by the land owners the boundaries of which have been disputed. It should be to the interest of every farmer to see that the monuments of land in any survey are preserved in the original position.

Quebec, Quebec.—The most successful meeting of the Canadian Seed Growers Association closed at the Chateau Frontenac on Saturday, June 10th, with a record demand for registered seed for all Canada, as we believe. Wheat, 77,818 bushels; oats, 35,018 bushels; barley, 15,500 bushels; and alsike, 10,750 pounds.

Montreal, Quebec. — For prices have advanced since the early spring, an outlook in the Montreal fur section sale recently concluded here. Nearly 50,000 raw pelts sold at 35 per cent above the level of the previous sale, with a top price of $2.80; mink was also up 35 per cent, with the highest sale at $26.50, while wolf pelts brought a ten per cent advance over the previous level of early spring.

Canadian dinners in the Old Country are not considered complete without Canadian ice cream for dessert. Then, for the High Commissioner's dinner at Grosvenor House on July 20 two eight-gallon cans of the delicacy were ordered and these were delivered by Canadian Pacific Express to caterer in time for the dinner. The same thing was done last October for a special Canadian dinner held at Grosvenor House by the Canadian Trade Commissioner there.

Ottawa, Ontario.—By the end of March, 1923, 1,000 fire wells will have been established throughout Canada, according to the Forestry Branch at Ottawa. A total of $170,000 is being spent by the branch this year in the protection of these cribs for driving flying. Clubs have already been established in Montreal, Ottawa, Ottawa, Hamilton, Belleville, Brockville, Kingston, Gananoque, Victoria and Granby. One at Hamilton and another at London are about to enter the list.

Transportation of small but valuable packages by air from Canadian Pacific liners at Rimouski to Montreal and Toronto, thereafter by express, is the latest thing in becoming increasingly popular. After Montreal, Toronto, London and Chatham, Guelph had its turn with a parcel of Irish linens going to a department store there. Another shipment being delivered by Major Brock, D.S.O., chief executive of the town. These parcels were carried by the Canadian Pacific Express Company.

A tablet in memory of men of the Seventh Royal Fusiliers who served with the Quebec garrison during the siege of 1775-76 by the Americans under Montgomery and Arnold, was unveiled on Dominion Day on the Wall of the Chateau Frontenac by His Excellency, the Governor-General. Present at the ceremony were officers of the Fusiliers from England and a detachment of the Canadian Fusiliers of London, Ontario, who are Militia Regiment. THE LURE OF THE LAURENTIANS

Cpl. A canoe of the North River at Piedmont. (2). Off for the day on the crown of the east mountain. (3). Ski-ing on the hills.

The Spring Floods in the Laurentians have in no way affected the fishing in that district, reports men returning to Montreal have stated, adding that the fish are biting better than previous years and that the catch has exceeded their past records.

The Laurentians, so popular during the winter for skiing, enjoy in reality a year round favour in the eyes of holiday hunters, and have at every season particularly attractions to offer. At present the fishing is behaving most satisfactorily, and no doubt this is proving to be of the best.

The Mont Tremblant district is perhaps the most attractive and interesting in the Laurentians. This mountain was known to the Indians as "Manitou Monetang," signifying the "Mountain of the Dread Mystery," and the legendary dwelling power of the Great Spirit whose wrath the whole district feared.

There are beautiful lakes not far from Mont Tremblant, Lake Gauthier and Lake Ouimet, where a hotel and summer cottages have been built and good fishing abounds. The district north of Mont Tremblant is a pathless wilderness and stretching as far north as the Arctic Circle, with no settlements whatever. The only hunters and trappers are those of Indians and hunters, who canoe up the Devil's River and the intervening lakes during the fall of the year, making their permanent camp about one hundred miles north of Mont Tremblant.

Access to this recreation land is provided by the Canadian Pacific Railway from Montreal to such places as Shawbridge, Piedmont, Ste. Marguerite, Val Morin, Ste. Agathe, Ivry, St. Faustin, Labelle and Mont Laurier, and the end of the line. The line running north from Ottawa to Maniwaki is no less direct and carries many anglers northwards from the capital for a spring vacation with rod and line at this time.

When Helmi returned to the city she went to the hospital to see Lil, and she went without fear. She had the assurance of Lil's safety, and so she and the two children were waiting room it did not occur to her that she was a lonely girl in a big city, with a rich baby and no money. Helmi was already planning her summer and counting the days until Little Lil could go with her.

The nurse did not so kindly received the baby came to speak to her. "Oh, I remember you," she said smilingly, "your hosting much laughter. I told you she would do well, and she has. She was very ill the second night, but a change came about daybreak. The fever left her then and she went to sleep and has been doing well ever since. If you will go out and stand on the north side of the hospital I will show her to you through the window."

Helmi was disappointed with the prospect. "What will I have to pay?" she asked the nurse.

"Nothing, dear, not a cent. The City provides this hospital, everyone pays for it, so do not worry over that."

"It is like a dream," said Helmi; "everyone is so good."

When the nurse came with little Lil in her arms and Helmi saw the bandaged head and the brown skin of the little face like an exquisite flower, her heart was full of love and gratitude, and when the nurse lifted the tiny hand and waved it toward her, Helmi could not see any more for the rush of happy tears. In time back into the elbow again to call for Ireland.

"I almost forgot the other baby," she said, "is he doing well?"

"You are more concerned than his mother," said the nurse, "though his grandmother has been here several times. He will get better me think. He is a strong baby but a baby needs to be loved. Care is not enough; there is something more."

"I know," said Helmi.

To the North Star Rooming House Helmi went to explain her absence to her good friends, the Corbetts. Mrs. Corbett was in bed, and overcome at ten Helmi told her story. It was easy to tell Mrs. Corbett, although what about God and how good He can be.

Thank God, you're alive, Helmi! You gave me an awful scare; there's no use trying to tell you that. But I'm glad you've found peace, Helmi. It's the most precious gift God has only to ask you for the money, too." Well, get a new pair of boots, child, good strong ones. It's a serious thing to be without a good bed they're all right, for you are in one or the other of them all the time. And will you give me the Englishman's house, Helmi? But how can you live there alone, eight miles from the nearest? If you were near enough you could run a boarding house."

"I am going," said Helmi, "as soon as Lil's well enough. I am not a bit afraid now, and, Mrs. Corbett, in the holidays won't you let Honie and Danny come to me? We'll get a cow somewhere, and there will be wild berries, and I know there will be lots of flour and oatmeal in the house, and it will be just like a picnic all summer. You will let them come, won't you, Mrs Corbett?"

"It will be a lot easier to let them go than to try to stop them when they hear of it they're fair witches over you and the baby. Well, well, well, Helmi dear, ain't it wonderful how things come out?"

When Mrs. Corbett was told the whole story that night, he sat for a long time smoking a meditative pipe its gentle put-put making the only sound in the room. Helmi was used to stay with them until Lil could be taken from the hospital. No. 19 being vacated, He'll was to share Helmi's narrow bed, the lack of space of which would be amply overcome by the warmth of Rodie's affection.

Helmi sat on a couch which later would be turned into a bed for Danny, and enjoyed the luxury of having such a welcome as the Corbetts gave her.

"I am thinking," said John Corbett, after a long pause, "that maybe the Englishman is the best man of the two."

"Oh, no, no, Mr. Corbett!" Helmi cried, distressed. "Mr. English is my good friend I like him he is so good but I love my Jack. He is my man there is a big think—that need call difference isn't there, Mrs. Corbett? You tell him!"

"Tell him!" said Maggie Corbett scornfully. "He knows, the sly old dog! He knows. I have often told him I'd rather be Aprile' with him than agreein' with any other man. That's love and he knows it!"

CHAPTER XXX

Vehemour, German prison camp known also as Cellelager Six, was built on a peat bog from which the peat had been removed, leaving a sour, raw mud, on which not even a plank or log was laid. When the prisoners stepped out of the door they went to their knees in the indescribable muck. The condition of the camp inside may be imagined. A crowded room of miserable men; two smoking stoves burning the unseasoning peat; double tours of bertha where greasy blankets on planks furnished the beds; dampir written on young faces despair and bitter hatred.

Steve sat Jack Duran, on this wet night in January, 1917, listening to the sleet slithering down the small window. He had been in three prison camps before this, having attempted to escape from thirteen and from Cellelager One, from escape and strafed, the last time in the dark cells at Oldenburg. He was dressed in the garments supplied by the Red Cross for prisoners and carried his relief with something of his former sweetness. A white V was showing in his brown hair, and there were hard lines around his mouth Two years of war had told on him Still there was something about him that suggested hope. Many of the prisoners had the broken look of men whose spirits are gone, the condition of soul desired by the German guards for the men under their care.

Jack Duran, thin, pale, determined and planning another escape He had often wondered at himself for his tenacity Life had not be so sweet that he should so constantly desire it. In the days of his freedom he had not found happiness, but the fires of youth still burning he had never given him on He had been captured in the night attack on Gavrelle, May 3rd, 1916, where part of his platoon lost their way in the darkness and found that they had an enemy behind them as well as ahead of them, and suffered under heavy artillery fire. Jack ran back to save his captain, who had fallen wounded, and they were both captured and separated, his captain going to another camp.

Jack had made his two other attempts in company with a Canadian, who was captured the same day, but when punished the last time in Oldenburg, his friend was sent to some other camp. He knew the German O.C. believed that separation would make it easier to hold these two adventurous men.

Soon after coming to Vehemour Jack had been fortunate in finding a companion under a pile of peat in the bog where the prisoners were sent to work, probably left there by a prisoner who was fearful of having it found on him, and both escaped, and along with his hope of escape. The possession of a compass, being proof of the desire to escape, was in German prison camps an indictable offence. But Jack had found a loose board in the wall beside his bunk and there he now kept it.

There were two other men in the camp who had attempted escapes, and between them and Jack a certain free-masonry existed. They met as often as they could to discuss their plans, and on the coldest days volunteered for work on the bog in order that they might have a few hurried words together They knew that if they showed any unusual friendship they would be suspected of laying plans.

BEGINNING TEETH

Your son is now grown up and should have his full complement of teeth, which is thirty-two.

But the probabilities are that one or more are missing.

Now, of course, the most probable cause for this deficiency in the extractions of earlier years, which you may have forgotten. But on the other hand, there may be this reason, that the one or more did not erupt.

The tooth more prone to non-eruption are in the order named, the third molar, upper canine, upper bicuspid, and lower second bicuspid.

1. An abnormal condition of a temporary tooth might destroy the germ of the permanent successor.

2. The premature extraction of a deciduous tooth might destroy, through injury, the permanent tooth germ beneath or dislodge it entirely.

3. Childhood diseases accompanied by high fever such as scarlet fever and measles, might, through their general disturbances, injure irreparably the tooth germs

4. The retention, unduly long, of a temporary tooth might prevent the eruption of its successor.

5. In the case of the cuspid, sometimes it is fully formed, but having taken up a position, more or less horizontal, back of the incisor teeth, it fails to erupt.

6. With the third molar, we find that it is due to lack of room to erupt that it remains impacted in the jaw, quite as frequently it does not form at all.

So you observe that a tooth may be missing due to one of several causes for the most, they are preventable, unless intending that each one should have his full complement of teeth.

Lolosi Tragedy in Arctic Should Encourage Further Exploration

By "Pinto"

Although not many men have visited the Arctic and Antarctic, those desolate areas of ice and water have taken a high percentage of brave men, and some of the greatest epics of human endeavor, achieved at the cost of much suffering and sometimes death, come from these dreadful hinterlands of civilization.

The experiences of the Nobile expedition have filled the world with distress at the knowledge of men drifting for weeks on ice floes, suffering unknown hardships from cold and hunger, and physical pain. What happened to some of them may never be known, nor how long they endured before finally ultimately died after waiting hopelessly for rescue.

It is just as well, perhaps, that the Arctic keeps its secrets, but the sound in the realm adventure will have some purpose if it causes a revulsion of public feeling against expeditions to the North Pole, and the latest epic of human effort that under conditions such as are likely to be met with in polar regions, the airship is no more reliable than the balloon was in the days of the Andre expedition, which left for the North Pole nearly thirty years ago and was never heard of again.

Canada To The Fore

The breaking of records by Canada is becoming a commonplace. It is indeed an off year when, in some branch of human activity and endeavor, this young Dominion does not attract world attention to itself by some new and startling achievement.

Prior to the war, Canada was hardly known, even as a name, to the vast majority of the peoples of Europe, and those who recognized the name had but slight knowledge of the country. To most of the world, Canada was one of the colonies which Britain had scattered here and there over the face of the globe, but which was of little value and of still less importance in world affairs.

In the war Canada made a name for itself, and other nations were suddenly made to realize that there had arisen in the western hemisphere a nation which already was helping to write history in large and important characters and was destined to have a profound effect upon international relations, political and economic. Canada's war effort served, perhaps as nothing of a less spectacular nature could have done, to turn the attention of the people of the United States northward, and awaken them to the fact that the whole of North America was not to be found within the confines of the republic; that, on the contrary, a second American power was rapidly developing at their very doors.

Since the war the reality of this fact has year by year been emphasized. Long the world's greatest exporter of wheat, the United States discovered Canada pass it and secure that title by a wide margin. Within the past year or two, the United States has been forced to also relinquish to Canada the distinction of being the world's largest manufacturer of paper. Steadily, year by year, Canada has been passing other countries in the production of gold and is now within measurable distance of overtaking the United States and assuming second place to South Africa.

Captivating a volume of only minor importance to the total trade and commerce of the world a bare generation ago, Canada is now one of the world's greatest traders, a factor to be reckoned with in all the markets of the world. Before the war, dependent upon the mother country, Great Britain and the United States to finance by many undertakings, Canadians today are able not only to finance their own country, but to an ever increasing extent are financing huge undertakings in other countries, while at the same time rapidly buying back into full Canadian control many large corporations of this country which in years of our financial immaturity were financed and controlled by British and United States capitalists.

The war, and Canada's significant participation therein, also had the effect of raising the international status of the Dominion, giving it not only a status of equality with Great Britain within the Empire, but the rank of a nation in the council of nations. The refusal of the United States to join the League of Nations undoubtedly had the effect of the more directly focusing attention upon the North American nation which did join, and placing Canada in the forefront in the League membership.

And since destiny thus called upon Canada to play its part in the International arena, this Dominion assumed the responsibility with dignity and real effectiveness. Its place around the council board of nations has been no minor nor insignificant one. Rather, Canada has wielded an influence possibly out of proportion to its present population, but in keeping with the growing importance which other nations now place in this Dominion.

Having thus moved out into the great international arena, Canada this year decided to be worthily represented at the Olympiad, the great meeting place of the athletes of the world. Despite its small and widely scattered population, this young Dominion dared to try conclusions with the much more numerous representatives of other countries in the field of sport and athletic skill and endurance. And again Canada surprised the world. The sons and daughters of the Dominion carried the flag of Canada to victory time and time again, winning many of the premier events. A Canadian school boy, Percy Williams, of Vancouver, achieved the double victory of winning the 100 metres and the 200 metres race, regarded as classics of the great meet. Ethel Catherwood, a Saskatchewan girl, won the high jump and in doing so established a new world's record. A quartette of Toronto girls also broke the world's record in winning the 400 metres relay race. Considering the number of events in which the Canadians participated, no other country in the world approached their record.

Broadcasting Companies To Improve Quality Of Radio Programs

A national chain broadcast organization, divided into two sections, will commence operation about September 1, it was announced in Toronto, by R. W. Ashcroft, who has been appointed manager of the newly formed Trans-Canada Broadcast Company.

Mr. Ashcroft said the organization of the company was the outcome of a suggestion by F. J. A. Cardin, minister of marine and fisheries, that an effort be made by Canadian broadcasting companies to improve the quality of domestic radio programs.

Key stations of the new organization will be located in Winnipeg and Toronto.

Stations in Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Hamilton, London and Quebec, will be linked up with the eastern section and stations in Saskatoon, Regina, Edmonton, Lethbridge and Vancouver with the western section.

Fur Farming Very Soon To Be A Recognized And Established Western Canadian Industry

Authorities make the prediction that within the next quarter of a century fur farming will be a stabilized industry in Western Canada, accepted and recognized as one of the many phases of agriculture in that territory instead of as a somewhat novel, entrancing activity. The trend in that direction is unmistakable. Farming settlement is extending northward, and, with scientific development having added considerably to the dominion of the plow, the tendency to raise furs intensively and domestically will inevitably become more accentuated, and fur farming takes its place alongside the other established activities of that territory. And because this area is by reason of its climate and other conditions capable of producing superior pelts it need fear no rivalry from other countries where the pursuit is similarly developing.

Many branches of fur farming have become soundly established in Western Canada to the extent they have got past the stage of founding, and are exporting live animals abroad. One of the branches which has received relatively little attention, but which is promised a meteoric development, is that of muskrat and beaver farming, particular the former. From a position of virtual insignificance in the fur trade the muskrat has attained a place of outstanding importance by reason of his pelt's multiplicity of uses. The security of the future of the muskrat industry is held to be the readiness with which the pelt of this little animal can be adapted to imitate the rarer and more valuable peltry. His position is secure as far as can be seen into the future. And while this industry is established in other parts of the Dominion it promises to be one which Western Canada is going to make peculiarly its own.

According to all reports a certain army of men in the Prairie provinces has been awaiting the completion of arrangements for the transfer of the marshlands and other suitable tracts from the Federal Government to the provinces. There are stated to be 800 applicants waiting in Alberta and hundreds in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. According to announcement these lands are to be leased for fur farming purposes at 25 cents per acre for three years and $1 per acre for each succeeding year. There is every indication of wholesale establishment to take place as soon as filing is made.

British Columbia is not lagging behind her prairie sisters, having long since securely established this industry, which is thriving in several suitable sections, and in which is to be found the world's largest establishment for the purpose. The Columbia-Kootenay Valley has come particularly to the fore in this regard and many individuals from adjoining States of the Union have in the past few years moved up to follow the pursuit there. A further addition to such ranches was recently made when a group of Kelowna business men secured a large holding of bottom land from the Columbia Valley Ranches Limited, on the Kootenay Central Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, for the purpose of entering upon beaver and muskrat ranching on a large scale. This follows upon three similar fur-farming enterprises to establish in that section.

The industry is one which appeals to many points of view. The land so utilized is largely waste, and unproductive. Operation is economical and to achieve success does not necessitate any great experience or amount of technical knowledge. The increasing demand for muskrat has elevated prices considerably. These are now fairly stabilized, in the opinion of authorities, who are confident of the industry's ability to produce in the future. The average value of all muskrat sold in Canada at the time of the Government's last fur return was $1.54, while at recent Montreal sales as high as $2.70 per pelt has been secured. Ranch-bred pelts naturally bring higher prices and since large-scale operation is the essence of the muskrat industry it is not difficult to realize the profit which can be made.

Muskrat farming is to become an important source of revenue in Western Canada from its outset as a sole occupation or as a phase of mixed farming. The acquisition of fur in the Northern Prairie Provinces proved a welcome and convenient means of adding to the year's profits, and this condition is likely to be settled and established districts, since certain valued fur-bearers tend to increase with settlement. A beneficial result of ferring a double benefit came into existence in Western Canada when it was found that owing to newly discovered tanning properties the live rabbit, which exists there in thousands, could be profitably disposed of in the fall of the year at Winnipeg firm alone handled more than 1,500,000 wild rabbit skins, paying for them and selling at 10 cents apiece. Furs taken in Western Canada today have an annual value of between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 and the attention being paid to fur farming should have the effect of augmenting this figure.

Canadian Hospitality

New Resident From Old Land Pays Tribute To Kindness Of Canadian People

When he was in the city as a guest of the Canadian Club luncheon the other day, Mr. J. W. Chadwick, deputy town clerk at Harrow-on-the-Hill, England, said that it was his first visit to Canada, and I assure you my impressions have been very good, especially with respect to the sociability and kindness of the Canadian people."

In an Old Country newspaper there appeared recently a letter from Mr. R. H. Hodgson, two years out from England, now a farmer near Mannville, Alta., who said that he found "We have done fairly well this year; it was our first crop. We had thirty-five acres of wheat in, and we got 1,070 bushels off it, so if we do as well this year we are not afraid of getting on. We were well done to by the Canadians when we got here. When we arrived at Manville it was four o'clock in the morning and we were met by four gentlemen who took us to a big hall. It was lovely and warm. There were beds for us and a box of provisions for us, and we stayed in this hall until the next day, for our baggage did not arrive until then. We were then taken to our new homes, nine miles out of Manville. We had a new house and new barn for our cattle, and the neighbors came in and had the fires on when we arrived. Everyone out here is so friendly."

Tribute to Canadian hospitality and friendliness, of course, are unstintingly paid by most people who visit the Dominion. It is refreshing to read these, nevertheless, if only to contrast them with the impressions of the Bishop of London—who recently said that he had failed to find an enthusiastic welcome for a Britisher in any part of the Empire.—Victoria Times.

Encourage Farm Study

Daughters Of Empire Will Give Bursaries To Quebec Students

To encourage the study of agriculture in the Province of Quebec, the Quebec provincial chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire have decided to give two bursaries to students in agriculture, beginning with the academic year 1929-1930. Impartiality towards the two races has marked the arrangement, as one of the bursaries is set apart for Macdonald College, while the other goes to the agricultural college at St. Anne de la Pocatiere, which is entirely French. It has been stipulated that the bursaries, each of them for $300 each, shall be awarded the students taking the highest marks in the final examinations of the second year of the degree course in agriculture. In both colleges there are short courses, but the scholarships of the I.O.D.E. are intended primarily to help students who wish to make a thorough study of the profession.

The Daughters of the Empire have found that very little was being done in Quebec to encourage the study of farming in an up-to-date and scientific manner, it was stated. As their policy is patriotic and educational, it seemed thoroughly fitting that these bursaries be given at the present time for agriculture, in order to show the work of the Daughters of the Empire in all phases of their country's welfare.

Fall Ploughing Sod For Corn

Should Be Planned Soon As Possible After Removal Of Hay Crop

Sod land to be put into corn next year according to tests made at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, should be ploughed as soon as possible after the hay crop has been removed. This is particularly recommended for newly land, which should be sown as frequently after the ploughing until late in October when it should again be ploughed and left rough over winter. According to the report of the Dominion Field Husbandman for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, the practice may not necessarily increase the yield of late fall over spring ploughing, but it lessens the work of weed eradication. While the second ploughing may in the case of light soil be left until spring the events have not been pretty well controlled, it is much better, under all conditions according to this report, in the case of clay soil to do the second ploughing in the autumn.

Park Animals Are Fearless

Wild life conservation measures adopted and enforced in the National Parks of Canada, have resulted in the wild creatures losing much of their fear of man. It is an uncommon occurrence to encounter bears right on the streets of Banff townsite, in Rocky Mountains Park, Alberta, while Sentinel Mountain sheep graze alongside certain sections of the park highways, undisturbed by the passing motor traffic.

The way prices are today says the Kitchener Record, about the only thing that a person has occasion to ask for change for a quarter is on Sunday morning.

AROUND THE WORLD IN RECORD TIME

John Henry Mears (left) and C. D. R. Collyer with their mount, achieved a new globe-girdling record by circling the world in 20 days, 15 hours and 5 seconds, two days less than the previous record.

Political economists in the United States are now beginning to realize the importance of Canada's food producing possibilities. Not only is the home population continually increasing, but the extension of its cultivated land is gradually contracting the vast open spaces once available for free stock ranges. The recent drain on Canada's beef and dairy cattle to replenish the depleted United States herds is more likely to increase than diminish, judging from the estimates of the situation appearing in newspapers south of the line. In the last fiscal year Canada exported 388,-671 head of cattle, worth $13,877,600. figures exceeded only in 1919, 1920 and 1921. A recent Canadian Pacific bulletin on ranching makes it evident that Canada's cattle have been moving across the border at prices which are indicative of the production the greatest profits ever received, and the prospect is that this situation will continue for some time. It goes on to point out that any possible surplus above United States requirements should find an outlet through the British Isles and, probably, Japan, the latter country having recently taken several shipments of Alberta cattle.

The bulletin has attracted attention in the United States, more particularly to the fact that, although the main line of the railway, in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta alone, runs for more than 1,600 acres of leased range land where giant herds of horses, cattle and sheep roam the prairies pasturing on the rich grasses as they did in the area's earliest stage of development, and where by reason of conditions that will probably always continue to do so. Within the railway belt of British Columbia are another 6,000,000 acres of land, the number of leases and the area comprised steadily increasing. A direct result of the interest in the industry was recently given by the Department of the Interior in an amendment, when it allowed the granting of 21-year leases.

This region has long been established as one of the greatest ranching areas on the North American continent, but it does not represent more than a relatively moderate proportion of the available country. Other sections of the Canadian West offer equal opportunities for raising of live stock on an extensive scale. Much interest is being taken in the Peace River tract of Northern Alberta and the valleys of the interior of British Columbia. The vast region of the Peace River are large tracts of good grazing land suitable for ranching, the bright prospect facing the industry at the present time, enticing many to that territory. Again, in the interior of the Pacific coast province are excellent stretches of range country, capable of carrying great herds of live stock. The attention which has been given to and the importation of numerous animals are continually being reported, the bulletin announces.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

Having seen Impington Hall, once the home of Samuel Pepys, a three hours' run took us to Nottingham. Its route were Huntingdon, the birthplace of Oliver Cromwell, Peterborough with its cathedral founded in 1118—here Catherine of Aragon was buried, and for some time the body of Mary, Queen of Scots, lay; Stamford, sacked by the Lancastrians in 1461; Oakham, where every traveller was required at one time to leave a horseshoe at the Castle, the earliest of the present collection being contributed by Queen Elizabeth, and Melton Mowbray, famous for its pork pies, Stilton cheese and fox hunting.

Our stay in Nottingham was for the night only. By 8.30 a.m. we were on our way to Newcastle, passing through Chesterton on the border of Sherwood Forest, of Robin Hood fame; Doncaster, of the races and butterscotch; Selby, with its Abbey built by William the Conqueror; York; Darlington, the birthplace of the modern railway, and Durham whose cathedral, one of the most dominantly situated in England, is acknowledged the grandest Norman cathedral in the country.

Lunch at York gave us opportunity to visit York Minster and to view the city wall. History is not merely evidenced but felt in York. Here died the Roman emperor Severus in the year 211. Here the son of Constantine the Great was proclaimed Emperor of the West. Here the Synod now in York the Romans conducted more than one campaign. In the ninth times York was a torchlight of Christianity. And yet York celebrated the 1360th anniversary of the founding of York Minster.

Associations fill our minds as we entered this glorious building; lofty and many memorial stained glass; Saxon cathedral we had seen from floor to roof 99 feet; clear; 162 feet in the choir. The east window, the second largest in the world, is 75 feet by 32 feet. The central glass is the most perfect and extensive in Britain. The "Jesse" window is the largest window in England. It is believed that the pagan temples of Diana stood on the site of York Minster. Here the Saxon King Edwin was baptized. Majesty and in the crypt; we saw the well from which he was baptized! How wonderful that! Then we should find within this venerable house of the Saints of Christianity! We found them on the oak panels below the "Five Sisters' window" which was recently restored, and unveiled by the Duchess of York in the memory of 1458 British women killed in the Great War. The Canadian names numbered 42.

One could not leave Yorkshire without a thought for the sheep and its farming, the neatness and thriftiness that characterizes this county of "broad acres." In this respect Yorkshire farming cares led anything we had seen.

Nowhere was it better seen than at the home of Mr. R. C. Mitchell, Rainesme, Cutterick, one of the most outstanding breeders of Shorthorns in Shorthorns in England today. By his courtesy some thirty of our party were modelled to see his herd and enjoy the hospitality of his home. As we rode on north we passed through the historic ground where the Shetland ponies breed had its beginnings, and it was interesting to see over Mr. Strickland's mantel the picture of one of his ancestors who sold cattle to Anne Cruickshank.

As we passed through Darlington, we stopped in the famous old market p'ace, the scene of historic contests and animated discussions on the relative merits of the cattle of various old-time founders of the Shorthorn breed.

Newcastle, like Nottingham, was reached in the evening and left early in the morning, so we had not time to view this busy city. Suffice it to say that we were impressed by its activity and the signs on every hand of its industrial and maritime importance.

The journey towards the Scottish border was through beautiful and increasingly hilly country, becoming wilder and more magnificent as we approached the Cheviots. Then a stretch of moorland to the top of a sugar loaf hill and a board marked "SCOTLAND" told us that we had reached the border. Cheers broke out and as each car-load crossed it our salute to "Caledonia, stern and wild." Soon, however, the sterner beauties of the Cheviots gave place to a kindlier prospect. Hard to believe that we were approaching the old battlefield of Cherry Chase where the forces of Hotspur fought the troops of Douglas by moonlight 540 years ago.

We lunched at Melrose which boasts in Melrose Abbey, the finest ruin in Scotland, founded by the Cistercians in 1136, but destroyed, rebuilt and extended at various times. The ruins are principally those of the 14th century. Near the High Altar in the heart of King Robert the Bruce, it is said to have been buried.

We had a view a mean duty to perform, a and friends to pay. We had been shocked while in Denmark, by news of the sudden death of Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, and before our return to England, but Dryburgh Abbey was one of those places which we were to see en route to Edinburgh. What more natural than that we should wish to pay a tribute for ourselves and Canada at the last resting place of the great Field Marshal. We had brought with us a wreath of poppies, obtainable from the British Legion, that body of ex-service men for whom the late Earl had shown such a deep love. It was late in the afternoon when we reached Dryburgh Abbey and the setting sun was shining through the trees. In this sheltered spot, quiet as in the grave, Haig's remains had meditated there, the world seemed far away. We felt the peace of Dryburgh—peace in York the Romans conducted more than one campaign. In the simple times York was a torchlight of Christianity. And yet York celebrated the 1360th anniversary of the founding of York Minster.

Would Remit Customs Duty

Grade Ewes and Pure Bred Rambouillet Rams From U.S. To Enter Free For Certain Period

An order-in-council has been passed providing for the remission of customs duty on grade ewes and purebred unregistered Rambouillet rams imported from the United States during the period commencing September 1st and ending November 30th. These sheep are imported for breeding purposes, and must conform to all regulations as to health and be subject to all quarantine orders. The supply of these classes of sheep in Canada is not sufficient to meet the demand, and a large quantity is available in the United States for export. Previous action has been taken during the past few years on recommendation of the Minister of Agriculture.

Coals To Newcastle

Modern Counterpart Of Old Adage In Shipment Of Whisky To Russia

The old adage about shipping coals to Newcastle has a modern counterpart in the shipment of about 85,000-000 worth of Canadian wheat to Russia, which went forward from Montreal recently.

Before the war Canada's greatest competitor in the wheat markets of the world was Russia, but conditions have so changed that not only is Canada now the world's greatest wheat exporter, but she is actually shipping wheat to Russia. The shipments are said to be necessary to meet a threatened food shortage in Russia.

PAUL CARRIES THE GOSPEL INTO EUROPE

Golden Text: "Come over into Macedonia, and help us." Acts 16:9.

Lesson: Acts 15:36; 16:15.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 60:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

The Macedonian Call, verses 9, 10. Paul was at Troas, the gateway to Europe. As he walked the streets he saw a motley crowd, among them many Europeans. As he stood in the harbor and gazed out at the distant islands fringing the coast of Macedonia, he must have longed to go over and possess that part of the world for Christ. It was a natural vision which appeared to Paul that night, of a man of Macedonian standing before him and begging him to "Come over into Macedonia and help us." "There was that mighty power which has been described as the call coming upon a soul ready to obey the divine behest to the uttermost."

"How could he take this shape a man standing beseeching him? Perhaps because an active imagination tends always to personify human qualities. Paul was accustomed to a friend that sometimes, as he preached in Troas there were multitude of faces in the congregation, expressing their multitudinous wants and woes, those faces would by melt into a composite face, all the people becoming blended in a single person whose vast need moved the preacher profoundly, and to whose he poured out his secret soul in impassioned entreaties. It may have been then with Paul as it was with Macedonians. His eager yearning to help would not allow him to think of them impersonally as a collection of individuals, but only as a composite personality whose need was so acute that it was meant for God to help them. I think the success of the missionary enterprise always will depend upon the power of Christians to visualize and personalize the need of non-Christians in this way."—James A. Beebe.

Paul was confident that when the Almighty wants me to do, or not to do, something definite for him, he finds a way of letting me know.—Lincoln.

God was bidding him preach in Macedonia. Paul believed it, and "straightway" he made his plans to obey God's orders.

Very few old men, W. Robertson Nicoll thinks, look back with regret upon the decisions that they made at the crises of their careers, and the reason is, he says, that we are too apt as much to our own wisdom as we think, and too grateful to ourselves we have been guided.

Only desperate men would ever have dreamed of such a plan as theirs. The camp was fenced with eight strands of barbed wire, and every trail leading out carried an arc light. But with the aid of a file which one of the men possessed, they would cut the two lower strands, at dusk, just before the lamps were lighted, and crawl through. At the last moment the other two men grew panicky.

"It is sure death," said one, "they'll catch us. I can see how they are watching us. I'd go, and take a chance only I have a wife and kid in Tye and I think of them."

The other man declared the plan a foolish one on account of the weather. "January in Germany is too much like the corner of Portage and Main," he said.

A new batch of prisoners had come in that day, and one of them, a man who was standing near enough to hear, came to Jack and asked if he might go. He was a grizzled man of about thirty-five.

"I have no one defending on me," he said, "and I have already tried twice."

"Come along, sure," said Jack "there is room and to spare."

"Thank you so much" said the man lonsitily.

Jack was startled by his politeness. A prison camp does not always foster the social amenities.

"Your name is Doran, is it not?" asked his new friend.

"Mine is English—at least that is my nickname. We are both from Canada. We might as well try it as die here. there is always a chance."

While the prisoners were taking their exercise just at nightfall walking up and down the enclosure listlessly, aimlessly, Jack lay beside the wire, his face close to the lowest strands of wire. This done he crawled through. English following. The prisoners, who were all in the secret, formed a rectangular group, before and in front of them to hide them from the camp.

And into the bog went the two desperate men, fighting for what we hold so lightly because we have never lost it. Their enemies were cold and hunger and the pitiless rains which seemed to fall every day. They journeyed only by night. Jack found his way through knowledge of the country to be remarkable. He seemed to know every village, and he spoke German as well as a native. In this way they were able to travel after dark on the roads, and once they got a lift from a kind-hearted waggoner, with whom English carried on a long conversation, eliciting the information that everyone was tired of the war, but it was considered the wise act course to give the English a proper beating and teach them not to disturb another. He asked them to come in to his house for supper, but they were afraid to do that, their Rus-sian clothes would betray them. The kind-hearted man gave them some sticks of liquorice from a bag he was taking home to his children.

"Think of that, the German," said English that night as they continued their journey, "genial, simple, kind-hearted. The Germans that I knew when I lived here was a mass of music, fairy tales, and a certain child-like simplicity. There was an old woman who used to tell fairy stories to us, turn desert places into gardens. But I was always afraid of the Prussians and their goose-step-ache. That, combined with the simplicity of the Germans, has made the war possible."

The fugitives had need of all the advantages English's knowledge of the country and language gave them. The middle of the year was unfavorable. The leaves were gone from the trees, making the ter difficult. There were no young leaves and berries to come in the field to furnish hungry travellers with a handy meal, and they could not be sure of finding a prosperous chicket or a wood of field-fit just when daylight was coming, but there was one advantage in winter—it saved the spirits were larger.

A hundred times Jack blessed the happy change which brought English into his camp that day. His knowledge of wood-lore was wonderful — he seemed to carry everything that was needed a sort of Robinson Senior from "Swiss Family Robinson." He made a fire each morning in the gray dawn to dry their clothes, explaining to Jack that a fire was almost invisible then. In daylight the smoke shows, at night the flame, but in the steely blue dawn a fire can be enjoyed in comparative safety.

In two weeks they reached the river which would determine their fate. Beyond it lay Holland and safety.

CASTORIA

The first night they stayed in the woods on the bank, trying to think out a plan. The river was in flood, so swimming was out of the question. Uprooted trees floated in its current. Vainly they hoped for a boat or a raft. The magical happenings which come to travellers in books did not come to them—not a boat, not a raft, not even a rope.

From their cover in the trees Jack and his companion could hear the sounds from the other side of the river, the ringing of bells, the shunting of cars. There seemed to be only one way, and that was to attempt the bridge. It probably would be guarded heavily, but English's knowledge of German might help. It looked to be the only chance.

All day they waited for the night to come. They had two good German smocks, stolen from a clothes-line, and Jack had a warm pair of stockings. To get these English had gone boldly into a garden as they came through a village. He had a way of quieting the dogs by a peculiar whistle and this gave him a decided advantage. The dogs who came out barking fiercely, changed their attitude when he spoke to them, and soon showed a disposition to follow him.

If the dogs could bring us food we would have a splendid feast," he said that day, as they sat in the spruce thicket. "The chances are against us, but we must take them."

"One of us!" exclaimed Jack. "It must be both or none!"

"No!" said the other. "It does not matter much about me. No one cares so very much, and it happens that the one person who cares a little bit about me, cares very much about you."

Jack looked at his companion. He was tall, forty, long-nosed, and rather whiskered, his eyes bloodshot — and wondered if his mind were going. "And who is she?" he asked politely, as if he would humor his poor friend's mood.

"Your wife, Helma."

"Helma!" Jack repeated. "My Heinz!"

"Yes, yours—she is the only woman except my mother who ever cared whether I lived or died."

Then he told Jack of his quarrel with Lorsen in Eagle Mines, and of Helma's kindness, and of the week he had stayed in her house.

"She asked me to pray for you Jack," he concluded, "and I kicked her golden hair. She told me she was sure you would go to the war, and asked me if I cet you would it be for your friend. That is why I came. It seemed as if I must come when I found you at Victoria."

Jack's voice trembled as he spoke. "Then you are Arthur Warner, and I have been doing you wrong in my thoughts. No one told me you were hurt—they only gave me half the story. When I got back I found they had gone without a word. She had been gone a week—I was a month late—but she might have waited."

The tree trunks were growing red shadows over the sweeping current of the river.

"Did you not know there was a good reason for her going?" Arthur asked, after a pause.

"I knew nothing," said Jack. "What reason could there be?"

"She went to the city to a hospital to give birth to your child."

Jack's face grew white with pain. "How do you know?" he whispered.

"She told me. I wanted her to come to England and train me as a nurse, and when I urged her, she showed me a little dress she had been making, and told me, and she told me she was glad. Her only sorrow was that you were away and the adventure you were on was dangerous."

"I did not know," Jack groaned.

There was silence then, when neither man could speak.

Teeth and Health
Issued By The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council and Published By The Saskatchewan Dental Society
THE SIX YEAR MOLAR

You have heard your dentist call this first double tooth "the six year molar"?

Why is this? You have perhaps guessed it—that it is because it begins to appear at about the sixth year.

Now, you have been observant enough to note that it is a first tooth in the sense that no tooth was lost to make room for it.

And coming in at this early age, you may have thought of it as "baby tooth" which would, in due time, be lost.

So, in your child, you have perhaps neglected to give it the care that it deserved—with disastrous results.

Without doubt, this neglect is the most common of dental sins committed by parents, and perhaps the gravest consequences to their children.

Because, should this tooth become badly decayed within from four to six years following its eruption as to infect the "pulp," your dentist as a rule has no recourse but to treat the former—and, losing the tooth, the whole series is deranged, since, in a real sense, the six year molar is the key tooth of the dental arch.

However, Nature is gracious, for sometimes you will find that, where this tooth has been lost at an early age, the second molar has "drifted" forward to fill the space, with the third molar advancing in turn as it emerges. But this is only rarely the case—better a little care at the proper time to prevent this trouble rather than to rely on Nature for a cure.

Baby's Own Tablets Are Fine For Nervous, Sleepless Children
From Canada—The fame of Baby's Own Tablets is spreading over the land and Mothers recommend them to other mothers and wherever they have tried it nothing but words of praise are heard for these pleasant tasting little tablets that promptly relieve the minor ailments of young children.
"Baby's Own Tablets are one of the best remedies for children's ailments I have ever used," says Mrs. Albert Allen, of Athens, Ont. "My little girl was nervous and could not sleep. I tried the Tablets and she was relieved at once. She was also troubled with constipation and colic and being nervous to help her. I had used the Tablets but a short time before her bowels were regular. All mothers should keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house, for they are a valuable remedy."
Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Little Helps For This Week

"And now men see not the bright light which is in the clouds; but the wind passeth, and cleanseth them."—Job.

His purposes will ripen fast,
Unfolding every hour;
The bud will have a little taste,
But sweet will be the flower.

Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan His work in vain;
God is His own interpreter,
And He will make it plain.
—William Cowper.

There is nothing in what has befallen or befalls you which justifies impulsive or'l persistent. God is inscrutable, but not wrong. Remember if the cloud is over you that there is a bright light always on the other side; also, that the time is coming either in this world or the next, when that cloud will be swept away, and the light and warmth of the sun and wisdom poured around you. If your life is dark, then walk by faith, and God is pledged to keep you so safe as if you could understand everything.

Announcing the

NEW UTILITY TRUCK

-another Sensational Chevrolet Value

4 Speeds Forward • 4 Wheel Brakes

NOW Chevrolet presents the New Utility Truck—a low-priced haulage unit embodying every feature of advanced engineering developed through years of experience in commercial car-building and proved by exhaustive testing on the General Motors proving ground!

Typical of the progressive design embodied in this sensational new truck are a four-speed forward transmission, powerful semi-locking four-wheel brakes, ball-bearing steering mechanism, front shock absorber springs, air-balanced seat cushions and chassis front bumper. In addition, it offers all those basic features which have been so largely instrumental in Chevrolet's tremendous success as the world's largest builder of trucks—rugged rear axle with one-piece banjo-type housing . . . semi-elliptic springs set parallel to the load . . . completely enclosed valve-in-head motor with air cleaner, oil filter, positive action vane type oil pump . . . thermostatic control of water circulation . . . low loading height . . . generous road clearance and countless other features of comparable importance.

Visit your Chevrolet dealer and get a trial-load demonstration of this remarkable new truck! It has been developed to meet the modern conditions of business transportation and body types are available for every type of business.
